More than if Mardy had expressed herself in words, did the congressman make a habit of studying her face, and before many months had passed there was need for very little tablet writing in their conversation. He could detect in the most minute variation of expression her meaning, and this constant studying of her face came to be as much a pleasure to him as anything else that made up his busy days.

Then, as spring came on, the congressman became more than ordinarily pensive. Even at the capitol it was commented on that Pragg had some cause to worry, and Mardy's most inquiring and sympathetic look of entreaty did not draw his secret from his lips.

One day when Mardy arrived in the morning, she found the congressman already at his desk—something entirely unprecedented—and Mardy seemed to know when she first caught his glance, that at last the time had come for her to know his secret care.

"I have something to tell you," he began, abruptly, not looking at her—though he usually studied her face with such keen interest. "I have secured the services of one of the greatest of throat specialists—Doctor Spiggenheim—perhaps you have heard of him. He is coming down to Washington as a special concession. He'll be here this morning. I want him to examine your vocal cords, and see if something cannot be done for them. He says it is a marvelous case—that your dumbness hasn't affected your hearing or any of your other senses."

Had the congressman been watching Mardy's face then he might have seen that she started and then turned perceptibly paler. She made no written reply or acknowledgment of her gratitude to her would-be benefactor, and they were both uncommunicative for the rest of the morning.

At Mardy's written request she saw the great specialist alone, and then the specialist saw the congressman alone, and then the congressman, having handed the specialist his thousand-dollar fee, saw Mardy alone.

The congressman looked pensive and grave. Very tenderly and, trying to conceal his own disappointment, he told Mardy of the specialist's verdict—that, strangely enough, Mardy's speechlessness was incurable. This time the congressman studied Mardy's face, but it showed nothing save a studied immobility.

They both tried to go back to the work of the day, but unsuccessfully, and then the congressman broke the silence. "I'll have to tell you what is worrying me—and torturing me," he said. "I'll tell you, and then you can decide what we ought to do. Mardy, I want to marry you. I had never thought of marrying before, and I don't want to make you my wife unless it is going to make you happier. I am tortured with the doubt whether your infirmity wouldn't be such a handicap in your life as my wife, with all the social duties that it would be bound to bring you, that we would both be unhappy because of it. I had hoped Spiggenheim would be able to hold out hope, but he tells me there is none. Mardy, what shall I do?"

There was a short pause, and then, in a soft, low voice, Mardy answered his question. "Forgive me." Then she went on talking rapidly and fluently, and the congressman hung upon each word as if hearing a woman talk had always been the joy of his life. "I came to Washington, hoping to get a position in one of the departments, but others more influential crowded me out. Then I saw your advertisement. My funds were exhausted, and I couldn't go home and tell the family I had lost out. I had promised to send home part of my salary—and—well, I pretended I was dumb, and everyone in Washington thinks I am. I have never spoken to anyone, though I do talk to myself in my room at night, so's not to forget how. Then when you spoke of Spiggenheim, I thought you suspected me, and would despise me for the deception and would dismiss me if you thought I really could talk. So—well, I told Spiggenheim the truth and promised him a hundred dollars—all my savings—if he would tell you the case was hopeless."

The congressman sat back in his chair and let out a hearty laugh that showed his melancholy had been forever dispelled, and for the first time he heard the contagious tones of Mardy's laugh, which she had been suppressing for months.

"One thousand, one hundred dollars," he reflected; "well it was worth that ten times over—and a hundred times over, if I had it. I never thought that it would take a throat specialist to cure me of a life-long melancholy—for, Mardy, I have never been completely happy in my life until this minute."

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

SUFFERED WITH NERVES
COULD NOT KEEP QUIET

Diseases of the nervous system are very common.

All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and wornout by household duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with their nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy, or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the shaking nerves, strengthen the weak heart and build up the entire system.

Mrs. F. Bailey, 221 Earl St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "I was suffering very much with my nerves, so much so that I could not keep myself quiet at all. I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I bought three boxes, and I must say I have derived much benefit from them, so much so that my friends have all noticed the change in me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

AUSTRALIAN SLANG.

Differs Greatly From That of Other Anglo-Saxon Countries.

The Australian language differs in many respects from the Canadian or English or South African; no reader of a Melbourne or Sydney paper, whether he live in London or Toronto or Cape Town, but will find expressions novel in the mother tongue as he knows it. And Australian slang has naturally words and phrases of its own. Some words are purely English—as "blighter," "boko" for nose), "quod" (prison), and "twig" (to observe). A good many are American, with the flavor of the California coast, from which or through which they were imported. But some are antipodean, as any reader will find from C. J. Dennis' "Ginger Mick," a little book of slangy poems about an Australian soldier. We learn, for example, that "to toss in the alley" is to give up the ghost; that the "'ead serang" is the commander; that a "tabby" is a female. To "track with a girl" is elegant Australian for wooing her. A "white-headed boy" is a favorite or pet. When an Australian wishes to express surprise, instead of saying "Behold!" or "What now!" he ejaculates "What price!" When an Australian goes to his work he goes to his "yakker." When he stops doing anything he "tawes a pull." Whereas any good American would say that an enterprise was "put on the blink," or perhaps would simply say "queered," the Australian takes from cricket the phrase that some one has "queered the pitch." Our "rush the growler" is converted into "run the rabbit." A clergyman is a "pilot cove," which any one acquainted with our own Western "sky pilot" would comprehend. "Back chat" is another phrase which can easily be studied out. Less easily comprehensible are "a fair cow," used to characterize any person, thing, place, or happening that is utterly obnoxious; and "crack a boo," meaning to tell a secret. "To do a bunk" is to depart. De Quincey and his generation could have made out "Brums," a word for tawdry finery that is obviously derived from Brummagem. Mr. Dennis' book is of note as pointing to the need for a good dictionary of Australian slang in the interests of philology. But doubtless there are scholars at the Universities of Melbourne and Victoria who are looking after that. Such phrases as "to poke mullock" for to deride, or "to sprunk" for to speak, ought not be lost to the world.

A Thoughtful King.

A writer in The Philadelphia Public Ledger is reminded of the tale Julian Story once told about his picture of King Edward VII. as Prince of Wales. "I met His Majesty at the opera in London," said the noted Philadelphia portrait painter, "and I made so bold as to ask him if I might paint his picture. He arranged an hour with his equerry, Sir Henry Ponsonby, and he came to my Kensington studio. Thinking the first-appointed hour might be the last as well, I worked with all my might. Now and then he'd leave the dais and saunter about the room looking at things, puffing at a big and very black cigar. But I went ahead full tilt, filling in the details till he resumed his seat. By the end of the hour my thumb was stiff from holding it in the palette. He saw me massaging it. 'What's the matter, Mr. Story?' he exclaimed. I told him, and I showed him the red ring the thumbhole had made around the base of the thumb. The next time he came—he came several times—he said: 'I couldn't sleep very well last night. I was worrying about the rice famine in India and thinki about the arrangements for the marriage of my daughter, the Princess Maud, to Prince Charles of Denmark. And then I wondered if you couldn't have a pad made for your palette so that it wouldn't hurt your thumb.' The thoughtfulness the anecdote illustrates was the secret of the King's hold on the affections of all who knew him.

History Repeats.

"The penalties for poaching used to be very severe."

"Yes. And we're drifting around to those times again. As values are going I shouldn't be surprised to see stealing a watermelon or a chicken classed as grand larceny."

LAUGH AND GROW FAT.

"Laugh and grow fat," is an old saying laden with value for nervous people in particular. Drop the worry habit and use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and you will soon get the nervous system restored to good condition. Digestion will improve, appetite will return, and you will find such symptoms as headache and sleeplessness fast disappearing.

MADGE LORING'S DINNER

CHAPTER XII.

The night of Madge Loring's dinner arrived. My dress had come home in ample time, and was perfect. At least Annie said so, and I thought so too. I had taken a nap in the afternoon so that I would be fresh. I had a most uncomfortable habit of becoming sleepy about ten o'clock.

George had come home early, and was in high good humour. Of course I did not know that the stock market had gone as he wanted it too, that he had made a great deal of money in the rise in certain stocks which he controlled. In fact I knew nothing at all of his business. I doubt if I should have understood had he explained.

He was delighted with my dress. And the cloak he had bought me was perfect; a combination of chiffon, satin and chinchilla fur that was fascinating.

We were in plenty of time for the dinner. And I felt very excited and happy. George had been really nice to me—had said he was satisfied with the way I looked. But I was a little frightened when I met all the new people at Mrs. Loring's; and more than delighted when I found that Merton Gray was to take me in.

"I am so glad I am going to sit next to you," I confessed as he gave me his arm, "I should be frightened to death to be next to a stranger." Then catching his smile I added, "Someone I had never met until tonight."

An Imposing Table.

I never had seen a dining table set in so scintillating a manner. It fairly blinded me with its glitter of Sevres and Venetian glass. The wine goblets were set at each plate in an ascending row; their number making me wonder how in the world I was going to refuse to drink anything, without making myself conspicuous.

The sideboard and serving table were also loaded with silver and glass. The walls were of tapestry, hunting scenes mostly. The furniture was of the richest red mahogany. A truly wonderful room.

The food too was of the finest. We had many dishes, and sat at table for an interminable time; or so it seemed to me.

The conversation was as varied as the food. It wandered from American art, to the latest new topical song, and the most popular moving picture artist. I listened eagerly, simply replying to Merton Gray when he addressed me; for I was uncertain of myself. I did not know how to talk to this highbrow crowd which seemed so friendly with my husband.

"You are very quiet," Merton Gray said.

"I am very curious," I made reply.

"What about?"

"Oh, people—everything."

"If you want to know anything special about them," he indicated the guests, "ask me. I am a walking directory."

"Very well, I'll remember," I answered, and I thought if a man like Merton Gray were my husband, he would not be so critical of me; of what I did. He would consider that I was much younger than his usual associates and make allowances.

Merton Gray Interests.

Because of my desire to talk, my pleasure in meeting someone to whom I could express myself freely, I perhaps gave Merton Gray more thought than I otherwise should have done. I only knew that everything he talked of interested me, gave me joy. I had at once feared the group of women at the table. These artistically-arrayed, socially perfect women who seemed so to delight in holding George's attention. I saw how easily and naturally he smiled. How very much at home he seemed to be in their company.

He had seemed to forget me entirely after the rush of conversation and the exchange of greetings was over. Of course he probably supposed me engaged with those near me. But I tried repeatedly to catch his eye, to win a smile, but with no success. For all the attention he paid me I might as well be sitting at home alone.

That it was not considered "good form" for a man to show his own wife attention in public I had yet to learn.

I felt chagrined, dazed and frightened when a very showy woman about thirty years old came over to talk to me. The men were still at the table smoking, they would join us presently; but my gaze wandered often to the door. If only either George or Merton Gray would appear!

"Is your husband here?" I asked. I had not caught her name, and made my first faux pas.

"Unfortunately I have none! I am a widow," she said in a peculiar tone; not as if she were a bit sorry or sad because of it.

"Oh! I'm sorry!" I said tritely. Then subsided.

Later I heard her telling one of the men that that child George Howard married had asked her point blank where her husband was.

"What did you tell her?" he laughed.

"That I was a widow. How do I know here he went?" and they both laughed heartily. It seemed terribly heartless to me.

Later I learned that her name was Julia Collins and that she had been two years a widow.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre At Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

ASHAMED TO GO OUT

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by unsightly pimples, blotches, flesh worms and various other blood diseases.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted as well as pain and regret to their friends.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mould of beauty have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost and their possessor rendered unhappy for years.

Why, then, consent to rest under this cloud of embarrassment?

There is an effectual remedy for all these defects.

It is Burdock Blood Bitters. This remedy will drive out all the impurities from the blood and leave the complexion healthy and clear.

Mrs. Katherine Henry, Port Sydney, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my face was so covered with pimples I was ashamed to go out at all. I tried several remedies, but they were of no use. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle, and by the time it was used I could see a difference. I then got two more, and when I had used them the pimples were completely gone. I can highly recommend B.B.B."

CRIMINAL'S ESCAPE CAUSES SUSPENSION OF FOUR KEEPERS

No Trace of Desperate Criminal Found After He Leaves Auburn Prison—Convict Has to Climb Over Roof, Pass Through Women's Quarters and Scale Wall

MAY COME TO CANADA

AUBURN, N.Y., March 11.—Reynolds, Forsbrey, credited by the police with being the most desperate and most dangerous criminal in the United States, made his escape from State Prison here. Confined in an isolation cell in the old death house of the prison, kept entirely out of contact with the outside world and watched day and night by keepers, the man nevertheless managed to saw away the bars of his cell and escape unobserved. It is Forsbrey's third escape from prison since 1912, and this time he went a long way toward making good his boast that the jail never has been built that will hold him.

No man saw Forsbrey leave his cell—the cell house or the prison reservation. Yet to make his escape the man had to climb over a roof, pass through the women's prison and then scale a wall. Apparently he did it all unobserved.

FOUR KEEPERS SUSPENDED.

The prison officials are deeply chagrined over the escape of Forsbrey. James M. Carter, State Superintendent of Prisons, arrived here and began an investigation, the first result of which was the suspension of four keepers, Warren Sullivan, Howard Douglas, John Deachman and E. H. Chatelle. Forsbrey, it was discovered, first sawed away the bars in the top of his cell and then the bars covering a skylight.

Forsbrey had been gone an hour before his absence was discovered. Immediately the alarm was sounded and the police all over the country were notified to watch out for the man. One report had it that he made his way to Syracuse in a moving van, but as a matter of fact no trace of him has been found.

Forsbrey is well known to the police throughout the State. Also he is known as a man who will stop at nothing to prevent being captured, so if he is rounded up it is believed there will be some shooting before he is taken. As Forsbrey never had been able to keep away from New York for long, it is believed that ultimately he will be caught there. The New York police know Forsbrey better than anybody else, and it is expected that the first policeman who sees him will shoot first and arrest him afterwards.

WAS SERVING 48 YEAR TERM

Forsbrey, who is credited ith several murders, innumerable robberies, and a variety of other crimes, was serving a sentence of forty-eight years for murder in the second degree, assault and jail breaking. In 1912, when he first came to the attention of the police as a desperate criminal, Forsbrey held up and shot Morris Schwartzkopf, a peddler of No. 8 Delancey street. Pursued by a policeman, he entered a cigar store, and shot and dangerously wounded a clerk. Then he ran into a cellar, where he was caught.

While in the Tombs prison awaiting trial, Forsbrey's sweetheart, Mary Ryan, smuggled a bottle of acid and some saws into his cell. Keepers discovered the saws and Forsbrey was put into a solitary cell and the guard over him doubled. Three days later he got out of his cell, dropped into the prison yard, climbed over a twenty foot wall and escaped. Three weeks later he was caught hiding under a bed in the apartment occupied by Mary Ryan. Only by persistently following the girl were the police able to find Forsbrey's hiding place.

EFFORTS TO ESCAPE FREQUENT

After trial and conviction Forsbrey was sent to Sing Sing prison. He kept the officials there guessing constantly and they finally arranged to have him transferred to Dannemora prison. There although closely watched, Forsbrey managed to manufacture a bomb, which he had intended to fill with gasoline and use to fire the prison, effecting a general jail delivery in which he would take part. He was detected just in time and again sent to solitary confinement. At this time Mary Ryan was found a short distance from the prison with money and clothing. She confessed that she had arranged to meet Forsbrey and that they intended to make a break for Canada.

A few days after this attempt Forsbrey was caught shaping tools out of iron taken from his cell bed. By this time he had affected the nerves of the Dannemort officials to much that they arranged to have him transferred to Auburn prison. Last April he walked out of his cell in broad daylight, beat a guard unconscious with an iron bar, donned the guard's clothing and then walked out of the prison right under the noses of a dozen guards. A few hours later he was captured in a barn near by. He said then that he never would have been taken alive had he been armed.

CAREER OF CRIME BEGAN AT 15

Forsbrey is now thirty-three years old. His career of crime began when he was fifteen. Since then he has broken about every law on the statute books. He is of slight build and shows no outward signs of his desperate character He is very nervous, a fact which the police say is due to his addiction to drugs, especially cocaine.

Naturally the word has gone out from here to look for Mary Ryan. The last heard of her she was living in Brooklyn Some months ago there was a report that the woman had abandoned Forsbrey and fallen in love with another convict, who opened a correspondence with her after Forsbrey showed her picture to him. The authorities, however, believe that the woman still is true to Forosbrey and that sooner or later the two will be found together.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases, and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases, and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening, and refreshing the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of linestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone an enhusiast on inside bathing.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAS. SUTHERLAND)

Luke 15th chap., 18th verse, I will arise and go to my father.

This parable spoken by our Lord is called the crown and pearl of all Christ's parables, a masterpiece unexcelled in all literature. It is intended to show the nature of repentance, and the Lord's readiness to welcome and bless him. It largely and fully sets forth the riches of gospel grace; and it has been and will be, while the world stands, of unspeakable use to poor sinners, to direct, and to encourage them in repenting, and returning to God. The parable represents God as a common father to all mankind, God is the God, not of the Jews only, but of the Gentiles, Rom. 3:29, the same Lord over all, who is rich in mercy to all that call upon him. It represents the children of men, as of different characters, though all related to God as their common father. The younger son is the prodigal, whose character and case are here designed to represent that of a sinner; that of every one of us, in our natural state, but of some more especially. Without any cause he ungratefully and improperly demanded of his father the goods that fell to his share. It is bad and the beginning of worse, when men look upon God's gifts as debts due to them. The great folly of sinners, and that which ruins them is being content in this life-time to receive their good things. They covet only present gratification, but have no care for future happiness. Why did he desire to have his portion. He was weary of the good order and discipline of his father's family. See the folly of many young men, who are religiously educated, and never think themselves their own masters, till they have broken God's bands in sunder and instead of them have bound themselves with the cords of evil habits. Here is the origin of all wanderings away from God, they will not be bound by the rules of God's government, they will know nothing else than what they themselves please. This youth was proud of himself and had great belief in his own ability; more young people are ruined by pride than any other cause. Our first parents fell and ruined their race by a foolish ambition to be independent, and this is the cause of many persisting in their sins. The father computed what he had to dispose of between his sons and gave the younger son his share. God is a kind father to all his children and gives to them all, life and breath, and all things even to the evil and unthankful.

Now the condition of the prodical represents to us a sinful state, that miserable state into which many fall. We may all discern some features of our own character in that of the prodigal son. Sometimes we count God's service a burden. Have we not gone far from God and abused the best blessings bestowed on us. While many have been ruined by prosperity in sin, many have to be thankful that they have been afflicted and disappointed and by these things have been brought back to God. 1st a sinful state is a state of departure and distance from God. He took his journey from his father's house. Sinners have fled from God. This world is the far country in which they take up their new home, and in its service and enjoyment they spend their all. 2nd, a sinful state is a spending state; there he wasted his substance with riotous living. Those that waste the gifts that God has given them will have to answer for it. This is to be applied spiritually. Those who misemploy their thoughts mispend their time, and neglect to employ all their opportunities, and the gifts of Providence, which were to enable them to serve God and to do good instead use all for their own pleasures, will miss heaven and all. 3rd, a sinful state is a wanting state. When he had spent all there arose a mighty famine in that land, everything was scarce and dear, and he began to be in want. Riotous living in a little time, brings men to want, especially when bad times hasten on the end. This represents the misery of sinners who have thrown away their own mercies, the favour of God, and the warnings of conscience for the pleasures of sense, and the wealth of the world, and then they are left ready to perish for the want of them and have neither the necessaries for food nor raiment, nor any provision for hereafter. 4th, a sinful state is a vile, servile state. When this young man's waste had brought him to want, he was brought to servitude. This mode of living brings men to be slaves. The devil is the citizen in that far country, sinners join themselves to him, enter his service and look to him, and depend on him for their pleasures. They that commit sin are the servants of sin, John 8:34. He sent him into the fields not to feed sheep, but to feed swine. The servants of the devil make provision for the flesh to fulfil the desires thereof. 5th, a sinful state is a state of unrest. When the prodigal began to be in want, he thought to help himself by going to service. When sinners depart from God they promise themselves satisfaction in the course that they have chosen, but they will be disappointed, they are labouring for that which satisfieth not, Isaiah 55:2. The wealth of the world and the gratification of the senses will never satisfy the soul wants or desires, nor supply their needs. Hosea, 12-1. Isai. 44-20. 6th, a sinful state is a state which cannot expect relief from any creature. No man gave unto him. This, in the application of the parable, intimated that those who depart from God, cannot be helped by anyone else. In vain do we cry to the world, to the flesh, they have nothing to give to help us. If we refuse God's held, where can we look for help. 7th, a sinful state, is a state of death. A sinner is dead in trespasses and sins, destitute of spiritual life, no union with Christ, no spiritual senses exercised, no living to God, therefore dead. The prodigal in the far country was dead to his father and to his family. 8th, a sinful state is a lost state. This my son was lost, lost to everything that was good, lost to his father's house, they had no joy for him. Those who are separated from God are lost, only infinite mercy can recover them. 9th, a sinful state, is a state of madness and frenzy. This is inferred in that expression, when he came to himself, he was beside himself, when he left his father's house. Madness is in the hearts of sinners. Eccles, 9-3. What a vile mas-

Russian Government Moves To Moscow

CONSIDERABLE ACTIVITY ON CANADIAN FRONT

Russians May Have To Fight Both Germans And Japanese

Government is Moving to Moscow as a First Step in the Organization of Resistance on All Fronts---Treaty of Alliance With the Finnish Reds Has Been Signed--Ill-treatment By Germans is Reported--American and French Troops Carry Out Successful Raids.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen—Copyright 1918 by the United Press).

PETROGRAD, March 10. — The Government is moving to Moscow, as a first step in the organization of resistance on all fronts, according to an official press announcement to-day.

It is believed it may be necessary for the Bolsheviki Government to fight both Germany and Japan.

The Bolsheviki Congress has discarded the name "Social Democratic" and adopted the title of "The Communistic Party," as it does not wish to have any similarity to the German party, of which Philip Scheidermann is the leader in the Reichstag.

A treaty of alliance with the Finnish Reds has been signed by the Bolsheviki Government, offsetting the German treaty with the White Guards in Finland.

Details of the German treatment of the inhabitants of the lands which they have overrun continue to pour in. In Finland the German police and military system is invoked against the people. The newspapers have been suppressed. Workingmen's organizations have been dispersed and hundreds arrested.

Many are reported executed in Esthonia, where even the Bourgeoisie have been strongly curbed by the Germans. (The Bourgeoisie were suspected by the Bolsheviki of favouring the German invasion).

Most violent persecutions were reported from Riga.

Smolensk reported heavy German forces moving from Homel towards Hovozibkoff, which city the Russians are preparing to defend. The Germans concentrating on the Orsha front have retreated.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 11.—(Official).—A successful raid, in which several of the enemy were killed or taken prisoners, and two machine guns were captured, was carried out by us last night south of St. Quentin. A party of the enemy which approached our lines northwest of Labassee was driven off by artillery and machine fire. This is the first report of any British activity on the line south of St. Quentin since the British took over the sector from the French several weeks ago. Previously the British front had extended only to St. Quentin.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 11.—British aviators of the Naval Air Service yesterday made a raid over Belgium, dropping bombs on an airdrome and ammunition dump at Engel, the Admiralty announces. Two fires were started. In aerial combats three enemy airplanes were destroyed and four others driven down out of control. All the British planes returned safely.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, March 11.—United States Secretary of War Baker has arrived safely in France for an inspection of American troops at the front.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 11.—According to Morning Post despatches to Petrograd, Foreign Secretary Trotsky was dismissed by Premier Lenine, because he would not agree to accept Germany's peace terms. Trotsky's opinion was that Russia should decline humiliations inflicted on Russia by the treaty, and should wage a guerilla warfare to the bitter end.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, March 11.—Enemy aviators bombed Naples this morning, killing many civilians, including seven occupants of a hospital. Twenty bombs were dropped.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, March 11. — The German ice-breaker Hindenburg, operating south of the Aland Islands, struck a mine and sank on Saturday with several members of the crew.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 11. — American and French soldiers, operating together, conducted successful raids on widely separated sectors, demolishing German trenches at three points to a width of one hundred metres and to a depth of three hundred metres.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, March 11.—The Turkish garrison of Hit retired 22 miles after the British took the city, it was officially announced from the Mesopotamian front to-day.

The Turks halted at Kan-Bagdadi. British aviators dropped bombs on the retreating enemy columns, inflicting heavy casualties.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, March 11.—Austrian troops which apparently were making an attempt to cross the Piave River were prevented from doing so yesterday by the Italian batteries, which sunk rafts and boats in the river opposite Fagare.

STOCKHOLM, March 11.—Heavy fighting is continuing in Finland between the Finnish White Guards and the Russian Red Guard troops, according to an official statement issued Saturday from the White Guard at Vasa.

RUMOURS ARE FOUNDATIONLESS

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, March 11.— Rumours that Premier Lloyd George's resignation was impending, were considered utterly without foundation to-day. He is expected to make a thorough reply to his criticism in the House of Commons this afternoon, discussing the relations between the Government and the Press.

PREMIER DEFENDS APPOINTMENT OF LORD NORTHCLIFFE

Government Grateful That He Has Undertaken the Work Which He Has Been Assigned, States Lloyd George

RELATIONS WITH PRESS

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, March 11.—"Journalists and newspaper owners are holding high offices in every great Allied country," Premier Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons this afternoon, in discussing the relations of the Government with the Press. "As soon as Lord Northcliffe and Lord Rothermere were apointed they gave up all directions of their newspapers. Both are men of exceptional ability."

"Northcliffe has made a special study of conditions in enemy countries," Lloyd George said. "The Government is grateful that he has undertaken the work which he has been assigned.

The Premier vigorously denied that any of his staff had inspired the press attacks on British Admirals and Generals.

Wanted Bonded Liquor Used For Munitions

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Ont., March 11.—According to officers of the Dominion Alliance they have made representations to both the Provincial and Dominion governments to take over the bonded liquor to use for munitions. D. A. McDermid of the Alliance said to-day that unless the Government prohibited "indirect deliveries," the legislation that goes into effect April 7st, would have little effect.

Spanish Premier Has Consented To Remain In Office

Canadian Press Despatch:

MADRID, March 11.—Premier Marquis De Alhucemas, who yesterday presented the resignation of his cabinet and declined to form a new ministry to-night, yielded to arguments of King Alfonso and agreed to coninue in office. No changes will be made in the cabinet, which is decidedly pro-Ally.

HAVE THE ADVANTAGE

Allies Hold High Ground All Along the Front Which Explains the Unsuccessful But Determined Local Attacks Made By the Enemy

BRITISHERS READY

(By Wm. Philip Simms.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, March 11.—Superb weather conditions prevailed all along the British front to-day with air fighting the important activity.

The Passchendeale sector was the scene of considerable artillery fighting following the sharp engagement there last week. The Germans appear surprised at the completeness of their defeat thereabouts. Despite attacks at points along a wide front, and rapid attacks against two points at the extreme limits of the bombardment area, they failed to gain a single advantage.

With the exception of intense air activity, gun duels, patrol encounters and trench raids, the situation is unchanged, but all are expectant.

From one end of the front to the other the Allies hold high ground, with excellent points of vantage for observation of the German positions. This probably explains the enemy's determined local attacks of which those in the Passchendaele salient were amnog the most stubborn.

Field Marshal Hindenburg demands that his troops seize territory for ground observation posts, as the Allied planes are making successful spying precarious. Likewise from the British lines, but little movement behind the German positions escaped being spotted. The Britishers are prepared for all eventualities.

Sudden Death Of Mr. F. R. Yokome

Veteran Editor of the Examiner Passed Away This Morning

The community will be shocked to learn of the sudden death this morning of Mr. Ferman Richardson Yokome, for the past thirty-six years editor of the Daily Examiner, and one of the oldest newspaper men in point of service in the country.

Mr. Yokome was taken suddenly ill at his desk in the Examiner Office nearly four weeks ago, and had since been undergoing medical treatment at his home on Gilmour street. He had apparently made a good recovery and this morning was on his way to the office to resume his duties when he took a sudden weak spell on Hunter street. Another member of the Examiner staff helped him into Mervin's butcher shop, Dr. Greer was summoned and Mr. Yokome was driven to his home, where he passed away a few minutes after his arrival.

The late F. R. Yokome was seventy-six years of age, having been born in the County of Welland, Ont., in 1842. He was the son of the late Jesse and Margaret Yokome. He was educated at the Welland High School, Toronto University and the Toronto School of Medicine. At the time of the Fenian raids he enlisted for service with the Queen's Own Regiment of Toronto.

For forty-four years he had been engaged in journalistic work, the last thirty-six of them as editor of the Peterborough Examiner. He came to this paper in 1882 from Napanee where he had been for some time editor of the Napanee Beaver, and since that time had been continuously in the service of the Examiner. The quality of his work was known not only locally but throughout the country, his editorials being widely quoted by other journals.

He had a host of friends in the city who will be deeply grieved to hear of his death. Genial, courteous, "full of the milk of human kindness," Mr. Yokome had endeared himself to a very wide circle of acquaintances and his passing away leaves a gap that will be difficult to fill.

He was an Anglican in religion and a faithful attendant of St. John"s Church.

He was married in 1878 to Miss Louvenia Eyre Jackson of Brockville, who with one son, Arthur Croyland Yokome, in Texas with the Royal Flying Corps, survives him.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

Canadian Lines Subjected To A Heavy Gas Bombardment

Eastern Ontario Battalion Distinguishes Itself in Patrol Fighting —Winter Record of Trench Raiding Finds a Balance in Favour of Canada.

ACTIVITY INCREASING

(By W. A. Willison, Canadian Press Correspondent in Flanders.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, March 11.— Since the last big raid by the Canadians, more prisoners have fallen into our hands. A hostile party of six which attempted to raid one of our posts south of Lens yesterday morning, was driven off with machine gun fire, leaving one wounded prisoner.

While the enemy was failing in his raid battle, a patrol of one officer and a score of other ranks of an Eastern Ontario battalion, was encountering a hostile scouting party. It drove it back in disorder towards the German lines and captured one prisoner. Another patrol with double its numbers, bombed its way back to our trenches, inflicting losses on the Hun, and sustaining no casualties itself.

With trench warfare so strikingly in our favour the enemy is resorting more persistently to the use of gas. Yesterday morning he opened a concentrated gas bombardment against our lines west and south of Mericourt. In a bombardment which lasted two hours it is estimated he fired about 200 rounds of gas shells, consisting of all calibres up to 15 C.M., with a percentage of shrapnel also. At the same time he carried out light gas bombardments on Cite St. Pierre, and last night he again put down on our trenches in the same area a harrassing fire of gas shells.

The history of the doings at the front recently has been one of slowly increasing activity. With the advent of fine spring weather, there has been constant fighting in the air, in which British machines have gained an acknowledged superiority, so far that eighteen enemy planes have been brought down in one day. As the enemy is inferior in air so the winter record of trench raiding finds the balance strongly in favour of Canada and our guns dominate the enemy.

AIR IN JAPAN IS FULL OF MOBILIZATION

(By Ralph Turner.)

TOKIO, March 11.—The first meeting of the Foreign Advisory Council of Japan since the Russian situation became acute is awaited with intense interest. Some definite announcement of Japan's policy is hoped for. At present the air is full of talk of mobilization, but the censorship is most strict and the officials are silent.

The intervention in Siberia is approved here, but America is hesitating, not wishing to run the risk of incurring united Russian hostility, according to the belief in Tokio.

The Allies are negotiating now to reach an understanding as to whether the Russian situation compels an expedition into Siberia, and whether Japan should act alone or jointly with the military forces of other Allied countries.

EXPORTATION OF SCRAP IRON IS NOW PROHIBITED

Action is Taken With a View to Conserving in Canada of Limited Supply of Iron and Steel Raw Material Now Available

A NECESSARY STEP

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 11.—The export of scrap iron has been prohibited entirely by the Government with a view to conserving in Canada the limited supply of iron and steel raw material easily convertible for manufacturing purposes. The United States prohibited exports of scrap iron some time ago, and in view of the prevailing scarcity of supplies for the iron and steel trades in Canada it was found necessary to stop in Canada issuing further licenses permitting the export of scrap iron to the United States.

Practically all raw materials necessary to Canadian manufacture in essential industries are now on the prohibited list of exports except on procuring special license therefor from the War Trade Board.

Although a very bad day yesterday there was a goodly attendance at the new Sunday School opened by the Salvation Army in East City. Sergt. Major R. C. Brand conducted the services, and Miss A. M. Leader took charge with her helpers. There seems to be a bright future of usefulness ahead of the Sunday school.

NO INTERFERENCE WITH THE WORK OF MR. G. A. GILLESPIE

Mr. Gordon Only Anxious to Assist That Gentleman and Captain Burnham in the Distribution of Labour For the Farms, He States

WHAT IS DESIRED

Mr. Gordon, who has been out of the city, stated that there was no desire, as he understood it, to supplant Gillespie in selecting some person to act as a medium for the distribution of labor in the city. Mr. Gillespie gave last summer a great deal of attention and work to the placing of help on farms, and did everything any man could do, Mr. Gordon said.

Mr. Gordon further stated that the Great War Veterans and the Trades and Labor Council were interested in seeing that their own members receive positions where they could do the work, and it was not only the placing of labor on farms, but a general exchange of positions, and placing of returned men where they could do the most work, and be of the greatest service, having in mind their condition of health, that was considered necessary by the Veterans and Labor men.

Mr. Gordon said that there was one case where a moulder had been gassed while fighting on the Belgian front, and this man was unable to continue his work as a moulder because of the heat he was exposed to while working, which produced a condition somewhat similar to croup and made it impossible for this man to engage in this class of labor, for which he was qualified, while as a matter of fact he was able to take an outside position, and fill it very well.

The desire of the Great War Veterans and the Labor men, Mr. Gordon said, was for as general and as broad an exchange as possible of labor, placing men on the farms for greater production, where it was possible, and in addition to that, the placing of returned soldiers, as far as possible, where they could also aid in the greater production this spring and summer.

There was no desire to supplant Mr. Gillespie or interfere with his good work, but, on the other hand, Mr. Gordon said that he would do all he could to work with Mr. Gillespie and Capt. Burnham, and he knew that these two gentlemen would give their assistance also.

Frank Jenne Says:

There is a subtle influence about the spring time that makes us desire new clothes. Or perhaps it is the brighter sun which "shows up" the shabby places of our winter suit — and the faded spots on our overcoats, and finally determines us to invest in new clothes.

You want your new suit and spring overcoat before Easter so come in to my store and have a look over my carefully selected stock of Semi-ready clothes.

Come in to-morrow and have a few suits tried on.

"Come to me."

THE WEATHER

The temperature this morning was four degrees below zero; this is the first occasion below zero this month. The blizzard of Saturday night and Sunday was a reminder that winter is still with us, and that it is loath to take its departure. Severe storms, however, are not unusual in March. In March of 1900, 1904 and 1912, all trains were blocked for some days. The heaviest fall of snow that this district has ever seen, occurred in March, 1870—48 years ago—and will be remembered by some of the older residents. A record of that year shows that snow fell on the 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 19th and 20th, and the total depth of snow on the level is given as 60 inches, or five feet! Perhaps some reader can verify this. Anyway, when the snow left, it went with a rush, and caused the most disastrous flood Peterboro has ever had. A number of the dams between Lakefield and Peterboro gave way, and the Otonabee rose so high that it overflowed at the Little Lake, and took a short cut by way of Lock street, making of the Cemetery Point an island. All that section around the present C.G.E. works was under water, and on George street there was navigation as far north as King street. "Cope" Clementi recalls with pleasure the fact that he captured an 18-lb. lunge on George street, not far from the P. Hamilton works. The flood of that spring is also given the credit of forming the steep bank on the Ashburnham side of the river, below the Cereal dam, as far down as Rogers' dam, of which nothing now remains but the site. From the immense flood that occurred it is probable that the 60 inches of snow as recorded, was not exaggerated. —W. P.

THE LATE F. R. YOKOME.

In the sudden death this morning of Mr. Ferman Richardson Yokome, editor of the Examiner, Peterborough loses one of her best known and most widely respected citizens, journalism misses the services of a facile pen and a bright cultivated mind, and the Examiner mourns the loss of a revered chief, a kindly, genial gentlemtn, who was as a father to the staff with whom he had so long been associated. Mr. Yokome literally died in the harness as he would have preferred to go. Stricken ill a few short weeks ago he tried to keep in touch with his work while undergoing medical treatment at his home, and death overtook him this morning as he was on his way to the editorial desk he had used so long. The articles on this page were destined to be the last he should write—he had several of them with him when he was overcome this morning, and preserving that sense of duty to his paper which was so characteristic of him sent them on to the office and even asked for some manuscript paper so that he could continue his work at home.

Mr. Yokome had long laboured for a City Beautiful. During his many years of service with the Examiner, his forcible pen had urged upon our civic rulers the necessity of preserving the esthetic beauties of Peterborough. For trees and flowers he had a special love and his editorial services were always at the disposal of any movement that tended to make Peterborough a better and a sweeter place in which to live.

It is impossible for the members of his staff to express in print their appreciation of the qualities he displayed in his daily association with them. He was invariably genial and kindly, ready at all times to give assistance to the tyro in the journalistic field—generous in giving a friendly hand, but chary of criticism—a chief whom all admired and loved, and whom all will mourn.

THE HOME PIG PEN.

Toronto is always ambitious. It is proposing to increase its population by greater attention to hog-raising. The Queen City seems determined to deserve the name of "Hog Town". It established a splendid claim by hogging the glory of being the great- a contradiction of policy. Hog raising Red Cross funds. Now Toronto is considering the matter of increasing civic revenue by more intensive or extensive hog raising, with household garbage as the alimentary medium. The proposal seems feasible, as a civic and patriotic venture. The proposal, however, also seems to involve a contraiction of policy. Hog raising with garbage demands abundance of garbage, while compliance with the demand for economy in food implies a minimum of garbage. However, careless housekeeping that yields more garbage would have its compensation by contributing to the production of a good and important food. Hogs fed on household garbage should make good pork; for they have the same diet as human beings.

The home hog pen can, with reasonable precautions, be established and maintained in a municipality without violating sanitary conditions or the spirit of the requirements of sanitary regulations, provided the legal requirement of distance from dwellings is observed. This might, however, be modified in deference to patriotic purposes, and to the appeal of the Food Controller to "keep a pig"; for it is possible to "keep a pig" without nuisance. The pig is maligned in being charged with filthy habits. A pig will keep himself as tidy as a cat if his keeper allows him to do so, by providing in his pen a sleeping platform elevated above the floor of the sty, and provided by enticing litter in the form of a bed. This, the pig will keep clean and, at the same time, himself. Many good farmers use this plan and they always have their pigs clean and tidy enough for "show" purposes. The patriotic enterprise of a home pig pen seems to be perfectly practicable if precautions of common prudence are adopted to prevent nuisance of an unsanitary character; and the raising of a 150-pound pig would represent the price of a good cow—a few years ago.

CANADA AND THE WAR.

The action of Canada throwing herself wholeheartedly into the war for the preservation of civilization and, incidentally, of herself, is amply justified by the fact that the country has abundantly shown herself worth, and worthy of, the tremendous sacrifice involved.

Though, in some ways, Canada has met great losses, they are set off by great gains. Canada has gained immensely in reputation and international standing by her splendid discharge of war duties. The sterling quality of her people, their resource and capability and courage in war activities have become known, and strongly appealed, to the world. Canada not only literally rushed to arms in the first months of the war, but in an inconceivably short space of time raw levies were converted into capable soldiers, and on the battle front they showed themselves, by exhibition of the highest qualities of fighting the equals, if not, in some respects, the superiors, of the best and most finely trained regular European troops.

The splendid fighting, the magnificant stand in crises, earned for Canadian troops the credit of "saving the situation," and blocking the way of the enemy to Calais and —England. The magnificent work of Canadians in the earlier years of the war has been maintained. The splendid tribute of the great Canadian General, Sir Arthur Currie, to the work and valor of Canadian soldiers during the last two years of the war, are of a piece also with the them by former British commanders; and are of a piece also with the world wide acknowledgement of the splendid resourcefulness, courage, and skill of the Canadian soldiers as fighters. The recent conferring of Distinguished Service Medals upon a batch of individual Canadians involves distinction—they only win the medal by chance—that is, circumstances favoured them and gave them an opportunity of doing deeds of signal gallantry which would have been done by any like number among the Canadian divisions, if similar chances had been presented them.

We cannot estimate the immense benefit conferred on Canada by the courage and fighting superiority of her soldiers. The splendid character they have developed on the battle lines has, by common consent, been transferred to, and shared in, by the Canadian people.

Canada is known, and held in, respect the world over; and in no country does she rank higher, and meet with more enthusiastic recognition than in the great country to the south of us. In hundreds of inland and comparatively obscure newspapers in the United States, whose readers before the war, perhaps never saw the name of "Canada" once a year, appear from day to day, and week to week, laudatory rtibutes to the character and achievements of Canada and Canadians. They are proud of us, not only as allies, but as neighbours and virtual fellow citizens of the great democracy that covers this continent.

Canada stands to gain immensely in the matter of international standing and commercial and industrial interests by the splendid advertising given by the comparative handful of Canadians fighting and floundering in the mud of Flanders. The war has made Canada known as she never was known before. To millions in the world the name of Canada, only a dim title on a map, has become a blazon of glorious achievement and capability.

We owe this primarily to our brave soldiers, and we cannot hold in too high esteem the gallant men who have, at the price of life and limb, and untellable hardship and sacrifice, done this great work. We cannot hold in too loyal love, affectionate remembrance and proud esteem the Canadian soldiers who have laid down their lives for us men and our glory, and now sleep under the blood-painted poppies in Flander's fields or regard with too grateful recognition those who have done their bit and come back to the citizenship whose interests they have fought so bravely to preserve and promote.

"GET OUT THE OLD SAP BUCKET."

Before the war many owners of fine sugar maple groves had dropped out of the business or contented themselves with producing enough only for their own use. The chief reason for this was that the market for the pure maple products was undermined by the manufacturers of adulterants. Ordinary commercial brown sugar or glucose was used to mix with a flavouring percentage of pure maple, and the mixture went on the market to compete with the real article. Naturally the price of the adulterated stuff could be set lower than pure maple sugar or syrup and the consumer chose it in ignorance, being deceived by the brands upon it.

But those who knew the difference in flavour between the old-time maple sugar and maple syrup complained against this misleading practice, and the leaders in the Canadian maple sugar industry took action to save it from passing out of existence. An amendment to the Adulteration Act was passed in 1915, making it unlawful to adulterate maple sugar or syrup. The Act is drastic and forbids sale of, or the use of the word "maple" in connection with "any article of food resembling or being an imitation of maple sugar or maple syrup, or which is composed partly of maple syrup or pure maple sugar, and which is not pure maple sugar or pure maple syrup."

The result of this legislation is to place the maple sugar industry in a unique position. No mixtures of maple sugar and syrup are now lawful, even if brafided as mixtures. No food product, no matter what its composition, can be advertised or branded by any expression containing the word "maple." That is, the makers of genuine maple syrup have the Canadian market to themselves, secure from unfair competition of the adulterated articles.

Up to the present time 75 per cent. of the Canadian maple products have been consumed in Canada. Most of the balance has found a ready market in the United States. In addition there is now being developed the foundation for a splendid market in Great Britain and France, where maple sugar has been introduced by the Canadian soldiers. Thousands of pounds have been sent to the Canadian army overseas by the Red Cross, and firms in London report a growing British demand and the possibilities of an enormous trade after the war.

"Last year," said the manager of one of Canada's largest maple sugar industries, "we purchased from Quebec City fifteen carloads, or half a million pounds of maple sugar. The great bulk of this sugar has been used for home consumption. We have, however, a large export market in the United States and Great Britain, and have agencies in these two countries able to take from us several million pounds per annum, if conditions were favourable for export.

"At the present time we have inquiries for carloads, which we are not able to quote on as the stock we purchased was only sufficient for our local trade. We are convinced, however, that if a larger production could be made the foreign market would be open to receive all our surplus stock.

"Our London agents have urged us to get their shipments forwarded as early as possible so that they could get a trade established for maple products before the close of the war, after which they expect to do an enormous business."

It behooves all those who have maple trees available to get to work this year and make the most of the short sap-running season. Manufacturers of modern sugar-making outfits have difficulty in securing sufficient tin plate, but they are making efforts to supply an unusual demand for sap pails and boiling pans. It is pointed out, however, that many farmers have wooden sap pails and other equipment which has been laid aside for several years and that it would pay to bring these utensils out, clean them up and put them in shape to use this spring owing to the fact that every pound of sugar and every gallon of syrup will be in demand at unprecedented prices. It behooves owners of sugar maple bushes and others who have equipment on hand, no matter how old fashioned, to bring out all the old sap buckets and put them to work the moment the season opens. Every available sugar maple should be tapped. Maple sap is worth money this year as never before, owing to the world scarcity of sugar. Every pound of maple sugar produced is a gain to the Canadian sugar supply and eases the pressure upon cane and beet sugars.

The average sugar maple will produce about five pounds of sugar in a season. If 200,000 farmers in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia were to each tap 100 trees this spring, 2,000,000 trees would produce 100,000,000 pounds of sugar, worth approximately $15,000,000, and equal to the entire sugar consumption of Canada for about three months.

By tapping 100 trees at a time of year when the farmer is least busy with regular farm work, he can make 500 pounds of sugar or 100 gallons of syrup, netting him $100 to $150 for three weeks' activity. This is more than the soldier fighting in France at the risk of life and limb earns in thrice that time, and in view of the need it behooves farmers to bring out the sap buckets, old and new, and show that the "Land of the Maple" can prove clear title to the name.

The Peterborough woman who has given a husband and four brothers to the war has certainly "done her bit."

It is folly to extend the fire limits if the extension only gives larger opportunity of disregarding building restrictions.

The Federal income tax has no great terrors for the generality of newspaper men—it applies only to incomes of unmarried men of $1,500 and of married men of $3,000.

Good Showing By The Northern Life

Those interested in life insurance will find some facts and figures from the annual report of The Northern Life Assurance Company of Canada, well worth perusing. This Company's insurance in force at 31st December amounted to $12,435,227. The assets at 31st December were $3,090,241, and the income of the company for the past year was $630,443. The comparative increase of business of The Northern over the business of 1912 is equivalent to truly fifty per cent. A very satisfactory showing for which the local district manager, Mr. R. H. Petersone, has contributed a praiseworthy share. It has been learned that the amount of business written in Mr. Petersone's district during last year was the second largest amount reported in the province.

SEEK TO PROBE SALE OF CAMP BORDEN

OTTAWA, Mar. 9.—A movement has been launched in behalf of the former owners of the land now comprising the Camp Borden site to reopen the expropriation proceedings and have the whole case aired in the Dominion Parliament. The mails brought to Ottawa yesterday copies of a petition which is being circulated for signatures, asking the Government for a commission to enquire into the contract made between Hon. A. E. Kemp, then Acting Minister of Militia, and James Barr, whereby, it is alleged, Barr procured an enormous profit by selling land to the Government at $12 an acre, for which he paid the owners $8 and less per acre.

The petition quotes the terms of the contract and also a number of affidavits from people who claim that they were forced to give up their holdings for a great deal less than they had cost per acre.

HERB MARTIN WINS THE PATTERSON CUP SATURDAY NIGHT

Herb Martin won the Vice-Skip's final on Saturday night from Leslie Turner by the score of 14 to 9 in a twelve end game. There was a big gallery following every play to the last stone, and it was a neat, close game the young skips provided. Martin took an early lead and gradually opened it up, finishing with a margin of five.

The rinks were as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| C. Lacheur | Ed. Taylor |
| W. R. Turner | F. Brownscombe |
| L. A. Turner | H. R. Martin |
| Skip . . . . . 9 | Skip . . . . . 14 |
| Martin . . . . . 2 0 1 0 1 4 1 0 3 0 — 14 | |
| Turner . . . . . 0 0 1 0 0 0 5 0 0 1 0 2 — 9 | |

Turner was in the running until Martin put over three in the second last end, and although he scored two in the final there was practically no hope that he could overcome the lead.

R. Hicks lead for Martin instead of Bowes, and the winner as listed above will be the first rink to win the E. G. Patterson cup, and to have their names engraved on one of the silver plates that will be attached to the pedestal.

In presenting the cup Mr. Patterson included the name plates for a period of ten years, and as each affixes a new plate with its names the cup accumulates interest and value that is purely extrinsic.

The first skip, Herb Martin, to be posted in the new honour roll, played a fine game through the bonspiel and well deserved to win. He had able opponents in every game he played, but he came through with a little to spare, not only on the score board but also in his style and resourcefulness of skipping.

CENTRAL JUNIORS BEAT PETERBORO'

Win the O. B. A. Round by Margin of Twenty-nine Points

Toronto, March 11. — Central Y. M. C. A. junior O.B.A. team, scored their tenth successive victory of the season on Saturday night, at the Central "Y" when they defeated the Peterboro Collegiate in the return game of the semi-finals by the score of 45 to 19, or a margin of 26 points. As Central won in Peterboro by 3 points, their margin on the round was 29 points.

The local undefeated team had much the best of the game and at no stage were they in danger of losing the round. The half time score was 23 to 10 in their favor. Central will now meet Kingston, the winners of the Eastern group, the first game being played here on Saturday night.

In the preliminary game Saturday night, the Somers School girls defeated the Young Women's Guild, by 18 to 0, the winners being ahead at half time by 4 to 0. The teams:

Somers School: U. Law, I. Strong, T. Allen, A. Gibb, E. McKibbon, A. Gregory.

Y.W.C.A.: F. Harris, M. Harris, E. Wilson, A. Jones, M. Bontel, M. Graham.

Referee: P. Millan.

Winnipeg Team Shows Class

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, March 11. —The Winnipeg "Ypres' team, amateur hockey champions of Western Canada, and contesting against the O.H.A. champions from Kitchener for the Allan Cup, got off the train here at 11 a.m., and before noon had put in a workout at the arena, where the hockey battle will be fought on Tuesday and Thursday night. 6

"They are a fine, speedy team," said W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the O.H.A., who saw their performance, "and they will take a lot of beating."

Manager Harples reports the trip from Winnipeg was without incident. A large delegation of Western Canada hockey enthusiasts arrived with the Ypres bunch.

Peterborough, March 9, 1918.

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In looking over the Examiner to-night I observe an article dealing on the question of making beer stronger and signed by a one Mr. J. H. Taylor. He goes on to show in the course of his remarks the frightfulness and terror of strong drink and tries his best to picture or display most explicitly, clearly and vividly, the dreadful effects of the same. If Mr. Taylor would read or peruse the Bible over carefully he would notice innumerable examples of the usefulness of wine or beer (both are intoxicants) as is exemplified in the Scripture. For his benefit I will append a few of the most notable or striking examples as will be discovered in looking in the Bible:

In the Old Testament.

1st Book of Samuel, chap. 1, verses 13, 14, 15; Isaiah, chap. 55, verse No. 1; Isaiah, chap. 49, verse No. 26; Proverbs, chap. 31, verses 4, 6, 7; Ecclesiastes, chap. 9, verse No. 7.

New Testament.

1st Epistle St. Paul to Timothy, chap. 3, verse 3 and 11; chap. 5, verse 23; St. Matthew, 9th chap. verse No. 17; St. Matthew, 24th chap. verse 49; St. Mark, 2nd chap., verse No. 22; St. John, 2nd chap., verses 3 to 10.

No, I don't want Mr. Taylor to surmise or think I like beer or any beverage, for I never tasted any intoxicant in my life, but it is just to show that wine or its ally has been in time.

Lonleydale.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Notice has just been served on Federal members of a duly-accredited Labour movement, asking that the Prohibition line be drawn at 2 1-2 per cent. by weight of alcohol instead of at 2 1-2 per cent. proof spirits as at present. The reason for this request is understood to be that the present percentage of alcohol is too low even to preserve the beer and keep it sweet. The whole question of absolute prohibition is involved in the request since it is understood that "light wines and beers" (as in France) is the aim of a new party now forming in Canada and being a sort of compromise enhancing many of those who wanted no prohibition and those who want it bone-dry. The present movement is a new one and as it will soon be to the fore at Ottawa, I would like the opinion of all societies, of whatever kind of those having the vote in West Peterborough. I know of no other way than this to find out the opinions of the people on this unexpected request emanating, however, from a very large and influential body of people.

Capt. Redmond Candidate In Father's Riding

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 11.—Captain William Redmond has become a candidate for the Parliamentary seat for Waterford, made vacant by his father, John Redmond, the Nationalist leader. He is opposed by Dr. White, Sinn Feiner.

RESCUED TUG AFTER BATTLE WITH GALE

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 11. — At the risk of their lives Capt. F. A. Cook and four men took the city tug Geary and battled their way seventeen miles out in Lake Ontario against a fifty-mile gale to rescue the tug Argyle that broke its mooring Sunday night. There was no one aboard the Argyle when she left her berth, and when found in the lake there was five feet of water in her hold.

Turks Make A Further Retreat In Mesopotamia

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 11. — There has been further retirement by the Turks in Mesopotamia, it was officially announced to-day. The Turkish garrison, which on Saturday evacuated Hit, on the Euphrates, before the British advance, and fell back seven miles upstream, kept up its rearward movement and now occupies Kan-Bagdad, on the Euphrates, 22 miles above Hit. British airmen inflicted severe casualties upon the Turks as they retreated.

Advertising Campaign To Start Soon

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, March 11.—The Provincial government is starting a campaign for increased production and will placard the whole countryside with posters to show farmers and others their duty in this regard.

BROTHERS FOUGHT OVER FATHER'S WILL

A quarrel arising out of suspicion that each was trying to prejudice his father's mind in the matter of his will, cost Robert and Frank Hughes, Galway $5 and costs, in default of payment of which 2 months imprisonment.

It seems that Frank Hughes has recently returned from the west, and Robert became suspicious that his reason for returning was to settle his father's will in his favour. A family quarrel arose and each brother accused the other of assault.

Magistrate O. A. Langley expressed his opinion that both parties were guilty of assault. Several witnesses were heard. The defendants both decided to plead guilty of common assault, and Crown Attorney Hatton being satisfied, the fine was imposed.

The Care of The Blind

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, March 11. — Premier Hearst to-day promised careful consideration of the petition of a large deputation asking for creation of commission to deal with problems of Ontario's 1,500 blind persons.

Approves Premier Hearst's Refusal Re Prohibition Law

At a special meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of the George Street Methodist Church, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

"Resolved that the Quarterly Official Board of the George Street Methodist Church desires to express its unwavering adherence to the principle of total prohibition of the liquor traffic in the Dominion of Canada, and its approval of the action of the Ontario Provincial Government, through the Premier, Sir William Hearst, in refusing to make any changes in the law which would in any way encourage the drinking of alcoholic beverages; and it respectfully requests the Federal Government to take similar action, believing that such changes, if made, would not be in the best interests of the people, nor in harmony with the necessity of grain conservation in these times of war."

The Question Of Spring Clothes

IS INFINITELY more momentous in times of war than in times of peace. Selections must be made with more forethought, with more discrimination, with more regard for suitability and wearing quality. Moreover, in war times women are very busy folk, with less leisure than usual to bestow upon matters of dress.

With all these important details in mind, Richard Hall & Son have given even more than ordinary care to the assembling of the new things for Spring.

Clothes are, if anything, rather smarter this season than last, and the smartest of them all are ready for selection here.

PTE. WINDSOR TELLS OF DEATH OF LANCE CORP. TOBIN OF THE 93rd

Mrs. T. Tobin has received the following letter in regard to the death of her son, Lance-Corp. Austin Tobin. The communication is from Pte. Percy Windsor, well-known to hockey fans as the centre man of the 93rd hockey team:

France, February 4, '18.

Mrs. Tobin, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Madam.—Remembering the pleasant times spent with your son, Austin, from the very first day we met up till I saw him last, it grieves me very much I assure you, also my sympathies are with you in the loss of your son, who died as a soldier. He was of the best, and he is very much missed by all who knew him. C.C. Russell and I were with him, in fact carried him out to the dressing station, and he was all right when we left. He told us he would be all right. He was only complaining of his arm though he was also wounded in the head the first time when Capt. O'Reilly sent him out and he started away himself and he was hit a second time on the arm and got in a shell hole no doubt as the shelling that day was quite heavy, and the only means of protection was to stay in where cases afforded and those who were in shell-holes to remain until the shelling ceased. However, Austin was found in one of those places by a party on going out after being relieved, and they immediately notified our Company Commander, who procured a stretcher, and went in search and when found he was a bit chilled and badly shook up. However it might say he was not suffering apparently for he knew and spoke to both Russell and myself. We saw him to the dressing station. The Company Commander, Capt. O'Reilly, and Lieut. Hardy (Austin's platoon officer) were with him in fact helped in carrying the stretcher and I may also state that everything possible was done to convey Austin to the station as quickly as possible, though he died several days after.

The news came as a great surprise to all of us, especially Capt. O'Reilly. It was he who broke the news to me, and I can assure you, Mrs. Tobin, had it been my own brother, I could not have felt any worse, as we were very much attached to each other, and he was friendly with all who knew him. He had not one enemy and was very cheerful both in the trenches and out.

No doubt my letter will bring to your memory sorrow, but I feel it my duty to write you. L.-C. Russell and I join together in sending you and Mr. Tobin our deepest sympathy in the loss you have sustained of one who died so nobly for King and Empire.

I am, respectfully,

P. D. WINDSOR.

PAST 20 YEARS WAS ONE LONG STRUGGLE

Mrs. Bradbury Cheerful and Happy All the Time Now She Says

"My life has just been one long, hard struggle for the past twenty years, and the way I have suffered can't be described in words," said Mrs. Annie Bradbury, living at 24 Welsley street, Toronto, recently.

"There have been many times when it seemed like I would have to give up and quit trying to get well," she continued. "Up to the time I started taking Tanlac, no medicine or treatment had given me relief from my dreadful condition. I was just as near a nervous wreck as a person could be. The least little noise would startle me and bring on a trembling spell and I would get despondent and blue and just sit down and cry until I would almost go distracted. I couldn't sleep at night and when morning came, I'd be all worn-out and tired until I just had to force myself to keep going. I had no appetite and my energy left me gradually until I was so weak I could scarcely move. My heart would flutter and act queer, and I lost weight and got so thin that my rings would slip from my fingers. Fifteen years ago I was operated on, but my condition was unchanged, and I have been going down hill ever since until here a while back, my husband got a bottle of Tanlac for me and I started taking it.

"I never saw or heard of anything more wonderful than the way this Tanlac has benefitted me. My nerves are strong and steady now and I am cheerful and happy instead of blue and discouraged. I have a big appetite, and enjoy every meal. My strength has increased until the housework is a pleasure to me, instead of a drudgery. I have already gained ten pounds in weight and am gaining every day. Several of my friends are now taking Tanlac, since I've told them what it has done for me, and they as well as I think there never was a medicine made that equals Tanlac. It has done me more good than all the medicine and treatments I have taken in twenty years and I'm delighted over my recovery."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Prindle & Son.

Recruits For Jewish Army

Special to The Toronto Star and the Peterboro Examiner.)

HALIFAX, March 11.—The first recruits for the Jewish army have arrived at a Nova Scotia depot, where volunteers of British citizenship in the United States are being concentrated and trained. The contingent consists of about three hundred recruits from United States points. They were met at the station by a large turnout from the local depot.

The Jewish contingent marched behind a large flag and a four-sided blue banner. One side bore the inscription "to Zion" and on the other side were the words "recruits for the first Jewish army."

8000 Pounds Of Chickens Destroyed

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., March 11. — Eight thousand pounds of chickens, held in one cold storage warehouse here, were destroyed recently, according to an official report received at the City Council to-day.

Shamrock Tag Day On Saturday Next

The annual Shamrock tag day in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage, will be held next Saturday. The committee of ladies who have charge of the work, have completed their arrangements and are hopeful that this year's appeal will receive as generous a response as on previous tag days.

Roads Are In Bad Condition

Very little traffic is moving in from the country owing to the bad condition of the roads. Teams that are reaching the city are only hauling half cords of wood and undersized loads of hay. Anything more would invite disaster to the driver. This condition is not improved by the presence of pitch-holes.

A few days ago a farmer hauled two loads of hay to town. One he sold to a local hotel and the other to the proprietor of a livery stable. When the hay was unloaded it was found to be saturated with water. The livery man discovered it first and he gave the farmer notice to remove the hay without delay. A load of hay that should ordinarily have weighed eighteen hundred pounds, weighed twenty-eight hundred. This is a scheme that even a war-time profiteer would hesitate to adopt to swell his profits.

Terrific Artillery Duel Is Raging

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, March 11.—The German and British artillery is engaging in a terrific duel all along the British lines, despatches received from the front to-day stated. In a number of sectors the Boche gunners are deluging the British trenches with a hail of shells from all calibres. The British artillery is effectively retaliating against the German batteries, the despatch concludes.

Authoress of War Song Is Killed in Raid

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 11.—The bodies of Mrs. Lena Guilbert Ford, an American poetess, authoress of "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and her son, about 30 years old, were discovered in the wreckage of a house destroyed in the German air raid last week. In this house twelve persons were killed.

Threw Away Bank Roll

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 11. —Andrew Trozan, who appeared in the police court to-day, tossed his roll, $1,109, in the snow when the police were in the act of arresting him. The police were suspicious as to the means whereby he possessed himself of such a wad. Trozan was given back his money after $10 and costs were deducted for drunkenness.

Some of Anna Held's Fifth Avenue, New York, models, wearing a fortune in Lucile-made gowns in the famous French star's gorgeous musical comedy, coming to The Grand Opera House for special matinee and night performance, Wednesday, March 13.

Anna Held's bewildering musical comedy success, "Follow Me," is to be seen at The Grand next Wednesday, March 13, with special matinee at 3 p.m.

Replete with sartorial surprises, "Follow Me" is quite as appealing as a fashion show as for its fast, snappy fun and scenic splendor.

Liane Held, daughter of the famous French comedienne, because of whose illness "Anna Held the Second" is essaying the principal role, wears all of Anna Held's gowns, the most wonderful the French star has ever appeared in, to describe which the critics are satisfied to regard as futile. Her peacock costume is startling as she leads the beautiful Anna Held girls in a fashion review, each member of the chorus draped in a gorgeous brocade creation. Behind Miss Held trails yards and yards of spangled and white material, above which drobps an overdress, shaped like a huge peacock tail. This she opens, raises and lowers during her song number, duplicating the proud strutting of a peacock as near as it is possible to do, it would seem.

Chorus girls are seen in gowns supported by big flower bustles; in huge baskets decorated with carnations, and in dances in which horticultural adjuncts are utilized to picturesque advantage. Bowers of flowers have been fairly showered on settings and costumes, the stage at times resembling a floral exhibit.

A FELLOW JOURNALIST'S APPRECIATION OF THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER

Speaking of the death of Mr. Yokome, Editor of The Examiner, to-day's Review says:

Thirty-six years ago the late J. R. Stratton, owner of the Examiner, attracted by the reputation of the young journalist, who at that time was in a position in Napanee, induced him to come to Peterborough, and he has been a faithful and efficient member of the staff from that day until his death this morning. Few newspapermen had such a record of unbroken service, and still fewer have been able to stand the strain up to so advanced an age. He was easily the outstanding journalistic figure in Central Ontario and was a man who was fitted by nature to fill with distinction to himself and with honour to the profession an editorial position on any newspaper in Canada, any one of which would have been benefited by his association with it.

He was in every way possessed of remarkable fitness for the duties he was called upon to discharge. In the first place he had the natural gift for the profession. He was finely educated, a perfect master of the English language, a close student of human nature and of passing events, thoroughly versed in history, past and current. His sympathies were with the masses struggling for existence. He espoused fearlessly every righteous cause whether of local or nation-wide interest. Once he took up the cudgels of offence or defence, nothing could induce him to abandon the fight, even though he was left to carry on the combat alone.

One of his recreations was the planting and the care of trees. The shade trees of the city were made his special charge, and every one of them stands to-day as a monument to his memory and a silent witness to the rare taste he displayed in all matters pertaining to the beautification of the city.

On national, municipal or world affairs the late Mr. Yokome was a reliable authority, but he found time to devote to the cultivation of the finer arts, even in the press of his professional duties. He was an expert in music, and his criticisms were always valuable. Standard literature found in him a faithful devotee, and he was especially versed in the works of such masters as Dickens and Shakespeare. His home on Gilmour street, "Castlewraye," was his pride, an evidence of his cultured taste in all its surroundings, and has for years been regarded as one of the beauty spots in the city.

SUICIDE OF RETURNED MAN

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 11.—Private V. N. Wenzel, a returned soldier of Stratford, was found dead in an abandoned sand pit in the east end of the city this morning with his throat cut. A table knife being the instrument used Wenzel suffered from shell shock and is believed to have been temporarily deranged.

"Oenone" A Great Success

The Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. was filled to capacity on Saturday evening in spite of the stormy weather. This was the third in the series of Fortnightly Recitals, the feature of the evening being a pantomine play, based on Tennyson's "Oenone" given by the girls of the Advanced Gymnasium Class.

The characters were as follows: "Paris," Miss Littlefield; "Oenone," Miss Eamee Aylmer; "Iris," Miss Edna Connor; the three Goddesses, "Here," "Pallas," and "Aphrodite," Miss Phyllis Young, Miss Bessie Mathers and Miss Gladys Mullholland.

The story was beautifully portrayed in rhythmic motion, and the chorus of graceful girls, with their swaying movements, made a charming background for the pictures. Those in the chorus were: Miss Bessie Read, Agnes Carmichael, Laura Parks, Gertrude Kirn, Clare Mason Grace Evans, Mrs. Rogers. Extracts from the poem were read by Miss Parker. Miss Littlefield delighted the audience with her interpretation "On to Victory," and Mrs. Perrin sang beautifully, two selections very appropriate to the other parts of the programme.

Miss Mabel Penrose accompanied all the numbers with artistic effect.

Music & Drama

THE MAN FROM WICKLOW.

The annual visit to Peterborough of Fiske O'Hara, the Irish singer comedian, is always a big event with local theatregoers, and his appearance at the Grand on Saturday, in matinee and evening performances of his new play, "The Man From Wicklow," proved no exception, the houses being filled with his admirers at both performances. Mr. O'Hara's offering this year, while it presented no startling innovation of plot or action, proved an entertaining vehicle, affording the popular star many opportunities of displaying his ability as an actor. It is the story of a gay and debonair young Irishman, who wins the "princess of his heart" despite the many obstacles placed in his way by the female members of his family.

As Robert Emmet O'Donoghue, Mr. O'Hara's infectious smile, winning personality and histrionic ability made him an ideal hero. His singing was as usual, a feature, his rich tenor being heard to good advantage in three numbers, of which "The Princess of My Heart" proved the most popular. (Incidentally the music for all three of his songs was written by Mr. Cass Freeborn, musical director for Mr. O'Hara, who presided at the piano on Saturday.

Mr. O'Hara is supported by a most capable company, the majority of whom have been with him here on several occasions. Patricia Clary, as the winsome Eileen, shared the honours of the evening with Mr. O'Hara. She was irresistibly effective as the little colleen. J. P. Sullivan scored heavily in the comedy role of Mickey Dooin. W. T. Sheehan was decidedly amusing as Simon Peter, and Hattie Foley made the most of the very comic part of Honore. The other roles were cleverly presented.

DON'T WORRY over the bad business of yesterday. Use newspaper advertising and make it good to-morrow.

Wolves Are Plentiful In The North

Mr. Charles Gladman returned on Friday from several months spent in lumber valuing in Nipissing district. Mr. Gladman returns with some hair-raising tales of wolves and bears in the district. Some weeks ago he and his partner were in the bush, when a deer sped past them bleating piteously. The two men immediately saw that the animal was being pursued and paused. In a minute or less an enormous grey wolf dashed up. When he was between the two men they called "buk-up." The wolf, which had not seen them, stopped short with the shock, and turning a species of back somersault, dashed madly back into the woods. A few days later the party found the half-eaten carcase of a deer, around which several indentations in the snow told the tale of a big wolf feast which wolves, having had their hunger satisfied, after resting some time, returned to the bush.

Deer Plentiful.

The deer about Lake Nippissing are very plentiful and Mr. Gladman at many times was able to touch the creatures which often became stuck in the snow. About the place where he was engaged in his work several bears had been seen by what settlers are left in the now practically deserted country.)

Movement To Employ Girls To Help Market Gardeners

Preliminary Meeting in the Interests of Greater Production Was Held on Saturday Night—City Will Compile List of Lots Available For Citizens.

A meeting of citizens interested in greater production was held on Saturday night in the Patriotic Association's office. Those present were: Mr. Aylmer (in the chair), Mr. Dobbin, Mr. Gillespie, His Worship Mayor Duncan, Mr. Wearing, Mr. Pennefather, Mr. Roger, Miss Rush, Miss Pearse.

The need of helpers for the market gardeners was considered. Miss Rush and Miss Pearse, convenors of the Garden Committee of the Women's Council, reported that they had interviewed the market gardeners in regard to labour and that the gardeners expressed themselves as exceedingly anxious about help; in fact some of them do not know yet what they will plant this spring as labour is so scarce. This is work that women can do; it would only mean work in the latter part of June and July. The market gardens are near the evening. Over 1,000 girls did this city and girls could come home each work last year in the Niagara Peninsula.

A meeting of the market gardeners and the convenors of the garden committee will be held in the near future and the question of remuneration of women's labour will be gone into.

It was stated that the School Board and Horticultural Society will distribute garden seeds among the school children and a general discussion of the advisability of securing garden plots near the schools for the pupils who have not home facilities for gardening; also the question of the supervision of these gardens to prevent the waste of seed and to maintain the children's continued interest in the work, was discussed.

The Mayor furnished valuable information to the effect that Mr. Ingram of the City Clerk's office, is listing the vacant properties in the city, and is obtaining detailed information as to the agricultural possibilities of each lot. The citizens will be able to acquire a suitable garden plot by applying to the City Office.

The question of the Government's offer to grant a pass to pupils who spend a certain time on a farm was dealt with. To enable pupils in the city who desire to take advantage of the Government's plan, Mr. Gillespie suggested that as there are farmers in the vicinity of the city who cannot work all their land that possibly their consent to the pupils working the unused land under their supervision could be obtained. Mr. Gillespie said that he had asked Mr. Riddell of Toronto to address the meeting called by the Board of Trade in the Opera House on Friday evening. Mr. Riddell is the head of the Department of Trades and Labour for the Province of Ontario, and has given special attention to the movement of women taking up farm work.

The meeting has been called for Friday evening by the Board of Trade. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

Entire New York Cast With Mitze Hajos In Pom-Pom

Anne Caldwell, Hugo Felix, Joseph Urban and George Marion Have All Combined Their Talents to Make "A Show Worth While"—Will Come Here at Its Very Best

"Pom-Pom," Henry W. Savage's new musical melodrama that incited the Metroplis and the few other cities it has been taken to to alternately sing and chuckle after a hearing as the fun and charm of it were remembered, was composed and put together and played by names that guarantee "a show worth while" in the minds of the theatregoers of to-day.

It is to come here soon, and will come at its very best, for Henry W. Savage announces his entire New York cast in suport of the only Mitzi, and even the fuch-praised scenic display and the "Pm-Pom" Opera Orchestra are to be brought.

It is much in itself that the Mitzi Hajos of "The Spring Maid" and "Sari" is "Pom-Pom's" leading figure now under the more easily praised name of Mitzi, but beyond this its book was written by Anne Coldwell, who wrote "Chin-Chin," "Jack O'-Lantern," and other works of brilliance; the musical score is from Hugo Felix, the French composer, who gave "Made Sherry" and other operettas to the world Joseph Urban, so eagerly sought to design wonderful stage settings for great attractions that range from Grand Opera to the Follies," made some of his most applauded stage backgrounds for "Pom-Pom" and the veteran George Marion, who has arranged more of the great successes of the past than has any other producer, staged the piece, and finally and most conclusively to one who follows stage matters closely, "Pom-Pom" bears the Henry W. Savage trademark, which assures a company of excellence and size, an unusual orchestra, and attention to the thousand details which have made the Savage name take the place of a standard of excellence in the theatrical world.

Stuffy Feeling About The Nose Relieved At Once

Tells How to Cure Hawking and Spitting and Drive Out Catarrhal Colds.

Isn't it miserable to have a stuffed-up feeling in the nostrils — to be scarcely able to draw a full breath. Whe Catarrh gets in to the nose you're bound to know something is radically wrong.

A dead sure cure. and a simple one to use, is Catarrhozone; you just breathe it—that's all. You see Catarrhozone Inhaler sends healing piney vapors through the nose, throat and lungs, and these antiseptic soothing vapors are death to colds or Catarrh.

Thousands testify every year that nothing ever discovered will cure a cold, or help the throat like Catarrhozone. Mr. Everett L. Wassan, of Blair, N.B., writes: — "About five years ago I took a cold in the head, and Catarrh set in. It kept incressing by leaps and bounds. I kept putting off getting anything until at last I found I would have to. After trying several things I heard of your remedy, "Catarrhozone," and procured a bottle and began using it. I was not long in finding out I had struck the right thing. I am recommending Catarrhozone to all who have Catarrh, etc."

Catarrhozone is the greatest remedy for colds, etc., since people began to have solds. Get the dollar package and let the whole family use it. Medium size 50c.; sample size, 25c. All storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

THE CANADIAN NORTHERN AS A COAL CARRIER

The abnormally cold weather during the winter and the difficulties experienced in securing fuel, has intensified interest in the coal resources of the Dominion. Many people, for the first time, are searching statistics to ascertain, as exactly as possible, the extent, value and location of the coal resources of the nine federated provinces.

For many years Nova Scotia has been the premier coal-producing province. And until the last few years British Columbia was second in the list. The railway construction has rendered available, a considerable portion of the vast extent of the coal resources of Alberta, and that province on the eastern slope of the Rockies has ousted the Pacific coast province from the second position in Canada. The greater part of this recent expansion in production of coal in Alberta has been brought about by the building of lines of the Canadian Northern Railway. The production in tons:

| | Nova Scotia | Alberta | British Columbia |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1909 | 5,652,089 | 1,944,741 | 2,606,12 |
| 1916 | 6,894,729 | 4,563,930 | 2,582,73 |

A study of the tonnage carried by the Canadian Northern during the last few years shows that its development as a coal carrier has been almost entirely due to closer settlement in the prairie provinces, and to the expansion of the coal mines along its lines in Alberta.

In 1910, the Canadian Northern carried in coal only 292,718, and in 1916 804,803 tons. By 1914 the total haulings had doubled, the figures being 1,724,637, and for its annual report year of June 30th, 1917, it is understood the company will show a total production of nearly 2 million tons of coal handled over its lines.

The important position Alberta has occupied in the building up of this tonnage may be gathered from the fact that in 1910 the movement over its lines in that province was but 8[illegible] 146 tons. In 1911 it grew to 204,730 tons, in 1914 to 358,739, and in 1915 to 47[illegible] 860, in 1916 to 706,414, and in 1917 8 months only of the year being shown —the figures had already attained 691,261 tons.

The Markets At A Glance

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer last week:

The Markets at a Glance.

The first sales for the 1918 pack of canned salmon have been made by British Columbia packers at prices which, it is felt among the trade, are exceedingly high. In fact, the view is expressed that regulation by Canada's Food Administration Board should be undertaken. Exorbitant prices are being asked by the fishermen for the raw fish and the cold storage men are urgent bidders for the catch.

The primary market on both Japan and Ceylon teas is very strong and sales of stocks in Canada are being made at less than replacement values. Coffee roasters are required by the Dominion Government to supply full details as to stocks on hand, output, etc., though no explanation has been offered as to what use will be made of this information. The market is very firm and in some instances premiums are being offered to secure spot stocks.

Cereals are holding very firm and advances have been made in rolled oats. Imp oved transportation facilities will improve stocks somewhat or at least enable orders to be filled, but at present supplies remain limited.

In an evident desire to unload some of the heavy stocks of barreled apples, some big declines are registered for the week, ranging from 50c to $2.00 per barrel. The demand for boxed apples is good and the market held firm with slight advances being recorded in Winesaps.

Potatoes from New Brunswick are a little easier. The first shipment of Greek currants in months has arrived and these are being quoted at 30c. It is thought that dates now lying in New York may be rolling in a very few days towards their destination. The primary market on spices is very strong and prices are expected to advance. Shelled walnuts are quoted as high as 75c and further advance would not be unexpected. Pearl and pot barley show strength in an advance of 50c, while the diversion of mill feeds from Fort William mills back West accentuates the present shortage.

GREATEST RULE OF HEALTH

With all their differences in regard to disease, its cause and treatment, doctors are of one mind in regard to the one greatest rule of health, viz: "Daily movement of the Bowels." Unnumbered thousands of people suffer almost continuously as the result of constipation who could be readily cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-

John McCormack's Income Tax $75,000

John McCormack, the singer, paid a war income tax of $75,000, in New York a few days ago. This was $16,000 more than the sum paid by Enrico Caruso, and is believed to represent an income of approximately $300,000 a year.

Asked how he felt about giving up so large a sum to the Government, Mr. McCormack replied: "It makes me feel happy to do my bit for the country that made possible my success. It certainly makes a man feel great when he knows he is doing his duty. You know the Bible says that the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. Blessed be the name of the Lord. Well, with me it has been a case of America giveth and America taketh away. Blessed be the name of America."

McCormack's income is derived from his public appearances and from royalties on phonograph records. His associates say his income the last year from the records alone amounts to more than $180,000. This is said to be greater than any two other singers living. Caruso's income from phonograph records is said to be $125,000, with an equal amount from his operatic performances, making $250,000 in all.

McCormack started on his transcontinental tour to raise $100,000 for the Red Cross. He has already taken in $28,000 toward this sum from performances in Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, and Cleveland. The largest amount contributed to the Red Cross at any concert was $12,000, in Cleveland, but the singer received a telegram that San Francisco is out to make a record of $20,000 for his concert there.

When his obligations to the Red Cross are canceled, Mr. McCormack expects to appear at a series of concerts in behalf of the Knights of Columbus War Camp Fund. It would not be surprising if at the end of his last tour in May he went to France to sing for the soldiers. He was quoted as saying that if it was thought he could contribute to the success of the war by going to France he would be glad to do so.

MARCH 9 A NOTABLE DATE IN FRANCE.

On this day 89 years ago Joan of Arc told Charles V'I. of France of her heavenly mission, and a few weeks later he placed her at the head of his army.

On this date 122 years ago Napoleon and the beautiful widow, Josephine Beauharnais, known in history as the Empress Josephine, were married.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE BOARD AT KINGSTON

Many Applications From Farmers Have Been Heard

KINGSTON, March 12.—Something akin to the exemption tribunals which have become so familiar to the citizens is the "leave of absence" board which is held at the armouries, with Col. G. Hunter Ogilvie as president. The board handles all cases of soldiers who are asking for the necessary permission to become civilians for a sufficient time to attend to their usual work. In the majority of cases the leave is granted for a time pending the confirmation of the evidence by the military authorities. The board's decisions are in keeping with two considerations—the war and the industries at home.

To handle the various cases lawyers are very often called in. Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., Haveleck, was present on Thursday for some cases representing the men concerned.

About eighty-five of the applications come from farmers of the district. They ask permission to go back to their farms to finish the spring work. Owing to the prevailing shortage of help on the farm, the deepest consideration is given to all cases, and so far no complaints regarding the board's decision have been heard.

Slight Stroke Of Paralysis

Down Left Side—Stomach and Heart Affected—Case Baffled Doctors For Three Years

TRENTON, Ont. March 11.—A very interesting report has been received from Mrs. Pringle in regard to her recovery from partial paralysis. This was a most extreme case, for doctors had been trying for three years to find something which would restore the depleted nerve force.

One can scarcely imagine stronger evidence of the restorative influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. C. Pringle, Queen street, Trenton, Ont., writes:

"About five years ago I was troubled with my stomach, there was a sort of paralyzed feeling across it and up my left side, and my heart seemed almost to stop beating. I called in the Doctor, and he thought it was symptoms of a stroke. My stomach kept getting worse. At times the pounding would be intense, almost unbearable, and I thought I would go wild. Sleep was out of the question. I tried different Doctors, giving each one a fair trial, and doctoring nearly three years. My case seemed to baffle them. It was a nervous breakdown caused by overwork and worry. During all this time I could not do any work, and my friends thought it was a matter of time, how long I would live. Some one advised me to try something to build up my system, and I tried different medicines. Finally I thought I would try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and see if they would do me any good. A famous Doctor sanctioned my using these pills, and told me they would be good for me. They seemed to be just what I required, as I soon saw an improvement. I took about fifteen boxes, and the results have been very gratifying. I am now enjoying splendid health, and able to do all my work, eating anything I wish, and can go to bed and get a good night's rest. I have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to many of my friends, who have also secured good results from this treatment."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co. Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

When March has April weather, April will have March weather.

Dog Was Out Only Fifteen Minutes But Gates Got Him

William Fleetwood pleaded not guilty this morning to a charge of permitting his dog to run at large.

"It just happened to get out for about fifteen minutes the day it was caught," he explained.

Mr. Gates, called by Chief Thompson, said that Mr. Fleetwood lives on London street, but the dog was picked up on Dublin street. There was no tag or collar on him, but it seemed to be a valuable dog and I tried to find the owner. He took it to Mr. Fleetwood's home.

"The dog was out and might have bitten somebody," said Magistrate Dumble.

"I kept that dog tied up and on leash for seven months before the dog catcher was appointed," said Mr. Fleetwood, belligerently. "I tried to observe the rules, but this day he got out on me."

"That won't do," replied His Worship. "I'd never get through if I had to take excuses of that kind."

"Have I a chance to appeal," the defendant asked, when he was informed that his fine was $2 and $2.60 costs.

"Certainly, if you want to spend the money," remarked Chief Thompson.

"I don't see how it is some people only pay $1."

"They have their dogs destroyed," explained Chief Thompson.

"Well you can kill mine. I don't want to pay that big sum."

Magistrate Dumble gave Fleetwood five days to pay his $4.60, with the option of getting rid of the dog in that time at a cost of seventy-five cents.

"I am fining you the same as Mr. R. R. Hall, the late candidate for West Peterborough. You needn't complain of your company," remarked His Worship, but Mr. Fleetwood wanted to know if he might sell the dog.

STUDENTS' RECITAL ENJOYED

The regular weekly students' recital was given at the Conservatory on Saturday afternoon by a number of pupils of Miss Jeannette Killmaster, and proved to be a very delightful affair. The playing for the first time in public by a number of the little folks in particular was much admired, while the playing of the more advanced pupils revealed beautiful nuances of touch and wonderful fluency and velocity of finger technique, which is to be expected by pupils of Miss Killmaster, their distinguished teacher. The programme was as follows:

Spanish Chant—Mary Denne.
Sonatina (Kuhlan) — Margaret Denne.
Tarantella (Heller)—Marjery Turner.
On the Sea Shore (Mendelssohn)—Gladys Graham.
Love Song (Nevin)—Dorothy Ferguson.

WANT STATUS MADE CLEAR

Canadian Press Despatch:

AMSTERDAM, March 11.—The Weserzeitung, of Bremen, says the majority parties of the Reichstag intend to insist upon complete clearness regarding the status of former Russian border states before ratification of peace treaty with Russia. The Reichstag majority parties last year adopted a resolution against forced annexations or contributions.

Fuel Supply For Next Winter

One of the matters that may come up for discussion at to-night's meeting of the City Council will be the matter of a fuel supply for next winter. Some of the Aldermen are beginning to think that it would be good business to start early and prepare for next winter.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE EDWARD O'BRIEN TO-DAY

The mortal remains of the late Edward O'Brien were laid at rest this morning in St Peter's cemetery. At the Sacred Heart church high mass was celebrated by his son, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, assisted by Rev. Father McGuire as deacon, and Rev. Father McAulley as sub-deacon. The master of ceremonies was M. O'Brien. Rev. Dean McColl preached. Sisters from the religious institutions attended and the music was sung by the boys' choir of the Sacred Heart Church. The Iron Moulders' Union attended in a body; also the children of the Sacred Heart School.

The pallbearers were Messrs. P. Milloy, J. Grady, D. Gleason, L. Gordon, Frank Christopher and R. Carson.

The large number who attended the funeral and service testified to the great respect and admiration in which Mr. O'Brien was held throughout the city.

BIRTH.

LACEY.—On Sunday, March 11, 1918, to Dr. and Mrs. Lacey, 280 Hunter Street, a daughter.

DIED.

YOKOME.—At the family residence, "Castlewraye," 500 Gilmour St., on Monday, March 11th, 1918, Ferman Richardson Yokome, for thirty-six years editor of the Examiner, aged seventy-six years. The funeral announcement will be made later.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. John Westlake, who passed away March 11th, 1915.
There is a spot not far away,
Where our dear loved one sleeps,
Who seems alive but yesterday,
So fresh her memory keeps.
The flowers we lay upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But our love for her who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.
Daughter—Mrs. A. E. Johnston, Lee Street.

WEDDING BELLS

HOPKINS—WARMAN.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of the bride's father, 9 Monaghan road, this morning, when Walter Pennington Hopkins was united in marriage to Esther, the eldest daughter of Mr. Albert Warman. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson, of Trinity church, in the presence of a large number of friends. The young couple were supported by Mr. Chas. Poulson and Miss M. Warman. A large number of valuable presents testified to the esteem in which the contracting parties are held.

OBITUARY

ROBERT LAIRD SEXSMITH.

The sympathy of many friends will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Sexsmith, 313 Reid street, in the death of their only son, Robert Laird Sexsmith, who died at the Nicholls Hospital at 12.15 this morning, after one week's illness from appendicitis. He underwent an operation last Wednesday. The child was born in Belmont, and was aged 6 years and 11 months. He was a pupil of the South Central School, and a member of Trinity Church Sunday School. The deceased was a nephew of Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M. P., for East Peterboro.

The funeral will be on Wednesday at 2 pm. to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., will conduct a service at the house at 1 o'clock.

ELVIN HARPER.

After an illness of about a month, Elvin Harper, son of the late Sam'l and Mrs. Harper, of Peterboro, died on Sunday, in St. Michael's Hospital. He was born in Peterboro county, and resided in the city until about seven years ago, when he removed to Toronto, where he conducted a cartage and express business. He leaves to mourn his death, his wife and two small children; his mother, three brothers and three sisters: Norman, of Peterboro; Alison, of Toronto, Fred, overseas, with the Royal Canadian Dragoons; Mrs. McBrien of Lindsay; Mrs. Dunlop, of Peterboro; Mrs. J. Sullivan, 178 Aylmer street.

Funeral to-morrow from Mrs. J. Sullivan's residence, to the Cathedral, thence, to St. Peter's cemetery.

GILBERT F. LUSH.

Gilbert Fred. Lush, 182 London street, died yesterday morning at 7:30 after an illness of some months' duration at the home of his brother, Mr. H. T. Lush. He was a son of the late Thomas Lush. Deceased was born in Peterborough 27 years ago, and was up to the time of his illness employed with the Quaker Oats Company. Of a studious and retiring disposition he spent most of his life in studying chemicals and was within six months graduating as a chemical analyist from the Scranton Schools when he would have taken an important position in the States.

He leaves of the immediate family, his brother, Harry T. Lush and sister, Mrs. Burns, of Peterborough, and his uncle, Mr. N. Lush.

Funeral to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock from 182 Dublin street, to the Little Lake cemtery.

MRS. WILFRED FORTYE.

Their many friends in the city will be shocked to read of the death in Collingwood, on Sunday, March 10, of Eileen Graham, wife of Captain Wilfred Fortye, C.E.F., and eldest daughter of Dr. A. M. and Mrs. McFaul, of Collingwood. She leaves one child. The funeral will be held on Tuesday in Collingwood.

Mrs. Fortye, of Downie street, is in Collingwood, visiting at her son, Captain Fortye's home.

TWEED EDITOR PAYS RESPECTS TO POLICE

The Tweed Advocate pays the following compliment to the vigilance of the local police force:

The episode that was staged at Peterborough a few days ago and in which a number of Tweed boys figure quite prominently, has been made a subject of wide publicity and in no instance have we seen the slightest sentence in defence of the young men who were innocently "gathered in." We do not purpose to offend the conscription act nor its working, but we cannot understand why law-abiding citizens are treated like fenians and not permitted to enjoy the freedom that is maintained to be one of the outstanding features of Canadian democracy. Six young men of this district, all farmers sons, rather than sit idly on their haunches about their homes in the winter months, engaged at lumbering during the past winter and when returning home by way of Peterborough were pounced upon in that city like criminals and lodged in jail. Two were too young for military service and two had been exempted, but these facts did not save them from the humiliating position into which they were placed. The authorities of Tweed are none the less patriotic than the over-enthusiastic blue jackets of the Quaker city and the young men in question, and their parents, could have been saved a lot of unnecessary worry and expense had they been permitted to pass along unmolested. But, of course, Peterborough must do something, you know, or the world might forget that it was on the map.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

WHAT IS THE USE?

People try to worry along, wondering why they are unable to do things as easily as they once could, why everything looks blurred and dim, making it hard to grasp details as they were able to at one time.

Why is it?

Simply that their eyes have weakened from strain or other cause and need help.

What is the use of continuing in this state when Dr. Fowler can so quickly put things right. Try him and see. Consultation free.

WEEK-END STORM TIED UP TRAFFIC FILLED STREET DRAINS

It is more than six weeks since the bear saw his shadow, if that ancient legend of Candlemas is worth recalling, and in returning to the hollow tree in which he is said to pass his long winter sleep, he showed a foreknowledge of the weather conditions that saved him from Saturday night's storm. The winter has been dominated by the east winds, which practically prevailed since "testing day," the first Thursday of the season. Those who are wise in weather lore, many of them at least, confidently believe that the winds on the first Thursday of any season will prevail throughout the ensuing three months. Whether this may be accepted as a reliable sign or not is open to question, but it is supported at least by the experience of the past winter. The first Thursday blew in with an east wind, a nasty day, that was but the forerunner of the east's spawn of cutting winds, immense drifts, and all the appurtenances of a winter that takes rank above the worst in probably half a century.

The Saturday night crowds were caught by the sweeping snow and sleet, and the late cars were overborne in the rush that left the conductors temporarily on the street. Men were hanging to the steps and were stuck in the fenders like bees swarmed about a hive. At that the car service might have been worse.

The railways were hit another hard blow. The midnight C.P.R. with two engines, arrived about three o'clock on Sunday morning. The G.T.R. trains to-day were nearly all late, but roads have been opened and the regular schedule was moving smoothly this afternoon.

The storm filled in the drains that have been dug by the Street Commissioner's men, and the work of several weeks will doubtless have to be duplicated.

Navy Raises Five Hundred "Spy Catchers" For Service On Incoming Steamships

Every Vessel Entering Port Hereafter Will Have Armed Guard Aboard—New Force Will Do Away With Menace of Enemy Aliens Boarding and Damaging Steamships.

EVERY SHIP WILL BE GUARDED

NEW YORK, March 12.—Five hundred men have made application at the Navy Yard in Brooklyn, for duty in the newly designated branch of the service to be known as the "spy catchers." These one thousand men who are to be recruited will be sent aboard incoming steamships, and they will remain on board until the vessels have cleared again. In this manner it is expected to do away entirely with the menace of enemy aliens boarding and damaging steamships when they come into the Port of New York.

All men accepted in this branch will be sent into active duty at once, it was announced. The men must undergo a regular naval examination before being accepted, however, and the authorities invite all men who believe they can pass the test to report.

The branch will be in service for the duration of the war, and the fact that it offers an opportunity for men to do important service and remain in New York where they may see their relatives and friends frequently, causes the recruiting officers to believe a very high grade of men will be obtained.

Many of those who have made application had previous military experience, and they were given petty officerships.

Men between the ages of eighteen and thirty-five are wanted. Permission from Secretary Daniels to raise the unit was received Thursday last.

Alien plotters have been so active lately that it was found the forces available at present as a waterfront guard were inadequate. The new organization will be known as the Navy Port Guard of the Harbour of New York and will be commanded by naval officers. Its members will be enrolled as members of the United States Naval Reserve force, and promotion will come rapidly to men who show ability, it was declared. Their work will supplement that of the soldiers and members of the police reserves who have been on duty guarding the waterfront for several months.

Every allied or neutral steamship, it was said, that enters the Port of New York in the future will have an armed guar daboard during the time she remains here.

Stiff, Enlarged Joints Limber Up! Every Trace of Rheumatism Goes!

Even Chronic Bedridden Cases Are Quickly Cured

Rub On Magic "Nerviline"

Nothing on earth can beat good old "Nerviline" when it comes to curing rheumatism.

The blessed relief you get from Nerviline comes mighty quick, and you don't have to wait a month for some sign of improvement.

You see Nerviline is a direct application; it is rubbed right into the sore joint, thoroughly rubbed over the twitching muscle that perhaps for years has kept you on the jump. In this way you get to the real source of the trouble. After you have used Nerviline just once you'll say it's amazing, a marvel, a perfect wonder of efficacy.

Just think of it, five times stronger and more penetrating than any other known liniment. Soothing, healing, full of pain-destroying power, and yet it will never burn, blister or destroy the tender skin of even a child.

You've never yet tried anything half so good as Nerviline for any sort of pain. It does cure rheumatism, but that's not all. Just test it out for lame back or lumbago. Gee, what a right fine cure it is for a bad cold, for chest tightness; even for neuralgia headache it is simply the finest ever.

For the home, for the hundred and one little ailments that constantly arise, whether earache, toothache, stiff neck, or some other muscular pain—Nerviline will always make you glad you've used it, and because it will cure you, keep handy on the shelf a 25c family size bottle; it keeps the doctor's bill small; all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

SHORTAGE OF CARS AND GRAIN SCARCITY AFFECT FLOUR MILLS

The car shortage continues to be the big element in the milling business though the situation shows signs of improvement, says the Financial Post. The embargoes on the C.P.R. on grain East of Fort William, and on the G.T.R., east of North Bay have been raised and this has had a considerable effect in improving conditions. Despite that fact, however, there is a decided shortage of grain, and consequently business at the mills generally is dull. This is not due to any appreciable decline in demand, for the actual demand, despite the change in the flour standard, does not appear to have suffered. Barring the difficulty in getting cars to move the finished product there is little doubt but that all available milled supplies would be taken up. As it is some mills are heavily stocked owing to being unable to move their product.

One of the very serious factors with which the milling industry is being faced, according to the statement of a leading official of one of the large flour mills, is the probable shortage of grain. If the present rate of milling of wheat is continued, it is contended, and especially if the present bulk of export is maintained, long before the new crop is moving, there will not be available a single bushel either for milling or export. Millers have a pretty good idea of the supplies that are in the country and the time it would take to exhaust these supplies under present conditions. There appears to be no help for the situation. The production is not in excess of actual needs, and it is well known that the allied demand is far greater than can possibly be supplied. The situation might be relieved if the United States were in better shape, but the same conditions prevail there, indeed are known to be even less satisfactory.

How Any Woman Can Remove Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture).

It is not longer necessary for a woman to visit a beauty specialist to have superfluous hairs removed, for, with the aid of a plain delatone paste, she can, in the privacy of her own home, remove even a stubborn growth in a very few minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes removed and the skin washed, when it will be left clear and hairless. Be sure you buy real delatone.

AUSTRIAN ON FURLOUGH PLAYS IN AMERICA.

New York, March 9. — Fritz Kreisler, noted Austrian violinist, whose appearance even in concerts held for charitable purposes, has caused disapproval in several communities, has cancelled all his engagements, and announced that he would not appear before an American public until peac was declared. Some time ago he decided not to appear except for purely charitable purposes.

Kreisler was wounded while serving as a lieutenant in the Austrian army during the present war and came to this country on furlough to fill a number of engagements.

FOOD { Conservation Substitution Production

This Column is Written in Connection With the Food Campaign Now Being Carried on by the Local Council of Women

This column is written in connection with the Food Campaign now being carried on by the Local Council of Women.

The work of bringing the matter of conservation before the various Women's Societies is going on splendidly. Much interest is shown by the members addressed and their influence among other groups of people should mean a powerful leaven in arousing us all to realize the garvity of the situation, and the definite part of the work laid upon our individual shoulders.

There is a growing feeling among the women of the city that a strong position should be taken in regard to the serving of extra refreshments during afternoon or evening.

This fourth meal is entirely unnecessary and would mean a great saving, if entirely eliminated.

Those of us who have boys in our homes, know how they are always ready to eat at any hour of the day or night, yet the Boy Scouts of Ottawa have recently adopted a resolution making it incumbent upon Scout troops to hold no suppers which can be considered an extra meal.

Three meals a day is their voluntary limitation and all troop suppers must be held at the hour of the regular evening meal. A splendid example, is it not, for other organizations, and grown-ups in general.

Questions and Answers.

The following questions were received last week and the promise made that they would be answered this week. If anyone has further information we would be pleased to hear from them.

1. Q.—What are some things which can be substituted for meat in a workingman's diet?

A.—Once or twice a week, fish may be used. Other substitutes would be cheese dishes of some sort—macaroni and cheese, rice and cheese, etc., but when possible, eggs should be included with the cheese to make it more balanced. Then the thick cream soups are an almost perfect substitute for meat. Those made of peas or beans are especially useful. Beans alone thoroughly boiled or baked, make a splendid substitute.

2. Is the "Cash and Carry system proving a success."

A. Of course, these changes are only in the early experimental stages and we must not judge too quickly. The extension of the "Cash and Carry" system, however, indicates growing dissatisfaction with the wasteful delivery methods which are generally in vogue. There is an evident desire on the part of both dealers and customers to eliminate the waste involved in our present methods, and the success of the "Cash and Carry principle will probably bring about the adoption of some form of co-operative delivery.

Men familiar with leading houses will be especially needed on the farms so that to free those some method of co-operative delivery will probably be made compulsory before long.

To go back to the "Cash and Carry" system question, a great many merchants have adopted the system in whole or in part and are finding it successful, but of course it is only as yet in the process of development.

In Ottawa several merchants have adopted it, and the firm of B. J. Crabtree Ltd., are offering a reduction in prices of seven per cent. to patrons who carry their purchases.

In Hamilton several stores are working on the "Cash and Carry" basis, and finding it successful. In Stratford one large store delivers only paid-for orders to the value of $5.00 or more.

3. Q.—Do the soldiers in England get sufficient bacon?

A. Men just returned to Canada state that in the Canadian camps in England, the men are doing without bacon, in order that sufficient supplies may be sent to the forces at the front where bacon is most needed on account of the hardship involved in trench warfare.

When Canadian soldiers in Britain sacrifice their bacon, surely Canadian civilians can make a similar sacrifice.

4. Q.—Have the men of Peterborough yet made any organized effort for securing and cultivating vacant lots?

A. Nothing definite has been done yet, but we understand the Mayor will call a meeting for that purpose in the very near future. The work done last year, was through individual effort rather than through organized effort, and we have heard the criticism made, the most of the gardening was done by workingmen who after a long day's work, turned out again in the evening to cultivate their gardens, rather than by the men of comparative leisure.

5. Q.—Is it really necessary for Canadians to economize on sugar?

A. The fact that the housewife now finds it hard to secure as much as a hundred weight of sugar at a time, should be a warning to us that the situation calls for strictest economy. If we use to lavishly now we will probably have to go without altogether before long.

Even if the sugar could be produced, the question of transportation would prohibit us using it as freely as we might wish.

One teaspoonful of sugar saved by each person in Canada every day, would mean 55 tons per day, 19,925 tons per year; this at 10c. per pound would come to $3,985,000, which would buy a fleet of 265 airplanes valued at $15,000 each.

6. Q.—What is done with the bread, buns, cakes, pastry, etc. left over in retail grocery shops on Saturday night.

A. We would be glad of information regarding this.

The grocers interviewed so far, say that bread left over from Saturday is quite saleable on Monday and that they plan to have very little left.

7. Q.—Can garbage be utiliz ( for feeding hogs?

A. Yes, if care is taken in the collection of garbage. The Canada Food Board have been looking into this matter and have issued a pamphlet explaining the treatment of garbage from the time it leaves city hotels, residences and restaurants until fed to the hogs.

This pamphlet will be sent on application to any one interested in keeping hogs.

8. Q.—In the Food Controllership designed primarily to conserve food for Britain and the allies or is it to cut down prices for the people of Canada.

A. Primarily the first, and where possible the second. But we at home must realize that prices must be high, because of existing conditions, and no board of control under the sun can cut them down in many instances.

9. Q.—Will seed left over from last year be of value for planting this year?

A. Most vegetable seeds are good for three or four years, and should be put through a simple germinating test. Parsnip seed is only good for one year, carrot and celery usually one to two years, but tomato, turnip, cucumber and beet seed should be fairly good for from five to six years if not kept too dry or too damp.

10. Q.—Could any substitute be used for wheat flour in making bill posters' paste?

A. Yes, cassava flour and a low grade of corn starch can be substituted. In fact the Poster Advertising Association of Canada has already decided that in future no member of the Association shall use wheat flour for the manufacture of paste.

GRAIN MARKET

Oats are moving more freely and the cash situation is consequently easier. Price changes, however, are but fractional, as there is still a good demand even at the present high price, which leaves oats still the cheapest of the feed grains. The corn situation has become exceedingly tense, deliveries into Canada being now practically cut off in consequence of action taken by the U. S. Government. Rye and barley continue to advance 10 to 15 cents almost daily. Rye is now quoted here at $2.50, while at Chicago it is quoted at $2.90.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 Northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-4, including 2 1-2 cent tax, in store Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 98 3-4c.; No. 2, 95 1-4c.; extra No. 1 feed, 84 1-4c., store, Fort William; No. 1 feed, 91 3-4c. American corn—No. 3 kiln dried, $2.10, track, Toronto.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 97c. to 98c., nominal. No. 3 white, 96c. to 97c.

Barley—Malting, $1.83 to $1.85.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store, Montreal.

Peas—No. 2, $3.70 to $3.80, according to freights outside.

Buckwheat—$1.83 to $1.86.

Rye—No. 2, $2.50.

Manitoba flour, war quality, $11.10, Toronto, new bags.

Ontario flour—War quality, $10.70, Toronto-Montreal, $10.70, new bags.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal, shorts, $40; bran, $35; feed flour, not quoted; middlings, not quoted.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 158 cars, with 2,558 cattle, 247 calves, 1,968 hogs, and 183 sheep and lambs.

Choice butcher cattle were scarce, quality all round averaging a poor medium. A very small proportion of the day's offerings sold at steady prices with last week, but the market on a general average for butcher cattle was 15c. to 20c. lower.

Choice bulls and cows were again very firm, one big fellow, weighing 2,220 pounds, sold by Dunn and Levack at $12.75.

Run of sheep and lambs again very small, lambs going about 50c. higher.

Calves about steady.

Hogs steady at $19.75 fed and watered.

One Family "Does Its Bit."

It is not very often that these members of one family take the town by storm simultaneously, but this, says the Christian Science Monitor, is the record of the Geddeses—push-and-go Geddesses, they have been termed. Sir Eric Geddes has not long become first lord of the British admiralty; he has done a great many things and astonished a vast number of people since the war began; his brother, Dr. Campbell Geddes, is now the head of national recruiting on a civilian basis—to be intrusted with the writing of a fresh chapter in the history of recruiting at this stage of the proceedings is in itself the highest testimony to high qualities. The third Geddes to win prominence is the sister of these two brothers, Mrs. Chalmers Watson who, after performing valuable services in France, has now become commander in chief of the new Women's Auxiliary Air corps, whose numbers will probably quite shortly run into six figures.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"Why once in Detroit that guy Demarest was passin' her to me over seventy feet of space and they miscalculated some way; Ivy was scheduled for two somersaults and a sidereturn in the air, but she took three. If she had finished she'd have landed in the arena with a broken neck, but I dived off and caught her under my arm, and made the flyin' rings, with the folks below thinkin' it was a new stunt, and cheerin' like mad! She hadn't a chance of fallin', not while I was in the air! I never missed her once, Mac, not even at the last!"

His eyes dulled sombrely.

"I planned a great act for her and me, the grandest in the business. I had it all over the rest of them as it was and if I'd got her trained right, like I could have in another season, there would not have been a skin in the game could come anyway near her, either. As a team we would have been the wonder of the big top but—she got tired, and threw me cold. That's all there was to it. Nobody else in particular had come along; she'd put over what she set out to and was through with me.

But I wasn't through with her, not by a long shot. She thought that I'd go into the discard like the rest, without a come-back; but that's where she made her mistake. No skin could hand me a deal like that, and go on livin'.

"I warned her, but she laughed at me; then when they opened up for rehearsal last spring I tried to bump her off. I thought I had but I must have shot too quick. Anyway she was wise then that I meant business, and got scared; first time in her life, too, I guess, for she was the nerviest little devil that ever did the triple turn, high, without a net. She beat it here, and I followed her, but I lost track of her, and for nearly three months I've been trying to pick up the trail.

"One night, a little over two weeks ago, I ran into an old pal, the principal clown with the show last year, Pico, his name is, and a darn white little cuss, for all he ain't got much in his dome. He wasn't on to the shootin' I tried to get away with and he thought he would patch up whatever was wrong between us, so he gave me her address. I slept well that night for the first time in some months.

"He stretched and leaned back, sighing in retrospective content, and McCarty watched him with absorbed attention, marvelling at his air of detachment. That which he was relating seemed to have become impersonal, a matter of general interest not untinged with amusement, perhaps, but something that in no way concerned him or the future.

"I stuck around after that, doped out the lay of her flat and the place next door, and planned how I could get away with it without a hitch. The first time I went to look at the empty flat in the next house I took a wax impression of the lock and had a key made. I don't know how your pal got wise to it, but he hit the nail on the head all right; I pulled it off just as he said.

"I was behind her in the station when she and the other dame got her ticket for Chicago, and I got a line on her plans. I found out that she was goin' to be alone in the flat the evening before she started, and I fixed the time so that I would get her sure. I wasn't afraid of being pinched afterwards—it couldn't make no difference. I'm a goner anyway—but I didn't want any interference until I had finished what I came for.

"Honest, Mac, wasn't it the greatest scheme that you ever heard of? Who else would have been fly enough to dope it out, let alone get away with it? It was the grandest little stunt ever pulled by an aerial artist, and there'll never be another to equal it, you can bank on that! No one but me would have had the nerve to pull it, to say nothin' of the strength and skill!

"Trainin' and headwork, that's what it was, and the thought of what was in front of me! I gum-shoed it into that empty flat that night with the rope curled up under my coat, put a board across the alley, and got in the kitchen window of the other empty one. It's wasn't the first time I had made that trip and I was all wised up ahead as to what I was going to do. I went to the air shaft window, tossed the rope end up over the pipe, hitched it along till I got it in the centre and then let down the two ends even and swung out.

"Going down was a cinch but I had to be foxy and swing away out when I passed a lighted window. There was something doing behind every one of 'em, the kind of things that goes on in every home in the country, I guess, but hearin' it all 'intimate like that it brought back to me, while I dangled there just what might have had if Ivy had only been square.

"It's queer, Mac, the thoughts that goes chasin' through a guy's mind, when he don't want 'em, silly little no-account details that sort of open up a whole picture of what could have happened if things had been different. It breaks you up in spite of yourself, when you least expect it. From behind one window there comes a sizzlin' sound and a smell of cheese cooking, and you could hear a guy arguin' with his girl in a jokin', lovin' kind of way about how to make the rarebit or whatever it was.

"Gee! I shut my eyes, and I could just see Ivy, with a blue checked apron on and the dimples in her elbows showin' where her sleeves was rolled up, potterin' around with a chafin' dish, and tossin' her head at me, with her brown eyes snappin, and the color comin' quick in her cheeks like when she got back on the bar after a risky stunt. It just seemed to burn into my brain!

"In one window, too, you could hear the rattle of chips and clinkin' of the glasses, and behind another a kid was cryin'. It was a queer trip, and I had to set my mind for all that I was worth on what was comin' and what I had to do, so I could shut out everything else, and try not to see or hear the life that was goin' on so near me. When I got down level with her room I took a good swing back and landed in like a cat, without touchin' the sill or makin' a sound. It was dark in there but the light was on in the front room and I saw her standing by a desk in front of an open window.

"I didn't mean to take any chances with a gun this time, my bare hands were enough for the work that I had to do, and I just made for her, creepin' along slow and takin' her all in so I could remember it later on. That minute paid up for all that she'd put me through, and I knew that nothin' would matter afterward.

"She whirled around when I got to the middle of the room and saw me. She yelled out and grabbed up some kind of a knife from the desk, but she never had time to use it, for I made one swing at her! I was goin' to choke her but the rage boiled in me, and I smashed her out of the window! I didn't pick her up, and throw her; I just gave her a shove with all the strength in me back of it!

"I heard her strike the ground and I laughed—laughed the way she had at me, only mine was the last one. Then I turned and beat it back to where I'd drawn in the ends of the rope over the sill in the other room. I let them out and started up, hand over hand, the way I'd come."

He broke off, and a spasm as of acute pain, contorted his face. It was gone in a moment but he pulled out a handkerchief and mopped his brow before he went on, more slowly now.

"It wasn't easy getting back. You see Mac, I'd done my job and the fire had died out in me. My hands felt wet and clammy and slippin' and it seemed as if there was a ton weight pullin' me down. It was the first time in all my life that my hands sweated on the job! Even when I was a little shaver tryin' to raise myself on the horizontal bar almost before I could walk I might be shakin' all over with exhaustion, but my hands would be dry and cool.

"Now my tongue was thick and burnin', and there was a kind of a singin' in my ears. You'd have thought that it was hours since I'd first swung out from that flat above, but the kid was still cryin' behind the flappin' shade of the window on the next floor that lonesome, sleepy kind of a cry, like when they wake up in the dark and there's nobody there. It went through me like a knife, Mac, for that's one of the things I'd counted on, in the future with Ivy; a little kid of my own!

"I hadn't said nothing about it, because it lays kind of too close to a guy's heart to blab about, but almost more than bein' the best livin' performer on the flyin' rings, I'd thought of a little feller with Ivy's brown eyes trottin' around and callin' me 'Daddy!' When I heard that little lonesome cry I can tell you I choked up and the tears came into my eyes. I'd have let go the rope, if I could, and finished it all right there, but the years of trainin' back of me just wouldn't let me loosen my grip.

"I went down for a few passes, then my hands took hold again like they was machines, and I braced myself and started on up once more.

"The cookin' cheese in the next flat had turned to a scorched smell—ain't it funny how all them little things impressed me? It was all as plain as if the folks in those different flats was livin' my life for me, just in those few minutes, the life that would have been mine and Ivy's together, if she had only run straight with me!

"I heard a girl say, 'There, I knew you'd burn it, you dear old stupid!' and a man's voice answered, 'If you say I told you so,' I'll kiss you right now!' Then, there came a sound like he'd done it, and her laugh, just like Ivy's and my eyes blurred again, and once more I slipped down a little way.

"I don't know why I didn't rdop off right there and get it over with! Mind you, Mac, I'd no thought of gettin' clean away; I knew I'd be nabbed sooner or later for what I'd done and I didn't care a curse. I guess it was just the idea of finishing the job up clean and not gettin' caught at it. It was the greatest stunt that an aerial guy ever tried, and I wanted to pull it off without muffin' it at the end. God, if it could have been worked into an act wouldn't it have gone great! It can't be done now, for nobody could get it over but me, and I am out of the game.

SHOULD KEEP ON ACHIEVING

Good Work Demands Continuous Improvement in Every Line of Human Activity.

The other day a famous author was telling me how he felt when his first story was accepted. He said that within a few minutes the thought flashed across his mind that he could not stop—but must go on. One good story must be followed by another and another and another—else his reputation would die and he would be humiliated. He said that the feeling was not exactly comfortable—that the prospect was in a way terrible. "Being successful," he said, "is not easy. The successful man advertises to the world that he can do certain things well—and he must go on making good or back off the map. It's a great sensation, a great experience—worth almost anything—but it isn't a snap."

It is the same way in business, says a writer in the American Magazine. The salesman who sets a high mark has to go right out and beat that mark or suffer by comparison with his own record. He can't sit down in a rocking chair and devote the rest of his life to receiving congratulations.

Have you ever sat in a restaurant and compared your job with that of a waiter? Try it some time. No matter what your work is I am sure you will see the point if you watch the waiter and think how exactly his job typifies yours. Take, for example, my job—that of an editor. An editor's job is exactly like that of a waiter. He has to go and get something good and bring it in. And after he has brought it in he has to go right out and get something more and bring that in. The minute he sits down or stops to talk unnecessarily with the guests, he ceases to give as good service as before. Then the guests who praised him a moment ago begin to growl. And so, almost immediately, he has turned from a good servant into a poor one.

This fits any line of human activity. A continuous performance is what is wanted. Nothing else counts.

Good Wages Necessary.

Proper remuneration of labor and well-being of the individual must be recognized as elements of sound business management, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The age has passed when the yearly dividend paid to stockholders is accepted by the public as the sole cause for the existence of an industry. Neither are we justified in passing judgment on the quality of industrial administration, or on the practicability of any system of factory operation solely on the basis of whether such administration or system will insure a permanent or increasing degree of financial profit to the owner. We have to consider the human side of all industrial activity, not alone in its relation to the segregated community and the public at large.

THERE IS NOTHING FOR THE LIVER SO GOOD AS MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels and will tone, renovate, and purify the liver, removing every result of liver trouble from the temporary, but disagreeable bilious and sick headaches, to the severest forms of liver complaint.

They are small and easy-acting, do not gripe, sicken or weaken like the old-fashioned, nauseating, griping purgatives.

Mrs. A. Kirk, 53 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have tried and tested Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and have received good results, for which I am very thankful. I took them for liver trouble. I came out of the hospital on May 3rd, last, after having had a serious operation which might have been saved had I taken your remedy sooner. I have given some to my sister for biliousness and sick headache, and she has found great relief. A lady who lives in my house has started to take them. I will do my best to recommend them to all my friends."

JUDICIAL SYSTEMS ARE OLD

Men Wrangled Over Rights and Wrongs From Time They Began to Live Together.

The concrete beginning of a systemized judiciary, writes Lewis M. Husen in Case and Comment, are as old as the tribal relation. Men quarreled about rights and wrongs as soon as they began to live together as a community, and the chief of the tribe, or the "elders," judged between claimants.

Indeed, at the earliest beginnings of recorded history we find in Egypt a judicial system, including a reviewing power and remarkably developed ideas of administrative justice. Judicial officers in their epitaphs rest their claim to immortality upon having judged impartially, never oppressing the weak and humble, and their merciful regard for the fatherless and the widow.

In the Code of Hammurabi of Babylon were embodied many of the essential principles of modern justice which were transmitted to European peoples through the conquests of Alexander and the Romans. These form the primal basis of the Roman civil law of our English ancestors, derived through the early tribes of northern Europe.

Even old Homer (68 B. C.) gives us a suggestive picture of the modern system of court trials, as the Odyssey:

"What time the judge forsakes the noisy bar
To take repast, and stills the wordy war."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Widow's Birdshot

By C. B. Lewis

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

One summer's afternoon a woman sat at a country crossroads. She had been there about fifteen minutes. Had she been a man there is no telling what she would have said, but being a woman, and a widow at that, she had to be content with saying:

"Drat such a neighborhood to goshen!."

Half a mile away on the lowland was a farmer's wife chasing a goose, while on the left hand, looking over the roadside fence with one eye half closed, was an old lame horse. The farmer's wife and the goose were too far away. But the widow was shaking her face at the horse and getting ready to tell him what she thought of a crossroads without a guidepost when a man driving a horse and buggy appeared half a mile down the Hillsdale road.

It was Hezeikak, widower, and he was in no hurry to get married again. Neither was his aged equine in a hurry. To prove that he wasn't, he stopped every two or three minutes to see if he could reach a horsefly. These sudden stoppings threatened to send the driver over the dashboard, but they did not break the tune he was whistling.

Nearer and nearer the crossroads came Hezekiak with his ancient rig as the widow watched him, and while he was twenty rods away, she muttered:

"He looks like a half fool, but maybe he knows enough to answer a plain question."

"Whoa!" exclaimed Hezekak, as he came opposite. "Are you waiting here for anybody?"

"I should think I was!" snapped the widow. "I have been waiting about two hours for some one to come along and tell me in the name of old Aunt Hanner why there isn't a guidepost at these crossroads."

"Madam, my name is Hezeikak Williams," said the man as he approached her horse and brought his hand down upon his neck with a vigorous swat and killed a horsefly.

"And mine is Sarah Blackwell, but what has that got to do with it?"

"Well, madam, I am a widower, you see."

"And I am a widow, but that isn't answering my question as to why there isn't a guidepost here to direct strangers. It seems to be the most shiftless county in the state."

"The county is all right," he smiled. "I have been living here more than twenty years, and I vow I have nailed a new guidepost up here every year."

"But what has become of them?" was her irritable demand. "Are you going to tell me that this horse looking over the fence has eaten them up as fast as planted?"

"No, ma'am, I ain't. They are pulled up by the roots whenever a young man around here gets hilarious and goes buggy riding with his girl. If there was a guidepost here, which we both can see there ain't, what town would you look for?"

"Why, Berea, of course."

"Oh, Lord, woman, Berea has been in front of your nose and only three miles away all the time you have been sitting here. So you are going to Berea, eh? I have lived there myself since it was a town of four hundred people, and if you follow me you won't lose your way. I heard the other day that a woman from Ryefield was thinking of buying the Clixton place. It don't happen by any chance that you are the woman?"

"Yes, it happens by a good many chances that I am. I have bought the place and am now on my way over for it."

"Shoo! That's right next door to me, and I am glad of it."

It is needless to say that in due time both safely arrived in Beres, and while the widow went about closing the transaction, and making ready to move over from Ryefield the following week, Hezeikak turned his old horse into the pasture and went in to supper to astonish his housekeeper by saying:

"Well, Betsy, I have seen my second wife this afternoon."

"Was that the woman driving the buggy behind yours as you came along?"

"That's the one. How did you like her looks?"

"I don't know whether she will ever be your second wife or not. I don't think it will be for you to have all the say about it."

When the widow arrived next week with her household effects, she found Hezeikak had done something for her which he had never done for himself. He had mowed the grass in the front yard, cut down all the weeds and burdocks and thereby made a great improvement around the place. He was also on hand when the goods arrived to help unload and carry them in.

When the widow arrived she was very much pleased, and said:

"Why, Mr. Williams, you certainly must be a good man."

"But you see, you are a widder, Mrs. Blackwell, and widders have a hard time of it."

It was after three or four weeks during which time Hezeikak had continued to play the part of a good Samaritan, that he sat down on the rail fence at the back of his garden and had a muse with himself:

"Darn fine woman; darn fine!" he began.

"Up with the lark in the morning, and working like a beaver all day.

"Makes the best hot biscuits and custard pie of any woman in Stone county."

The widower pulled a sliver from the rail and chewed at it for a while and then continued:

"Hezeikak, you want a wife. You are a slow old poke and you want some one to hustle you up. You haven't made a dollar in five years and you won't in the next five unless somebody gets you out of bed before the dew is off the grass.

"I can't say that I am so madly in love with the Widow Blackwell as to want to jump over a precipice for her sake, providing there was a precipice within fifty miles of here, nor to drown myself in a lake, providing there was anything bigger than a duck-pond within a day's walk of Berea.

"I like and admire her mighty dang well, however, and if I can get her feeling the same way toward me love will come, and so will matrimony. Hezeikak, you have got to do a little conspiring."

Hezeikak kept up this thinking for a long week and then finally got a plot. He went over to the widow one morning and asked: "Widow Blackwell, did you hear any strange noises around last night?"

"No, I don't think I did," was the reply.

"Some one was sure sneaking around our place last night," he continued. "I have found my spade and hoe gone this morning. Have you missed any of your tools?"

"Why, no. But let me see? Yes, the ax and the long-handled shovel are gone. There surely must have been a thief around here last night."

"I not only heard him, but I saw him," said Hezeikak in very solemn tones. "From the back door I saw him jump the garden fence, but I didn't yell at him for fear of arousing you."

"My stars! How dare a thief come around here?"

"Widow, there are more thieves around Berea than any other town in the state—and far worse than thieves."

"What do you mean?" she gasped.

"I mean robbers—burglars! I might as well tell you the honest truth. It is dangerous for a widow to live alone in this town. I should have told you so the day we first met, but you had bought the place and it was no use to say anything to skeer you. And so I figured that I could take care of us both. I have been doing that right along, but last night they got the better of me."

"Mr. Williams," said the widow in anxious tones, "do you mean to tell me that I am in danger of robbers and burglars?"

"Not with me around," he replied, "unless I sleep sounder than you do I shall be up and down a dozen times through the night, and the next fellow that appears will find me and my gun handy. If you have reason to believe that some unhung villain is prowling around don't take the chances of going to a door or a window. You can be sure that Hezeikak Williams is on deck looking out for the unprotected."

The Widow Blackwell bought fifty chickens and half of them were stolen within a month. She bought a pig, and but for its own sharp squeals it would have been lifted from the pen and carried off. On several nights after midnight her cow was milked dry by the marauder. Some one stole her washtub and boiler and even carried off the family mop from the woodshed.

There was a secret which the widow had not confided to Hezeikak, and that was that she also was the owner of a shotgun left her by her late lamented. When the thefts continued and Hezeikak failed to bring down any game, she loaded that gun with fine birdshot and for three nights running she sat by her bedroom window with the deadly weapon across her knees. On the third night she saw a man moving about her grounds, and without giving any warning she aimed in his direction and pulled the trigger.

The report of the gun was quelled by yells, which she recognized as the private property of Hezeikak Williams. Two minutes later she was kneeling beside him. He was not dead but his plot was. He had conspired with himself to make her believe that a husband was badly needed around her house for her protection. He owned up to it like a man, and after taking the matter under consideration for a few months, or until the last of the bird shot had worked its way out of his anatomy, she said to him one evening:

"Well, Hezeikak, I was not plotting to get a husband, but I am not that mean to fill a man with birdshot and then refuse to marry him."

Japan Is Anxious.

The ban on cotton and restriction on steel have caused much anxiety throughout Japan, but now chemical importers are at the fore protesting against the shutting off of their supplies of caustic soda, glycerin and soda ash, all of which are largely obtained from the United States. These three articles are much wanted in Japan. Attempts have been made to manufacture soda ash in Japan, but they are still in the experimental stage. Glycerin is produced in Japan by a few concerns, but their combined output is entirely inadequate.—East and West News.

No, You Don't!

The late John G. Johnson, the famous Philadelphia lawyer, was once engaged in a case where a certain cantankerous old woman bore witness for the opposition.

Her testimony concluded, the old woman proposed to leave the witness box, but Mr. Johnson said:

"Hold on, madam, I've one or two questions to ask you."

The old woman, however, did not halt in her departure.

"No, ye don't," she said. "None o' yer questions for me. You ain't on our side."

Dear Sirs:—

I don't think there was ever anybody, man woman or child, who was or is more constipated than my little three year old boy was. He was so bad before we got him the Nujol that we would have to leave his bowels unmoved for three or four days, then use almost a quart of water in a syringe to move them. The poor little fellow would almost go into spasms; his father could never stay in the room where he was; it would take almost an hour's work to get them to move and never to move without loss of blood.

He had been constipated for two years. I think those patent medicines did it. I have known the doctor to be here and give him five tablespoons of castor oil, one every half hour, to get his bowels to move. We tried four different doctors, one a well known specialist, but none could help him. Three advised operations, said it was the only cure. I have always had a horror of operations and I guess always will.

Last April, he had Scarlet Fever, sir; he lost chunks of blood as big as the size of a marble. We were going to try a well known woman doctor who claims she cures without an operation, when I coaxed my husband to let me try Nujol. I told him even if it didn't help him, it would not hurt. We tried it, started giving him three tablespoonfuls a day, one after each meal, then as his bowels moved better and with less blood, we decreased the dose as per directions. We used two bottles and a half and we cured him. How thankful we were; tears come to my eyes, even now, when I think of how that poor little fellow suffered. Just think, a little tot, hardly able to talk plainly! He has not taken a drop of it since last June, only occasionally we give him a dose of castor oil to physic him which acts on him now as on any normal person.

I have wanted to write before, but kept neglecting it till I thought perhaps my letter would relieve lots of other people. Again I say, God Bless Nujol, and I will never be without it or cease to recommend it. From a mother whose heart will always be thankful for your great remedy for constipation.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

AN OFFENDED HUSBAND

CHAPTER XIII.

Merton Gray made his way to my side as soon as the men came into the drawing room. I was so glad to be freed from the necessity of answering questions, and making myself agreeable to the women of the party, that I welcomed him gladly.

"Been having a hard time of it?" he asked.

"Not so very" I responded and then we both laughed as young things will. I saw George make his way to the "fascinating widow" as Mr. Gray called Julia Collins, and I watched him closely as he talked to her. By turns, I became jealous, angry and resentful. I thought that if I were like her, George would not think me unfit. How they seemed to hang upon his words in an eager, seductive way. I hated them all, especially the vivacious Mrs. Collins. Why did George seem so engrossed with her? Why he hadn't even looked my way since he came into the room?

"If looks could kill!" Madge Loring quoted, as she came up to us. Then "You must learn, my dear Mrs. Howard, to control your expression. Did not the books tell you that?" then she laughed a bit maliciously, I thought, and passed on.

"What did she mean by 'the books'?" Mr. Gray asked, just as George, unnoticed by me, came up to us.

"What in the world was Madge laughing about?" he asked, before I had time to answer Mr. Gray.

"Oh, George!" I exclaimed, "I bought some books the other day because I wanted to know things. Mrs. Loring seemed to think it a joke. But I don't understand."

"What books were they?"

"Books on etiquette and deportment," I answered. George made no reply, but as he turned away I heard something which sounded very like swearing. I knew at least that I had offended him, although innocently.

MERTON GRAY SYMPATHIZES

"Oh, he doesn't like it!" I exclaimed. Then blushed that I had spoken of my husband to another man.

"Come and tell me what it is all about? I don't quite understand."

"Why, Mr. Gray, you know that I am just a country girl. I never had been away from home until I was married, and my brothers and the people at home thought that I was nearly perfect. I was the only girl, you know."

"I don't blame them," he interrupted.

"Oh, but I am very ignorant! and all Mr. Howard's friends are so absolutely different. I knew nothing of society and social customs and so I bought all the books I could find that told of them. I haven't had much time yet to study them, though."

"Ask me anything you wish to know. I shall be glad to help you," he said very seriously; but there was just a glint of amusement in his eyes that he could not hide.

"You think it was a queer thing to do, too! although you don't laugh at me," I said.

"It is rather unusual," he confessed.

"That is why George is offended; and why she laughed so at me," I said, my cheeks burning.

"It wasn't very nice in Madge," he returned. "But she is a thoughtless creature at all times. Don't you mind her. Why, my dear Mrs. Howard. They are all jealous of you this minute. You carried off the catch of the town for one thing and you are young, and—beautiful for another. Two unpardonable since I can assure you."

"But I am so dull, so uninteresting," I wailed.

"Indeed, you are not dull; and you are far from uninteresting. That you aren't up on all the frills is nothing to weep over. Rather be glad that you do not know of all the little insincerities of social life. Be your own frank, natural self and you won't make many mistakes."

A TALK ON HOME.

"Really do you think so?"

"Really and truly, cross my heart," he said boyishly. "Now tell me about your brothers," he said.

For half an hour I talked of home and the boys. I told him how they looked, their ages, and a lot of little intimate things ye can only tell to those who understand.

I was so engaged, talking, that Mrs. Loring had to speak twice before I heard her. She had asked me to play an accompaniment for a harpist whose accompanist had failed to arrive.

I felt nervous naturally. But I knew she would not have asked me had George not told her I could play. I never had mentioned my music to her. I would do my best, then, perhaps, George would forget to be angry about the etiquette books.

We played for nearly an hour. Then they all flocked around me and complimented me. Merton Gray said nothing until we found ourselves separated from the others again, then he said,

"Never complain to me again. A woman who can play as you can, who can really interpret music, has no reason to envy anyone the foolish little amenities of society."

To-morrow—On the Way Home.

Sure Way To Get Rid Of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Hailstorm Insurance in Germany.

Hailstorm insurance is more extensively carried on in Germany than in any other country. During the last 45 years the German hail insurance companies have collected the enormous sum of 1,144,799,000 marks (mark—23.8 cents), in premiums, and have paid out 902,426,000 marks in indemnities. During the year 1915 the companies realized a profit of 7,999,975 marks, which was much in excess of their average earnings, and the business of the year showed an increase in insured values of 404,000,000 marks.

TORTURING, ITCHING ECZEMA

Mrs. J. B. Horth, Pasquebiac, Bonaventure Co., Que., writes:—"Thanks to Dr Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that this was little short of a miracle."

JAZZ MUSIC FOE OF BLUES

Does Not Consist, as Is Generally Believed, of Lot of Noise Without Rhyme or Reason.

Various descriptions of jazz music have from time to time appeared, but none seem to hit the mark exactly says a connoisseur of this art. The common impression is that it consist of a lot of peculiar and noisy sound without rhyme or reason. This is no the case, however. It consists chiefly of syncopation, peculiarly accentuated variations by some of the instruments improvisations by others, mingled with odd sound effects. Through all the the melody of the selections rendered must be distinguishable at all times—tin can noises, beating the life out of the drums, blasting by the brass instruments is entirely unnecessary Contrasts between pianissimo and fortissimo passages should be shown just as much in jazz music as in the classics.

Another wrong impression is that jazz orchestras must consist of a certain instrumentation. This also is not the case. The violin, 'cello, cornet, piano, or in fact, any legitimate instrument, can be used. As jazz music is originally Ethiopian, the banjo and saxophone are used merely to lend negro character to it.

The number of musicians that can jazz properly is said to be small, because it really requires good musicians, who must also be endowed with the swing or knock of performing it. Although many of the cafe and theater orchestras are composed of good musicians, those who can jass are scarce. On the other hand, many of the self-styled jazz orchestras are misrepresentations, and cannot play the semiclassics or classics adequately. Some cannot perform it properly, and to offset this, resort to noise and discord in imitation thereof. The percentage of musicians who can do justice to the classics and also play jazz is consequently, even smaller. This kind of orchestra is exceedingly scarce.

Jazz music is rhythmic and inspiring. It is declared the best antidote for the blues.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

GREAT PROFIT ON STEAMERS

One Vessel Sold for $2,000,000 More Than It Cost After Being in Service for Five Months.

Some idea of the tremendous advance in the price of vessel property and the fabulous prices now being paid for vessels that can be bought is shown in the sale of the Boston steamer Tidewater, which has changed ownership after running in the coal-carrying trade to this port for less than five months, says the Boston Globe. The big collier cost to build about $570,000, and was sold for more than $2,600,000, a profit of more than $2,000,000.

The Tidewater was built at the New York Shipbuilding company's yard, Camden, N. J., and was completed early the present year. The vessel is constructed of steel, is 368.6 feet long, 55.2 feet beam and 30.5 feet depth of hold. Her net tonnage is 3,854 and gross tonnage 5,266. She was owned by Castner, Curran & Bullitt, and was sold to the American-Italian Steamship company of New York.

Mexico an Indian Country?

It is of importance to inquire into the attitude taken by the southern Indians of Mexico toward the official Spanish civilization, says the New Republic. If it is difficult for an outsider only slightly acquainted with the southern Indians to understand the reasons for their marked hatred of the Spaniards . . . it seems self-evident of anyone who has spent any time with them. To the southern Indians, the Spaniard and his successor, the Spanish-speaking Mexican, is the cruel alien conqueror. They feel that they are Indians and that Mexico is an Indian country. For instance, one of the common objections to Madero encountered in Oaxaca was that he was not an Indian and that the president of Mexico should be an Indian. This attitude is significant, and it is not strange to find even a northern Indian like Huerta proudly exclaiming: "Yo so Indiano." Carranza's lack of popularity in the south is not so much due to the fact that southern Mexico is the home of Diaz as to the fact that Carranza is not an Indian.

Piece of Fir 515 Years Old.

The forestry office at Portland, Ore., received from one of the Washington rangers a specimen of Douglas fir known to be 515 years old. The tree, when 125 years old, fell to the ground, where a cedar tree took root in the log and grew undisturbed for 200 years. The cedar was recently cut into shingle bolts, and the specimen of fir was found in its root. Woodsmen can tell accurately the age of a tree by the number of rings shown in the trunk stump when the tree is felled.

The fir specimen is sound, and is thought to be the oldest of its kind in existence.

Witchcraft Grip Morocco.

To those who know of the occupation of Morocco by the French and of their great work in that country, it may seem strange there should still remain firmly implanted in the lives of the people the most persistent and pernicious forms of witchcraft. For many years the French have endeavored to uproot the belief and to convert the ones who practice its evil tenets, but to little avail. Today witchcraft is believed in and is practiced as it was in ancient times, and that wonderfully rich land is kept in a state of fear-savagery by its influence.

WHEN THINGS SEEM BAD, change the style of your newspaper advertising—it has an influence in improving things—just as correct style makes you look more favourable upon people.

Lift Off Corns Doesn't Hurt!

Few drops stop soreness, then corn or callus lifts off with fingers

The world owes thanks to the genius in Cincinnati who discovered freezone.

Tiny bottles of the magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents. You simply apply a few drops of freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a hardened callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose and shriveled that you lift it off with the fingers. Not a bit of pain or soreness is felt when applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin or flesh.

For a few cents one can now get rid of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of feet. Everyone who tries freezone becomes an enthusiast because it really doesn't hurt or pain one particle.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

THE GALLANT WIDOWER MAN.

Say, who is the gay, gallant, widower man,
So briskly a-courting, who goes,
Seeking a wife, with what speed he can,
For his time is but short, he knows?

Though frosty and few are the locks on his brow,
On his face is an evergreen smile,
And hard is the heart of the fair one, I trow,
That this charmer would fail to beguile.

He would wed, wealthy widow, or spinster, I'm told,
But a poor one, no, not on your life;
Won't object in the least, to one ugly or old,
But he can't love an undowered wife.

And if somebody's fortune should win them a name,
And a master to manage their chink,
The part they're expected to play in the game,
Is obey, without daring to think.

Then, hasten, old man, though not long you've been free,
Yet sixty's no time for delay;
Your wife is as dead as she ever will be,
So hasten, I say, for between you and me,
While the sun shines, 'tis best to make hay.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithea-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

ANOTHER AIR RAID MADE ON PARIS

CANADA BONE DRY AFTER APRIL 1st, 1918

GERMANS LOST FOUR PLANES IN NIGHT ATTACK ON PARIS

Nine Squadrons Took Part in Big Raid on French Capital --Australian Troops on the Western Front Carry Out Successful Raid Bringing Back Prisoners---Artillery on Both Sides is Active.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 12.—The Germans lost four aeroplanes in last night's attack on Paris. Nine squadrons took part in the raid.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 12.—One of the German raiders over Paris last night was brought down in flames, and the crew was taken prisoners. About sixty airplanes crossed the French line. Thanks to the artillery barrage, a certain number of machines were unable to reach their objective. Numerous bombs were thrown on Paris and suburbs. Several buildings were demolished or set on fire. The number of victims is not yet known.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 12.—(Official).—Australian troops carried out successful raids during the night upon hostile posts east and north-east of Messines. A number of Germans were killed and a few prisoners were taken by us. Our casualties were light. The artillery was active on both sides during the night, south-east of Armentieres and east and north-east of Ypres.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 12.—Heavy artillery fighting occurred in front of La Pompelle and in the region of Avocourt. In Lorraine we repulsed a strong raid in the region of Moncelle. The enemy suffered severe losses and left ten prisoners, including one officer, in our hands. On the remainder of the front nothing occurred.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Great Britain to-day was given another credit of two hundred million dollars by the United States Treasury at a new interest rate of five per cent.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

HARBIN, Manchuria, March 12.—General Semenoff, anti-Bolsheviki leader in Siberia, has retreated in Manchuria before the advance of superior Bolsheviki forces, according to advices from the border.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

A FRENCH PORT, March 10.—An American steamship, formerly a German vessel, arrived here to-day with its bridge smashed and a shell shot through a smokestack, as the result of an encounter with a submarine. The steamship defended itself with its guns on being attacked by the submarine. A storm was encountered, during which the cargo shifted. The vessel made port with the greatest difficulty.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, March 12.—The total casualties in Thursday's enemy raid over London were 20 killed and 45 injured, Lord French, commander of the Home Defence Forces, announced to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

STOCKHOLM, March 12.—The Red Guard contingents in Helsingfors are becoming more violent in their activities, according to a despatch to the Tidningen from Vasa, Finland. They are proceeding in a deliberate manner, adds the despatch, choosing their victims from among intellectual classes, assassinating principally clergy and landed proprietors. All agricultural commissioners except one has been killed.

NATIVE WINE MAY BE MADE

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 12.— The manufacture and sale of native wines in the province of Ontario until the end of the year is the only possible loophole to Ontario becoming bone dry after April first, is the belief of officials in close touch with the situation.

According to the legisaltion that is to be passed by the Dominion government, native wine may be manufactured in the province until the end of the year.

Nothing is said in the legislation about the delivery of the native wine, but it is the belief of the solicitor of the Ontario Board of License Commissioners that as far as native wines are concerned the provisions of the Temperance Act will still hold good and the wine may be delivered as well as manufactured.

"I think that the action of the Dominion government is very complete," said Vice Chairman Dingman of the Board of License Commissioners.

Council To Attend

Messrs. J. J. Turner, James Hamilton, B. D. Hall and Morley Lyle, of the Board of Trade, invited the Council last night to attend the Greater Production meeting in the Grand Opera House on Friday night. Mr. Turner assured the Council that the Board of Trade had no intention of encroaching upon its programme.

"We wish you would," Mayor Duncan interjected.

Dr. Riddell and Mr. McCready, of Toronto, will be the chief speakers at Friday's meeting, and Mr. Frank Yeigh will be included. The visitors will meet a group of prominent farmers from the Peterborough townships at an Empress dinner at six o'clock on Friday. A strong appeal will be made for their co-operation in arousing their communities to the needs of the country and to the duty that imposes upon agriculture this year.

Citizens are specially invited to the Opera House meeting where the benefits of gardening and other topics will be discussed.

WAR VETERANS TO CONSIDER GREATER PRODUCTION NOW

Have In View the Leasing of Rifle Range Land From the Government and Matter Will Be Taken Up at Special Meeting on Thursday

A BRANDON RESOLUTION

The local War Veterans are considering the advisability of entering upon a greater production campaign, and have in view the securing of the land upon which the Government Rifle Ranges are situated. The matter was brought up at last night's meeting and will be carefully considered at a special meeting to be held in the Sergeants' Mess, at the Armouries on Thursday night, when definite action will be decided upon. As many members as possible are asked to attend this meeting. Application will be made to the government for the leasing of this tract of land which consists of nearly three hundred acres.

A communication was received from the Brandon Branch of the Great War Veterans in regard to the employment of returned soldiers in temporary government positions. A resolution passed by the Brandon Branch favoring the giving of permanent positions to returned men, was enclosed.

The local branch decided to write to Captain Burnham, M. P., asking why Veterans were only being given temporary positions.

A letter from Mr. Kellaly, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, asking that a list of returned men available for work as laborers on the canal, be submitted, did not arouse much enthusiasm when it stated that $2.35 per day was the maximum wage.

"Too low!" was the general comment on the proposition.

Several new members were added to the association at the meeting.

President Staunton announced that the club room funds had been enriched to the extent of $62.82 as the result of the benefit hockey game played last week.

Examiner Bindery Completes Big Order For Grafton Store

The Examiner has just completed and delivered a large order for an out-of-town concern that speaks well for the capacity of the local printing plant.

The disastrous fire which some months ago destroyed the large store of the Grafton Company in Hamilton, necessitated a new set of stock books for the fine new store which has since been erected.

This new set of books, which comprises an elaborate outfit of loose leaf binders, of different styles and sizes, was prepared under the direction of Mr. W. E. Conway, manager of the local Grafton store, who was the originator of the system now used in all the Grafton stores for keeping a daily record of the stock on hand.

The bindings are all in red, so the book can be easily seen whenever wanted, and as they are in constant use, the value of a striking colour is evident.

The cost ran into three figures, and the entire order has now been delivered and pronounced satisfactory in every way.

Canada Goes Dry

Manufacture and Delivery of Intoxicating Liquor is Prohibited After April 1st, Sir Robert Borden Announces

A DRASTIC MEASURE

Ottawa, March 11.--On April 1st, all of Canada, except a few isolated spots in Quebec, especially the city of Montreal, goes bone-dry, save for the stocks stowed away in cellars for the long drought.

Official announcement was made this afternoon by Sir Robt. Borden of the implementing by order in council, under the War Measures Act, of his pledge given on December 22nd last, that the transportation of liquor from a wet into a dry area would be stopped, and that the manufacture of liquor within Canada would also be made illegal.

The order in council is passed on the recommendation of the War Committee of the Cabinet, in order still further to prevent waste, to promote thrift, to conserve resources, and thus increase national efficiency.

PROHIBITION SEEMS AIRTIGHT

The regulations appear to be airtight. The Cabinent has taken the plunge without any equivocation and without any concession to the liquor interests. The dry provinces, which means all of Canada except Quebec, are sut off from any source of supply from the 1st of April in so far as intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes is concerned.

The terms of the order prevent any further deliveries, for example, from bonded warehouses in Toronto, to which hitherto Montreal and other extra-provincial firms have sent the orders received by them from points within Ontario to be filled.

HOW IT AFFECTS QUEBEC.

In the province of Quebec, the present dry areas, which include now, or will include on May 1st next, nearly the whole of the province, are similarly protected. Liquor cannot be taken into them from Montreal, the one big wet spot left. Montreal itself will go dry on May 1st of next year, when the provincial prohibitory legislation comes into effect.

NO CONCESSION TO LIQUOR MEN.

The effort of the liquor men to get some relaxation of the regulations by securing a higher alcoholic content allowance for temperance beer, was in vain. Intoxicating liquor is defined as any liquor or beverage that contains more than two and one-half per cent. of proof spirits. This makes the standard the same as that already adopted by the prohibition provinces. Moreover, there will be no compensation for the liquor men's business now wiped out. The liquor men's compensation came in the last few months through the millions they made in disposing of stocks on hand at abnormal prices.

TWO EXCEPTIONS.

Ottawa, March 11. -- Canada virtually goes dry on April 1. Under the regulations issued to-night, the manufacture of intoxicating liquor is prohibited from that date. It is provided however that "in case the sale of intoxicating liquor of any class for beverage purposes is permitted in any province, this regulation shall not apply to the manufacture of such intoxicating liquor in such province, until December 31, 1918." The latter provision in regard to the manufacture, is operative in two cases:

The manufacture of beer in Quebec.

Manufacture of native wines in Ontario.

In both cases manufacture is to cease at the end of the present year.

FRANK JENNE Says:

The man who wants a good hat, wants a high-class hat, a hat with a reputation of merit.

Just such hats are the famous "Borsalino" and "Knox" hats. If you do not know these hats it will pay you to get acquainted with them. I have them in greys, greens, browns, fawns, black and blue—all the best shaped and none of the freaks. Let your next hat be a "Knox" or a "Borsalino."

"Come to me."

Veterans Considered Mayor Duncan's Explanation Satisfactory

Big Deputation Withdrew From Council Chamber Satisfied When His Worship Explained That He Had Withdrawn His Reference to "Chocolate Soldiers" Immediately After It Was Made.

PUBLISHED IN ERROR

As the result of a visit of some fifty members of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association to the City Council last night, and an explanation by Mayor Duncan of his recent remarks when the G.W.B.A. request for a grant was turned down, oil was cast on the troubled waters and the incident will be dropped. The Veterans' chief complaint was in the use by the Mayor of the expression "chocolate soldiers" in reference to returned men, and when His Worship explained that he had used the expression hastily before the Council and had immediately asked that the press representatives should eliminate the phrase from their reports in order that an injustice should not be done to the men who had served overseas, the explanation was accepted by the Veterans as satisfactory, and the deputation withdrew.

It is but justice to Mayor Duncan that the Examiner should corroborate his statement. On the night of the meeting the Examiner reporter who was present, acceded to the Mayor's request that the reference complained of should be eliminated, but when the report was being prepared another member of the editorial staff, not aware of His Worship's desire to withdraw the offending reference, allowed it to go through, and the result was not fair to Mayor Duncan or to the Veterans themselves.

The members of the G.W.V.A. held a special meeting at the Armouries last night, and a letter from N. F. B. Knight, Dominion Secretary of the Association, advising that the matter should not be dropped, was read. After some discussion it was decided to send a deputation to wait upon Mayor Duncan to ask for a retraction of the remarks in question, and on learning that the Council was in session, it was resolved that all the members present should form the deputation, whereupon the Veterans fell in and marched to the City Council Chambers.

President H. J. Staunton introduced the deputation, and Comrade J. H. Burnham, M.P., was the chief spokesman for the Veterans. He pointed out that the Peterborough branch of the G.W.V.A. consisted of 225 members, and that throughout the Dominion the Association had over 65,000 members. It was recognized as the official body representing the returned men. If the matter complained of was taken up by the Dominion Executive it might have serious results. The Veterans, he said, felt that Mayor Duncan's remarks had been unnecessary and insulting, and they asked for a retraction.

The Mayor explained that the remarks he made to the Council were what he considered right. He had used the expression "chocolate soldier" in an oft-handed way, as he had heard it used frequently, and had immediately withdrawn it by requesting the reporters to eliminate the phrase. Through an error it had been published in one of the papers, and His Worship regretted that fact as it cast a reflection on men who had done their bit. He felt that the first duty was to the men overseas, and that all the money that could be spared should be devoted to their benefit. He had nothing against the War Veterans, and was ready to do anything to help them when the proper time came.

There was considerable sparring between His Worship and some of the members of the deputation as regards the statement about returned

INQUIRY WILL BE HEARD IN CAMERA

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, March 12.—Col. Hulme, chairman of the Military Court of Inquiry into the charges in regard to the treatment of soldiers in transports returning from England, said to-day that the headquarters officials have decided that evidence shall be taken in camera.

At the conclusion of the inquiry a report will be handed out for publication summarizing the evidence and findings.

FRENCH BARRAGE CAUSES GERMANS PLENTY OF TROUBLE

Copies of German Army Orders Found on Prisoners Reveal the Difficulties Entailed By French Artillery Fire

MANY PRECAUTIONS

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, March 12.— Copies of German army orders found on the prisoners captured on the French front reveal that the barrage fire is forcing the Germans to take every precaution against them.

Since the start of the war the French have indisputably perfected their artillery methods to a degree unattained by any other belligerent, except where the French themselves have served as instructors.

Some idea of the difficulties this entails on the Germans can be gathered from the following German orders: "It is necessary, in order to prepare for every possible emergency, to constitute in advance not only at the positions occupied by our batteries, but in depots to the rear, several days reserve of shells, both for the artillery and trench mortars.

"The emplacements for the trench mortars must be surrounded with barbed wire and the occupants supplied with hand grenades. The troops serving the trench mortars can thus be constituted into centres of resistance even when the fighting approaches close.

"The artillery must have at its disposition at least enough shells for three and a half days. The artillery must equally dispose of gas shells. It is important to provide for the establishment of these munition depots, and it is necessary at all costs to prevent the destruction of large quantities of munitions by the enemy's fire. It is equally necessary to see to it that in each depot there are only shells of the same kind. This will prevent, during the different moments of a battle, the artillerymen from firing shells of a different nature, which might result in the projectiles falling short."

Will Act On Committees

The complaint of the Trades and Labour Council that that body had been ignored in the selection of the Technical School Committee was heard by the City Council last night at its special meeting when a letter of protest was read from the Trades and Labour Secretary.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Taylor, that the Trades and Labour Council be asked to name a committee of three of its members to serve on the Technical School Committee, and the motion was unanimously carried. "It was merely an oversight that the Trades and Labour delegates were overlooked," explained Ald. Edgar.

PIONEER RESIDENT OF PETERBORO' HAS PASSED AWAY

Mr. John James Lundy, Ex-Mayor, Was Born Here in 1834 and Had Lived All His Life in This Community

A WELL KNOWN CITIZEN

Mr. John James Lundy, a pioneer of the city and member of one of the oldest families in Peterborough, died last night at 10 o'clock at the family residence, Verulum Hall, 236 Burnham street, East City.

The loss Peterborough sustains in the death of Mr. Lundy is very heavy. All his life he had taken an active, enthusiastic and helpful interest in public affairs. He was a son of the late William Lunday, a pioneer of 1832, who died April 20, 1878. Born in the city in 1834 when the city was a hamlet, and George street a swamp, he watched with the keen interest of an early resident her growth to the present city in which he resided all his life. He was appointed Justice of Peace in 1873, and was Mayor in 1879-80, and both times by acclamation, when the council consisted of L. Taylor, who died in 1888; T. Cahill, died 1890; Joseph Buller, died 1894; H. H. Smith, who in 1885 was appointed Inspector of Dominion Land Agencies for the Northwest, when he left to reside in Winnipeg; W. Patterson, who died in 1892; W. Mills, J. Douglas, A. Rutherford, died in 1892; W. Yelland, living in the city; S. Griffith, T. H. G. Denne, and W. H. Robertson, died 1914. It is interesting to recall how few of his associates still survive.

In 1882, as Reform candidate, he was defeated for the House of Commons by the late George Hilliard. He was captain of the old fire brigade, when the antique hand-pumped engine was used in 1867, and has for many years been president of the Little Lake cemetery Company and a member of Corinthian Lodge 101, A.F. and A.M., since its inception.

He was a faithful attendant of St. Andrews Church.

Mr. Lundy made many trips across the Atlantic. At the conclusion of his 8th and 9th trip to England, he with his sister, Miss Isabella, were on the Scoteman which was wrecked and totally destroyed in 1889, Mr. and Miss Lundy narrowly escaping with their lives.

There are left of his immediate family three brothers and four sisters:

R. B. Lundy, at home.
Mrs. Robinson, Toronto.
W. R. Lundy, Detroit.
Mrs. Margaret Huston, at home.
Mrs. Rose Baldwin, Toronto.
Miss Isabella Lundy, at home.
Mr. D. J. Lundy, Aylmer street.

Funeral from the late residence, 236 Burnham street, on Thursday afternoon at 2.30, under Masonic auspices, to the Little Lake cemetery. Service at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Mr. Rowand.

"FOLLOW ME" PAPER.

Mr. Walter Stocker was busy today in putitng up the posters for "Follow Me" at the Grand to-morrow night. The "paper" for this big attraction was held up at the border which accounts for its late appearance on the bill boards.

WHY IN SECRET?

The public will not welcome the announcement that the inquiry into conditions on Canadian transports returning from Europe is to be held in secret, the newspapers and the general public being barred from the hearings. The investigation is an important one, affecting thousands of Canadian soldiers, and the public has a right to read the evidence given. There should be no censorship on the story of how Canadian wounded are treated on their way home from overseas service.

THOSE BAND INSTRUMENTS.

The question of the 93rd Band instruments has not been settled. The Veterans have declined to accept the instruments under the conditions laid down by the Council. The latter have decided to ask for offers for the instruments after the 30th of April. The Council might consider the suggestion of selling the instruments, possibly to the 57th Regiment, and turning the proceeds over to the Veterans to pay the rent of their club-rooms. This course would not add to the civic expenditure, would benefit the 57th Band, would help the Veterans, and would, it is believed, be satisfactory to the people who subscribed the money for the instruments.

SHOULD BE CONSIDERED.

The Great War Veterans' Association of Peterborough will consider the question of what action they should take in regard to the light wine and beer question at a meeting on Thursday night. It is hoped that this important problem will not hastily be dealt with by Peterborough's returned men. It is a matter that requires very careful consideration. The Toronto branch of the Great War Veterans' Association declined to take any official part in the deputation which waited upon Premier Hearst a few days ago, realizing, by doing so, they would alienate a large portion of public opinion. That is a point for the local Veterans to weigh carefully before coming to a decision.

THE RAILWAY PROBLEM.

Regarding the general railway question in this country, the Herald believes that public opinion would favour the nationalization of all the railways and their operation as one great government system, says the Hamilton Herald. That at least is the way the Herald would like to see the problem solved. But how many of us are really competent through knowledge and experience to offer intelligent advice to the government on this matter, complicated and technical as it is? Mighty few of us. True, there are not a few who are volunteering advice with more or less assurance, but most of these amateur railway experts would soon wilt under cross-examination, at the hands of a real expert, on the subject of railway management and operation. The problem is perhaps the biggest and most difficult one that the Dominion Government has ever tackled. It is not one to be solved over night, but calls for the most careful study and deliberation. Probably the government will have a definite policy on the subject to lay before parliament the coming session—though even this is uncertain, for it is known that the cabinet is divided on the broad question of nationalization; but it is natural to suppose that no effort will be spared to agree upon a policy for which all the ministers would be willing to accept responsibility. When the government makes its proposals, everybody will be free to consider and discuss them on their merits.

Meanwhile it is, in our judgment, idle to emphasize the importance and need of the details of a nationalization scheme. Our own opinion favours the taking over of the old Grand Trunk as well as the C.N.R. and G.T.P., with reasonable compensation to the G.T.R. shareholders. If it were practicable to take over the C.P.R. as well, all the better. But we confess that we do not know all the difficulties in the way of putting such a policy into effect, and are willing to suspend judgment as to what should be done at once until the government has outlined its policy and produced the reasons for it.

THE EASTERN SITUATION.

(New York Herald.)

From Tientsin by way of London comes report of Japan having intimated to China that she would welcome Chinese co-operation in the event of extreme measures being necessary in Siberia. The greater probability is that such exchanges as have passed between Tokio and Peking bear upon Manchuria, not Siberia. While China enjoys geographical propinquity to Siberia, similar to that of Japan, and greater, Siberia is not nearly so much in the thoughts of the men directing the policies of the government at Pekin gas is Northern Manchuria, and a glance at the map will show why.

The immediate purpose of temporary control over the eastern portion of the Trans-Siberian railway is to prevent its being used for the transport of war munitions piled up at Vladivostok, and at other points along the line. From Vladivostok to Pogranitchnaia, 144 miles, the railway is in Russian territory. Westward from that point, through Harbin and on to Manchuli—a distance of 925 miles—it is in Manchuria, which is Chinese territory. Naturally Peking is keenly interested in the suggestion of military activity by any nation in territory that belongs to China. If there is need for taking control over the Chinese Eastern Railway from Manchuli to Pogranitchnaia, and from Harbin south to Changchun, the government at Peking thinks that China, as an ally to be trusted, should exercise that control. And the government at Peking is right.

Premier Terauchi and his associates in the government at Tokio are wise enough to see the point. Doubtless if Japan deems it desirable to send troops into China's territory it will do so only after having received China's assent; and, under the circumstances what would be more fitting than a suggestion from Japan of the desirability of co-operation between the two great nations of the Orient that have the same relationship to the cause of the Allies and the same interest in preventing Siberia from falling under the control of the Bolsheviki, and, in consequence, of Germany?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

An Eastern Ontario battalion has been distinguishing itself in patrol fighting. It is nothing new for the 2nd or the 21st Battalions to be mentioned in the despatches.

The superstitious fan will find it hard to bet against the Winnipeg Ypres team in the Allan Cup game to-night. Ypres, you know, has a bad name with a good many people from Berlin, Germany.

The club standing in the Russian League is getting harder to follow each day. There is an interesting series going on between the White Guards and the Finnish Reds, with the Bolsheviki not yet out of the running.

BY-LAW NUMBER 2089

A By-law to Regulate the Closing of Barber Shops in the City of Peterborough

Passed the Eleventh Day of March, 1918

WHEREAS, an application has been received by the Council of the City of Peterborough, praying for the passing of a By-law requiring the closing of all barber shops situate within the City of Peterborough, under and by virtue of FACTORY, SHOP AND OFFICE BUILDING ACT, and the said Council is satisfied that such application is signed by not less than three-fourths in number of the occupiers of such barber shops within the Municipality of the said City of Peterborough, and belonging to the class to which such application relates and it is desirable to comply with such application.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH BY THE COUNCIL THEREOF, ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. UNDER and in accordance with the FACTORY, SHOP AND OFFICE BUILDING ACT, all barber shops shall be closed and remain closed on each day of the week, except Saturday and the day before every public holiday at and during the time between the hour of eight o'clock in the forenoon of the next following day, and shall be closed and remain closed on Saturdays at the hour of 10 o'clock in the afternoon until the hour of five o'clock in the forenoon of the next following Monday, and on the days before public holidays between the hour of ten o'clock in the afternoon and the hour of five o'clock of the next following day.

2. Any occupier of a barber shop within the City of Peterborough refusing to close and keep closed, the barber shop which he occupies, and in which such business is carried on at and after the hour named for the closing thereof on each day on which the same is hereby required to be closed, according to the true intent and meaning of the said Act and of this By-law, shall on conviction thereof, be liable to a fine not exceeding FIFTY DOLLARS and costs, to be levied in case of non-payment thereof by distress and sale, of the goods of the offender, and in default of sufficient distress, such offender shall be liable to be imprisoned in the common gaol of the County of Peterborough, for any period not exceeding six months, unless the fine inflicted and the costs (if any), including the cost of distress and of the committal and conveyance of the offender to the said gaol are sooner paid.

3. By-Lay Number 1461 of the City of Peterborough is hereby repealed.

4. This By-law shall take effect on the twentieth day of March, 1918.

5. THIS BY-LAW shall be published by the insertion of a copy thereof, once in the following newspapers, published in the City of Peterborough, namely: The Evening Examined and The Daily Review.

(Signed) GEO. H. DUNCAN, Mayor.

(Signed) S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy of By-law No. 2089 of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, passed by the City Council on March 11th, 1918.

Peterborough, March 13th, 1918.

THIRTY YEARS' WAR PLAGUES

Sweeping Away of Lives Was Frightful, Combatants Themselves Being Mown Down.

In the famous Thirty Years' war, it is estimated, the population of central and western Europe was reduced from thirty millions to less than fifteen millions, and yet during the whole of that time there were only forty important battles fought, and their total death casualties did not reach half a million.

All the rest of the frightful sweeping away of life was from plague and famine, which not only followed in the wake of the armies, but mowed down the combatants themselves.

Nor was the deadly work of these fierce partners of war—the terrible triple alliance of the prayer book, plague, pestilence and famine—confined to the civil populations. They played equal havoc in the ranks of the armies themselves.

Even as recently as the days of Gustavus Adolphus that great captain is said to have broken up his winter quarters and begun his summer campaign nearly two months earlier than he had intended, because at the rate at which his soldiers were dying from disease in their huts and barracks he would soon have had no army left to campaign with.

Kicked Himself to Freedom.

Prisoners of war have had many thrilling adventures in their attempts to escape across the German frontier, but it would be hard to find a more remarkable story than the following, told in a Dutch paper: Four British escaped prisoners of war, one Frenchman and seven Russians arrived at Oldenzaal, besides two German deserters. An amusing incident took place in the case of one of the Russians. He was seized by the German sentry when in the act of crossing the frontier, and in the course of the ensuing struggle threw himself on the ground. He fell half way on Dutch and half way on German territory. The Dutch sentry came to his rescue and tried to pull him across by the shoulders. The German pulled at the other end. When the Russian found that the Dutchman was helping him he started kicking with all his might, with the happy result that he was safely pulled onto Dutch territory.

Sausage Makers' Repartee.

An old story which is being revived nowadays concerns two rival sausage makers. They lived on opposite sides of a certain street in London, and one day one of them placed over his shop the legend, "We sell sausages to the gentry and nobility of the country." The next day, over the way, appeared the sign, "We sell sausages to the gentry and nobility of the whole country." Not to be outdone, the rival put up what he evidently regarded as a final statement, namely: "We sell sausages to the king." Next day there appeared over the door of the first sausage maker the simple expression of loyalty, "God save the king."

Italy's Aerial Tramways.

Before the war the aerial tramway was utilized in various parts of the world for transporting materials across chasms and up mountain sides, but it remained for the Italians to adapt it to their necessity of negotiating the sheer heights in Alpine warfare, according to the National Geographic Magazine. A young engineer of Milan is credited with having first suggested its present use, but it seems to have exceeded in usefulness his wildest dreams. Few facts have been given out concerning the extent of the system, but when this war is over a thrilling tale of engineering feats in its construction will remain to be told.

Blood Poison Developed

As a Result of Accident—Nerves Break Down After Three Weeks of Suffering—A Glowing Tribute to Treatment Used

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 12.—Blood poisoning seems to become more common from year to year, and the dread of it is ever on the increase. In the case reported here the doctor did not seem able to get rid of it, and after three weeks of suffering the patient was almost a nervous wreck.

Mrs. Susie Thompson, Smith street, Kingston, Ont., writes:

"Early in the fall of 1916 I had a painful accident. I ran a sliver under my thumb nail, and neglected having it extracted. My thumb festered very badly, in fact my arm was fearfully swollen up to the elbow. It developed into blood poison, and I had the doctor lance it several times, but it failed to get better. With the intense pain and loss of sleep I became a nervous wreck. After following the doctor's orders for three weeks and not getting any benefit I wrote my mother about it. By return mail she sent me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. The very first application eased the pain, and I slept that night quite easily. I kept using the Ointment regularly, and by the fifth day all the swelling was gone, and also the inflammation.

"During this time I had become so weakened and run down that my whole nervous system seemed affected. I was very nervous and restless, appetite became poor, and I had frequent headaches. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and had the same splendid results from this as from the Ointment. Using the Nerve Food internally built up my system and made me strong, while using the Ointment externally healed my sore thumb. I am now quite well thanks to your wonderful remedies—the only regret I have is that I did not begin using them earlier and saved myself months of suffering, to say nothing of Doctor's bills."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

LOADS OF LIQUOR STILL.

Nearly 15,000,000 Gallons Left When Prohibition Comes—Gay Time in Quebec.

MONTREAL, March 11.—At a celebration of the prohibition victory in the Province of Quebec, held here last night, John H. Roberts, Secretary of the Dominion Alliance, said there were from twelve to fifteen million gallons of spirits still in Canada, and he feared that after the first of April, when the ban on the exportation of liquor from this Province to other Provinces would come into effect, liquor would be cheap here and there would be such a large storage of it by individuals that prohibition would look like a failure the first few months, after the Quebec prohibitory law came into force, April 1919.

The Dominion Alliance will meet here to-day.

PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS NOTES

At the regular monthly executive meeting of the local Red Cross Society, which was held Monday afternoon, March 11th, the various reports presented showed that the interest of the various auxiliaries, as well as the individual workers, had been well sustained throughout the past month. This is most gratifying in view not only of the present serious need for Red Cross supplies, but especially of the evident probability of future enormous demands, due to possible activities.

The convener of the Supplies' Committee pointed out that up to the present time the supplies turned in this year by the various Auxiliaries were somewhat in excess of those sent in for the same period last year. However, in consideration of what was accomplished in the six weeks' campaign held early last year, in order not to fall behind now, a special concerted effort would have to be made by all societies during the spring months. Accordingly the various Auxiliaries were asked, until June to concentrate upon pyjamas, grey flannel shirts and dressing gowns so that the required supply of these necessary articles should be maintained, while the work on the towels and sheets, etc., could be resumed in the summer months.

The report of the Packing Committee was as follows:

Madam President and members of the Peterborough Red Cross. — Your packing committee report 43 cases packed during the month of February, containing the following: — 28 dressing gowns, 178 day shirts, 209 pairs pyjamas, 28 pneumonia jackets, 1,422 pair socks, 388 pair socks, 388 socks, C.W.C.A., 179 pair bed shoes, 348 stretcher caps, 260 sheets, 277 pillow cases, 1,358 towels, 72 bed pads, 192 M. T. bandages.

Supplies were sent in from Ashburnham Patriotic League, St. Andrew's Bereau B C, Central Smith, All Saints', Fairmount, N. Monaghan, George Street, St. John's W. A., Lily Lake, Lakehurst, Murray Street, Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., St. Paul's Red Cross, Progressive Club, South End Auxiliary, Trinity Church, Work Room at Public Library, St. Peter's P. L., Collegiate Institute, Emily Red Cross, Thursday Club, Mrs. Magee.—F. H. Davidson, Convener.

The report of the Sock Committee for February is as follows:

Our total for February is extremely good. From all sources we have 1,099 pairs, being 310 pairs more than the previous month. Our individual knitters gave us 115 pairs; donations from Auxiliaries for Red Cross amounted to 306 pairs from the following societies: Murray Street Church 47 pairs; North Monaghan, 23 pairs; Fairmount Society, 20 pairs; Central Smith, 33 pairs; St. Paul's Church, 78 pairs; South End, 2 pairs; Lily Lake, 21 pairs; Lakehurst, 18 pairs; George Street Ch., 24 pairs. Then for the C.W.C.A. we have 337 pairs. From St. Paul's Church, 144 pairs; George Street Church, 24 pairs; St. Andrew's Church, 40 pairs; Trinity Church, 29 pairs; Ashburnham Patriotic Society, 60 pairs; Thursday Club 30 pairs; Mothers' Club, Y.M.C.A., 5 pairs, and from Mrs. Magee, 5 pairs. From the machines we have 341 pairs, making out total of 1,099 pairs for the month.—F. R. Burnet, Convener.

The report of the work accomplished from February 1st to March 8th, in the workroom of the Public Library, where the average attendance hao been 78, is as follows:

The following extracts from the minutes of the fifteenth meeting of the Central Council of the Canadian Red Cross Society should be of general interest:

"It was felt that the character of the Society should be amended to allow it to continue its work in peace time. Work for the Red Cross has developed a spirit of fellowship, thrift and economy throughout the country. Its influence on the children could not be estimated and it would be a national calamity if it were allowed to die out. It was decided that application should be made at Ottawa for this amendment.

"Mrs. Archibald expressed the great appreciation of the Nova Scotia Branch for the generous assistance rendered to it, in connection with the Halifax disaster and testified to the valuable services rendered by the Society's shipper, Mr. H. Melburne.

The Society's budget was considered. It was decided that the sum aimed at to be raised during the year should be at least four million dollars.

To be asured of the tremendous work being done by the Canadian War Contingent Association among the men at the front, one need only read a few of the letters received from the different units at th front, in acknowledgment of extra comforts sent to them by the Association. One states: "I wish to thank you on behalf of the men of the 5th Canadian Trench Mortar Batteries for your most generous donation of socks, caps, pipes, gum, tobacco, games, etc. It is the greatest presentation they have ever received and are tickled to death with them.

"I am very grateful for your generous donations, as I am not in a position to provide these comforts for them, myself. Many thanks.

(Signed) M. H. CARLING,
Capt. 5th Can. Trench Mortar Batteries.

Another reads as follows:

"We have received the socks, sweets and candles, and you may imagine what the lads thought about these whn they received them in the front line on the last night of the Old Year. They have been expresely informed that they were receiving gifts from the Canadian War Contingent Association.

(Signed) A. GILLIES,
44th Canadian Battalion.

These two letters are but typical of the very many acknowledgments received by the Association bespeaking appreciation of the wonderful work being done. It will be interesting, in this respect, to note that the C. W. C. A. has disributed during the past year 450,000 pairs of socks, in addition to all the other articles and that comforts of various kinds are distributed also to the Canadian sailors serving with the navy, who are performing very arduaus duties in connection with mine sweeping, patrol, and other work.

In connection with the work of the prisoners of the War Department, cards have been received from the following, an acknowledgment of parcels sent through the Canadian Red Cross Society:

Lieut. H. G. Rogers, Lieut. W. E. Massey-Cooke, Pte. Ernest Crofte, Cpl. B. F. Casson, Pte. C. M. Drummond, Pte. Fred Lebar, Cpl. J. L. Davis, Cpl. H. S. Rogers, Pte. E. Stanley, Pte. T. Casey, Pte. O. Cripps Pte. A. David, Pte. H. Godfrey, Pte. Geo. Hutchinson, Pte. W. H. Larkman, Pte. P. A. McRae, Pte. F. Peace, Pte. A. E. Bartley, Pte. G. Butcher, Pte. E. Nuttall, Pte. A. Parrington, Pte. B. Davidson, Pte. F. H. Evans, Pte. J. Jackson, Pte. C. Orford, Pte. W. Fobtit, Pte. J. G. Hadden.

The APACHE DANCE of "POM-POM"

Its Savagery and its Humor

It yet remains for some arch scientist to explain that while the dancing old world has always insisted on the dance for the expression of its feelings, it so frequently changed the mode and why its feeling seemed to run in cycles.

It may be understood why the waltz that the Goths and Vandals brought down from the north to Italy in early days, and undertook to repeat some three years ago has since changed to the Backward Shuffle. But why the succession of waltz, one-step and bunny-hug, the fox-trot and many more varieties of syncopated dance in turn.

The best evidence that the public is fascinated by the twinkling toe, is the fact that every comic opera that has registered a decided hit since the days of "The Merry Widow" with its sensuous waltz theme, has had a dance of some kind that stood out in the memory and spread over the land.

The coming of the Russians fanned the flame but it has taken a French composer, Hugo Felix, who first made the acquaintance of the American public through "Madame Sherry," to make generally possible the strenuous "Apache Dance" of the French slums. This he has done in his new comic opera, "Pom-Pom." He wrote it for Mitzi, the Henry W Savage company's baby star, and it is she as "Pom-Pom" the pickpocket, dressed as a picturesque ragamuffin in boy's clothes, who with a girl partner heaviet than herself, is giving the cleverest reproduction of the dance of the habitues of the Paris underworld yet seen on our stage, having studied it at first hand four years ago in Paris. It takes place in the notorious den of thieves, the Black Elephant. The underground resort, barbarically decorated by Urban, is crowded with beggars, impostors and crooks who leer and jeer as the savagery of the dance grows wilder, or are uproarious at the humor of it brought to the surface by Mitzi as a comedienne and Felix as a composer.

The strength of a man of unusual type and training is required to pick a partner off the floor whirl her in the air, up and around him many times as is done in this dance that has brought into popularity so many modifications of it for public use. Yet the tiny Mitzi, only five feet and one inch tall and weighing but one hundred and ten pounds, does this and acts the role of a young bully, cruel, passionate and droll throughout.

Possibly the scientist would deduce that the "Apache Dance" had come at this time as the result of the war time feeling, but before he thus decides, he should see Mitzi and "Pom-Pom."

There is too much inspiration for laughter in it for such serious analysis.

Mitzi has been ranked as the most versatile dancer of our American stage. She has given the public dreamy waltzes, folk dances and has run the terpsichorean gamut for them, but as she is reported to have said, "This Apache Dance is quite different. I would recommend it to all women who wish to retain their slender figure"

MITZI will be seen in the striking Apache dance in "Pom-Pom" next Tuesday night, March 19th, at the Grand Opera House.

Children Had Whooping Cough

Whooping cough, although specially a disease of childhood, is by no means confined to that period, but may occur at any time of life. It is one of the most dangerous diseases of infancy, and yearly causes more deaths than scarlet fever, typhoid or diphtheria, and is more common in female than male children.

Whooping cough starts with sneezing, watering of the eyes, irritation of the throat, feverishness and cough. The coughing attacks occur frequently, but are generally more severe at night.

On the first sign of a "whoop" Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup should be administered, as it helps to clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phlegm.

Mrs. George Cooper, Bloomfield, Ont., writes: "It is with pleasure I can write and tell you that there never was a better cough medicine made than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Our children had whooping cough last winter, and that is the only thing that seemed to help them. It loosens up the phlegm so that they could raise it easily. I will never be without it."

"Dr. Wood's" is 25c. and 50c. a bottle; put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

20,000 Soldiers To Return To This Country Soon

Seven Thousand Medically or Physically Unfit For Active Service Will Arrive in Next Month

Ottawa, March 11. — Between now and June 1 nearly 20,000 returned soldiers will arrive in Canada medically or physically unfit for active service. About 7,000 will arrive during the next three or four weeks. The increased influx of returned men follows the weeding out process which has been going on for some months overseas, following radical reorganization of the medical and other services over there. The principle laid down that men are not to be kept on the pay roll unless usefully engaged, and that invalided men are not to be kept in England indefinitely, is being rigidly adhered to. Long term cases which can be moved to Canada are being brought here for treatment until ready for discharge. There is to be no more allowing of men to stay comfortably in England at the country's expense for one, two or three years, without ever getting into real active service. If they are not able to fight, and are not really needed for work in some branch of the non-combatant service, they must come home, and re-enter civilian life.

That accounts for the demobilization of 20,000 men this spring.

Dr. Chabot Declines The Position

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, March 12. — Dr. J. L. Chabot, M.P. for Ottawa, and the only French Canadian government supporter, has declined to be Deputy-Speaker. A member of the Opposition may be named.

Good Showing By The Northern Life

Those interested in life insurance will find some facts and figures from the annual report of The Northern Life Assurance Company of Canada, well worth perusing. This Company's insurance in force at 31st December amounted to $12,435,227. The assets at 31st December were $3,090,241, and the income of the company for the past year was $630,443. The comparative increase of business of The Northern over the business of 1912 is equivalent to fully fifty per cent. A very satisfactory showing for which the local district manager, Mr. R. T. Petersone, has contributed a praiseworthy share. It has been learned that the amount of business written in Mr. Pettersone's district during last year was the second largest amount reported in the province.

Council Is Anxious For Success Of Conference With Coal Men

Have Asked the Dealers to Meet the Fire, Water and Light Committee to Discuss a Scheme That Mayor Duncan Believes Will Prove Satisfactory and Effective.

Mayor Duncan's expressed desire that the local dealers co-operate with the city in a plan to record the sales of coal this year as a preventive to hoarding is heartily supported by the Council. At a meeting of the Committee of the Whole last night, the Fire, Water, and Light Committee was authorized to arrange a conference with the dealers, at which the tentative scheme of registering the distribution of coal will be fully discussed.

The Fuel Controller's restrictions limiting a householder's supply to two months will be suspended on April 1st, on which date the price of coal will drop thirty cents a ton, and consumers have until October to purchase their requirements for next winter. On and after October 1st consumers will be forbidden to purchase more coal until they have less than a two months' supply on hand.

Mayor Duncan said he believed the dealers would approve of the plan the Council would present to them.

Ald. Weir—No dealer wants the rest of the trade to find out his tonnage.

Mayor Duncan—It will be known only to a city official.

Ald. Worth—Suppose a manufacturer got in a car to distribute to his employees.

Ald. Dobbin—You would have to get a permit. All we would want to know would be to whom the coal was delivered, in order to prevent them from duplicating their orders with local dealers.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Jones, that the Fire, Water, and Light Committee be deputed to confer with the dealers on this proposal.

Ald. Dobbin has already sent them a circular letter, requesting them to consider the question in its general aspect preparatory to the conference, which will be held shortly. The letter stated that the Council had no intention of interfering with the private business of the coal dealers. The proposed scheme, if concurred in by them, would allay the friction that developed under the extreme scarcity during the past winter, but, to be successful, required the full co-operation of the local trade.

LINDSAY HOTEL BADLY DAMAGED

LINDSAY, March 12.—A fire which threatened to assume serious proportions, and which resulted in a serious loss to Mr. A. J. Wardrobe, broke out in the Grand Union Hotel Saturday night.

The roof and upper apartments of the hotel were badly gutted, while practically the entire contents of the hotel were badly damaged by smoke and water. Mr. Wardrobe's loss will be heavy. There is an insurance of $5,000 on the building, but none on the contents, it is understood.

Great excitement prevailed among the boarders when it was found that the hotel was on fire. There was a wild rush for belongings, and Mr. James Mitchell, who thought the means of exit had been cut off, made his escape down a rope to the street below.

Looking Too Old

Many girls and women look old long bemore they should. Their faces become pale and drawn, wrinkles appear and their eyes are dull and lustreless. The cause of this is weak, watery blood. This is also the cause of the headaches and backaches, and the general feeling of wretchedness that afflicts so many women and girls. From one cause or another the blood has become thin and watery and the victim has a prematurely aged appearance. People with good blood are energetic and cheerful—people with poor blood despondent and unhappy.

It is most important that the blood supply of girls and women should be regularly replenished — important not only on the score of good looks, but to restore robust health which is of still greater value. To obtain a supply of new, rich, red blood nothing can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills impart a glow of health to the cheek, brightness to the eyes and make tired, weary, breathless girls and women feel bright and happy. Any woman or girl who looks ill or feels ill has only herself to blame if this condition continues, because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will surely and speedily restore health and strength. This has been proved in thousands of cases, some of them in your own neighbourhood. If you are weak, or pale or ailing, or are looking old before your time, you owe it to yourself to give these pills a fair trial.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MARRIED WOMEN TO DO THEIR BIT

Every Person Travelling on Railroad Must Carry Card Showing Registration—Rates of Pay Fixed

Every man, woman and child over the age of sixteen has got to register for farm service, giving name, age, present work, whether ever on a farm, knows anything of farming or is willing to lend a hand at helping the farmer.

And woe betide anyone who wishes to travel on the railways and hasn't got a card, showing that he is registered. He will have to go to the police station.

Married women will register and state whether they are able to go on the farm and leave their household duties to their children.

When a man gets his papers to fill out he will state whether he is able to help the farmers, what he is best at, and state the date at which he can be spared from his present employment. Then, when the Government has a call from a farmer for help at a certain date, this man will be notified to report to that farmer at that time.

Fix Rates of Pay.

It is likely for an experienced man the pay will be from $40 to $60 a month with board, while the smallest pay is likely to be around $12 a month and keep. In some cases a person can inform the Government offices that he has placed himself with such and such a farmer and the Government will make enquiries to see if the man is working for that farmer.

All Must "Face Up."

"A man or woman will be expected to state just what he or she thinks they can do on a farm. It will be left quite a lot to the conscience of the person. If he can drive horses he must state so. If he can plough, then he must state so. If a woman thinks that in the interest of her country and from patriotism she can leave her home duties to work for a little on the farm, then she must state so."

Men Swear—Women Complain.

Just because their corns ache—easy to cure them with Putnam's Corn Extractor; it acts painlessly in twenty-four hours. For corns, warts and calluses the only thing is "Putnam's"; try it, 25c. at all dealers.

$10 LICENSE FOR TEAMSTERS

At last night's meeting of the City Council Ald. Edgar said that teamsters living in the city should be protected against competition from ouside.

"Farmers come in to work in the city who are what you might call self-feeders," explained Ald. Edgar. "They bring feed for their horses and sometimes for themselves and don't leave much money in the city. Ald. Edgar proposed that the Police Commissioners be asked to charge teamsters living in the city a $10 license fee, and non-resident teamsters who might come into the city to work, $25.00. The motion was seconded by Ald. Dobbin.

Opposition developed, the majority of the Council regarding a uniform fee of $10 as more acceptable. Ald. Edgar revised his motion accordingly, and it was carried unanimously.

MORE LIGHTS.

Ald. Worth called the attention of the Council to the fact that lights were needed on Monaghan Road between Gilmour and Weller streets. The sidewalk was very high and should be protected b a railing as well.

The Council thought the lights would be enough, and on motion of Ald. Worth they will be installed.

MAN DROPS DEAD AT OSHAWA DANCE

Port Hope Guide: Someone has said "there is but a step twixt us and death," and so it proved with Mr. Fred Barrow, at the Town Hall, Oshawa, last Friday night. One moment he was dancing and the next he was still in death. A party of friends who had been out at sleighing parties, etc. all winter, wishing to enjoy a good dance before the season ended, engaged the town hall and invited a number of people from as far away as Toronto and Port Hope. A good orchestra furnished music and all were enjoying themselves to the full when the dark shadow of death hovered over the happy company. In a moment as a dance was being concluded, Mr. Barrow told his partner that he felt faint, slipped to the floor and evidently expired, though it was not known at the time. A physician was called, only to find that he was beyond medical aid.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE'S REPORT ADOPTED

At the meeting of the City Council last night the following report of the Property Committee was adopted:

Your Property Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the fire limits be extended to include the territory including McDonnel street on the south, Dublin street on the north, the eastern limit of lots number two, west of George street on the west.

2. That the tender of Walter Fisher of $300.00 for the market tolls and barges for the year beginning April 1st, 1918, be accepted, and that the Chairman of this Committee be authorized to have the necessary papers completed.

3. That a reply be sent to the Great War Veterans' Association's letter saying that they would only take the band instruments without any condition and that they be informed that the instruments are in the custody of the Council under a document which provides that they be disposed of for the benefit of the citizens, and that under these circumstances the Council does not feel that they are in a position to give the instruments without conditions or compensation, and that the agreement which was prepared and which was understood was accepted by the Association appears to the Council to embody fair terms to both parties; and that the Association also be informed that it is the intention of the Council to dispose of the instruments, and that if the Association does not wish to receive them on the terms of the agreement the Council will receive an offer for them any time on or before April 30th next.

Revised Salary Increase For City Officials Approved At Committee of Whole Meeting

A revision of the salary increases by the Council in committee last night, resulted in the inclusion of some of the officials who were overlooked in the by-law which was rejected at the regular monthly meeting a week ago. At that time Ald. A. A. McIntyre objected to the manner in which the proposed increases were suggested at a meeting of the Finance committee, and succeeded in holding up the by-law and returning it to the Committee of the Whole.

The aggregate increase provided in the suspended by-law amounted to $400, representing $100 each to the City Clerk, Treasurer and Tax Collector, $50 to the assistant treasurer and $50 to the treasurer's stenographer. Last night's meeting recommended increases totalling $1,130.

Ald. Worth suggested an increase of ten per cent. all around.

Ald. Dobbin—Some of the salaries may have reached the maximum, while others may be less than they should.

Ald. Worth—Make it a ten per cent. war bonus. Everybody is doing it, and the increased cost of living warrants it.

Ald. Taylor—Where do we get the money? You should have brought this in before the rate was struck.

Finally the committee put their heads together, excluded the City Clerk, Treasurer and Engineer, and, as it were, weighed the city officials in the balance with the measures of a limited treasury.

One of the aldermen remarked: We want to be fair to the employees, but what will the ratepayers, the employers, say.

The following increases were agreed upon—but will have to be ratified in Council (Ald. Langford and Saunders were absent last night)—

| | Former Salary | New Salary | Inc. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Maylor Duncan | $ 500 | $ 600 | $ 100 |
| City Clerk Armstrong | 2,550 | 2,700 | 150 |
| City Treasurer Adams | 1,400 | 1,550 | 150 |
| Asst. Treas. Miss Swinton | 750 | 800 | 50 |
| Tax Collector Green | 1,300 | 1400 | 100 |
| City Solicitor Gordon | 1,000 | 1,100 | 100 |
| City Engineer Parsons | 2,500 | 2,550 | 50 |
| Sanitary Ins. Stapleton | 1,000 | 1,050 | 50 |
| Street Commiss. Evans | 1,250 | 1,350 | 50 |
| Street Ins. Fitzgerald | 700 | 750 | 50 |
| Dr. Amys, M.O.H. | 800 | 850 | 50 |
| Relief Officer Miller | 800 | 850 | 50 |
| Plumbing Ins. Thompson | 720 | 750 | 30 |
| Caretaker Wilson | 800 | 850 | 50 |
| Mr. Adams' stenographer | 400 | 450 | 50 |

Fire Limits Extended Peterborough Planing Mill Is Chiefly Affected

At a special meeting of the City Council, last night, a by-law amending the building by-law was passed extending the city's fire limits to include the territory between McDonnel street on the south, Dublin street on the north, the eastern limit of Lot No. 2 west of George street on the east, and the westerly limits of Lot No. 3 on the west.

This extension directly affects the Peterborough Planing Mill recently badly damaged by fire and at last night's meeting a letter of protest was read from Mr. Harry Baker, who complained that the extension of the limits would involve very heavy expenditure for him in the reconstruction of the plant, and might result in the postponement of his plans.

Mr. Baker and Mr. Wm. Menzies representing the Peterborough Planing Mill Company, were present at the meeting and addressed the Council along the same lines. Mr. Baker offered to erect a brick fire wall around his yards if the ratepayers adjoining would pay half the cost.

However when the by-law extending the limits came up it was carried and, as a result the Planing Mill Company will have to use a thirteen inch brick wall in rebuilding the plant.

Ald. A. A. McIntyre thought that the Council should give Mr. Baker a chance by having the City Engineer and a couple of the aldermen inspect the plan and see if any modification of the by-law could be made to help Mr. Baker. However, the majority of the Council thought that the owners of property in the neighbourhood of the Planing Mill should be protected and the by-law was passed as read.

Ald. A. A. McIntyre remarked that his property was included in the new fire limits and asked if he would have to use a thirteen inch wall in the brick garage he proposed to build. He was informed that a 9-inch wall would, in all probability, be sufficient.

EARLIER CLOSING.

A by-law providing for the barber shops of the city to close at 10 o'clock on Saturday night and on the nights before public holidays was unanimously passed, the City Clerk reporting that the petition asking for the change had been sufficiently signed. The new regulations come into force on March 20, and a fine not exceeding $50 or six months in jail is the penalty provided for infringement of the by-law.

Among the communications was a letter from the City Clerk of London, Ont., enclosing a petition to the Legislature in regard to the Commission form of government and asking the Peterborough Council to endorse the request.

Veterans Considered Mayor Duncan's Explanation, etc.

men refusing to work, and for a time the meeting threatened to get out of order, but when President Staunton said that the Mayor's statement that he had retracted the "chocolate soldier" reference on the night he had made it was satisfactory to the Veterans, the big deputation filed out of the room and the incident was closed.

Several of the Veterans, including Secretary Whatley, Comrades Smith, Stanley and Muir, all of whom had served in France, took advantage of the occasion to point out that the man who had enlisted for overseas service, and, through no fault of his own, had got no further than England, and was returned to Canada as medically unfit, was as much entitled to credit as the man who reached the firing-line. This point was emphasized by all the speakers.

The Veterans regarded the Mayor's explanation as a complete retraction of the offending remarks.

As the deputation was about to leave the Council Chamber, President Staunton inquired if they were to understand that the Mayor retracted the statements in question.

"Yes," replied Mayor Duncan, "I retracted them on the night in question and they should not have been published."

"That clears the situation," remarked one of the Veterans, and the deputation took their departure, satisfied that their cause had been vindicated and the remarks complained of recalled.

The Suits

The conservation of materials has brought about an era of strictly original styles, which is very evident in the graceful, slender-lined suits of Spring. Instead of going to former style periods for inspiration, designers have developed modes in full accord with the times.

The result is most pleasing. Skirts are usually plain and straight, of shoe top length. Jackets vary in length; some have ripple backs, others are quite plain; in nearly all the vestee and graceful wide collar are featured. Among the feathered shades are tan, beige and blue.

Spring suits will meet with your whole-hearted approval. Because of their very simplicity we are certain these new

$20, $25, $27.50, up to $40

The Coats

Whether Riding or Walking You'll Find Such Comfort in the New Spring Coats.

When seated, the long pleated skirt will furnish ample protection; standing, it falls in graceful slender lines. The collars are large and can either be buttoned close or turned down away from the throat, as you prefer. You'll like the pretty shades of tan, blue and grey which are shown for the new season.

Whether you choose your Spring coat for style or for service, you'll discover many pleasing garments in our splendid pre-Easter showing.

$12, $13.95, $15.95 up to $28

The Dresses

Nearly every Dress has a Girdle

Whether of woollen weave and straight lined, or of silk and draped, your new Spring dress is likely to have a girdle or sash of some sort. Wide or narrow, straight around or slanted, with hanging ends or without—whatever its fashioning or fabric, it seems that the girdle finds a place on almost every one of Spring's new dresses.

But this is only one feature; each dress shows its own version of the season's slender modes. You'll also learn the favored materials and colors when you visit our apparent department, for we have secured a splendid assortment of 1918's prettiest dresses.

The Hats

Your personal preferences can easily be satisfied this Spring, for the variety of shapes is practically unlimited, though preference seems to be given the smaller close-fitting styles. The line of your hat is an important consideration for trimmings are simple, though unusually attractive.

Because they are simply trimmed it requires great skill to produce effective designs. Each of these pretty Easter hats is a tribute to the skill of our designers and your own good taste.

Confidence In Sir Adam Beck

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, March 12.—The Ontario and Hydro Radial Line Ontario Municipal Electric Association Committee here to-day passed several resolutions expressing confidence in Hon. Adam Beck and the policies of the Hydro-Electric Commission. They expressed some alarm over the attempts to curb the power of the Hydro-Electric Commission, and also favoured the taking over of the C.T.R. and combining it with the C.T.P. and the Canadian Northern and Transcontinental in one system. President J. W. Lyon argued that the nationalization resolutions at this time should not include the C.P.R., and the meeting agreed with him.

BRICK WALL AROUND PLANING MILL YARD WILL BE NECESSARY

Objecting to the Property committee's recommendation to extend the fire limits of the building by-law north to include his factory, Mr. Harry Baker, of the Peterborough Planing Mill Co. submitted the following considerations to the Council:

March 11th, 1918.

To His Worship the Mayor, and Council of the City of Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—I have observed by a report which appeared in the daily papers of Friday last that the Property committee of your Council intend to recommend the extension of the fire limits by including Dublin street within its area so as to include the Peterborough Planing Mill property.

I understand that this action has been instigated by a number of residents in the vicinity of the planing mill since the fire occurred there a short time ago, who have always shown an unfriendly feeling toward the mill property because it happens to be situated near some of their property, and where it has been since its establishment, for forty years.

I believe, however, the majority of the members of the Council, who are business men of experience, will not give their sanction to their demands without giving some further consideration to my interests, especially at a time when encouragement, rather than discouragement, is to be expected. To compel me to rebuild the burned portions of the mill so as to comply with the Fire Limits By-law, at a time when the price of brick, building material and labour is so high, is equivalent to further increasing my losses by the fire, and would make me hesitate to proceed with my preparations for resuming business, which I am anxious to do as quickly as possible.

The Council need not be told that my fire loss has been sufficiently heavy without adding to it by any extra expenditure. I am anxious to rebuild again, in fact I have been preparing to restore the burned portions of the building and get started with our spring work, but to be compelled to build brick walls when material is so high as at the present time, means putting serious postponement on my intentions.

If I am compelled to comply with the Fire By-law I would consider it necessary to build a brick wall all around the southern, eastern and western boundaries of my property, and ask the property owners interested to pay one-half the expense of same.

I have been employing from 35 to 50 hands in connection with my business and running constantly to keep up with the orders, and never was in a better condition to increase our output than before the recent serious fire, and it certainly does not seem like encouraging local industries to endeavour to handicap me in the manner proposed at a time when I need all the assistance I can get. Neither does it seem right or fair to single me out for restrictions of this kind when other similar factories who have passed through like experience are not interfered with and allowed to go on without restrictions.

It is well known that some of those who got up the petition to have our factory included within the fire limits "live in glass houses" and "should not throw stones." If I cared I might show how inconsistent some of the petitioners were in trying to prejudice me before the Council.

I appeal to the Council, therefore, to give some consideration to my circumstances, hoping they will deal with this matter as they would like to be dealt with.

Yours respectfully,

P.S.—It is a well known fact that if it had not been for the frozen hydrants and the twenty minutes delay caused thereby, the fire in my factory would have been put out with a comparatively trifling loss.

Food Production Plans For Peterborough

The call for greater food production is an exceedingly urgent one. It is not only wise to conserve food, but it is vital to produce more food. Recent official bulletins urge upon the owners of land to be alert for early spring work and prepare plans for increasing the food production.

The Americans have a slogan that "Food will win the war," and the negative of that is "Lack of food will lose the war." The Russian revolution was caused by a lack of food. It was a lack of food that was responsible for the Italian break, and there is a fear for a similar thing in France.

These facts should receive special attention in Peterboro, and the mass meeting called for Friday evening in the opera house, under the auspices of the Board of Trade, to organize for a "Greater Production" campaign, should appeal to every patriotic citizen in city and country. The speakers from a distance are men who are fully conversant with the subject, and no one should miss hearing them on this important occasion. 1d1w

Baker Made Voyage On U. S. Cruiser

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PARIS, March 12.—Newton D. Baker, American Secretary of War, came to France on a cruiser convoying 10,000 troops, of which a portion were aboard a former German liner, it was learned to-day.

The voyage was enlivened in mid-ocean by a submarine alarm, according to further information. There was considerable cannonading before it was discovered that the "periscope" was only a floating spar.

Before the cruiser entered the port an alarm was wirelessed from the port that a submarine was lurking nearby. The French sent out a considerable convoy of hydroplanes and dirigibles. Baker was visibly impressed by the thoroughness of these precautions.

Urged Paper Manufacturers To Carry On

OTTAWA, March 12.— At the resumed newspaper inquiry this morning Commissioner Pringle made an appeal to paper manufacturers to "carry on" for at least a fortnight to supply publishers of Canada with sufficient paper. Pringle also appealed to both publishers and manufacturers to "get together" and endeavour to effect a compromise. He declared that the reports that paper could be manufactured in Canada for $2.50 per 100 pounds were absolutely false.

58 Snakes Were Bagged

Mr. Vernon Friedly, of Peterborough, who is spending the winter in Texas, has sent home a very interesting photograph showing some of the results of a snake hunt in which he has been engaged. In all 58 rattlesnakes were disposed of, and the picture shows 41 of the reptiles, including one black-backed rattler, which is a type very rarely found.

Less Than Twenty Hired Men In Smith

The acreage of grain decreased 33 1-3 per cent. last year in Smith township, was a statement made to-day by a citizen discussing the urgency of effective plans to assist farmers this spring. He also stated that there were not twenty hired men in the township, and that last fall's ploughing had been curtailed by the prospective effect of conscription's further depletion of farm labour. An eighteen year old boy had been offered $50 a month by a farmer. Herds have been reduced, and the visible decline of agriculture in Smith during the past year is said to be typical of a large number of the townships in Ontario.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

TORONTO, March 12.—There was practically no market this morning. Prices were the same as yesterday's and nominal. Owing to the railroad situation no live stock was received here to-day. Receipts from yesterday afternoon total 3 cars, 35 cattle, 2 calves, 64 hogs, 1 sheep.

Kitchener Have Edge In Betting

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, March 12.—All is set for the first round of the world's amateur championship hockey battle to-night between the Winnipeg "Ypres," champions of the west, and "Kitchener," champions of the O.H.A. Both teams, in the opinion of local critics to-day, are in great shape and show better hockey abilities than have been seen here for years.

The betting is about even, with Kitchener having slightly the edge.

A strong solution of washing soda will remove paint from chairs.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Torontos Have Four Goals On Canadiens

TORONTO, March 12. —Travelling at top speed from start until finish, Toronto defeated Canadiens by 7 to 3 at the Arena last night. It was the first of the home-and-home series to decide which team will meet the Pacific coast champions, and the Blue Shirts will carry a lead of four goals to Montreal for the return game on Wednesday night. On the form displayed by the locals last night they should hold their lead in Montreal.

Play Strenuous Hockey.

Both teams were fully extended, and with each team determined to secure the "edge," strenuous hockey resulted. Tripping, slashing and hard bodychecking were very apparent at all times, and both teams were equally guilty. The Blue Shirts won because of their persistent back-checking and ter ious attack. In the opening period they checked the Flying Frenchmen off their feet, scoring two goals and holding Canadiens without a tally. In the second period each team scored once, while in the closing chapter Toronto scored four, while the Canadiens tallied twice.

Blue Shirts' Early Start.

In the opening period Toronto had all the better of the play, bombarding the veteran Vezina in goal with shots from all angles. In was only the superb work of Vezina that kept the score from being considerably more in Toronto's favour than it was. Noble, Crawford and Meeking hurled wicked shots at him time after time, following up viciously for the rebound. Hall and Corbeau played nice defensive hockey, but they were outguessed and outplayed by the Toronto forwards.

Many Penalties Imposed.

The numerous penalties imposed upon both teams for rough work necessitated the use of all substitutes for perhaps the first time this season. The slogan of the players on each team appeared to be "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," and they lived up to it. Almost every player on each team visited the penalty box at various stages, with the exception of the goalkeepers, and considerable rough play went unnoticed. While great credit must be given to the Toronto forwards for their strong, aggressive exhibition, the lion's share of praise must go to Holmes in goal and Cameron and Mummery of the Toronto team.

CURLING

BEGINNING OF THE END.

The end of the curling season looms with the scratch games that afford the only attractions this week at the rink. Last night the Hunter street merchants, or practically the Campbell & Best hardware magnates, with Andy Laidlaw, the Fashion Craft tailor as an auxiliary, defeated the Trent Canal office rink, dubbed the Government, in a strenuous game that ran into an extra end.

The rinks were as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| H. Hare | A. M. Laidlaw |
| D. Eason | A. W. Archibald |
| G. H. Giroux | Ray Best |
| A. C. Kay | W. D. Campbell |

By ends:

Campbell . . . .x2x1lxx21412xx1x--16

Miles Hamilton has inveigled three old timers to challenge Alex. Kay's District Cup rinks of other years, one of the smoothest curling machines that has been turned out of the local club in recent years.

This game is scheduled for to-night with the following line-up:

| | |
|---|---|
| J. Metheral | Jack Stanger |
| P. D. Fitzgerald | Joe Pentland |
| E. G. Patterson | Sam Ray |
| A. C. Kay, sk. | Miles Hamilton, sk. |

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

De Laval Win From Grocers.

Last night, the Grocers won the odd game from the De Laval in a ten-pin league match at the Water street alleys.

In the first game the De Laval rolled up a total of 936, while the Grocers rolled 789. The total pinnage was: De Laval 2,427, Grocers 2,251.

Carter and Barrette were the heavy hitters for the De Laval with 538 and 504 for three-game totals. Barrette had high single of 207.

For the Grocers R. Ross had a three-game total of 476. The scores were as follows:

| De Laval— | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| W. Fitzgerald | 205 | 146 | 133 | 484 |
| Barrette | 207 | 165 | 132 | 504 |

URGES INQUIRY INTO DOM. PERMANENT LOAN.

Former Solicitor Convenes Meeting of London Shareholders and Debenture Owners.

LONDON, March 10. — Declaring that the estates of former Presidents of the Dominion Permanent Loan Company should be compelled to repay any profits made from their association with the Dominion Permanent Loan Company, U. A. Buchner, a London lawyer, Saturday afternoon addressed a meeting of nearly a hundred London and Western Ontario debenture owners and stockholders.

Mr. Buchner, who personally is in danger of a loss of between $4,000 and $5,000, told the meeting that years ago he was a legal adviser of the Dominion Permanent Loan Company. Thus, he said, he has learned a good deal which he could use in delving if he is made a member of an Advisory Committee which he hopes to see named to co-operate with Assignee Clarkson.

He claims that years ago he had attended a meeting of the company at Toronto and had asked for information concerning the assets of the corporation. He was told by officers to wait until after the directors' meeting for the information, but he says he is waiting yet.

Mr. Buchner, who went to Toronto to interview Mr. Clarkson some days ago, at the request of a number of debenture holders, stated that he was informed that expectations are that the railway running out of Spokane, Washington, which is the principal asset of the Dominion Permanent, is expected to sell for a million and a quarter dollars. In it more than four million dollars had been invested. Moreover, there are mortgages of $115,000 on which Mr. Clarkson expects to realize about $38,000, but Mr. Buchner states that he believes they can be made to produce $55,000. Beyond that there is little to look for. He thinks the debenture holders will get a fair return on their money, but that there will be little or nothing for the stockholders. Answering questions of some attending, he stated that there is no double liability, but that those who still own amounts on stock purchased must pay up if they have the money. The meeting represented about $100,000 and endeavours will be made to secure the co-operation of similar organizations recently formed in Guelph and Peterborough. Other similar organizations are being formed at Woodstock and St. Thomas, and Elgin sufferers are already giving a measure of support to the London body.

DON'T WORRY over the bad business of yesterday. Use newspaper advertising and make it good to-morrow.

Identified Tools

An electrician employed at the Quaker Oats company was committed for trial by Magistrate Dumble this morning on a charge of stealing carpenter's tools from Mr. R. Walker. Mr. Joseph Wearing, solicitor for the defendant, declined to elect and pleaded not guilty.

Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution.

Robert Walker, employed as a carpenter with the Quaker Oats Company during the last eight months, said he had left his box of tools on the second floor of the building, on Feb. 27th, but when he went to get it, on Saturday, March 2nd, it was gone. A search extending through several floors located the box in the basement. It was broken open, the hinges having been pried apart, and the tools were gone.

"On Monday, March 4th, Detective Meagher came to me and informed me that I could look through the boxes in the basement. They belonged to the electricians. In the first one I opened I found my "tri-square." It was stamped with a "W," which I put on, standing for my first name Walker. I also identified my oil stove. I never saw one like it before. It is enclosed in a home-made box.

"I also found a saw set with tape on the handle which I had put there."

"It's worth about five cents," Mr. Wearing, the defendant's counsel remarked.

"It's worth a dollar," said the witness. There was one plumb ball. It had no mark, but I recognized the string. There were also auger bits, which corresponded with the size of some of those I lost. There were no identification marks on them. Eighteen or twenty bits were taken from my box."

CHILD'S BODY FOUND NEAR ST. CATHARINES.

Owner of Land on Which Remains Were Found is Under Arrest.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 8. — Felix Goodwin, upon whose property an infant's dismembered body was found here, was placed under arrest.

The body of a female child minus head, arms and legs was found wrapped in a cloth on a brush pile in a clump of trees.

Felix Goodwin's daughter has been in the hospital for the past four weeks. She is accredited by stories told to the police with admissions that she had fed the head, arms and legs to the cats.

ANNA HELD OUTDONE BY HER DAUGHTER

"Follow Me" a Real Metropolitan Show With the "Kick" of Champagne in Every Situation—Performance Chic and Piquant From Start to Finish

Speaking of "Follow Me" which will be seen at the Grand to-morrow, a Chraleston (Va.) exchange says:

When such shows as "Follow Me" come to Charleston there is no need for the "tired business man" of the city to go to New York for relief from "that tired feeling." There was a regular metropolitan show in Charleston last night, and Charleston knew it. The result was that the Grand Theatre housed one of the biggest audiences in its history, and everyone composing it was by turns, surprised, delighted, rocked with merriment, as the piece developed. "Follow Me" is a typical Anna Held production, light as gossamer, but with the "kick" of champagne in every situation—almost in every sentence of the witty dialogue.

Because of illness, Anna Held, herself, did not appear and if we say, as we are virtually compelled to do, that she was not missed, Miss Held must take the blame upon herself, for having such a brilliant and talented daughter. Liane Held Carrerra took the leading role of the piece in a way that it is hard to see how even her famous mother could have surpassed. It is said that Mme. Liane even wears Anna Held's clothes in taking this part—be that as it may, she certainly filled her shoes, in the proverbial sense of that phrase.

"Follow Me" is a combination of the dramatic, operatic and spectacular. For, in addition, the decidedly "Frenchy" situations and lines, it is a dream of beautiful girls, gorgeous costumes and magnificent stage settings. The performance was chic and piquant from start to finish.

Mme. Carrerra, while the centre about which the notion of the piece revolved, is not the entire show, by any means. She is supported by a most competent cast. Lewis Seymour as A Knatt, the poet, is a Class 1 laugh-provoker. Harry Short, as the American millionaire, does some very clever work. Harry Seymour, as the Marquis, is very good, while Marie Fanchonetti, as Denise, and Venida Fitzhugh, as Laura, leave nothing to be desired.

Another Murder Mystery

Canadian Press Despatch:

HAMILTON, March 12.—This city, already famous for unsolved murder mysteries, has another on its hands, as the result of the finding of a headless body of a man, practically naked, on the hillside near Valley Inn. There is no clue. The police are investigating.

The body was identified as that of Thomas Georgieft, a Bulgarian, aged 29. After the brutal murder, from motive unknown, the head was hacked from the body and dropped into the Dejardines canal.

Two Brothers Die

The many friends of Mariah Mitchell, "Cedardale Farm, Emily, will learn with deep regret of his death, which occurred on Saturday. He was the eldest surviving son of the late Captain John Mitchell, one of the pioneer settlers in that township. The deceased was only sick four days with pneumonia, when he passed peacefully away. His younger brother, Samuel W., of "Grandview Farm," pre-deceased him four days ago. The funerals, which were held Thursday and Monday, March 7th and 11th respectively, were largely attended, which tended to show the high esteem in which they both were held in the township and surrounding country. There are left to mourn their loss, two sisters, Miss T. D. of the homestead and Mary J. of "The Maples," Verulam, also a number of nephews and neices. The pallbearers were all old school mates of the deceased.

Rev. J. G. Lewis, formerly of Peterborough, conducted the services.

HASTY ACTION OF M. C. R. DETECTIVES COSTLY TO COMPANY.

WINDSOR, March 17.—Geo. Jenette, an Essex County Constable, was awarded a verdict of $1,200 against the Michigan Central by an Ontario Supreme Court jury sitting at Sandwich for malicious prosecution and false imprisonment. Jeanette was arrested a year ago by special officers of the railway company on information said to have been furnished by a yardmaster, who stated he saw Jennette coming away from a bonded car which was afterwards found to have been forcibly opened and certain goods taken.

Without formality of a warrant the railway officers rushed Jennette, who was at that time employed as a switch man, to the Windsor lockup, where he was placed in a cell by the Company's officers. It was brought out at the trial that the Windsor police had absolutely refused to lay hands upon Jennette because no warrant had been issued for him. A few days later Police Magistrate Leggett heard the evidence in the case and declared Jennette not guilty. The accused then started an action against the Michigan Cenral for heavy damages, which the jury decided were based upon good grounds.

NO ACTION AT THIS SESSION.

"Good Intentions" Extent of Govt. Move Toward Nationalization.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 11.—Before the opening of Parliament next Monday, the Government will dispose of a number of questions which for some time have been under advisement, namely the railway rates, and the application of regulations in respect to prohibition of the liquor traffic.

The impression prevails that any legislation this session on the general railway question will be more of an empowering character than otherwise. To a certain extent negotiations looking to the acquisition of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific have already been instituted. Some cables have been exchanged with the Grand Trunk authorities in London, but as the acquisition of the road would call for negotiations this is likely to furnish an excuse for little action this session apart from a declaration of good intention by the Government.

Pte. G. T. Willshaw Ill In France

Mrs. G. T. Willshaw, 806½ Louis street, has received the following letter in regard to her husband, Pte. G. T. Willshaw:

France, Feb. 21st, 1918.

Dear Mrs. Willshaw,—Your husband, Pte. G. T. Willshaw, has asked me to write you and let you know he is well and comfortable in No. 1 Canadian Casualty Clearing Station, where he has been sent, and has had an operation for appendicitis. The operation took place two days ago and was quite successful. I had a good talk with him this afternoon and he was feeling very comfortable and resting well. He will be going to base hospital as soon as he is able to travel. He was telling me about his three boys. I, myself, have had my boy crippled in this war. God help the poor mothers who after all have the hardest time of it, I think.

But don't be anxious about your husband. He is doing very well and will have a good long rest.

G. C. D'EASUM, Capt.,
Chaplain 1st Canadian C.C.S.

Mrs. Willshaw's oldest son, George, was taken out of the trenches on January 27 of last year and died of the same complaint as his father is suffering with, on the following day. Her second son, James Willshaw, was wounded at Lens in August of last year and is still in convalescent hospital, while the third son, Robert, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, is still in France.

Car Service Breaks Down

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

KINGSTON, Ont., March 12.—Kingston has no street car service, as a result of a break down of a generator at the power plant. The power ran out last night at 5.40 o'clock and not a wheel has turned yet. As rain set in to-day following a heavy storm, the citizens are up against it all day.

NOTHING CAN COMPARE WITH IT

Mr. Fred Adams, New Rose N.S., writes—"I have tried many medicines for coughs and colds but never found anything to compare to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We have had the greatest never fails to relieve a cough and loosen satisfaction with this medicine for it is up."

U. S. To Call Out 800,000 More

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, March 12.— Eight hundred thousand men, the so-called "second draft," will be the national quota to be fed into the military mill in small groups from week to week or month to month as needed, according to official announcement to-day.

Two Years For Bigamy

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 12.—In 1916 W. F. Hill alias C. Rowe, a British reservist, married in England. In June, 1917, having meanwhile returned to Canada and re-enlisted, he married another young girl here. To the resultant charge of bigamy he pleaded guilty in the police court to-day.

"This man will go to Kingston penitentiary for two years," announced Magistrate Denison promptly.

Applications For Abandoned Baby

Mr. G. W. Powell, agent for the Children's Aid Society, has received three or four applications for the foundling baby boy that was left in front of Goheen and Matchett's grocery store. The police have not announced any new developments in their investigation, and in the meantime the infant is receiving the best of care at the Children's Shelter. Apparently the little one has appealed to the sympathies of some citizens, who have asked that it be entrusted to them.

City May Have To Demolish Royal

Two men started to work on the demolition of the Royal Theatre this afternoon. Armed with small hammers, they perched on the roof and proceeded to knock off a few of the of the projecting bricks that once formed the front wall of the Neill Shoe Store. The civic authorities are not impressed with the speed at which the work is being done, and unless the work is speeded up the city will take a hand in cleaning up the wreckage and opening up the sidewalk, the use of which the public has been deprived of for the past two months.

Sale of Work Was Success

The sale of work at the S. A. temple last night was a decided success in every way. The orchestra did exceptionally well. To-morrow afternoon at three o'clock, the net result of the sale will be announced. At 3.30 the weekly prayer meeting will be held at the temple for the allied cause and the boys overseas, and their dependents.

Hand Was Badly Injured

MILLBROOK, MARCH 12.—Mr. L. Norton had the misfortune to have his hand badly injured by a circular saw while working at Russell's saw mill, Millbrook. It was reported at first that he had lost fingers, but such is not the case.

WEDDING BELLS

BARRINGER—CUNNINGHAM.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the residence of the bride's father, 154 Lock street, yesterday, March 11th, at 1.30 o'clock, when Alice May, only daughter of Mr. J. J. Cunningham, was united in marriage to Chas. H. Barringer, also of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. B. Greatrix, of St. James' Methodist church, in the presence of only a few immediate friends and family. The young couple were unattended.

After dinner they left on the 3.26 C. P.R. train for Toronto and Hamilton and points west, amid showers of rice and confetti and good wishes of the many friends who gathered at the station to see them off. Mr. and Mrs. Barringer will reside in the city on their return.

MRS. P. O'GRADY.

News of the death of Mary Josephine, beloved wife of P. J. O'Grady, of Douro, will come as a shock to her many friends.

Mrs. O'Grady passed away last evening at 8 o'clock after an illness of twenty-four hours.

Deceased, who was twenty-nine years of age, was well-known in Peterborough, having resided in the city a couple of years.

A kind and genial disposition made her a favourite with all her associates.

Besides her sorrowing husband she leaves to mourn her loss, her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sullivan, four sisters, Laura, Anastasia, Eva, and Rosabelle, and five brothers, Herbert J. and Sylvester in the U.S. army, Leo in England, convalescing after wounds received at Vimy Ridge, John E., of The Quaker Oats Company, and Frank at home.

The funeral will leave the family residence on Wednesday morning and proceed to St. Joseph's Church where requiem mass will be celebrated at 10 o'clock, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

MARY GREER.

Mary Greer, for 80 years a resident of Peterborough, died this morning in St. Joseph's Hospital after an illness of about one week's duration. For the latter part of her life she had made her home with her niece, Mrs. McBride, 183 Simcoe street.

The funeral will be held from St. Peter's Cathedral to St. Peter's cemetery, the time to be announced later.

A. T. ARMSTRONG.

MILLBROOK, March 12.—The death occurred here on Monday of Mr. A. T. Armstrong. Heart failure was the cause. The deceased was seventy-two years of age and was President of the Millbrook Agricultural Society, president of the Horticultural Society and a member of the School Board. He leaves a wife and several sons and daughters.

OATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 9 cars, with 99 cattle, 127 calves, 128 hogs, and 3 sheep and lambs.

It was an off-day at the cattle markets yesterday. With a few belated arrivals and some held-overs from Monday, a few small transactions took place, but as for a general market there was practically none. As a result of the week-end storm country roads are badly blocked, and cattle cannot get through. Several cars arrived later in the day, but were held over. Prices were practically unchanged, except that a small bunch of hogs sold at 25c. higher at $20, fed and watered.

WAR DOGS AND CATS NEEDED

Bureau of Mines Can Use Great Numbers for Experiments With Gas Masks.

If you raised Fido to be a hero send him to the bureau of mines. And if there is a tom cat about the premises who shows signs of heroic qualities send him along, too. The bureau of mines is anxious to get canine and feline heroes right now. They can be devoted to a very useful purpose, one that may be the means of saving the lives of hundreds of American soldiers.

The bureau is using cats and dogs in experiments with gas masks that will be supplied to American soldiers at the front. Hundreds of animals can be used and the bureau recently sent out a call for more of them. In each case the animals are shipped at government expense.

The Yale Medical School at New Haven also is conducting experiments with gas masks and can use almost any number of dogs and cats.

Germany Lost Big Chance To Wreck The British Fleet

Lord Jellico Tells How Navy For Mouths Was Exposed to U-Boat Attacks—Arranged to Sacrifice Trade Ships —Grand Fleet Could Not Exist Without Trawlers.

TIMES OF ANXIETY

Hull, England, March 13. — How seriously the German submarine might have crippled the British navy in the early days of the war, when there was not a single British naval harbor protected from submarine attack, was told here by Lord Jellicoe, formerly First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, in a speech at the annual meeting of the Hull Sailors' Orphanage here.

"The work of the fleet was a good deal more arduous in the early days of the war than it has been since," said Lord Jellicoe. "In those days there were no bases protected from submarine attack and the fleet was hunted from pillar to post to find security to carry out the necessary operations of coaling. Some of the coaling operations were performed under very exciting conditions, the base being open to any submarine that cared to come in.

"If the Germans knew it they never had the pluck to try it. If they had done so they might have reaped a rich harvest. But we always had to be thinking of the possibility of such an attack and whenever I was inside a base I spent many anxious moments, and some very amusing moments—amusing to look back on, I mean, but not amusing at the time.

There were constant scares of submarines and we knew that if a submarine got inside the harbor it might sink a battle ship with each of the ten or twelve torpedoes that it carried. Put yourself in such a position and you may be able to appreciate a little the anxiety that was felt whenever a signal was given that a submarine had been sighted near by.

"As usual in times of anxiety, we called upon the merchant marine and an arrangement was made that if a submarine got inside a base, merchant ships should place themselves alongside until the war ships could get under way. Then if the torpedoes were fired the merchant ships would receive them instead of the battleships.

"That was the arrangement. The merchant marine as usual did exactly what they were asked. Scores of small craft dashed about the harbor at full speed to keep the submarine under water, and if they saw it to endeavor to ram it. It was extraordinary, having regard to the conditions of sea and weather, that many collisions did not occur. The skill with which the whole programme was carried out, time after time, was a great testimony to the seamanship of those in charge of the trawlers and bigger ships.

"The British grand fleet could not exist without trawlers. One of the omissions in our pre-war naval preparations was that we left the navy absolutely unprovided with vessels of the trawler type. When war came the Admiralty had to depend upon the generosity of the trawler owners to keep the fleet protected. So it is not too much to say that we owe the trawler owners and men a very large debt. It would be impossible to reward them adequately, because if one attempted to bestow decorations and medals I don't suppose that anybody in the trawler service would be undecorated."

DON'T BE DYSPEPTIC.

The dyspeptic has thought only of the stomach when the real source of trouble is the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cleanse and purify the digestive and excretory system and in this way put the organs of digestion into splendid working condition. A little patient urging on of the organs when sluggish will restore the habit of healthful digestion.

MILLBROOK PERSONALS

MILLBROOK, March 12.—Mrs. G. W. McKim of Peterborough was a guest of Mrs. C. W. Richards on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Adams were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Adams at Lindsay on Thursday.

Miss Patience Byam and nephew, William Byam, were guests of friends at Myrtle and Port Perry last week.

Mr. John Davidson of Omemee has moved to Millbrook, where he has purchased a residence on Anne street. We wish him a pleasant sojourn among us.

Miss Mae Huycke of Hastings, who has been visiting at the home of Mr. H. Mulligan, sang a solo in Grace Presbyterian Church, Sunday morning. Miss Huycke has a very sweet voice, and the large congregation was delighted with her singing.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sayles were visitors to Toronto last week.

SOCIAL EVENING.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lang were the guests of honour at a social evening held in the basement of the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening. Miss Hampton's S. S. class, of which Mrs. Lang is a member, having learned that they were about to move to Garden Hill, thought it fitting to take this means of conveying to them their regret at their coming departure and to wish them God speed in their new home. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by the large number present. The basement was prettily decorated for the occasion.

GRAIN MARKET

With the freer deliveries of oats the cash market has weakened. Manitoba oats, Fort William basis were yesterday quoted from 2 3-8c. to 3 7-8c. lower according to grade, the higher grades declining most. Ontario cash oats are also quoted 1c. lower. Speculative trading is gradually being forced out of the grain markets. The Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday took action, taking barley off the list and fixing a price at $1.90 to liquidate contracts. Barley inflated, prices promptly shrank.

Oats are moving more freely and the cash situation is consequently easier. Price changes, however, are but fractional, as there is still a good demand even at the present high price, which leaves oats still the cheapest of the feed grains. The corn situation has become exceedingly tense, deliveries into Canada being now practically cut off in consequence of action taken by the U. S. Government. Rye and barley continue to advance 10 to 15 cents almost daily. Rye is now quoted here at $2.50, while at Chicago it is quoted at $2.90.

Manitoba wheat— No. 1 Northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-3; No. 4, $2.10 1-4, including 2 1-2 cent tax, in store Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 94 7-8c.; No. 2, 91 7-8c.; extra No. 1 feed, 91 7-8c, store, Fort William; No. 1 feed, 88 7-8c.

American corn— No. 3 kiln dried, $2.10, track, Toronto.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 96c. to 97c., nominal; No. 3 white, 95c. to 96c.

Barley—Malting, $1.83 to $1.85.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store, Montreal.

Peas—No. 2, $3.70 to $3.80, according to freights outside.

Buckwheat—$1.83 to $1.85.

Rye—No. 2, $2.50.

Manitoba flour, war quality, $11.10, Toronto, new bags.

Ontario flour—War quality, $10.70, Toronto-Montreal, $10.70, new bags.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $40 bran, $39; feed flour, not quoted; middlings, not quoted.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $17 to $18; No. 2, $14 to $16; mixed, $13 to $16; straw, car lots, $8.50 to $9.

Disease Not Inherited.

An entirely wrong doctrine of heredity has been the source of a great deal of anxiety in the world, declares James J. Walsh, M. D., in the American Magazine, and has kept many people from living their lives as they ought to do, because they have been spending time and energy worrying over what would happen to them if certain feelings which they thought symptoms of inherited disease were to prove correct. Defects are inherited, but disease is not, because acquired characteristics are not transmitted. Apprehension of heredity has probably caused more suffering than heredity itself.

CUTICURA HEALS . ITCHING BURNING

Rash On This Little Baby Over Face and Head. Quite Disfigured.

"When my baby was four months old she had a rash all over her face and head, and was quite disfigured. Her skin was inflamed and sore, and itched and burned and the rash later developed into large red eruptions, making her cross and fretful. The baby could not get any sleep.

"My husband bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Soap and I used two tins of Ointment with two cakes of Soap and she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. A. Down, 1040 Gertrude St., Verdun, Montreal, Que., March 2.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment often prevent pimples or other eruptions.

For Free Sample Each by Mail address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. A, Boston, U. S. A." Sold everywhere.

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Girls and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this physiplated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside of the body. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just try this for a week and notice results.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

"I got a fresh grip on myself, and went on up to the flat where the card game was goinin' on. My foot touched the very sill when I braced myself to swing out, and right then somebody pulled a cork. I never tasted liquor in my life, like I hold you straight, but God! how I wanted a drink that minute!

"I thought of how they would look, if I should stick my head in and ask for one, or maybe offer to sit in the game, and I laughed until I had to take a turn of the rope around my wrist and hang there, helpless. The sound of it echoing back from the black pit of that shaft pulled me together, though, and I heard one guy say: 'Give me two cards.' I thought what a sucker he was, holdin' up three of a kind and advertisin' it, and how I'd have trimmed him proper.

"You see, Mac, it seemed just as if I was sittin' back of him, watchin' the game over his shoulder! I forgot that I was hangin' there in mid-air, but I come to myself pretty quick, when one of the guys inside there crossed the room suddenly, and raised the shade.

"I ducked down quick, and let myself slide back to the next floor where I waited, braced for his next holler, but he never looked down, or noticed the taut rope swingin' just in front of him. He went back to the game, but he left the shade up, and it was a ticklish job to gage my time and swing out.

"Twice I started to peg on up, but both times somebody moved around, and I ducked. At last a hand came when they was raisin' to the roof before the draw, and I figured they'd be stickin' pretty close, so I shinned up like a monkey and on to that empty flat on the seventh floor that I'd started from.

"It was about all that I could do, though. For the first time since I swung out on a trapeze, Mac, I was winded, and the weight that had been hangin' to my feet seemed to be layin' across my chest. When I landed on the sill everything was black in front of my eyes, with little black sparks dancin' and it was a good minute after I had got inside before I could let loose one end of the rope and pull the whole thing in from over the pipe. I was glad, though, glad! I'd turned the trick, the greatest that ever was attempted, and I'd done, too, what I'd set out to do! I could have danced and shouted only I felt sort of numb.

"I did not bother much about being caught, but I knew that if I wanted to puzzle you guys for a while I'd better make myself scarce before the search began. I coiled the rope around me again, buttoned my coat over it, and beat it back across my bridge over the alleyway. Nobody saw me leavin' the house, and I did not stop to look at the crowd that was beginning to collect, but hotfooted it back to my lodgin's. That's the story of it, Mac, all I know, but I'd like to get a line on what all this stuff about another girl is and how it came about that she was planted in mistake for somebody else. What is the game?"

"You'll know in a few days, my lad. It's all got to come out now, and the papers will have something that will crowd the war news off the front page. I'll be thankful, though, if you'll tell me one thing more. Where does this talk come in about stepfather that the servant girl heard down stairs? That is what I can't get through my head."

"Say, Mac!" Accolini's white teeth shown in a flash of amusement. "That handed me the one grand laugh of the whole business! The girl told just what she heard all right, but you guys took it wrong, and made a fine lot out of nothin'. When Ivy saw me standing there in front of her, she knew that it was all up, but she tried to bluff me, and pickin' up that knife she yelled at me not to come a 'step farther!' That is all that there was to it.

"What do you know about that?" McCarty marvelled. "Shows how a fellow will get things turned around to fit in with the one notion he's got fixed in his mind! Wait till Terhune gets this!"

But the man before him seems not to have heard. He sat twisting the handkerchief between his fingers, and staring straight before him with unseeing eyes.

"The finest little skirt in the game" he muttered, "if she'd only been square."

"Look here, Dan," McCarty began somewhat uncomfortably. "You will be wanting a lawyer——"

"What for?" Accolini looked up, the shadow gone from his clear eyes. "Why the trial, you know. You'll not be allowed to plead guilty; 'tis against the law in a capital case."

"And the guys think you're goin' to have a lot of fun with me, don't you?" His tone was filled with covert amusement. "I've got you all fooled, Mac. I'll never be brought to trial."

"Oh, come now, man——" McCarty stammered.

"There's nothin' to it." He shook his head slowly, with a little smile. "I'm all in, finished. When I went to the doctor three weeks ago, he gave me two months, but I was wise when I slipped on the rings to-night that I would not last the week out. 'Aneurism,' the sawbones call it, but it's nothin' but a cracked heart. A lot of us guys go that way; too much strain in the trainin' when we was kids, I reckon, and then Ivy—well she took the heart of me and twisted it in her two little hands, Mac, there ain't enough left of it to carry me any farther.

"I only wanted to hang on till I'd pulled off my game, and I managed to do that. If I'd been the kind to drink or go to pieces I wouldn't have stood a chance of holdin' out, but you see that's where I had it beat. You go and talk to my partner in the act to-night, or ask them around at the bum lodgings where I've been hangin' out; they'll all tell you the same. None of that dissipation stuff forme—I was always steady as a rock, thinkin' only of bein' the 'King of the Air' and of Ivy! Since I pulled off my one great act two weeks ago, I have been just waitin'."

"Don't you believe it!" McCarty cried. "We'll get a good doctor——"

"To kid me along till you can get me to the chair?" Accolini shrugged. "What difference does it make to you guys how I make my exit? My act's over."

"But, Dan——"

"Say, 'Dan' and 'man' sounds a lot alike, don't they?" He threw back his head, and his flying laugh echoed in the silent room. "Flyin' Dan" they called me under the big top, and the kid was tryin' to wise you up that it was me bumped her off."

Then his face grew grave once more with the faint reminiscent smile still lingering about his lips.

"A great kid!" he murmured. "Her and me up on the rings together—but she wasn't square!"

"You see, Denny, there's a lot of different names for the one thing. Some call it deduction, and imaginative construction, and science, like Terhune, and then again, others call it plain, ordinary, every day common sense. Spyglasses and tape measures, and machines with jaw breaking names are all very well in their way but in the end you have got to come back to the brains that you were born with. Terhune's a wonderful man, but he wrote his own answer to the problem, and he could not see anything that didn't fit in."

The evening papers, filled with details of the failure of the Tradesman and Artisan's Bank, had recalled the case, which had come to an abrupt end several weeks before, when Dan Accolini's prediction was verified and he was found lifeless in his cell the morning after his confession.

McCarty was discussing the affair with Dennis in the seclusion of his rooms, and the latter's slighting reference to the achievements of the famous detective had called his friend's comment.

"Like enough he would have come at the truth by himself in time, for Marion Rowntree would have shown up when she came of age anyway, and then the truth about the other girl was bound to come out. 'Twas the way they grabbed at the identification put me first on the track, and then when you handed me the hint about the girl Mary blackmailing Quimby——"

"Me?" Dennis started from his chair. "I never did! Mac, you have got one or two queer notions yet about that case. How the devil should I know what was doing?"

"You didn't but you put me on just the same." McCarty broadly grinned. "I saw Mary in the crowd at the funeral and I thought nothing about it. Grafton Foxe and his wife were there, too, and I had my eye on the 'Pico' fellow. But there was something funny and stiff like in Quimby's motions when he let his hat fall on the step coming out, and he looked around first as if to draw attention to it.

"That had me going, but I forgot about it until after you said you could see Mary was a cool hand by the way she went after Quimby at the drop of the hat when she thought he'd pay for information. He paid all right, but it was to suppress information, not get it and that was just the way she did go to him; 'at the drop of the hat.' It was the signal for her to come to him that night for instructions how she and the Doremus woman was to act to keep him out of it."

Killed by Poisons

All scientists agree that poisonous products in the blood are eliminated by the kidneys and liver. The kidneys act as a kind of filter for these products. When the kidneys are changed or degenerated, by disease or old age, then these poisons are retained in the body. If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals to flush the kidneys. Then procure Anuric at a drug store. This Anuric drives the uric acid out. Scientific men have learned that in gout, also rheumatism, poisonous uric acid crystals are deposited in or about the joints, in the muscles—where inflammation is set up.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only a little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month.

You can obtain a trial pkg. of Anuric by writing Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., or Bridgeburg, Ont., enclosing 10c.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"For sixteen years I have been a sufferer from kidney trouble; my back has ached almost continuously and I have had rheumatic pains in my arms, hands and lower limbs. I have doctored and tried every medicine recommended to me, but have never found the relief in anything (no matter how much I took) that I have found in one small package of Anuric. In one week the secretion cleared and my bladder was stronger than for years, so that I was not disturbed at night, where I always had to arise several times during the night. I only hope that many will read this and will try Anuric if they suffer with any sort of kidney trouble."—MRS. JACOB LONSBERY, 85 Albert St.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Colour and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

German Efficiency.

Germany was well governed in certain particulars; it has grown rich and powerful; it surpassed most other states in a variety of ways not necessary to enumerate here. But why? To the mind steeped in Prussianism there was but one answer possible. It was the Government! To this two objections at once present themselves. The first is that there are two kinds or degrees of efficiency; the one like theirs, which, for want of a better name, we may call mechanical; the other of a less tangible quality, easily recognized, but hard to define, the efficiency of the individual as opposed to the corporate efficiency of the community. It is not possible here—perhaps it is not possible at all—to determine which of these is the more to be desired. But it is very apparent that what we call the spirit of liberty aligns itself rather with individual than with communal efficiency. And to that school, rightly or wrongly, we belong. And the second answer is not unlike the first. It is that we still await the proof that the desirable factors in the position which the Germans have attained, are due wholly or even in considerable part to their form of government. That is an assumption which, like too many assumptions proceeding from the same source, remains a dogma rather than a provable proposition.

What Will the Harvest Be?

Few Americans are aware that they live in a country inclosed in a circle of mines and nets, writes Nikrah; yet such is the case. Since the declaration of war the navy department has been sowing the waterways and harbors of the country with mesas of destruction. In harbors nets designed to catch submarines are the chief reliance, while in rivers the channels are planted with mines.

DOMINION RUBBER SYSTEM

Guard Your Health With Rubbers

THERE'S one side to the economy of Rubbers, that some people may overlook. Rubbers save doctors' bills, just as they save boots.

With streets coated with slush or a river of rain, Rubbers are certain protection against getting wet feet, and your being laid up with a severe case of grippe or worse.

If you want to come through the spring thaws without even a cold, get rubbers for each pair of shoes; and if you are buying new shoes, be sure to have them fitted with the right Rubbers.

There's a style and shape for every shoe—for men, women and children—in these six brands of staunch, well-fitting Rubbers, sold by the leading shoemen:

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Miss Mariana's Family

By Hilda Morris

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Miss Mariana Winn's old house fronted on Shannon Square. Shannon Square was not large. It was one of those blessed bits of green that offer playgrounds for children, shade on hot days, and sunny benches on the crisp, cool afternoons that come in the late September.

There were always plenty of people in Shannon Square, for below it was a poorer section of the city, crowded with children. The children sought the park as ducks seek water, and older people followed—big sisters to look after the children, old men who liked to sit and watch life go past, and sometimes young people who anxiously scanned the "Help Wanted" columns in the papers.

Miss Mariana liked to open the long white shutters at her front window and watch the people in the Square. She had no veranda, and the little park was her front yard. She loved it at all times of the year, but especially in autumn, when the leaves piled up for children to play in and the branches, half unveiled, traced delicate patterns against the sky.

In truth Miss Mariana was sometimes a little lonely and she found comfort in the people outside. She used to imagine things about them; make up romantic stories about their apparently sordid lives. Her own life had been so quiet, so remote from romance, that it thrilled her delicately even to think of romantic things, such as love affairs and travel and adventure. Miss Mariana was only twenty-eight, but she had spent her life in a quiet round of duties that was like a still back-water in the city's busy life. Her mother had been an invalid, requiring constant care, and when she did Mariana was thin and a bit faded, with a spare figure and plain coiffure that were far from girlish. Yet there was a look of innocent youth in her eyes, shy, and a bit wistful. There was no one to notice it, however, and she continued to live alone in the old house, watching the people in the park and filling her days with dreams.

There was one young man in particular who sat in the Square very often. He brought a little boy with him—a fine, sturdy child of about four, who romped on the patch of lawn with the other children. The young man himself always seemed to be busy. He would write steadily for several hours at a time, only looking up now and then to call the child, or going after him if play became too rough. Sometimes the little boy would come and climb upon the bench with his father, snuggling a curly head against his shoulder. And the young man would pat the child and go on working, now and then looking down to smile at his little son. They seemed to be good pals.

Mariana tried vainly to imagine what the young man might be doing. Also, she wondered where the mother was and why there was no one else to care for the boy. She often hoped that the young father, who must be a widower, would notice some of the pretty girls who sat in the park. It was a shame for such a pleasant man to look so lonely. But he never did notice any of the girls. After all, he looked quite like a gentleman, and they were not his kind of girls. He was probably an author; she had heard that they were usually poor.

"I wonder that child doesn't get into mischief," thought Miss Mariana. "I guess it's a good thing I'm sitting here wrapped up in that book, or whatever it is he's writing."

And then as the young man looked up, gazing abstractly, apparently toward the window where she sat, Mariana leaned forward eagerly to notice his fine, clean profile. Her eyes were bright with an innocent interest. It never occurred to her that he might be looking at her—nobody had ever cared much about looking at her, even when she was very young. Unconscious of his gaze, she sat there, rocking gently, between her long white shutters, the very picture of homely peace and quiet. After that the author's eyes strayed often from his work, as though he must seek inspiration in the walls of a red-brick cottage or the long white shutters at its windows.

The day after this the young man did not come into the park at all. Mariana, having finished her simple household tasks, took her place at the accustomed window, eager for a sight of the life that moved about outside. If she was eager for the sight of one particular person she did not know it herself. Her heart was unused to even the first throb of that emotion called love. Love as she had read about it was a thrilling thing, that came upon one suddenly, usually in some picturesque environment, and she had never imagined that it could steal over any woman like a gentle warning tide of happiness. However, she was happy; there was a shine in her eyes and a budding smile upon her lips. Although she did not know it, Mariana Winn was looking younger than usual.

But as the afternoon went on the smile faded a little. She wanted to see the little boy. She searched eagerly among the throngs of children. Ah, there he was! A stout, rosy-faced young girl had him firmly by the hand. She was leading him toward the bench where the father usually sat. Miss Mariana craned her head to look at the young woman. Somehow she had never supposed the little boy's mother would look like that. He was adorably brown-curled, but the woman wore flaxen frizzes that looked suspiciously artificial. She was a bit untidy, too, and her soiled white shoes were run down at the heels. A long sigh of disappointment escaped Miss Mariana, and some frail thing of the spirit seemed borne away from her on its faint breath. The shine had left her eyes, but she sat watching.

Being comfortably established on the bench, the blonde-haired young woman drew out a novel and began to read. The little boy danced away to play, and the autumn afternoon shadows lengthened visibly. At last it grew very dark and chill at Miss Mariana's window.

Suddenly the air was rent by a child's shrill scream—shrill enough to be heard above the sounds of traffic and the noise of children's play. Mariana Winn looked out quickly to see the little boy—his little boy—with blood streaming from a hurt on his forehead. He had fallen perhaps, or—Miss Mariana did not wait for conjectures. She rushed out into the park and gathered the weeping child into her arms, smoothing the dark curls from the cut on his head. It was not a serious injury, but she bore him into the house, followed by a troupe of curious youngsters.

She had completely forgotten the blonde-haired young woman, and it was not until she had washed the cut and bound it up, and established Tommy on the sofa with a ginger cooky, that an angry ring at the door proclaimed the fact that the young woman was in search of him. Moreover, she was not alone. The father, white with anxiety, stepped in first.

"Where—" he began. Then, seeing Tommy, he hugged the child and turned to Mariana with eager, anxious questions.

"He isn't hurt much," she assured him. "Only he was frightened, and there seemed to be no one near—"

"Where were you, Theresa?" he asked sharply, turning to the rosy blonde.

"I—why I was just over by the gate talking to a fella. I—"

"That will do for you, then. I hired you to look after Tommy. If you can't do it better than that you may go."

"All right, I'll go then," she retorted pertly. And Miss Mariana's door slammed after her, leaving a strange quiet behind it.

The young man sat looking at her with wistful eyes, that made Miss Mariana drop her own, and a warm blush filled her cheeks. He was speaking—something about being very grateful to her for looking after the child, something about being very lonely, and having no one to care for Tommy. Whatever it was he said, it sent strange thrills of ecstasy through Mariana Winn. When she spoke she looked so young and eager one would scarcely have known her.

"Bring him here again," she was saying. "I'd love to take care of Tommy sometimes. I've nothing else to do, and I love children. Bring him when ever you like; but please don't leave him to any such nursemaids again. I'd so much rather you'd bring him here."

"I will, then," he agreed, "if you really mean it. And I wonder—could I come again some time, too?"

"Oh, yes," she nodded lightly. "Of course. Only I don't believe I know your name."

"Henry Moore. And you are Miss Winn, I know. I will come again."

He said this as if he meant it. And Miss Mariana knew that he meant it. She went about her work singing after they were gone. For deep in her heart she knew.

HER DAUGHTER WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—"For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and telling everybody how much good it has done her."—Mrs. W. D. WELLS, 226 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Wells did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, sideache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

For special advice women are asked to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of forty years experience is at your service.

The Country Store

IN the evening, when the day's work is done, men like to stroll over to the village store to discuss the war, politics, or whatever may be of local interest.

It is under these circumstances that the health of the family is referred to and experiences are interchanged, in regard to medicines that have proven particularly effective.

After Dr. Chase had introduced his medicines to the druggists he found that many who wrote to him for treatment lived many miles from doctor or druggist, and had to depend on the country store for their medicines. Thus it came about that Dr. Chase's medicines were placed in general stores, and you can now obtain them wherever medicines are sold.

Instead of trying to imagine what the man in the picture is saying about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, we shall publish a letter from Mr. James Carr, who attributes his good health and that of his large family to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

18 Miles From Drug Store.

Mr. James Carr, Maynooth, Ont., writes: "About nineteen years ago I received an envelope containing two of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I was doctoring at the time with two doctors and, as they did me no good, I used the pills, and by the time I had finished one box I was cured of the pain in the back and shoulders.

"We have great confidence in Dr. Chase's medicines. I have a family of ten children and have never had a doctor in the house for any of them. We live eighteen miles from a drug store, and find that these pills cure nearly all the ordinary ills by regulating the liver, kidneys and bowels. That we are all well and sound I attribute to their use, and I have recommended them to hundreds and given away many a box because I believe there is no medicine so good."

After long experience with Dr. Chase's Medicines we have found that people who try them are soon convinced of their exceptional merits.

We have published thousands of letters to give you an idea of the benefits others have obtained by their use, but if you are still skeptical we shall be glad to send you our

"PUNKIN" PIE IS BEST OF ALL

Man's Mouth Still Waters When He Thinks of the Kind That Mother Used to Make.

To a man still young enough to remember sufficiently far back into his boyhood years to the time when he had never had enough dessert in his life, there is no word in the English language so suggestive of toothsome, lickerish joy as pie, plain pie—particularly "punkin."

You can't spell punkin pie with an "m" and a "p," declares a writer in the Milwaukee Journal. Pumpkin pie is the kind one gets in restaurants, flavored with cloves and allspice. "Punkin" pie has cinnamon and ginger in it, and sometimes a hint of an unmentionable heady fluid about which one would not dare ask mother. And of all the smacking, ambrosial delicacies catalogued under the genus "pie," the best is "punkin."

There are other kinds, of course—apple, peach, cherry, squash, blueberry, custard, lemon, mince—and every one probably has its value in the world. Some people even may prefer them. One never can account for different persons' tastes. But for boys, young men and elderly men whose stomachs have not yet grown old, there is none that will approach "punkin," the khaki-colored queen of pastries.

One grows hungry at the thought of "punkin" pie—the crisp, crinkly crust; the thick, rich pungent filling, with the dust of cinnamon tarnishing its tawny top; the creamy, dreamy, velvety, far-away taste as one's mouth closes on its prize. Some appetizing joys there are, but none that exceeds capturing a piece of punkin pie, getting it into one's hands, contrary to all social usage, biting into it, until one almost mires up to one's nose, until one can scarce see over the top of the upstanding crust, and beginning the unequaled delight of devouring the first mouthful. To taste it is to love it, love it and love forever.

Portable Telephone.

"This is only the eleventh time I have been up and down stairs to answer that telephone this morning," sighed a physician's wife. "I should like to sew just one hour in peace."

"Why don't you have a portable telephone?" suggested the sympathetic seamstress. "Mrs. X has one, and my! you have no idea the steps it saves her. You know she is quite a club woman, and has so many calls. The arrangement is simply an ordinary desk telephone with a very long cord. When she goes up to the den at the head of the stairs to sew or write, it seems funny enough to see her go telephone in hand. In the kitchen she has it handy on the cabinet, and when resting on the living porch she does not even have to get out of the hammock to answer a telephone call. Your telephone being stationary at the stairway landing, a similar arrangement could be effected."

AGINCOURT'S 5TH TIE-UP.

Storm Works Havoc With Lines of Communication—Train and Engine Stalled.

AGINCOURT, March 11.— For the fifth time this winter Agincourt is the centre of a tie-up on the Midland line of the G.T.R. One passenger train and five engines are stuck between here and Scarboro Junction. Sixty passengers on Train No. 95 spent Saturday night in the train half a mile above this village.

Regular Inspection Must be Deferred

So many skilled telephone workers have gone overseas that we have found it impossible for the present to keep up the practice of making a regular inspection of all subscribers' telephones.

¶ It is important, in the interests of your service, that such defects as broken mouthpieces, frayed cords, etc., be reported to us promptly.

¶ We therefore ask that subscribers promptly notify the "Trouble Department" (no number necessary) of any such defect in their telephone equipment so that we may remedy it promptly and protect the service.

¶ Your kind co-operation will be appreciated.

For Ton Trucking Purposes

Ford
ONE-TON TRUCK

BUSINESS men everywhere who have hauling or delivering problems to consider—whether operating a wholesale business, a retail store, or a farm—will welcome the arrival of the Ford One-Ton Truck.

PRICE
$750
F. O. B.
FORD, ONT.

Supplied as chassis only

Heretofore, the Ford user who wanted to carry loads up to a ton found it necessary to get one of several special attachments or extensions which were on the market. Now the standard Ford truck is available—a car that can withstand the drudgeries of commercial use, and yet lacks superfluous weight, and is easily handled.

The truck differs from Ford passenger cars in that it is specially designed throughout in proper pattern and strength for heavy-duty service. It has a final drive of the worm gear type, so that all gears are enclosed. Rear wheels are equipped with solid tires. Front tires are pneumatic. Standard Ford motor, transmission and ignition.

The largest truck and automobile company in the British Empire, with an organization of more than 700 Canadian dealers stands back of every Ford truck purchased.

Guard Of Kings Dies In London

Melleville Was Long a Terror to the Underground World —Held Greatest Contempt For So-Called Detective Authors

PLOT TO KILL KAISER

LONDON, March 13.— One of the most famous of British detectives, and a man who probably knew more about the international political underground world of London than any other man of his time, died recently, in the person of William Melville.

An Irishman from Kerry, he joined the force as an ordinary police constable, and in his progress to the chief superintendentship of the "special" or political branch of the Criminal Investigation Department, at New Scotland Yard, he had to deal with dynamite and anarchist plotters through very troubled times.

A type of the straight, up-to-date detective, employing modern methods, he was never afraid to adopt any new idea that would help him in the successful carrying out of his work. He always recognized the power and usefulness of the press in criminal investigations, and he was never "given away" by any journalist.

One of his invariable duties was that of acting as cicerone to traveling royalties. When the ex-Czar of Russia visited Britain, a few weeks before his marriage, under the able guidance of Melville, he was made acquainted with every phase of the criminal life of the worst areas of London, both East and West. Night after night, in company with his expert guide, the ex-Czar threaded his way in and out of the unsavory haunts of the criminal fraternity, particularly the political criminals of the anarchist type, and never once did he suffer any bodily harm.

Nips Plot to Kill Kaiser.

Whenever Queen Victoria and Edward VII. visited the Continent, despite what their mission may have been, the famous detective accompanied them, wherever they went. And there is a story that he discovered and circumvented at the last moment an Anarchist plot to kill the Kaiser during his progress through London.

Naturally such clientele were not slow to show their appreciation. The Shah of Persia astonished him by casually presenting him with one of the largest turquoises in existence. Membership of the Victorian Order was conferred on him in 1903, and only a month before he died he was created a member of the Order of the British Empire, while France, Denmark, Portugal, Italy, Spain and other countries bestowed decorations on him.

Melville's department in the early days dwelt almost exclusively with the Irish-American political offenders, and subsequently with the Anarchists. His great proficiency as a linguist, an attainment he had acquired abroad while "keeping an eye" on the ports, was of the utmost service to him in London when he was called upon to watch the doings of a horde of foreign criminals who arrived after being driven out of their own countries.

In the course of these duties he suffered a number of narrow escapes from death or injury at the hands of the desperate criminals he was successful in arresting. Probably one of his narrowest "shaves" was when he captured Meunier, who had killed several people at the Cafe Very in Paris with a bomb. Melville recognized him at Victoria Station, and although unarmed, he at once seized the armed criminal.

Shunned Gentlemen Detectives.

Melville held the greatest contempt for such fantastic creations as Sherlock Holmes, and so-called detective authors. "Put a man like that down to a job," he was wont to remark, "and you will find him as useless as a child. Those high brow theories won't work, at least not in practice." Gentlemen detectives shared alike in this contempt. And he was fond of recounting the occasion when Scotland Yard, as an experiment, decided to appoint educated men direct into the detective force without having first to serve their time as police constables. "There are four of them," he remarked. "Two were afterward sentenced for accepting bribes; another was dismissed as inefficient, and the fourth disappeared."

When Melville retired from the "Yard" his services to the State did not cease — for some time he was engaged on the Dtuch mail service lines, experiencing many exciting adventures with German secret service agents and being instrumental in the execution of not a few.

RATS MARCH LIKE SOLDIERS

Rodents Have Little Difficulty in Finding Supply of Food, and Adapt Themselves to Conditions.

The ready adaptability of rats to their surroundings is one of the qualities which has enabled them to conquer the world, E. W. Nelson writes, in the National Geographic Magazine. On the approach of warm weather in summer large numbers of them leave buildings and resort to fields on farms or to the outskirts of the towns, where the growing vegetation, particularly cultivated plants, affords them an abundant supply until the approach of winter. At the beginning of cold weather they return again to the shelter of buildings, where they find the harvested crops ready for their consumption.

When the food supply suddenly decreases, following a period of plenty during which the rats have greatly increased in numbers, a migratory impulse appears to affect the entire rat population over large areas and a general migration takes place. At such times the rats are extraordinarily bold, swimming rivers without hesitation, and surmounting all other natural obstacles. The first invasion of Europe, when rats swam the Volga, was an instance of this kind. Experiments by the United States public health service have shown that when released in the water of a harbor rats may swim ashore for a distance of 1,500 yards.

STRENGTHENS THE THROAT ASSISTS PUBLIC SPEAKERS

Catarrhozone is the Greatest Invention of the Age for Weak Throat, Hoarseness, &c.

Strongly Endorsed by the Clergy.

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal cords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes huskiness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. The most eminent speakers, and prima donnas are seldom without Catarrhozone, and credit in no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence.

"For many years I have been a sufferer from that terrible disease known as CATARRH.

"Being a professional singer, you can readily understand that Catarrh would be a serious hindrance to my professional skill.

"One year ago I read in the "Progress" a convincing testimonial from one who had been cured of this disease through using your God-sent invention, Catarrhozone.

"Believing in the merit of Catarrhozone, I tried it.

"Catarrhozone cured me, and has been the means of my success.

"You are at liberty to use my name if it will help relieve some from suffering, and I will always remain,

"Bob Bixley, New Glasgow, N.S."

Mr. Bixley is one of the best known singers and entertainers in the Maritime Provinces. Everyone knows him, and his testimonial for Catarrhozone is the best sort of evidence of what great benefit Catarrhozone is to those suffering from throat weakness or catarrh.

Two months' treatment (large size) $1.00; smaller size, 50c.; sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

ON THE WAY HOME

CHAPTER XIV.

George was very quiet when we first left Mrs. Loring's, and I asked the reason:

"Did you not have a good time?"

"Certainly I did—that is, until your idiotic performance spoiled it."

"What do you mean? They all said I played wonderfully well," I also knew that I had played well; was he angry because I had yielded to their pleadings and accompanied a paid performer? I could think of nothing else.

"How in the world did you come to tell Madge Loring about buying those books—etiquette books?" the sneer with which he said the last words was indescribable.

"Why it was that day I took her to luncheon at the Elite Restaurant. You had threatened to hire a woman to teach me things so I thought that I would buy all the books of deportment that I could find and study them. They were in the car. Mrs. Loring asked me what they were, and——"

"What did she do?" George interrupted.

"Nothing—she just laughed."

"I don't wonder," he returned with withering sarcasm. "Most anyone would."

"But I was doing it to please you!" I said, goaded into a reply. "And Mr. Gray didn't laugh when I told you and him about it."

"Some people have no sense of humor," he said dryly. "Etiquette books—I gave even you credit for more sense."

AN ATTEMPT TO COAX GOOD NATURE.

I made no answer as, just then, the car stopped and we were at home. But as soon as we reached our room George again referred to the subject. I thought that I would coax him back to good nature so I said:

"Now George, you aren't really angry at me because I tried to please you, are you?"

"Will you ever learn not to talk? If you hadn't told Madge Loring that you had bought those damn books it wouldn't have made any difference. I don't care how many books you buy. But to have it go all over the city that my wife, MY wife, is studying books on deportment so she will know how to behave, is too much!" and he angrily yanked off his tie and collar.

"You ARE angry with me George," I wheedled, laying my hand on his arm, "and after buying me this lovely coat and dress. Please don't be mad at me. I'm sorry. I know I talk too much. Yet I don't seem to have anyone to talk to, either. I would not have told Mrs. Loring a thing about the books if she hadn't asked me. I'll learn in a little while—really, I will."

I had started to say that Merton Gray had promised to help me, to answer my questions, and teach me the things I needed to know. But something held me back. In some way I realized that George would be also angry at that.

I stood leaning against him. I loved this tall fine looking, severe man and I wanted him to love me. If he would only endure my little idiosyncrasies until I had time to learn a better way to do things. Some day, by persistent effort, I would overcome the silly, offensive (to him) traits, and be just as he wanted me to be.

Then he would show me more consideration. He wouldn't ignore me when we were out together, and pay all attention to the other women.

HER OWN TO KEEP.

He had chosen me as his wife. If I were as entertaining as those other women in his set he would be proud of me. Had he not cared more for me, wouldn't he have married one of them instead of me? Didn't Merton Gray say that they were jealous because I had carried away the big matrimonial catch of the town? He didn't have to marry me. I brought him no fortune, nothing save myself. Even my clothes were unsuitable for my new station.

Those other women needn't think I was foolish enough to sit calmly down and let them take him away from me after he had shown that he cared more for me by marrying me. No indeed!

I don't think George quite realized how a woman like Made Loring could have her own way with a girl like me. How she could easly get out of me all I was doing; everything she wanted to know. Of course knew nothing of the subtle stabs—which I scarcely understood, the cutting insinuations which I was not worldly-enough either to appreciate—or answer.

"You do understand that I didn't mean anything wrong, don't you George?" I pleaded.

"Oh, go to bed! 'Hell is paved with good intentions.' That you didn't mean to do anything wrong won't prevent everyone I know from laughing at you and me too, because of your foolishness."

I don't see why they will laugh at you," I said.

'Aren't you my wife?" he asked, and something in his tone seemed to imply that he regretted the fact.

Heart Beat So Fast

Could Not Sleep
HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it will burst. You have weak and dizzy spells, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

There is no other remedy will do you so much good, restore your heart to a natural condition, build up your strength and give you back vigor and vitality as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. Russell, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "At nights I could not sleep, and had to sit up in bed, my heart would beast so fast.

"When I went to walk very far I would get all out of breath, and would have to sit down and rest before I could go any further. I was advised to get Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had used two boxes I could sleep and walk as far as I liked without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Gear Wheels Made of Cotton

Gears are now being made of ordinary cotton which outwear those made from the finest steel. It seems incredible, but it is true, says Popular Science Monthly.

The very hardness of the metal gears causes the teeth surfaces to scrape over each other when they mesh, producing hideous screeches and groans. Everyone of these scrapings means a certain amount of wear.

Teeth made out of compressed cotton yield. They are, therefore, noiseless. Compressed with the metal gears, they are indestructible. To make these fiber gears a large cylinder built up of cotton disks is compressed to but one-sixteenth of its former length!

Cold Comfort.

"I was arguing with a fellow about politics the other day and I'm blest if he didn't advise me to consult an alienist!" exclaimed the contentious man.

"Well! Well!"

"I suppose he thought that a fine piece of sarcasm?"

"Oh, I don't know. Maybe he meant it."

Self-Confidence Wins.

Have you ever felt the chagrin of knowing that you have failed in an enterprise, whether this may have been a mere incident of business or an entire career, purely through lack of self-confidence?

Thousands of men have failed in just that way, writes Hugo Masters in Physical Culture.

Self-confidence is a factor in success of such importance that the man with moderate ability, but plenty of confidence, will succeed where the man of far greater ability, coupled with a lack of confidence, will fail. This has been proven probably a few billion times in the history of human affairs.

Impertinent.

"I wish to report the clerk in your office," said the irate spinster of mature years to the manager of the seaside hotel. "She's most impertinent."

"How so, madam?"

"I inquired whether my rooms had been reserved, and she called out to the porter, 'Do you think this lady's sweet sixteen?'"

And it took the manager a quarter of an hour to convince her that "suite" 16 was meant.

Congratulations.

"Allow me to congratulate you," said the mild stranger.

"What for?" asked the grumpy man.

"Oh, anything—nothing—the glorious weather, the green fields, the birds, the fact that you are well and strong. Isn't that something?"

"No."

"Then congratulate me for not having a disposition like yours."

3 ZEPPELINS TOOK PART IN LAST NIGHT'S AIR RAID

Four Bombs Were Dropped on Hull--One Woman Died From Shock as Result of Raid--Enemy's Artillery is Active on Several Sectors on the Western Front--Successful Trench Raid Carried Out By British North of Lens.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 12.—Three Zeppelins took part in last night's air raid on England. One of them dropped four bombs on Hull. Other airships flew about aimlessly over the country districts, dropping bombs, and then proceeded back to sea. One woman died of shock as a consequence of the raid.

The following official announcement was given out: "Latest reports indicate that three enemy airships crossed the Yorkshire coast between 8.30 and 10 o'clock last night. Only one ventured to approach the defended locality, namely, Hull, where four bombs were dropped. A house was demolished. One woman died of shock. The two remaining airships wandered for some hours over the remote country districts at great altitudes, unloading their bombs in the open country before proceeding out to sea again."

The Germans have sustained such heavy losses in Zeppelins that they have employed them only at infrequent intervals in the last year for raids on England, substituting airplanes. The last previous Zeppelin raid on England was on October 19, 1917, when 34 persons were killed and 56 wounded. On returning the Zeppelin fleet was put to rout by the French, five of the dirigibles being brought down.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 13.—On the Western front, on the British line between Armentieres and La Bassee, which has not changed in eighteen months, the Germans continue their powerful raids. Their latest effort was made against the Portuguese positions near Laventic. The Germans were checked by machine gun fire, which caused heavy casualties and left prisoners in the hands of the Portugese. British troops repulsed small raids in the Ypres area, where the enemy artillery fire is intense. On the French front bombardments have been most violent in the Champaigne, especially east of Rheims, in the Woevre, and in Lorraine. American troops are giving the Germans little rest, and raids into the enemy positions are being carried dut successfully.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, March 13.—The Manchester Guardian, praising President Wilson's message to the All-Russian Congress of Soviets, today said: "Once more President Wilson has intervened to correct the diplomatic errors of America's Allies, seizing the occasion to send a most cordial message to the Russian Soviets. Why, when any new issue arises, should all that is generous and statesman-like come from the other side of the ocean?"

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, March 13. — The destruction of four hundred English towns by German airplanes is demanded by the Berlin Tages Zeitung as a reprisal for the action of the Allies in confiscating four hundred German merchant ships.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 13.—(Official).—We carried out a successful raid north of Lens and brought back prisoners. South of Armentieres one of our posts was raided by a strong party of the enemy after a heavy bombardment. A few of our men are missing. The enemy's artillery was active yesterday evening south-west of Cambrai, opposite Loos, and during the night in the Messines sector and near Passchendaele.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN F...NCE, March 13. — Captain Archie Roosevelt, son of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, was decorated with the Croix de Guerre by a French General for gallantry in action. The presentation was dramatic. No details of how Roosevelt won the decoration are permissible.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PARIS, March 13.—During Monday night's air raid on Paris, French aviators made a counter raid on Gotha hangars, in the rear of the German lines, it was officially announced to-day. Six tons of bombs were dropped and several fires were observed.

America Committed With All Its Resources To Winning Of War

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 13. —Newton D. Baker, United States Secretary of War, who to-day met a number of British, French and American newspapermen, said:

"There can be but one result when the forces of civilization in the great countries like those now allied are combined to defend vital principles of liberty. Our President has nobly phrased the spirit in which America entered the war, and his subsequent declarations reflect the feeling of the entire country that we are committed with all our resources to the winning of the war."

FRANCE FAVOURS INTERVENTION BY JAPS IN SIBERIA

Fear is Growing In Tokio of the Dangers From Enemy War Prisoners, Many Thousands of Whom Have Been Freed

SUBS AT VLADIVOSTOK

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Ralph S. Turner.)

TOKIO, March 13.—France favours, unconditionally, Japanese intervention in Siberia, according to authoritative information here to-day.

Great Britain's attitude, however, is contingent upon America, which fears arousing united Russian hostility, according to the same source.

Pending word from Washington, the Foreign Advisory Council postponed its special meeting. The Ministry is undecided concerning opinions abroad.

Political students expect intervention within a month. The press is more prudent in its forecasts, although the extreme tension is illustrated in a story from a British source, published in the Conservative Jiji, that the Germans have succeeded in transporting, in parts, five submarines to Vladivostok. The newspapers declare that Japan is the only power which can check the march of German influence eastward.

The fear is growing of the danger from enemy war prisoners in Siberia, thousands of whom have been freed.

Skating At Brock Street Continues Good

TAG DAY APRIL 22

Veterans Will Observe Anniversary of Second Battle of Ypres By Campaign in Aid of Their Relief Fund

HELP RED CROSS

At a meeting of the executive of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association last night it was decided to ask the Board of Police Commissioners for permission to hold their annual tag day on April 22, the anniversary of the second battle of Ypres. The money raised by this tag day will go into the relief fund of the Association to be used in relieving cases of distress among returned men, the families of men still overseas, and the dependents of those who will never come back. During the past year the Association, as a result of the Tag Day held last April, has been able to afford relief in many cases.

Tentative plans for the big event were made last night. On the same day as the campaign is carried out in Peterborough tags will also be sold in Lakefield, Norwood and Havelock, and possibly other villages in the county, as the Peterborough branch of the G.W.V.A. includes the whole county.

It was decided at last night's meeting that the Veterans should assist the Red Cross motor show in the armouries by making an exhibit of war souvenirs owned by members of the G.W.V.A. This proposal was made by the Red Cross, and the executive gladly consented to do what they could to help along the excellent work of the Red Cross Society.

EMPLOYERS WILL BE ASKED TO GIVE IMFORMATION

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 13.—All employers of labour will be asked within a short time to furnish the Provincial Registrars throughout the country with a statement showing the definite status of each of their employees, C. Lesslie Wilson, the Ontario Registrar, said to-day.

No official word has yet come to the Ontario Registrar regarding the decision of Mr. Justice Duff of the appeal of the bank clerks. It is understood, however, that an extension of ten days has been granted, and that those affected by the decision will become liable to call on March 25.

Corp. Varley Is Set Free

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 13.— Wm. The military have dropped the charges against him.

Mulholland and Webster New Senators

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., March 13. — Announcement of the filling of the two Senate vacancies from Ontario is expected in a day or so. It is understood that Robt. Mulholland, the Mayor of Port Hope, the nominated Conservative candidate in Durham, who retired to provide a seat for Hon. N. W. Rowell, is certain to be one of the new Senators. The other is likely to be John Webster, ex-M.P. for Brockville, who defeated Hon. Geo. P. Graham in 1911, and who left the united constituencies of Brockville and Leeds free for Sir Thomas White at the last election. The new Senators succeed the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and Hon. Dr. Sproule.

MEETING IN COUNCIL CHAMBER TO-NIGHT FOR GARDEN CAMPAIGN

A photograph has been received of a "Scout" aeroplane (Queenston, 13th October, 1812), from the British Air Board, presented through the Canadian Aviation Fund.

It clearly shows the great power and swallow-like appearance of this class of aeroplane, and that it is a "fighter" is very apparent from the two machine guns poking their noses out in front. This class of machine is only for one man, is the fastest of any and does the most fighting. The 'plane in above picture can probably travel from 125 to 150 miles an hour.

The local board of the Royal Flying Corps can give the necessary information to any young man who wants to learn to operate one of these machines.

"There can be but one result when the forces of civiliza"

Citizens Urged to Attend and Discuss the Plans for the Greater Production Work in the City —Need Greater Than Ever —Workers Should Be More Numerous.

This year we are due for larger effort. It is our first line of defence against vegetable robbery. The imported potato brings with it a whole heap of demurrage, split rates, double handlings, and all that costs money. The home grown variety only has to stand transportation from the potato patch to the cellar. We need not be alarmed, the old story of the silversmiths of Ephesus will be repeated. There are enough people, who from force of circumstances, living in apartments, etc., and who cannot raise things, to consume all the market gardeners can grow. But we want to make it flat and plain, that because the men and women of the city have said so, and mean to prove it, that no attempt to advance the price of potatoes can have a leg left to stand on. A repetition of last season's work will do the trick.

It is hoped that the citizens will take enough interest in the situation to come to the meeting in the Council Chamber, called by the Mayor for Wednesday night. This Wednesday, d'ye mind. Not of next week, but to-night. Come along, men and women. It is your business.

o-o-o

This meeting has nothing to do with the meeting tabled for next Friday. That meeting is all right and will develop its plans. But to-night is for the common man, and woman, the man with the hoe, who wants to do something in his own way, and will do it if he gets a fair show. So the meeting has just two objects, that each one will be inspired to help himself and what is equally important, help others. That is a part of the game. Don't forget it. To get some land for those who cannot get it of themselves. You will be told of last season's experience and how it worked out. No doubt the plans of last summer can be bettered, if a few earnest men will come along, and with some sense of a public duty, catch hold and lift. It is a satisfaction to help oneself, it is a greater satisfaction to have helped others. Even aldermen have been known to be helpful, despite the accepted tradition that they are elected only to talk, and raise salaries. And refuse grants and generally to do and not to do a lot of disagreeable things.

Come along. It is vitally your business. Mind, TO-NIGHT (Wednesday), at the Council Chamber. Be ready to take a hand and offer your service.—F. H. D.

CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA ARE A MENACE TO JAPAN

Extension of Bolsheviki and Enemy Influence Into Siberia is a Danger in the Far East--Restrictions Against Aliens Are Tightened

WARSHIPS ON GUARD

(By Ralph H. Turner.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TOKIO, March 13.—No attempt is made here to conceal the fear that increasing chaotic conditions in Russia and the extension of Bolsheviki and enemy influence into Siberia constitute a genuine menace to Japan and the Far East.

For the last several weeks, Japanese warships have been on guard at Vladivostok. Premier Teranchi has told the Diet, "and now regulations governing the entrance of aliens into Japan have been severely tightened so as to bar, so far as possible, the influx of enemy and Bolsheviki influence."

Commenting on the new regulations, the Secretary of the Police Bureau in the Home Office said: "Chaotic conditions in Russia, coupled with the gradual extension of enemy activity towards eastern Russia and even to Asia, have made it imperative that the Japanese Government compile stricter regulations in regard to passports for aliens in landing in Japan. It is feared that foreign subjects working in behelf of the enemy may come to Japan through Russia.

"With the enforcement of the new rulings, Japan will co-operate with her Allies in eliminating the extension of enemy influence in the Far East."

Similar rules have also been announced by the Government of Korea, for it is through the peninsula that many travellers from Siberia pass en route to Japan.

Meantime at Nagasaki there are 300 American railroad operators brought to Japan because Bolsheviki disorder prohibited any attempt to rehabilitate the Trans-Siberian Railway. The railroad men have been clamouring for "action," but the past two months they had to be content with minstrel shows, baseball, dances and other institutions.

Their chief, John F. Stevens, head of the American Railroad Mission to Russia, is still in Japan awaiting an opportunity to re-enter Siberia.

TAKE OVER EXPRESS CO'S.?

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Government control probably will be extended shortly to the leading express companies, it was officially intimated to-day at the railroad administration. The companies that would be affected are the Adams, American, Wells-Fargo, Southern, Great Northern, Northern, Canadian and Western.

COMFORT PARCELS MAY BE SENT TO PRISONERS OF WAR

Local Red Cross Society Receives Important Announcement — Relatives of Peterboro' Prisoners Are Asked to Register at the Library

STRICT REGULATIONS

The Peterboro Red Cross Society has received an important announcement in regard to Prisoners of War Comfort Parcels.

The British War Office has consented that one person (the next of kin, or those acting as such) may send one parcel every three months to the same prisoner of war. The regulations pertaining to these parcels are exceedingly strict, and must be adhered to, and violation of these may result in the withdrawal of the permission to send and of the confiscation of the parcels. They are in the nature of comfort parcels and are in addition to the six parcels of food sent every month. Each parcel has to bear a Red Cross coupon, and so every mother or next of kin is asked to come to the Red Cross workroom, at the Public Library, and register his or her name as desiring to send the parcels, either on Thursday or Friday afternoons of this week, between three and five o'clock.

The local Society is desirous that every prisoner should receive one of these "home parcels." Therefore, they should urge everyone next of kin to the various prisoners to come to the Library on the afternoons mentioned and register as requiring the coupons.

LAURA J. DAVIDSON,
Secretary.

Local Delegates Attend Meeting

Mayor Duncan, Ald. Edgar, City Clerk Armstrong and Ald. A. A. McIntyre, who was in Toronto on personal business, attended yesterday's Hydro meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association and the Hydro-electrical Railway Association of Ontario. It was the largest convention yet held by these organizations, and the meeting was the culmination of the campaign that has been waged by Sir Adam Beck and his associates throughout the Province during the last two weeks on behalf of this publicly owned utility.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13TH, 1918.

ACTION NEEDED.

The reports of cold storage conditions in Winnipeg call for quick and drastic action on the part of the government. It is announced that four and one-half tons of chickens have been held in cold storage until they have spoiled and have been destroyed, while six more tons in the plant of the Wm. Davies Company are being inspected to ascertain if they are fit for food. With a world-wide famine threatening the wasting of tons of foodstuff in the case referred to is not short of criminal. It is announced that the Canada Food Board will be given power to punish in such cases. Action should not be delayed.

LATE, BUT NEEDED.

The announcement that 20,000 Canadian soldiers who are medically unfit for service, or incapacitated by reason of wounds, are to be returned to Canada within the next three months, will be an welcome one. It is a move in the right direction and should have been taken long ago. Many of these men have never been to the front. Rejected by medical boards as unfit for the firing line or for service in France, they have been retained in England, some undoubtedly being decidedly useful in "Blighty," but others loafing around in makeshift positions, moved from camp to camp and being of little service. That they were kept in England was no fault of their own. The authorities simply let things drift along, and men who might have done valuable work in munition making or on the land in Canada, were retained overseas.

It has now been decided that all men who cannot go to France, and who are not needed for duty in England, will be returned to Canada and discharged to civilian life. That policy will be generally commended, and if adopted early in the war would have eased labour conditions at home and saved Canada many thousands of dollars.

THE RELIEF FUND.

When the first campaign for the Patriotic Fund was held in Peterborough, one quarter of the amount collected was for a relief fund to take care of cases of distress arising out of war conditions. There has not been evidenced any very striking indication of the committee in charge of the Relief Fund being unduly hasty in making grants from this money, a large part of which still remains. And yet there are cases in which it seems that assistance from this fund might be given. The Examiner has heard of one which might be mentioned. A soldier who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, became afflicted with rheumatism in England, was rejected for service in France, was sent back to Canada and finally discharged. He secured a position, worked steadily for some time, became ill with a recurrence of the trouble that caused his discharge from the army, and had to go to hospital for treatment. The inevitable result happened that his wife and family were reduced to a point where they had to sell some of their furniture to buy food. The Great War Veterans, however, came to the rescue, and out of their slender relief fund have been taking care of the family and will undoubtedly continue to do so while they are endeavouring, at the same time, to have the soldier reattested and given further treatment, in which case, of course, he will receive military pay and allowances.

It seems as if cases such as this might be taken care of by the Relief Fund. The Veterans' Association has not a large fund at its disposal, and while temporary help has been given in many cases, it is hardly fair to throw upon the G.W.V.A. the entire responsibility of maintaining a family for weeks as in the case outlined.

Primarily, of course, the government is responsible, but in the meantime the children cannot be allowed to starve.

SOUTH AFRICA AND CONSCRIPTION.

In connection with the recent despatches from Cape Town and London about "conscription" and distaste of Hun ownership in South Africa, an interview with a prominent member of the Canadian Defence League who had spent much time in that Union, is of interest. This gentleman stated that under the South African Military Act, universal training and service had been in vogue for home defence since 1912, but in face of the immense number of practically savage blacks, and the large proportion of trained men available, it is held to be neither wise nor necessary as yet to bring in compulsion for overseas service.

He further added: "Some people hold that if Canada had had a real national military system, more like the South African, backed up by a national interest in it, we should be in a very different condition of organization to-day, and they also hold that, even from a "win-the-war" point of view, it is not too late for our Union Government to act. Lord Kitchener showed what the true spirit should be when in his report to Australia he said, 'The first and imperative principle for the enrolment and maintenance of these men as an efficient (citizen) force is that the nation as a whole take pride in its defenders, insist upon the organization being real and designed for war purposes only, and provide the means of properly educating, training and equipping their officers and men. The second principle for a successful (citizen) force is a complement of the first. The force must be an integral part of the national life. The citizen should be brought up from boyhood to look forward to the day when he will be enrolled as fit to defend his country; and he should be accustomed to practise those habits of self-denial, of devotion to and emulation of his duty, of reticence, and of prompt obedience to lawful authority, which are essential to the formation of patriotic and efficient citizen soldiers."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Market note.—There is a sharp upward tendency in City Hall salaries.

Premier Borden's announcement of a bone dry Canada will tend to promote the Bonne Entente. At least this province will probably do a record business with Quebec in the next couple of weeks.

With the back yard gardening meeting to-night, the Veterans' special meeting on Thursday to discuss farming proposals, and the Board of Trade's big gathering on Friday night, the greater production campaign should get away to a good start in Peterborough.

The reason now given for hearing the inquiries into the conditions in Canadian transports in camera is because the naval authorities object to publicity in the matter. Another case of the silent navy.

The announcement that the United States is going to call out 800,000 more soldiers for service will not be welcome news to the Kaiser and his clique. The rest of the Germans will not hear about it.

It is a good thing Sir Arthur Currie is a big man or he would be overwhelmed with the weight of the decorations he is receiving. The commanding officer of the Canadians has been awarded two more honours, having been made Grand Officer of the Order De La Couronne and also the Croix de Guerre.

Mischievous Mitzi, America's foremost Prima Donna Comedienne, in the gay comic opera, "Pom Pom," at The Grand next Tuesday, March 19.

Mitzi, saucy and demure, haughty and inviting, but fascinating at all times as is no other, comes to The Grand next Tuesday, March 19, in Henry W. Savage's melodramatic comic opera, "Pom Pom." At first she is seen in the character of a famous prima donna who afterwards disguises herself as a ragamuffin boy pickpocket, and Mitzi in trousers is "some boy."

The opera, with its much-praised organization of singers, the usual Savage chorus of beautiful girls, the big "Pom Pom" opera orchestra and the massive Joseph Urban settings for four scenes, just as it ran for over two hundred nights on Broadway and was lavishly praised by all New York last season, comes with the metropolitan production complete.

It is a company of individuals, picked primarily for vocal ability, but there are other important standards up to which they must more than measure—good looks, ability to act and they must dance like fairy sprites.

In the long cast there are Charles McNaughton, who has many opportunities for the spontaneous comedy for which he is noted on two continents; Margaret Jarman and Boyd Marshall, both of whom have been leading members of important grand opera companies abroad; Hattyo Fox, who plays soubrette roles with the self same sparkle as her Aunt Della before her; the giant Detmar Poppen, with the basso profundo voice; also the Australian Tornado Dancing team, Louise Larsson and Robert Jackson, to be seen here for the first time.

HUSBAND THE BETTER LOVER

He Is Practical, Demonstrating His Affection in Deeds Rather Than in Words.

Invariably the radiantly happy married woman of fifty has adopted the man's point of view regarding her life. The average man is a better lover than the average woman, because he loves practically, showing affection in acts rather than in words. From the beginning his home is his inventive to effort. Sometimes, after marriage, as demands increase, he becomes so engrossed in his purpose that he forgets to talk of love.

Then it is that the wife, who has small understanding of love in action, pines because she is sure he has grown cold. No, he is at fever heat, lest he fail in providing physical proof of his affection.

The woman who finds happiness in married life has a sufficiently masculine outlook to understand him. She, instead of brooding over imaginary slights, in return proves her devotion by work. Her domestic duties are dignified by love, consequently she can fix her thoughts upon something diverting while she mends socks, forgetting the commonplace.

She can hear the song of the bird or think of the story she read last evening while she does the work of the absent cook. To her it is a joy to plan attractive meals that will add to the efficiency of her loved ones. She has a profession—home making.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

KITCHENER LOST FIRST GAME OF ALLAN CUP FINALS TO WINNIPEG

TORONTO, March 13.—Playing under the rules of the Ontario Hockey Association on ice that was slow and icky, Kitchener, O.H.A. senior champions, lost the first game of the Allan Cup series to Winnipeg by 3 to 2 before a crowd of approximately six thousand people at the Arena last night. The Ontario champions were beaten by a better team. The Winnipeg aggregation out-weighed the Kitchener sextette, outskated and outchecked them. The Westerners furnished brilliant hockey, and in view of the fact that they were playing on artificial ice that was in unenviable condition, under a style of play that was totally unfamiliar to them, and in a strange rink, they are deserving of great credit for their remarkably clever exhibition. On the showing of the teams last night the Allan Cup will return to the West, from which it was taken by the Dentals last season.

Spectators Show Appreciation.

The brilliancy of the play of the Winnipeg team won them round after round of applause from the crowded Arena, which thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed the exhibition of ability provided. All the reserved seats had been disposed of long before the sale of rush seats was opened. The fans came early and half an hour before play was called the rink was nearly filled. Outside the crowds stood patiently on the wet, slippery sidewalks awaiting their chance to purchase standing room. Ticket speculators were unusually active and demanded and secured exorbitant prices for seats in several instances.

The Winnipeg team made its appearance first, indulging in five minutes' snappy practice. They showed an abundance of speed, a smooth, accurate combination and wicked shooting. The visitors were given an ovation by the fans. When the Kitchener team made their appearance it was apparent that they were outweighed almost ten pounds to the man by the Westerners. It was believed that the tricky skating and stick-handling of the Ontario champions would offset the weight of the Westerners, but after the first fifteen minutes of play it was quite evident that the Ontario champions had met more than their match.

Winnipeg Scores First.

Winnipeg commenced the offensive, and within three minutes of the opening of play bounded nine shots from Hainesworth's pads. They came down the ice at a terrific pace, battered their way through the Kitchener defence or whipped wicked shots from the side. Hainesworth was equal to the occasion, however, and for the first nine-teen minutes of play succeeded in stopping shots hurled at him from all angles. In the final minute of play in the opening period Hughes slipped one past him for the first goal of the game. The puck was shot from a melee at the side of the Kitchener net, and it was so close to Hainesworth that it is doubtful if he saw the puck until it as in the net. Winnipeg secured another in the second period and again in the third. Kitchener secured one goal in the second and third periods.

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

THE MACS DEFEATED BY HIGH ROLLERS

The High Rollers won two of the three games from the Macs in a ten-pin league match last night at the Water St. Alleys. The total pinnage was: High Rollers 2,328; the Macs, 2,280. For the High Rollers, Solomon and Kelly were high with 577 and 494 for three game totals. Solomon had high single of 215. For the Macs McDonnell had a three-game total of 475. The scores were:

HOCKEY

Peterborough, March 12.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir, — We bets M. that the game to-morrow night is for the world championship between Kitchener and Winnipeg. Is it not for Canada only. And oblige, SUBSCRIBER.

The Allan Cup games are virtually for the world's amateur championship title.—Sporting Editor.

STILL EITHER TEAMS TITLE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, March 13. — Local hockey critics are still hopeful that Kitchener's team, champions of the O.H.A., will be able to hold the Allan cup in this province despite the one-goal lead of the Winnipegers. Opinion here this morning after consideration of last night's superb hockey game, is that it is still either team's championship. Colder weather with consequent hardening of ice is prophesied for to-morrow, and this according to experts will be as much help to one team as the other.

American Labour Sends Offer of Help to Russia

WASHINGTON, March 13.—On behalf of the working men of America, President Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labour, to-day sent the following cable addressed to the Russian Soviet, Moscow:

"We address you in the name of world liberty. We assure you that the people of the United States are pained by every blow at Russian freedom, as they would be by a blow at their own. The American people desire to be of service to the Russian people in their struggle to safeguard freedom and realize its opportunities. We desire to be informed as to how we may help. We speak for a great organized movement of working people who are devoted to the cause of freedom and the ideals of democracy. We assure you also that the whole American nation ardently desires to be helpful to Russia, and awaits with eagerness an indication from Russia as to how help may most effectively be extended. To all those who strive for freedom we say courage. Justice must triumph if all free people stand united against autocracy. We await your suggestionis.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson).

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 13. — American raiders in the sector north of Toul again entered the German trenches last night, at a different spot than they raided yesterday morning.

They found the German first lines evacuated, as in the morning attack, and took no prisoners.

The Electric Heating Of Homes Will Be Discussed At Meeting

The Engineers Club will have an open meeting on Thursday evening, at the Public Library, to which the public is invited. The timely subject of "Electric Heating of Private Houses" will be treated from all angles at this meeting. Mr. E. R. Shirley, Engineer of the Canadian General Electric Company, who has had considerable practical experience in house heating by electricity, has prepared a comprehensive paper covering the requirements, cost, and possibilities here in Peterborough. Messrs. Ferguson and Fisk of the Hydro Electric Commission, Mr. J. C. Shook, who has been much interested in electrical heating, and Messrs. Sisson and Langley of the Engineering Staff of the Canadian General Electric Company, will take part in the discussion. Any one who is interested or has any knowledge of the subject, will be welcomed as a participant in the discussion of the evening. It is felt by the Engineers' Club that in view of the possible scarcity of coal next winter the people of Peterborough should be acquainted with the possibilities as well as the limitations of electric heating.

It is expected that the Mayor, Board of Aldermen, Board of Trade and Greater Peterborough Association will be well represented at the meeting. The general public is cordially invited.

The meeting will open at 8 o'clock, and will be preceded by the usual informal dinner in the Empress Grill room at 6.30, to which all are invited who can get around early.

Fisheries Questions Settled

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, March 13.—Important announcement was made here to-day by Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Naval Service, that an arrangement which settles the long-standing fisheries question between Canada and the United States, has been reached. It will remain in force at least during the war. The new agreement which is regarded as another evidence of how the two countries are striving to break down all barriers that stand in the way of greater production, provides for complete reciprocity of port privileges for the fishing craft of the countries. This will not only enable an important increase in the amount of fish products to be made by the two countries, but will do away with irritating delays to vessels of either country in the ports of the other.

Slot Machines Must Go Declares Chief

Men who have been operating slot machines in the city recently have left themselves liable to a big fine for conducting a game of chance. These slot boards have been used in many of the factories, and the police are prepared to make an arrest on the first case that comes to their attention. Montreal, Ottawa and other cities have put up a strenuous campaign recently against this form of gambling and large fines have been recorded in some of the courts. Some of the barber shops in Peterborough worked a game of this kind last year, until the police cut it short.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—St. Peter's Ladies' Aid intend holding their annual tag day on Saturday, March 16th, 1918, on behalf of the orphans in St. Vincent's home. We hope and feel assured those who contributed so generously in past years will kindly remember them this year also.

As these children have to depend on almost solely voluntary offerings, and there are at present over forty orphans in the home, and I'm sure you will feel recompensed when you know the children offer up prayers daily for their benefactors.

K. CROWLEY,
Secretary.

To the people of North and South Monaghan:

Mr. Killaley, the superintendent of the Trent Canal, is anxious that the councils of these two townships, and the residents concerned, should visit him at his office at an early date, and arrange to be shown why it is that the overflow of the Otonabee River which floods farm lands, cannot be regulated by anything pertaining to canal management, but is dependent on the fact that the trough, known as the Otonabee River, between the Locks and the mouth of the river, is too small and too crooked to allow of the spring freshets being carried away with sufficient speed to avoid the flood. It is just such a thing as will happen in the case of any trough made by man or by nature for the conveyance of a certain usual quantity of water and suddenly being subjected to a flood. It overflows and the lakes and dams below if of a lower level, are not responsible for the trouble just as a trough at a pump may have a ten-acre field at a lower level at the other end and yet will overflow if subjected to a sudden and heavy flood. This year the precipitation has been very heavy. There have been no thaws, and it has all been held back. It would be wise, therefore to take this matter up at once with Mr. Killaly, and if possible be satisfied as to what the cause of the trouble really is. If it is to be contended that to relieve such floods the river will have to be widened and deepened or immense reservoirs provided, that is another question and not in any way connected with the canal and its management. The flooding would arise if there were no canal.

I would ask the councils and residents above mentioned, therefore, to see Mr. Killaly at once, and ascertain the facts for themselves at the only time possible, viz., the early spring.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY COMPLAIN THAT WARDS ARE POORLY PAID

One Case Before the Society Yesterday Where Farmer Had Refused to Pay Any Remuneration to Boy Who Had Worked Steadily—Monthly Meeting of the Society.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society the following members were present:

Rev. Father Phelan, in the chair, Rev. Dougald Brown, Messrs. G. W. Powell, Joseph Wearing, Dr. King, Adjutant McElhiney, Chief Thompson, Mrs. Stocker, Mrs. Sanderson, and Mrs. Hopwood.

TREASURER'S ACCOUNT.

The Treasurer's account indicated satisfactory monetary conditions, $1,221.00 being on hand in the bank against $150.00 at the same time last year.

MRS. REID'S REPORT.

The Matron, Mrs. Reid, reported fifteen children in the home during February, six available for adoption, and several applications for such.

AGENT'S REPORT.

The Agent's report showed few complaints.

WAGES FOR WARDS.

A heated discussion of the future adjustment of wages due the children who are wards of the institution until 21 years of age, arose over the case of one boy of 19 years of age who had worked continuously and satisfactorily for a farmer and received no remuneration. The boy who has since come to the city and is capable of earning $35 per month, claims pay for his services to his employer. The Board will sue the farmer if some remuneration is not made presently. It was contended that a boy or girl on leaving school should be placed upon a salary agreeable to the Society and a readjustment of the present system will be made for the protection of the wards.

APPLICATION FOR HELP.

Mr. Winslow of Cavan waited upon the Board to ask that the boy be induced to come to his farm to aid in greater production. The boy has taken a position in the C. G. E., and as it was pointed out, cannot be made to go, and would probably go unwillingly without he makes a try out of city life.

HAZEL WELSH LOCATED.

Hazel Welch, a child of eight, who disappeared some months ago, has been located in Buffalo.

SITUATIONS VACANT.

Mr. Powell read several applications for help wanted by the Industrial School.

ABANDONED CHILD.

The case of the baby which was left recently at Goheen & Matchett's store, was dealt with, and for whom many applications have been received. He will be made a ward of the institution, and Mrs. Matchett, who desires to keep the boy, will be given first chance for him.

ALTERATIONS AT "HOME".

The matter of sanitary tubs and a new kitchen for the Home was left to Chief Thompson to deal with.

ACCOUNTS PRESENTED.

The following accounts were received and ordered to be paid:

SPENT HUNDREDS WITHOUT RESULTS

Tried in Vain For Two Years to Get Relief—Tanlac Restores Her Health

"It is really wonderful to think that just a few bottles of Tanlac has given me relief from my troubles after I had spent hundreds of dollars trying medicines and treatments during the past five years without getting any results."

The above remarkable statement was made a few days ago by Mrs. Lilly Snyder, 106 Duchess street, Toronto. Mrs. Snyder is well known in Toronto, and also in London, where she made her home for many years. Her complete statement, which will interest all her friends and acquaintances, follows:

"I've had a miserable time for the past five years, on account of severe nervous headaches and indigestion," she continued. "No matter how careful I was with my diet, nearly everything I ate would sour in my stomach and make me suffer for hours. I would belch up sour food and bitter water after meals, and gas would form and swell me up until I could scarcely breathe. My head would ache at times until it seemed like it was going to burst, and I'd have to give up and take to my bed. I could hardly do anything around the house and we were just paying bills for medicines and treatments all the time, but I didn't get any better.

"I never thought any medicine could do for anyone what this Tanlac has done for me. My husband and I both think it is the finest medicine made, and all because of the way I have improved since I started taking it. The indigestion has disappeared entirely, and I never have a sign of a headache. I can eat what I want and it digests easy and builds me up. My health has improved in every way possible and I am in better condition than I have been for five years. I've told everybody in my neighborhood how Tanlac has helped me, and I'll always recommend it every chance I have."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers' Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle and Son.

Friday was ladies' night at one of the popular clubs and a pleasant time was spent by all who were present.

TO SUFFER FROM HEADACHES
Makes Life Miserable

Headaches seems to be habitual with many people. Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually with the dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on.

The varieties of headache most common are sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, debility or indigestion and periodical and spasmodic headache, and undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that has been on the market for over 40 years, removes the cause of the headaches, and not only does this but also restores the entire system to healthy action and buoyant vigour.

Miss Emily Smith, 304 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. For two years I was greatly troubled with violent headaches, particularly in the morning. I tried everything to cure me until a friend recommended B.B.B. I tried it, and now I am completely cured."

Children Like It

It is not an easy matter to get a medicine that children like, or to force them to take one they don't like. Most mothers know that a cough medicine, while palatable, should contain no drug injurious to the child. The great popularity of is explained by the fact that it contains no opium or narcotic of any kind, and at the same time is so pleasant and agreeable to the taste that children like it. For this reason it is a favorite with the mothers of young children.

Yours Truly, Chamberlain Co.

LUXBURG'S DISAPPEARANCE IS A MYSTERY

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

SANTIAGO, CHILE, March 13.—The German Embassy to-day denied that Count Von Luxburg, former Ambassador to Argentine, has arrived here, in flight from Buenos Aires.

Chileans are agog at the mystery of Luxburg's disappearance. He was last reported leaving a Trans-Andean train at a railway station seventy miles east of here, and was supposed to have intended motoring to the German Embassy.

SUFFER NO LONGER FROM CONSTIPATION!

You can immediately relieve and permanently cure yourself with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. One thousand dollars will be paid for any case that is not corrected within three days. Dr. Hamilton's Pills contain no injurious drugs; they are composed entirely of soothing, vegetable extracts that strengthen the stomach and bowels at once. It is absolutely impossible for Dr. Hamilton's Pills to fail curing biliousness, sour stomach, indigestion, headache or constipation. Even one box has brought vigor and renewed health to chronic sufferers; so you owe it to yourself to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills at once; 25c per box at all dealers.

A BUILDER OF HEALTH
Nothing can be of greater assistance in building up the system than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for this food-cure forms new, rich blood, and nourishes and restores the feeble, wasted nerve cells. Gradually and naturally the body and mind regain vigor and energy, and you feel again the joy of living which comes only to people in good health.

LINDSAY COUNCIL MAY IMPOSE TAX ON TRANSIENT SHOWS

LINDSAY, March 13.—At a session of the town council Alderman Duck, chairman of police, gave notice that he would introduce a by-law at the next session of the council imposing a tax of $25.00 on travelling shows.

Alderman Duck pointed out that some forty shows came to Lindsay during the year, which meant that $20,000 was taken out of the town. The town charged circuses from $50 to $100 and they did not take more money away with them. Marks Bros. dramatic company came to Lindsay during the busy season and reaped a big harvest with the result that the town was the poorer. It was like a fellow coming to town to sell a laugh. The town got the laugh, but the other fellow got the $400.

Deputy Reeve McGaffey said he had seen the Academy statement, and found that about fifty shows appeared here during the past year. The average receipts were $181.00.

Harsh Treatment Of Returned Soldiers Charged In Inquiry Heard In Camera At Ottawa

OTTAWA, March 12.—Complaints of harsh and inconsiderate treatment of invalided soldiers on transport coming to Canada from overseas are being ventilated before the board of inquiry which was constituted by the Minister of Militia to go into the facts of the case. Sittings, however, are in camera. They were opened here to-day and will in turn be held in the different military districts.

The man who makes the charges and who says he has the testimony to back them up is Lieut. John Quinney, formerly of Ottawa, and more recently of Victoria. He is a veteran ailed of South Africa and of the present war. Quinney has been assiduously endeavouring to secure a wide-open investigation, so that conditions might be bettered and any repetition obviated, but though at one time given the assurance that the inquiry would be public, there has since been a change and the investigation starts off behind closed doors. An intimation has been given that only through members of the board will the officer in question be permitted to ask questions of the witnesses.

WITNESSES READY.

Lieut. Quinney has been rounding up his witnesses and taking note of their evidence, and he fully expects to justify his allegations. An outstanding charge is that men suffering from serious disabilities, such as the loss of legs, have been denied on the ships the accommodation that they were supposed to receive, both as a matter of regulation and also on humanitarian grounds.

The doctors at Buxton are supposed to give returning invalids berth tickets corresponding to the nature of their illness. The holder of a red ticket—a serious case—is entitled to a berth in a B deck cabin. A pink ticket admitted to the second class accommodation, while the less serious cases went third class.

INVALIDS IN STEERAGE.

"We have lots of cases," said Lieut. Quinney to-day, "where men holding red tickets, indicating that their condition was serious, were not allowed cabins at all, but were sent to the steerage, where they had to sleep on the floor. There were some hammocks, but the men were too disabled to swing into them. We have other instances where men with red or pink tickets were denied berths at first, but afterwards secured them by paying or tipping stewards.

"When the sick men would go to the cabins allotted to them they would find them occupied by officers who, in some cases, objected to being on the same deck as the men, or else by civilians. Now, as I have stated these men, being unable to get into hammocks, had to go on the floor and away down in the bottom of the ship at that—seven or eight decks down on the big transports."

SHIPS SAID TO BE FILTHY.

Another charge to be ventilated, and with much evidence to support it is that all the ships complained of are filthy and infested with vermin. Evidence will be given to show that many men on landing were forced to discard their clothing because of the vermin.

There are bitter complaints about the food. Wherever it was bad, however, the men were able to get good stuff—if they paid for it, a fact showing that there was no dearth of it on the ship.

Evidence will be introduced on another point to show that it is inadvisable that women passengers should travel on the same parts of the ships as the soldiers. There are complaints that conducting officers have two sets of manners, according to the first or second-class accommodation occupied by the ladies.

LACK OF HUMANITY.

Another charge is that conducting officers have displayed lack of feeling or humanity towards the wounded men.

"We will be able to show," said Lieut. Quinney, "that armless and legless men have been put on duty on lower decks, away down at the bottom and compelled to watch the water tight compartments and clamp them. It was no work for cripples. A big liner has berths for 7,200 ,yet it was on one of these that the bigger part of the trouble occurred, when men had to sleep on the steerage floors.

DID NOT GET COMFORTS.

The men claim that Red Cross comforts sent to the ship were not distributed at all, but were dumped on the wharf at Halifax.

There is a general complaint of inconsiderate treatment and Prussianism towards men, all of whom are coming back invalided and incapacitated and nearly all in a state of suffering," says Lieut. Quinney.

It is understood that the evidence will affect one of the headquarters staff who was O. C. troops on one of the returning transports.

Miraculous Cure Wonderful Remedy

Study this extract from an article dated November 20th, 1915, on "The Adulteration of Food and Drugs."

Swaizema is a blood purifier and tonic builder of extraordinary merit. There came to my notice while in Kitchener a case in which a most miraculous cure was effected through this wonderful remedy. A gentleman had developed a running ulcerated sore. For two years eminent specialists had treated, at enormous expense, the injured limb without success. He was induced to try Swaizema which resulted in an absolute cure—and this with the purchase of two bottles only.

Railway Battalion To Be Formed

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has received word that Lieut. Boyne will come to Peterboro in a day or two to complete the Railway Battalion. Lt. Boyne is also anxious about the Forestry Battalion, but has received orders for the immediate formation of a railway construction battalion.

Mr. Burnham says it will be necessary for the large number of returned soldiers who are anxious to serve again, although not fit for the firing line, to keep in touch with his office at least once a day so as not to miss Lt. Boyne when he arrives.

BROTHER OF ALLAN CLARK IS INJURED

The following from the Toronto Star refers to a brother of Pte. Allan Clark, formerly of the 93rd Battalion Band:

In a flying accident in England Harold Joseph Clark, of Pickering, has been injured while in training for the Royal Naval Air Service. His father, Mr. W. C. Clark of Pickering, received a cable from the Admiralty yesterday saying that he had been injured in an accident, and suffered from concussion of the brain. The message added that serious consequences were not anticipated at present, which is taken to mean that there is hope of recovery. Harold Joseph Clark went overseas last autumn to join the R. N. A. S. His home is in Pickering, but he was employed in Toronto with the H. S. Howland, Sons & Co. He is a nephew of Mr. J. T. Clark, of The Star. His elder brother, Allan Clark, went over seas with a Peterborough battalion, but was recently invalided home from England owing to an injured knee.

Corp. Hamilton's Loss Will Be Greatly Felt

Mr. Miles Hamilton has received the following letter from the head of the Clarence House, Hospital, Priory Lane., in regard to the death of his brother, Corp. William Fortye Hamilton, who enlisted here in Queen's Field Ambulance:

Dear Mr. Hamilton,—I have been wanting to write you a few lines ever since the terrible accident which deprived me of your brother's invaluable services, but the almost increasing demands on my time have prevented me doing so until this late date.

As you of course know he was with me for over a year, coming shortly after the hospital opened, so I felt his death was a personal loss, not only to myself, but to Clarence House as well.

The parcel you sent at Christmas, a pipe and tobacco, I took the liberty of opening and distributing as I felt he would have wished, the pipe to a staff man of whom he was fond, and the tobacco to the double amputations, who were his special care, calling themselves "Doc. Hamilton's lambs."

I also had the pleasure of having your boy here for a few days when home on leave—a perfectly charming lad of whom your brother was very proud, naturally. I hope any time he is in England on leave he will come out and see us. It is so splendid of those boys to go into the ranks that I feel in a place like this we cannot do enough for them.

Hoping you will forgive me for not writing sooner.

Yours sincerely,
WINNIFRED LEWIS.

You Can Tell The People Who Have Iron In Their Blood--- Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Folks

Doctor Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron will Increase the Strength of Nervous, Run-down People in Two Weeks' Time in Many Cases.

"ONE glance is enough to tell which people have iron in their blood," said Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician who has studied widely both in this country and in great European medical institutions. They are the ones that do and dare. The others are in the weakling class. Sleepless nights spent worrying over supposed ailments, constant dosing with habit-forming drugs and narcotics and useless attempts to brace up with strong coffee or other stimulants are what keep them suffering and vainly longing to be strong. Their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. Without iron the blood has no power to change food into living tissue and therefore, nothing you eat does you good; you don't get the strength out of it. When iron is supplied it enriches the impoverished blood and gives the body greater resistance to ward off disease. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the time increase their strength and endurance in from ten to fourteen days' time while taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. There is nothing like good old iron to help put color in your cheeks and sound, healthy flesh on your bones. But you must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. E. Sauer, is one of the newer organic iron compounds. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by McDermid & Jury, and all other druggists.

Representative Of Henry W. Savage Visits Peterborough

Mrs. E. A. Bachelder, special representative of Henry W. Savage, arrived in the city yesterday.

She was formerly in charge of the publicity of the Boston Grand Opera Company and of the enormous production sent on the road by the New York Hippodrome last year, and is now here in the interest of Mitzi Hajos in "Pom-Pom," the new comic opera which comes to the Grand Opera House Tuesday night, March 19.

In speaking of Mr. Savage and his stage productions, of which several are to be seen here during the season, Mrs. Bachelder said:

"Mr. Savage was the first theatrical producer to choose distinct types to fit in his plays. The expense is always the last thing thought of in preparing scenic settings. His insistence on solid and substantial, or what is called 'practical' scenery, was generally regarded as wild extravagance until lately. His orchestras, it will be recalled, are always large and made up of trained musicians.

"He seems to be able to anticipate new styles in comic opera or plays, for they do change. "The Merry Widow," "Woodland," "Madame X," and "Everywoman" brought dozens of imitations.

"A further example of far-sightedness was securing Mitzi for the title role in "Sari." He had seen her in "The Spring Maid," in which she played a very different creature, and recognized the unusual spark of theatrical genius in the tiny prima donna. "Sari" needed voice, youth, good looks and versatility for an actress and a comedienne, and Mitzi proved to be the only one who could have made the opera a great success, but no one but Mr. Savage believed it before it happened. Her ability was so great she was made a star—the first one Mr. Savage has had for he never has believed before that any of his players held so independent a place they could not be replaced in the public effections.

Mr. Savage feels that Mitzi is filling the niche in the hearts of the people that Lotta and Maggie Mitchell occupied in the height of their popularity and he desires to place her in a setting as nearly perfect as possible, as "Pom-Pom" comes as a doubly attractive musical comedy—with an original Savage production and a star of the first water.

USE OF ZEPPLINS INDICATES ALLIES SUPERIORITY IN AIR

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, March 13.—Germany's resumption of the use of Zeppelins for raids on Great Britain is the first acknowledgement Von Hindenburg has permitted of the constantly increasing superiority of the Allies' morale can be lowered by air Zeppelins as raiders has long been an exploded myth. Nevertheless the Kaisers megalomaniac belief that the Allies' morale can be lowered by air raids, apparently has caused imperative orders that the bombing of Great Britain continue, whatever the risks.

Hindenburg has not enough airplanes at his disposal to keep up the necessary aeronautical duties along the western front, and at the same time conduct air offensives against Paris and London. He has been compelled, therefore, to go back to the antiquated Zeppelins for the renewal of his attacks upon non-combatants in the British Isles. Hindenburg's passion for efficiency in all matters of slaughter would not permit him to use the less destructive type of air machine unless it were absolutely necessary.

The only development that could excuse to Hindenburg inefficiency of this character, would be the gradual establishment by the Allies of control of the air along the west front. Hindenburg in fact, can no longer remove many of his battle planes from the battle lines.

UNION OF PRESBYTERIANS IS URGED

EXPECTED A BONE DRY RESOLUTION

Having published the reply of the Ministerial Association to Mr. Burnham's inquiry re prohibition, the Examiner publishes Mr. Burnham's reply to the Ministerial Association, sent to that body yesterday:

Peterborough, March 12, 1918.
The Ministerial Association, Peterborough.

Sirs,—Your communication of March 11th, comprising resolution re Prohibition, received. I had hoped that you would have passed a resolution in favour of bone-dry Prohibition. As it is you have left 2 1-2 per cent. proof spirits as the alcohol limit on the supposition, presumably, that it is harmless and cannot be made misuse of. You mean then, I take it, that any beverage that cannot be made misuse of is allowable, whether this precaution proceeds from inherent or protective causes. A rigid license and sale system might satisfy this requirement. You will excuse me saying that you cannot leave a hole and stop it up at the same time. The debatability of precautions is the whole question now at issue and that changes of course the whole situation. You do not find alcohol as a beverage bad, but you do find that if taken too strong it is bad. This was never doubted, as far as I know, but it is interesting to have your approval of the popular opinion, so clearly expressed. I am gentlemen,

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

Former Local Man Dead In Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y., March 12.—Dennis Beyham, former resident of Peterborough, Ont., died early Saturday, following a brief illness at his home here, 320 Frank street. Deceased removed from Peterborough to Rochester about sixteen years ago. He leaves his wife, Elizabeth, three daughters, the Misses May E., and Florence A. Beyhan, both of Rochester, and Miss Margaret C. Beyhan, of Washington, D.C., one brother, Nicholas Beyhan of Albion, N.Y., and a sister Mrs. Mary Carr of Buffalo, N.Y. Interment took place on Tuesday morning, here, in Mount Hope cemetery.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

OBITUARY

J. J. O'BRIEN.

After a week's illness John J. O'Brien died from pneumonia at his home, 378 Lippencott street. His death was unexpected, as he appeared to be in his usual good health and attended his office duties at the Cowan Chocolate Co. until his illness. He was born in Peterborough 24 years ago and came to Toronto in 1908. He attended Cobourg Collegiate, where he graduated. He was prominently identified with athletics and was captain of the Cowan amateur ball team. He was a member of the C.M.B.A., Catholic Order of Foresters and the Holy Name Society of St. Peter's Church, which he attended. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. O'Brien, two brothers and four sisters. The funeral mass was held on Tuesday at St. Peter's Church, and the body was placed in the vault at St. Michael's cemetery. —Toronto Star.

JOHN C. HIGGINS.

John Charles Higgins, an old and widely known resident of the city for many years, died this morning at the family residence, 1043 Water street.

He was born in Fort Carrington, New York, 80 years ago, and came to the city at an early age, and was employed as a millwright in the old Nassau mills. He was a Mason and a member of the Methodist church.

There are left to mourn his death, his wife and five daughters: Miss Lydia, at home; Mrs. A. H. Willett, Cochrane, Minnie and Lydia at home and Mrs. L. R. Pedlar, Toronto.

Funeral from the family residence on Friday afternoon; service at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Thomas. Interment at Little Lake cemetery.

W. R. EMMERSON.

The death is announced at Kenlis, Sask., on February 27, of W. R. Emmerson, son of the late Robert Emmerson of Otonabee. The late W. R. Emmerson was born in Otonabee 53 years ago. He had been farming in Saskatchewan for fifteen years, and had had much success. Deceased is survived by his widow, who was Miss Idlian Sedgwick of Otonabee, and five children. His brothers are David and Charles Emmerson of Kenlis, Sask.; two sisters, Mrs. Matthews Brackenridge of Westwood, and Miss Mary E. Emmerson of Kenlis, died in July and October, respectively. Charles Brackenridge of the Union Bank, Peterborough, who was wounded in the fighting at the Somme, and was later honorably discharged from the service, is a nephew. Another nephew, Corp. Maxwell Brackenridge of Westwood, was killed at Vimy Ridge.

The funeral was held at Kenlis on Friday, March 1.

No action has been taken in the matter so far, but it is understood a new election will be held presently.

HALF HUNS' EXPENSES FOR MEALS, FOOD COST SO HIGH

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The seriousness of the cost of living problem in Germany is shown in figures announced by the Department of Labour, which state that 59.14 per cent. of the average German family's expenditures is paid for food.

Fresh meat is scarce and smoked and couserved meats are high in price, while fish is two and one-half to four times higher than in peace times. Potatoes are being substituted for grain and substitutes of all kinds are being used especially by the pooper classes. Jam very largely has taken the place of butter and oleomargerine.

MAY SECURE THE NORMAL SUPPLY OF COAL FOR WINTER

A clause in the Fuel Controller's Act as follows—"And nothing herein contained shall prevent any person from having on hand or procuring such supply of coal as will altogether not exceed three tons," was superficially regarded by some of the city officials as a contradiction of the statement made by the Mayor that householders are permitted to purchase their normal winter supply — if they can get it—between April 1st and September 1st. City Solicitor Gordon was interviewed, and the Mayor stated he would obtain an official statement from Fuel Controller McGrath. As a result, Chief Thompson announced this afternoon that the Mayor's statement was correct, that citizens may secure their normal supply of coal for next winter within the allotted time.

Scrap Metal Dealers Will Be The Losers

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 13.—Dealers in scrap metal claim that an injustice has been done them in the Government embargo on the exportation of scrap iron from Canada to the United States. They claim that there is a difference of $16 a ton in the price of the metal in Canada and in the United States, and that they face a serious financial loss by having to sell their scrap in Canada.

Was Killed In Railway Accident

Word has been received in the city of the death of Mrs. Victor E. LeBarr, of Perth, Amboy, New Jersey, as a result of a railway accident on Saturday evening last. The funeral will take place at Port Alleghany on Friday. Mr. Victor E. LeBarr formerly resided in this city. The message was received by Mrs. James LeBarr, 306 Aylmer street, a sister-in-law of the bereaved husband.

Late Despatches

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, March 13.—Captain George T. Bailey, C.A.C.C., was this afternoon sentenced by Magistrate Denison to three months' imprisonment on the jail farm, for making statements derogatory to the soldiers at the front. Captain Bailey was the man who told the recent prohibition convention here that he had heard that ninety per cent. of the troops in the trenches were drunk on Christmas Day. W. K. Murphy, counsel for the accused, said that he would appeal the case to the Minister of Justice. The Crown produced several returned soldiers who were in the trenches Christmas Day. All these men declared that Captain Bailey's statement was false.

No such condition as stated by Bailey prevailed. Captain Bailey was called as witness in his own behalf. He said that he had been given the information by Captain Lyone of Calgary. He had no intention, he said, of making any statement derogatory to the boys at the front, but made this statement in temperance enthusiasm.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, March 13.—German and Austrian-Hungarian troops are now before Odessa, the War Office announced. It had been reported that the Austrian-German advance was continued in some regions, notwithstanding the conclusion with Russia and Ukraine. Odessa, on the Black Sea, is a city of some four hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Active preparations for strengthening the defences of the Allies were begun to-day by the War Department with the appointment of a Naval Board to select sites along the Atlantic coast for aero squadrons and balloon companies. Major Norman W. Peck, of the Signal Corps, was named to head the Board.

Capt. Cunningham On Wounded List

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cunningham, 378 Stewart street, received word on Sunday that their son, Captain H. D. Cunningham, Royal Canadian Dragoons, had been wounded but still on duty, on February 13th. Captain Cunningham is a first contingent man, and went overseas with the 20th Border Horse, Alameda, Sask. Later he was chosen with the fifty "hand-picked" men to be transferred into the R.C.D., and has been in France for two years. His brother, Gunner George Cunningham, is also on active service.

Action Against The Holders Of Books Banned By Courts

Chief Thompson stated this morning that he intended to make an example of persons who have in their possession any of the banned publications issued by the International Bible Students' Association. Every opportunity has been given the public to dispose of these books, and the possession of any of them will bring trouble to the offenders.

Funeral Of Mr. F. R. Yokome

The funeral of the late F. R. Yokome took place this afternoon. Canon Davidson, a life-long friend of Mr. Yokome, although undergoing treatment in the Convalescent Hospital in Toronto, and unfit for duty, came to the city specially to conduct the service at the house and at St. John's church, of which church Mr. Yokome was one of the oldest members.

The funeral was attended by a very large number of the citizens, and a cab was devoted to the many floral tributes, the last tribute of a sorrowing community.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Robert Fair, A. H. Stratton, R. R. Hall, G. N. Gordon, James Lynch and Wm. Menzies.

Three Months For Capt. Bailey

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 13.—Capt. G. T. Bailey, the Canadian officer, who declared that 90 p.c. of the Canadians at the front were drunk at Christmas, was sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate Denison in the police court to-day. "This is one of the saddest cases I have had to deal with," said the Magistrate, "in sending the son of a man who has fought with me, to jail, but this talk about the Canadians at the front must be stopped."

GRAIN FOR BREWERS TO BE REDUCED

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 13.—Parliamentary Secretary Clynes, of the Food Control Board announced in the Commons that the government would greatly reduce the amount of grain permitted for brewery purposes.

Changes In the Cabinet Are Discussed

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 13. — Reports of changes in the Cabinet are being discussed at length in the press. Some newspapers state that Henry E. Duke, Chief Secretary for Ireland, has retired and will be appointed to a judicial position, and that James Ian MacPherson, parliamentary secretary to the War Office, will go to Ireland in his place.

The Liverpool Post says that among the persons involved in reconstruction it asserts is approaching, is Foreign Secretary Balfour, who has shown a tendency lately to take rather too diplomatic a view of international problems.

QUAKER OATS YEAR.

Annual Statement Shows Big Increase in Profits.

Sales of the Quaker Oats Co. last year resulted in a gross income of $5,221,752, compared with $3,991,313 in 1916. The volume of business was greatly in excess of that of any previous year, due partly to the nation-wide campaign carried on by the Food Administration which encouraged the substitution of other cereal foods for wheat. Net income available for dividends was $4,906,928, compared with $3,214,088 the year before, and the surplus after dividends was $3,477,628, compared with $1,905,998 in 1916.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

WHAT IS THE USE?

People try to worry along, wondering why they are unable to do things as easily as they once could, why everything looks blurred and dim, making it hard to grasp details as they were able to at one time.

Why is it?

Simply that their eyes have weakened from strain or other cause and need help.

What is the use of continuing in this state when Dr. Fowler can so quickly put things right. Try him and see.

England's Need.

Howard E. Coffin, who is standardizing the American airplane, said to a correspondent:

"Standardization is the modern efficiency method. The Germans have standardized their submarine. England is a great country, a brave country, an unconquerable country, but England needs standardization.

"When an Englishman wants to say that a check is 'for deposit only' he doesn't write that on it. No, that isn't the English way. He writes '& Co.'

"A Cambridge professor once explained to me some of the terms used at the great English university.

"He said 'full term' means three-quarters of a term. 'May week' is the first two weeks in June. 'General admission day' is the day everybody leaves. An 'ordinary degree' is one obtained by a special examination, and an 'arts inspector' is an arts students."

Teuton Force Reaches City On Black Sea

German and Austro-Hungarian Troops Are Now in Odessa —Preliminary Peace Agreement Pledged Roumania to Support Design.

KAISER'S PURPOSE IS CARRIED OUT

BERLIN, March 14, via London.—German and Austro-Hungarian troops are now in Odessa, the War Office announces.

The preliminary peace treaty signed by Roumania and the Central Powers on March 5th, contained a provision engaging Roumania to support with all its strength the transport of troops of the Central powers through Moldavi and Bessarabia to Odessa. The purpose of the Central Powers in inserting this clause has not been made clear, although the explanation was given that the primary object was to secure the importation of supplies from the Ukraine. After the treaty was signed the semi official German News Agency announced that Germany had acquired a direct route by way of Russia to Persia and Afghanistan.

Little news has been received for the last fortnight of military operations in the east, although it has been reported that the Austro-German advance was continuing in some regions notwithstanding the conclusion of peace with Russia and Ukraine. Odessa, on the Black Sea, is a city of some 450,000 inhabitants.

Severe Pains In The Back

Told of Kidney Trouble—Was Unable to Work, But Finally Found a Cure by Using This Well-known Medicine

Gananoque, Ont., March 13—There is plenty of enthusiasm in this town for Dr. Chase's Medicines, and many people ready with good reports of cures effected.

There seems to be no treatment for kidney derangements which proves effective in such a large proportion of cases as does Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is because the liver and bowels are usually involved as well as the kidneys, and this medicine overcomes the disease because it acts directly on these organs.

Mrs. W. Higgins, John St., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "My husband has made use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the last thirteen years. Previous to that he had several attacks of kidney trouble, accompanied by severe pains in his back. He became so bad that he was unable to work. Finally he started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the results were splendid. He quite recovered, and by using an occasional Kidney-Liver Pill he wards off recurrent attacks, and has never had any trouble since. We also use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home and find it an excellent salve."

Mrs. James Bishop, Stone St. N., Gananoque, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in our home for some time, and find them an excellent remedy for pains in the back. They seem to help the stomach and kidneys to do their work more effectively. We are pleased to recommend them to others."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Look for portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box you buy.

GRAIN MARKET

Manitoba cash oats were quoted 1 1-2c to 2 1-2c higher, basis in store, Fort William. Some interruption in supplies on hand as a result of the recent storms account in part for the sudden advance, following Tuesday's sharp decline, and the generally bearish tone of the oats market. Although Ontario oats are not moving quite so freely as rye and barley, the market is easier, and Friday's quotations are again 1c lower. Rye and barley quotations hold firm. The coal situation has improved slightly and orders of long standing are being slowly filled by local dealers. There is plenty of grain in the country elevators, if the cars were only available to bring it out.

Manitoba wheat — No. 1 Northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-4; including 2 1-2 cent tax, in store Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C. W. 97 3-8 cents; No. 2, 93 3-8c; extra No. 1 feed, 92c, store, Fort William; No. 1 feed, 90 3-8c.

American corn — No. 3 kiln dried, $2.05, [illegible] Toronto.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 95c to 96c, nominal; No. 3 white, 94c to 95c.

Barley—Malting, $1.83 to $1.85.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store, Montreal.

Peas—No. 2 $3.70 to $3.80, according to freights outside.

Buckwheat—$1.83 to $1.85.

Rye—No. 2, $2.50.

Manitoba flour, war quality, $11.10, Toronto, new bags.

Ontario flour—War quality, $10.70, Toronto-Montreal, $10.70, new bags.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $40; bran, $35; feed flour, not quoted; middlings, not quoted.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $17 to $18; No. 2, $14 to $16; mixed, $13 to 16; straw, car lots, $8.50 to $9.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 68 cars, with 897 cattle, 628 calves, 1,668 hogs, and 23 sheep and lambs.

With no market Tuesday, and receipts for yesterday only in part making up for the lost day, there was a sharp active trade. Cattle arrived late and sold early, consequently were good and empty. Under these conditions prices actually paid averaged 15c. to 20c. higher than Monday, though, emptiness considered, the market could not be said to be more than a good steady and active market. Several choice lots sold around $12 to $12.25, and one small lot of four steers at $12.50. The general run of good to choice butcher loads sold around $11.25 to $11.75.

Sheep and lambs firm.

Calves firm.

Hogs reached a new high record at $20, fed and watered. One small lot at $20.15, the highest price ever paid in this market.

FARMERS' CLUB OF OMEMEE HOLD SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Omemee, March 13. — On Tuesday, March 5th, the Farmers' Club held a most enjoyable entertainment in the Coronation hall, Omemee. In spite of the severe weather about 200 people attended.

Mr. Wm. Brown gave a couple of his solos. A quartette, composed of Mrs. H. Laidley, Mrs. T. McConnell, and Messrs. Brown and Ingram, delighted the audience.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. Burnaby of Toronto, president of the Farmers Co-operative Company, Ltd. He was introduced by the chairman, F. G. Sandy, as a man holding a responsible position, and as the president of the Grain Growers' Association of Manitoba, has become the Minister of Agriculture for the Dominion. The chairman introduced Mr. Burnaby as the coming Minister of Agriculture for the province of Ontario.

Mr. Burnaby gave a very interesting and instructive address dwelling on what had been accomplished by the farmers of western Canada, and how much there was yet to be done. He assured the audience that the officials were doing all that they could but on account of the war it was difficult to deliver the goods. Last year on a capital of $6000, a $1,000,000 business was done. This year other branches have been started, and he appealed to the farmers for their loyalty, and when their goods did not arrive when expected, for them to have patience. To use Mr. Burnaby's expression: "I ask you to be big!"

After the address, Miss Hartley of Reaboro, sang a solo which was encored.

The Omemee Club is now one of the largest clubs in the province, having almost 125 members, and since last September, the Omemee and Reaboro clubs have shipped over $100,000 worth of live stock.

OLD RESIDENT PASSES.

A gloom has been cast over our village once more, when death called home on Tuesday another of our old residents in the person of Mrs. Robt. McQuade. Deceased had been ill only a short time, death being due to pneumonia. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons, Wallace and Chas. —also six daughters, Mrs. Marlow, of Blackstock, Mrs. George Griffin, and Mrs. Robert Williamson of Omemee; Miss Olive of Toronto, Miss Sophia, of Otawa, and Miss Ella, at home.

OMEMEE COUNCIL.

Omemee council held their regular meeting on March 4th.

The council met in the council chamber, of Coronation Hall, with the members all present. The reeve in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

On motion of Mr. Robert Boyd, seconded by Mr. H. Lamb, the accounts were considered and dealt with.

The Rev. Mr. MacInnes, from the Presbyterian Church, Omemee, addressed the meeting and presented a petition from some of the property owners of Omemee, asking for the Red Cross Society the sum of $75.

A communication from the Ontario government Fisheries Dept., insisting on the council encouraging the use of fish, which the government would supply the dealers with, and to save other meats to supply the allies, was before the council.

Moved by Dr. Howden, seconded by Mr. Lamb, that this council request the government to allow the citizens of the municipality the privilege of fishing in Pigeon River and other convenient waters at all times for their own use, which would be much better and cheaper than shipping the fish to Omemee.

After considerable other business transacted the council on motion of Mr. Lamb and Boys adjourned to meet at the call of the reeve.

Suffered Great Agony

FROM PAIN IN STOMACH FOR OVER 5 YEARS

Most of the misery and ill-health that humanity is burdened with arises from disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. If you are feeling out of sorts, have pains in the stomach, especially after eating, bilious spells, headaches, sour stomach, coated tongue, sallow or muddy complexion, specks floating before the eyes, you should take a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and note the change.

Miss Ida Hogan, Dunrobin, Ont., writes: "For over five years I have suffered great agony from pains in the stomach. I tried several remedies but got no relief until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I started with two vials and before I had one quite used, I found much relief. I continued until I used four vials, and they have completely cured me. That was fourteen months ago and I have not had the slightest return since. The best praise I could give them is not enough."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Death Of Mrs. Jas. Maloney

At the family residence, lot 7, concession 9, Douro, Mrs. James Maloney, daughter of the late Morris Clancy, died last night after an illness of about one week's duration.

She was born in Emily and had resided in Douro for about 40 years, during which time she had gained the respect and esteem of the residents of that township.

There are left to mourn her death six sons and two daughters, all of whom were present at her death, namely, Miss B. G. Maloney and Sister M. Rosalie of St. Joseph's Convent, Fort William, Roderick, John S., Joseph, Peter S. Paul and Ignatius Loyola, all of Douro. Mr. Maloney, predeceased her twenty-six years ago.

The funeral will be announced later.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.— Mrs. Lucretia Rudolphy Garfield, widow of James A. Garfield, twentieth president of the United States, died at her winter home in South Pasadena, early today.

Long Flights of Birds.

A thrush was caught at Southport recently with a ring on its leg marked, "Inform Witherby, High Holborn, London." Mr. H. E. Witherby, who is the editor of British Birds, has, since 1910, had 75,000 birds so marked in the hope of learning something about their travels. A swallow ringed in Lancashire was found seven months later at Grahamstown, South Africa, 6,000 miles away. A "lesser black-backed gull," ringed at the Farne Islands, off Northumberland, was found eight months later at St. Louis, Senegal, and a blackbird, ringed at London, was found in Moscow a few weeks afterwards. It would seem that birds are greater travelers than most of us imagine.

DOCTOR SAYS VINOL IS THE BEST TONIC

Honest Opinion Doctor Gave His Patient

Bedford, Ohio.—"I was in a pitiful condition, weak, nervous and run down so I could not do my housework. I had doctored for years and tried everything under the sun. A friend told me about Vinol. I asked my doctor about it, and he replied, 'It certainly is the best medicine that can be had today. I couldn't give you any better.' I took it, and today I am as well and strong as any woman could wish to be, and it was Vinol that saved me."—Mrs. Frank A. Horkey, Ash St., Bedford, Ohio.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"Glory be!" Dennis started.

"You rang the bell another time, too, without being wise to it yourself." McCarty's eyes twinkled. "When I had it in my mind to locate that Pico, you spoke of him as having a face like a clown, and it come to me that was just what he was. The rest was easy.

"Whether he got thinking it over after he gave the girl's address to Flying Dan, and being afraid of the consequences warned her, or whether she got a glimpse of the fellow hanging around that night, and knew her time had come we can never be sure, but there is one thing certain. Pico was uneasy and stalling about himself to see what would happen. He saw all right, and all that he could do was to help nic carry her in. No wonder he said that her blood was on him!"

"There's a point or two yet that's not clear in my mind," Dennis remarked after a pause. "Who was the 'Jack' that sent her the roses?"

"Oh, he was a poor nut of an actor the Foxes had introduced her to, who went dippy about her, and she'd strung him along just like she did with all the others. He thought he was going to follow her out west and they'd be married when the circus shut down for the winter. She must have had a way with her, that girl!"

"A way that landed her a crumpled heap on the sidewalk!" Dennis shook his head. "We know when we are well off, Mac, giving them a wide berth. Good to look at, they may be, and useful to sew on buttons and such but there's only trouble connected with them getting them and getting rid of them!"

"True for you," McCarty responded slowly. "Murder is wrong anyway you look at it, there's no denying that but I don't mind admitting between ourselves that I'm not any too happy about running Dan Accolini down."

"If ever a heartless little wretch cumbered the face of the earth, 'twas that same Ivy Collins and it might have been Providence that removed her so she could ruin no more fine, strong men! 'Twas no aneurism that broke in the breast of Flyin' Dan and killed him, but a real broken heart, and broke by a worthless little devil that is better dead. I'm sorry for poor Dan!"

"Me, too" affirmed Dennis. "'Tis another kind of a woman entirely that Tony Leonard picked for himself."

"She is that!" agreed McCarty with gusto. "A fine young girl with no nonsense about her, and caring for him straight. She would have been happy with him in black poverty, if need be, but there was a little left of her fortune you know, and they have put it in an invention of his that's going to coin enough cash to make what Quimby lost for them look like a bum jitney. That change of clothes certainly changed the luck for the two of those girls, didn't it?"

"What became of the other hatpin? There were marks of two in the girl's hat when you picked her up—remember?—but only one was found."

"Mrs. Foxe picked it up back of the bureau in that bedroom when she cleaned long afterwards, and hid it, not knowing what to think. That was the one great difficulty about the case. As you said once, 'twas like a picture puzzle, with so many loose bits, 'twas hard to know where to commence."

"You fit them together, though!" Dennis chuckled. "'Twas you alone that solved the whole problem, no matter what the public thinks, Mac. You'd been out of the game a long while, but by the Lord! when you did come back it was with flying colors!"

McCarty's honest face flushed but he shook his face with a sigh.

"I took a hand again just for the once because I couldn't help myself" he said. "But it's over, and I am a landed proprietor, and nothing more. I'll not deny that it felt grand to be in harness again, but not for good. The life of elegant routine has got in my bones, and the old routine would gall me now.

"To tell you the truth, though, Denny, 'twas a fine thing for me. It stirred me up and put me back on the job. I was laying down under the bullyragging of my tenants and all but letting them live off me entirely to keep out of lawsuits, and such. They had me buffaloed for fair, but now I'm taking nothing more from anybody. I'll have a grand time of it to-morrow evicting one kicker and telling another to put in a new furnace for himself, or go where he'll need none. 'Tis a good life, Denny, and I'm satisfied with it."

"Until the next big case comes along and Terhune falls down," suggested Dennis slyly.

"No, I am through. And he'll not fall down, don't think it. He'll use his head as well as his machines and win out, all right. The wit to put two and two together, the will to see all sides of a problem, the wish to get straight at the truth, no matter what would lead you off in other directions, and the wisdom God gave you. Common sense, Denny. That's my science."

SOME FAMOUS BATTLE CRIES

"Marmalade Forever," Peculiar Slogan Which Scotch Regiment Originated During Charge.

"Marmalade forever!" This quaint battle cry originated from a certain Scotch regiment during a charge in the present war, says London Answers. "Stand, the Camerons!" is the roar of another regiment of the "kilties," and serves to corroborate the fact that as official reports have it, "the spirit of our troops is excellent."

Among others there is the gallant cry of "Stick it, Welsh!" uttered by the late Captain Haggard, which has been an inspiration to many Welsh bards. It is sad to recall that Capt. E. Langdale, whilst encouraging his men with the gallant cry of "Come on, the Leicestershires!" fell on the field. But the Leicestershires did "come on," with disastrous results to the Huns.

We must not forget, however, that famous cry of "Kamerad!" uttered by whole German regiments, which has perhaps, encouraged our men more than any other. There is an amusing tale told of one of our Tommies who, during a charge, was about to give a certain Hun a glimpse of the "great beyond," when up went Fritz's hands.

"Kamerad!" he yelled.

Tommy lowered his bayonet.

"Hang it!" he muttered. "That's the blooming word I was trying to think of when arguing with Nobby Smith!"

Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

RUSSIA, COUNTRY OF FAMINE

Peasants, Next to Orientals, Are Regarded as the Hungriest People on Face of Globe.

Next to the proletariat of India and China, the Russian peasant feels the pinch of poverty and hunger more keenly and more frequently than any other citizen on earth, the National Geographic magazine asserts.

One of the earliest famines in Russia of which there is any definite record was that of 1600, which continued for three years, with a death toll of 500,000 peasants. Cats, dogs and rats were eaten; the strong overcame the weak and in the shambles of the public markets human flesh was sold. Multitudes of the dead were found with their mouths stuffed with straw.

Three Russian famines of comparatively recent date were among the most severe in the history of the country. They occurred in 1891, 1906 and 1911. During the ten years following the first of these periods of dearth the government allotted nearly $125,000,000 for relief work, but the sums were not judiciously expended.

The famine of 1911 extended over one-third of the area of the empire in Europe and affected more or less 30,000,000 people, while 8,000,000 were reduced to starvation. Weeds, the bark of trees and bitter bread made from acorns constituted the chief diet for the destitute. This was the most widespread and most severe famine which has befallen a European nation in modern times.

The Wolves Were Hungry

Angus McGregor and his collie dog left the Canadian Pacific Railway main line at Kamloops and went north and west for six days to get into good trapping and hunting territory for a winter's work. They made several trips before the snow came and shut them in. When winter shut down there was much cold weather and not an excessive amount of snow. The rabbits drifted north to the thicker brush, and McGregor and his dog extended their lines twenty miles further. Big snow came and the wolves found hard work to get a living, though the rabbits and partridges were fat and contented. McGregor took a lot of fur, mink, lynx, marten and fox.

One day while on the trail of a moose he saw a big black wolf looking down. The collie saw it too and dashed to the conflict. The wolf turned and fled, and when the man topped the rise he saw his dog nearly a half mile away still fiercely pursuing the wolf which had just entered the mouth of a steeply sloped draw. Half way up the draw the wolf stopped, and down from either flank swept two more wolves. The first brute had acted as decoy for the dog.

The collie, realizing his danger, wheeled and ran toward his master, pursued by all three of the pack. He led them by a few yards, and threw himself finally against the feet of McGregor, while the wolves, gaunt, hungry and unusually fierce came right on, and only swerved aside to circle when the man yelled. One he shot before the others fled, and a few days later, having placed out "baits", he had the satisfaction of picking up the other two big, black bodies.

Warsaw Items Of Interest

WARSAW, March 13.—Mr. and Mrs. J. O. McCarthy, Toronto, were in the village on Saturday, en route to their cottage at Stoney Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tucker and family moved to their home, south of here, on Tuesday, from Pte. David Miller's farm, where they have lived two years.

Pte. Bert Cooper moved to his farm this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Foster left on Wednesday for Reaboro, Ont., where they will spend a few weeks the guests of Mrs. McMann.

The death of F. R. Yokome came as a great shock to many in this locality, where his kindly disposition, intelligent writings and sterling character were familiar to the majority.

Do you believe in saving money? Day by day and month by month for years past we have been steadily building up a business of large dimensions in a solid bed-rock foundation of VALUES.

Our policy of value for every cent and absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded, has brought many friends of this business, and has retained them through the unsettled state of prices prevailing since 1914.

Young's Point Items Of Interest

YOUNG'S POINT, March 13.— Mr. H. J. Young of the Royal Bank of Woodstock, spent the week end at the home of his parents.

Mr. W. E. Brooks has returned home after spending the last week visiting his sister, Mrs. F. G. Young, of Peterborough.

Mr. Stephen Scott and family of Young's Point, have moved to Mr. Scott's newly purchased farm below Lakefield, known as the Dixon farm.

Hockey Team.

The Young's Point hockey team played a return game with the Lakefield High school outfit on Thursday night, March 7th at the Lakefield rink. The ice was in splendid condition and furnished a good surface for hockey. The Lakefield team were successful by a score of 7-3. The Young's Point team played a good game, but showed lack of practice and practically no passing whatever.

Mr. Matt Young was in Lakefield on Saturday.

Mr. Stephen Dunk has begun operations on his farm north of Young's Point, lately occupied by Mr. Stephen Scott.

Mrs. Robert Chalton spent the week end in the village.

Mr. Wilbert McNaughton spent Saturday in Lakefield.

Mr. Jack Johnston has gone on a business trp to Apsley this week for the purpose of purchasing some lumber limits.

Mr. Thomas Northey of Mount Julian has purchased the farm recently occupied by Mr. Melville Miller, a couple of miles north of Young's Point. Mr. Miller expects to move into the village in the near future.

Mr. P. J. Young left this morning to spend a few days visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. Edward Young spent Saturday in Peterborough on business.

Messrs. Robert Dever and "Dad" Pammett have returned to Young's Point after spending the winter months in the north country.

Discoveries in Palestine.

The discoveries which the British and Indian troops are making in Palestine of old churches and their sacred dust have reminded one of the soldiers of Sir Henry Layard's description of the excavators at Nimroud. When the first of the enormous figures began to appear above the earth Arabs raced to him—"Hasten, O Bey, for they have found Nimroud himself. Wallah, it is wonderful; we have seen it with our eyes. There is no God but God!" And they hied them in terror to their tents. The Anzacs were filled with different emotions, for like all the forces their ranks are furnished with highly educated as well as men of the old type of privates.

Cruel Words.

"But can't you give me any encouragement at all?" asked the rejected suitor.

"I'm afraid not," replied the heartless beauty. "However, I don't mind telling you that I have refused one or two men who pleased me even less than you do. If you can get any comfort out of that, you are welcome to it."

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS WITH ECZEMA.

Mrs. Link, 12 Walker Street, Halifax, N.S., states: — "After three years of miserable torture and sleepless nights with terrible eczema, and after trying over a dozen remedies without obtaining anything but slight temporary relief, I have been perfectly and entirely cured by using Dr Chase's Ointment. After the third of fourth application of this grand Ointment I obtained relief and a few boxes were sufficient to make a thorough cure.

You Can't Brush Or Wash Out Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completey dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky, and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Another aviator occupying a seat in the machine with Macnaughton, the name of whom was withheld by the Government authorities, was uninjured.

ACTRESS GIVES RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR

A Well Known Actress Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Simple Home Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams, the well known American actress, who was recently playing at the Imperial Theatre in St. Louis, Mo., made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will braken gray streaked or faded will darken gray, streaked or faded To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound, and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or any druggist can put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. It does not colour the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Mr. John Fennell, residing on the Belmont Road, near Norwood, passed away at his home on Feb. 23, in his 53rd year. He was well known around here, having conducted a market garden for many years.

Pte. Stuart Brinkman of town, who was recently admitted into King George Hospital, London, suffering from a fracture of two bones in the leg, below the knee, caused by an accident, is doing very well, according to a letter received last week from the Canadian representative of the Red Cross Society at that hospital.

Flight Lieut. Stan. Holcombe, instructor at Fort Worth, met with an accident recently at the aviation grounds there, when he broke his ankle and injured one of his eyes very badly. He was taking a machine up to test it, and was accompanied by a mechanic. When only about 300 feet in the air he encountered an "air pocket," which resulted in a spinning nose drive to the ground. The mechanic was unconscious for two days, but uninjured. It was at first thought that Lieut. Holcombe would lose the eye, but it was found to be all right later. Lieut. Holcombe is expected to arrive in Havelock, his home, in a few weeks.

Mrs. Ronald McKee of Peterborough, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Sawyer.

Mrs. J. W. Bryans has returned from Ottawa, where she spent the past four weeks with her daughter, Mrs. T. W. Quinn.

Mrs. Rose has gone to Kingston to join her husband, Pte. W. J. Rose of the pay office staff there.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church met on Friday last in the Sunday school room at 3 o'clock in the afternoon for their regular monthly meeting.

The regular February meeting of the Belmont and Methuen Council was held in the Armstrong House on the 23rd ult., all the members being present. The regular monthly business was transacted and the accounts ordered to be paid.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take one tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

TROUBLED FOR YEARS WITH BRONCHITIS

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup GAVE INSTANT RELIEF

Bronchitis is a disease which is very prevalent during the late winter and early spring, when there are sudden atmospheric changes. It is a condition of inflammation of the bronchial tubes which produces mucous or phlegm. This irritates the throat and causes you to cough in order to get rid of it. The cough may be tight or loose according as to whether this mucous is sticky and hard to remove, or soft and easily expelled.

Bronchitis is not really dangerous but the complications which are liable to follow makes it necessary to get rid of it at the first sign. This you can do by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A remedy that has been on the market for over 25 years.

John D. McFarlane, Jr., S.W. Margaree, N.S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist, and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. It is the best remedy for bronchitis I know and I now take care that I always have a bottle of it on hand."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's". Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A NEW ACQUAINTANCE

CHAPTER XV.

About five o'clock the following afternoon Annie announced callers. I was delighted when I picked up Merton Grey's card; but the lady I did not know, never heard of. A Mrs. Kurts H. Reeve.

I hurried down to the drawing room.

"Mrs. Howard, I took the liberty of bringing one of my friends with me, Mrs. Reeve,—Mrs. Howard, I think you are going to be great friends. Mrs. Reeve is also a bride, and I judge you are about an age. She is a stranger in town also. If both of you don't give me a vote of thanks for bringing you together, I'm mistaken."

"So am I! and I shall be ahead of time and thank you right now," Mrs. Reeve said, as we shook hands.

"I too!" I added. "I have so longed to know some young people." My husband isn't old, but his friends are all older than I am, and I shall be delighted to have a friend of my own age."

Then I ordered tea, and we spent a gay half hour together.

After they had gone I went into the kitchen to speak to Mary.

"Shure it warmed me old heart to hear you laugh so hearty," she said to me. "It was the foine young lady that come to see you."

"Oh, she's an old married woman just like me!"

"Maybe she's married, but she's young, and you ain't nothin' but a child yourself. You two can play together."

GEORGE IS INDIFFERENT.

I could scarcely wait for George to come home to tell him of my new acquaintance.

"She is lovely, George; and just my age. Her husband is only 22, and she says they have such jolly times. Wasn't it nice of Mr. Gray to bring her to call?"

"The Reeves are all right. She, I believe, was an out of town girl."

"Yes, just a plain country girl just like me."

"Is dinner ready?" George asked, showing that the subject had no interest for him. I felt chilled, I had so longed to tell him, I had been so delighted that at last I knew someone whom I could feel comfortable with; someone of whom I was not afraid.

"You know, George, I have no one my own age talk to. Mrs. Loring and that crowd are so much older than I am, and"—

"I hope you will not lose what little dignity you have through her," he said but again without interest.

"I don't think I have lacked dignity so much, have I George? It has been Mrs. Loring's questions which have caused all the trouble. Why does she question me anyway? It makes you find fault with me and I hate her for it" I declared with more spirit than usual.

"Mrs. Loring is a very popular woman. I shall be very proud when you are somewhat more like her than you now are."

"Please don't take that tone with me. I don't mean to be undignified when anything that counts is at stake, but I am so young, George, I can't act like a stiff old woman. Don't you know how it is?"

"No I don't" he replied crossly. "And thank goodness there's Annie to announce dinner. I'm hungry. We'll not keep it waiting."

REPULSED.

I had cuddled up to him, and was stroking his cheek when Annie appeared in the door. He had withdrawn himself in such a manner I felt repulsed. Like a child caught doing something wrong.

"It is bad form to show your feelings before a servant," he said as I followed him to the dining room.

My eyes filled. Was I never to be allowed expression of my natural feeling for him? Was a show of affection obnoxious to him? If so, I must learn to hide my feelings, to be calm and indifferent. Just love him in my heart, and try to please him. To grow to be more like Madge Loring and her set.

How grateful I was that I had my Merton Gray. He has already proved himself a friend. And wasn't it nice in him to bring that lovely Mrs. Reeve to call on me? These things ran through my mind as I ate. George rarely talked much at the table—when at home. Once when I asked him why he didn't, he said he was thinking, and wished I would not interrupt him. So now I seldom spoke first. If he asked questions, I answered; if he introduced some topic, I talked with him about it, but I rarely tried to talk of what interested me.

"Tell me about Julia Collins," I said after he had mentioned Madge Loring's dinner. "She's very handsome in a bold way, isn't she?"

"She's very handsome. I have known her always. I like her very much. Do you object?"

"Why—no why should I" I asked nonplussed at his words and tone. "She isn't anything to you."

A dull red crept up and covered his face. He was angry. But why?

"I won't have you, a mere girl, criticise either me or my friends. Do you understand? I will not tolerate anything like that for a minute."

"Why I didn't mean anything George. I just wanted to know about her because she was your friend."

To-morrow—Enlightenment.

A BRITISH HOSPITAL SHIP IS ATTACKED

The Zeppelin Raiders Drop Bombs on Hartlepool

FIVE KILLED, NINE HURT IN ZEP. ATTACK ON HARTLEPOOL

Four Bombs Were Dropped on English Port in Last Night's Raid, Demolishing Six Dwelling Houses---British Bring Back Prisoners From a Raid at Epehy and Repulse German Attack in Ypres Sector--Artillery Activity is Increasing.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 14. — In last night's air raid one Zeppelin crossed the coast and dropped four bombs on Hartlepool. Six dwelling houses were demolished there and thirty damaged. Five persons were killed and nine injured. Last night's air raid was the second made in two days over England by Zeppelins, which previously had not been employed in these attacks for several months. Hartlepool, attacked last night, is a North Sea port of some 65,000 inhabitants, in northern England.

The following official statement was issued: "Only one airship crossed the coast last night. It dropped four bombs on Hartlepool. The raider, which was operating at a great altitude, only remained over the land a few minutes, and the remainder of its bombs appear to have fallen into the sea. Six dwelling houses were demolished and about thirty damaged. The latest police reports state that the following casualties occurred: Killed—one man, one woman, and three children. Injured—three men, one woman, and five children."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 14. — British raiders brought back prisoners from a German position near Epehy, south-west of Cambrai, last night. An official statement from the War Office to-day also reports the repulse of a German raid in the Ypres sector. The artillery was active on both sides during the night south-west of Cambrai. The hostile artillery increased its activity in the Neuve Chapelle and Fauquissart sectors.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 14. — Two British seaplanes on Tuesday engaged five enemy aircraft over the North Sea, destroying one seaplane and downing another, it is announced officially. Both British planes returned.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, March 14.—Some sections of the German press are becoming uneasy over the developments in the Far East. The Frankfurter Zeitung considers that the breaking up of Russia into a number of independent States is bad policy for Germany, and urges that the greatest tact and prudence be used in dealing with the border States so that they will not in future sigh for re-union with Russia and become so many thorns in Germany's side. The newspaper adds: "Clearly the Entente policy is to use the Japan alliance to shove Germany out of the Asiatic markets for ever. Germany played their game by breaking up Russia." Capt. Von. Salzmann, military critic of the Vossische Zeitung, writes: "Germany's Russian policy has played the game brilliantly for Great Britain and the United States. In the same way Germany has increased Holland's debt of gratitude to Great Britain."

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson).

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 14.—The American troops are "ready to attack anything."

"The spirit of the command is excellent," the Commander in the Luneville sector to-day declared. "It couldn't be better. After their experience in the trenches, their nervousness has passed."

Crack German fighting divisions are opposed to the Americans in this sector, including dismounted Uhlans, it has now been established. One salient bombarded preparatory to Saturday's raid has now been abandoned by the enemy. It was so demolished that it is untenable. The Boches apparently intend merely to hold the positions in the rear of this point.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 14.—Leon Trotsky, former Bolshevik Prime Minister, is talking of the organization of an army "under iron discipline" to fight the Germans, evidently believing that a renewal of war against Germany is unavoidable. This was the report Ambassador Francis at Vologda sent to the State Department overnight. He said Trotsky was reported to be very curious over the Siberian situation, and very sensitive over the report that any of the Allies contemplated entering Siberia.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 14.—General Dumbadz, commending officer of the Vladivostok, has committed suicide, says a Reuter despatch from Petrograd.

LITTLE HOPE THAT MISSING 93RD MAN IS ALIVE

Pte. Robert Micks, Formerly of the Machine Gun Section of Peterborough Battalion Was One of the Five Men Who Captured Source Farm at Passchendaele

WAS EXCELLENT SOLDIER

Little hope that Pte. Robert Micks, formerly of the machine gun section of the 93rd Battalion, who was reported missing after the Battle of Passchendeale, is alive, is held out in a letter received by his sister, Mrs. Fair, of Port Hope.

Pte. Micks enlisted here early in the autumn of 1915, with Lieut.-Col. Johnston's battalion, and became a member of the machine gun section, as soon as it was formed. He had many friends in Peterboro.

The letter received by Mrs. Fair is as follows:

February 11, 1918.

My Dear Mrs. Fair: Your letter of Jan. 17th duly to hand.

I am afraid that I cannot hold out any hope that your brother Robert is still living. He was my batman, and was with me at Passchendaele where he was one of the very few who got to our final objective.

Through that engagement he behaved with the utmost courage and valor, and was one of the five who captured Source Farm. On the way over to the capture of this place a shell landed near him and partially buried him. When we got him out he still persisted and went forward, with the result, as I have already stated, that he had the honor of being one of the five who captured Source Farm. As he was feeling the effect of the concussion of the shell which had partly buried him I sent him back with a party of prisoners. That was the last that I ever saw of him.

I have now not the slightest doubt that he was killed by a shell on his way to the rear. Knowing him as I did I know that if living he would have got back all right. As usual all the battle ground was thoroughly searched but we were unable to find any trace of Robert's body. Although that may seem hard to you, to me, as a soldier, it is a comfort, as it means that God called him suddenly and painlessly.

I assure you that I, who have seen so much pain and suffering on a battlefield, envy the ones who leave us painlessly. Robert was with me almost from the time that he first joined the 5th C. M. R. He did excellent work on the Somme, at Vimy Hill 70, and at Passchendaele. He was a man in whom I had perfect confidence and respect, and I can assure you that no officer had a better man than I had in him.

I have been hoping against hope that Robert had been spared and that I should hear of him, but I am firmly convinced that what I have told you is the way that he passed out of life. I feel honored in having known him and you should feel proud of having such a brother. It may seem hard to have him taken away in the flush of his youth but he was fighting as the Crusaders of old for a great principle. Don't count his life wasted, but consider it a gift to the Lord in order to carry out the regeneration of the world.

You and yours have my sincere sympathy in this your great bereavement and I assure you that anything I can do for you in the future, I will be glad to do. I remain,

Sincerely,
Lt. A. W. Logie,

P. S.—Should you wish to write me again about anything, address, Lt. A. W. Logie, 5th C.M.R., B.E.F., France.

ACTIVITY INCREASING

Battle Planes Fill the Air Along the Western Front While the Artillery Fighting is Becoming More and More Pronounced

BRITISH AIRMEN BUSY

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Wm. Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, March 14.— Battle planes fill the air along the west front. Artillerying has become more and more pronounced, especially in the regions of Passchendaele and St. Quentin. Sausage balloons are up everywhere, with observation officers swaying beneath, minutely watching the opposition lines.

Wherever one goes, the impression is gained of a full head of steam on the huge war machine, hissing at every joint. The entire front is in a state of feverishness.

The wonderful spring-like weather is speeding up the work in all departments.

Signs are not lacking of intense activity by the enemy, whose forces are constantly growing.

The airmen on both sides are busy night and day, the British bombing military works along the German lines, the latter hovering over Paris and open towns, murdering women and children.

The British brought down 78 enemy planes during the first ten days in March. Aerodromes, barracks, railway stations, transport columns and marching troops have been bombed.

As an example of the airmen's daily job, one dived towards a running enemy train, derailing three cars with bombs. The engine was uncoupled and raced northward. The plane followed, closed to the ground, raking the engine crew with its machine gun.

A careful compilation shows that the British have dropped ten bombs to the enemy's one in the zone of operations.

A Warm Tribute To Mr. Yokome

Rev. Canon Davidson Referred to the Great Work Done by the Deceased

A splendid tribute was paid to the late F. R. Yokome by Rev. Canon Davidson during the funeral service in St. John's Church, yesterday afternoon. Canon Davidson, for many years a close, personal friend of the deceased, came down from Toronto, where he was undergoing treatment at the Convalescent Hospital, to conduct the service in which he was assisted by Rev. R. B. Grobb of All Saints' Church.

Canon Davidson referred to the services rendered by Mr. Yokome in the interests of a more beautiful Peterborough and of the great work he had done in inculcating a spirit of patriotism into the people of the community. He was a great lover of Canada and a staunch Imperialist, and his writings had done much for the country. While in a sense personally unknown to many in the city his work had had an effect on all. He had loved nature—the trees and birds and flowers, and this nature love was reflected in his work, and had helped to make Peterborough a better place in which to live.

Canon Davidson also conducted the services at Little Lake Cemetery.

A large number of prominent citizens attended the service in St. John's Church.

Unsuccessful Attack Made Upon British Hospital Ship

Two Torpedoes Fired at Guildford Castle, Homeward Bound, Flying the Red Cross Flags and With All the Hospital Lights On—One Struck the Vessel.

MADE PORT ALL RIGHT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 14.—A British official statement says: The British hospital ship Guilford Castle, homeward bound, was unsuccessfully attacked by an enemy submarine at the entrance to Bristol Channel on March 10. She was flying Red Cross flags and had all her hospital lights on.

Two torpedoes were fired at the Guilford Castle, the first missing and the second hitting the vessel's bow.

Although badly damaged she was able to reach port.

There were many sick and wounded on board who were transferred to hospital.

This is the second submarine attack on British hospital ships recently.

A fortnight ago the Glenart Castle was sunk in Bristol Channel, about 150 lives being lost.

The sinking, an official announcement said, was a violation of the German pledge as to immunity of hospital ships in that area.

The Guilford Castle is a steamship of 3,036 tons gross.

Bristol Channel, in which the attack was made, is an arm of the Atlantic extending into the southwestern part of Great Britain between Wales and England.

PAN SOVIET WILL RATIFY PEACE TERMS

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shapiro).

PETROGRAD, March 14. — The ratification of the German-dictated peace, with immediate preparations for a revolutionary war included, is a foregone conclusion when the Pan-Soviet convenes at Moscow to-morrow, in view of the compromise effected by the various factions.

The Congress also will decide on a permanent change of the capital from Petrograd.

About 3,000 delegates, including workmen, peasants, soldiers and Cossacks, will attend.

DUTCH SHIPS IN ALLIED PORTS ARE TO BE TAKEN OVER

Will Be Used by the Allies, Affording One Million Tons of Shipping —Rights of the Owners to Be Safeguarded

WILL INSURE SHIPS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 14.—Because of long delays in the negotiations with Holland over Dutch ships in Allied ports and the slowness of the Dutch Government to act in this respect, Great Britain and the United States have reached an agreement to end the negotiations and take over all such ships next week for the use of the Allies.

Every precaution will be taken to safeguard the rights of the owners. The ships will be insured and armed and any ships sunk will be replaced at the earliest possible time after the war.

The amount of tonnage made available to the Allies through the Dutch arrangement is one million tons of which 70 per cent. is in the United States.

A similar arrangement already made in the case of Sweden is working satisfactorily to the Swedish owners and shipping interests.

The Allied decision finds legal basis in Lex Ahgaria, or law covering forcible seizure of ships for public use under which a belligerent nation may use neutral tonnage if adequate compensation is paid.

The Germans exercised this right on British vessels in the Franco-Prussian war.

SHAMROCK TAG DAY

St. Peter's Ladies' Aid intend holding their annual Tag Day on Saturday, 16th March, 1918, in behalf of the orphanage at St. Vincent's Home. We hope and feel assured those who contributed so handsomely in the past will kindly remember them this year also. As they have to depend almost on voluntary offerings, and there are at present in the home over forty orphans, I'm sure you will feel recompensed when you know those children pray daily for their benefactors.

HEAR ADDRESSES ON PRODUCTION AT THE GRAND THEATRE

Citizens Urged to Attend To-morrow Night's Meeting at the Opera House—Board of Trade Heads Production Campaign

RESPONSIBILITY ON PEOPLE

To-morrow night's GREATER PRODUCTION meeting in the Grand Opera House deserves a full house. The stage will be bare of chorus beauties, and only an impelling sense of national duty, a readiness to co-operate in the movement to help meet the world's demand for foodstuffs, and a desire to serve will attract the citizens who are looking forward to summer as a time of opportunity.

This meeting has been arranged by the Board of Trade, and President J. J. Turner and his business men assistants require the further aid of the people to achieve the fullest measure of success.

The speakers will be Dr. Riddell and Mr. McCready of Toronto, and Mr. Frank Yeigh, who will deliver a short address. There will be several musical numbers, but the meeting is not intended to entertain but to inspire and instruct all those who desire to help in this year's production of food.

Hence, citizens, both men and women, should make a special effort to attend this meeting. If you are FOR greater production you should be there.

Bank Sale Arrangements Completed

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MONTREAL, March 14.—Arrangements have been completed, for the purchase of the Northern Crown Bank of Canada. The purchase price will be approximately $200 per share, and will be paid part in Royal Bank of Canada stock and part in cash. The Minister of Finance has officially given his consent to sell it it is announced.

NO ACTION AGAINST REV. BEN H. SPENCE

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., March 14.—Apparently the Government will let Rev. Ben. Spence of Toronto off "on suspended sentence." The mission of the Dominion Alliance Secretary to the capital yesterday was unproductive of any sympathetic response for his plea to have the ban lifted from his reprint of Arthur Mee's prohibited "Parasite" with additions from the Piddlers. The copies already printed will be interned. As for exacting the penalty of the law against Mr. Spence for defying the censor's order, the Government, however, is not likely to proceed any further, although the subcommittee of the Cabinet on censorship has not yet finally adjudicated in the case.

Grand Duke Has Been Sent To Perm

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 14.—The Grand Duke Michael, arrested in connection with an alleged German-inspired plot to restore the Monarchy and place him on the Throne, has been exiled and sent to Perm, it was announced to-day.

(Perm is the capital of the province of that name. It is about 700 miles east of Moscow, near the Siberian border).

Vandals are raiding the Government Offices, stealing valuable furniture and paintings, and carting them home or selling them on the street corners for a few rubles.

Sailors are carrying off wagon loads of art treasures, loading them on ships and taking them to Kronstadt.

The Government is so occupied with peace and the Siberian situation that it is unable to impose restraint on this looting.

THE LATE F. R. YOKOME.

Another veteran newspaper-maker, Mr. F. R. Yokome, editor of The Peterborough Examiner, is dead. As editorial writer and Parliamentary correspondent, he performed his duties with singular tact and judgment. Modest almost to the point of self-effacement, he left to others the scramble for personal preferment. In horticulture he found perpetual inspiration for both brain and hand. Much of his enthusiasm he imparted to others through his writings on the subject. Countless garden places bloom in his memory. He thus left his impress not only upon his own home town, but also upon other communities to which his influence extended. He did something to bring the City Beautiful appreciably nearer.—Toronto News.

REBUILDING VIMY.

The Secours National, which works hand in hand with the French Red Cross, has accepted gratefully the responsibility of creating a new Vimy on the sight of the present ruins. There are two splendid sides to this work. The first is that it gives Canada an opportunity to erect a noble and permanent memorial to the gallant soldiers who made history in this section of the fighting lines. Everyone who has had a friend or relative in the engagements that filled our newspapers last April will be proud to assist in the rebuilding of Vimy.

But the humanitarian aspect is even more appealing, for it must be obvious that the refugees from the town of Vimy are as destitute as it is possible for a people to be. It is not an exaggeration to say that Vimy herself is prostrate, exhausted and sorely stricken, but only needs a little material assistance to demonstrate the unconquerable spirit that is France and Freedom as the world has come to know it.

Ontario will perform this new duty with sympathetic intelligence and the labour of love will make permanent an appealing memorial such as the heroes who have died might have desired were any monument to be erected to them.

MERITED PRAISE.

Mayor Duncan expressed the satisfaction of the public in his brief but generous praise of Sanitary Inspector Stapleton's work, at the Council meeting on Monday night. Mr. Stapleton has proved himself an industrious, painstaking, thoughtful official. With his unfailing courtesy, there has been no friction generated in the performance of his duties, and this is the more notable from the aggressiveness with which he has pursued his work into its last detail. He regularly visits the restaurants, and it is safe to say that had he the power, he would order the immediate removal of the curtained stalls, which are just as conspicuous in a restaurant as they would be in a hotel. The general public neither seeks nor desires privacy in an eating house, and if cubicles are to be provided for a few patrons, why leave others out in the glaring open places? Mr. C. A. G. Spence in his regime as Sanitary Inspector, was strongly opposed to the stalls in restaurants.

In this and other questions, Ald. Saunders might be well advised to obtain from Mr. Stapleton a monthly summary of his activities. The publication of such a review, if in the least interesting, would keep the public acquainted with the Health Department's problems; and worthy causes and movements muster force in publicity.

A passing commendation of Mr. Stapleton's services requires an appreciation of the assistance he receives from Relief Officer Miller. They have a common office; they work in complete harmony; and the recent advances in salary granted them will be cordially endorsed by every ratepayer who knows the extent and efficiency of their work.

THE RELIEF FUND AGAIN.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Your paragraph in Wednesday's issue of the paper, headed "Relief Fund" is so palpably unfair in that it does not state the facts that I may vary from the general wish of the Committee not to discuss affairs of a semi-private nature concerning people and circumstances in public. You would have it understood that the benefits of the Relief Fund are withheld from deserving cases of men returned from service. Why, as I have told you time and again, not come and ascertain the facts. Such are always ready and conclusive.

There has been, and are, many cases where a man returned from service and discharged, without or with pension, finds a recurrence of the ailment that necessitated his leaving the service. Such cases have been, from time to time, taken up by the Committee, brought to the attention of the proper authorities, the man being re-attested and placed on pay and allowances. That is the proper course to pursue. Then at once the dependents are replaced on the Patriotic Fund list, where they properly belong, and paid from the Fund proper, instead of from the Relief Fund. That course was pursued for eighteen months before the War Veterans' Association was formed, and will be continued. Of men so situated are Ptes. Loader, W. H., Leonard Clarke, James Foster, and others, all of whom are now taking treatment. All of this work is handled by the Patriotic Fund office cheerfully and willingly.

Then we have cases that come in between. And for reasons these are benefitted from the Relief Fund, Pte. Coppock, Pte. Phipps, and others are so assisted. These have ceased to draw pay and allowances, but are in view of the Relief Fund.

In the case you refer to, that of Pte. George Moore, it was at once taken up by this office. Dr. Eastwood, resident medical officer for the force, was asked to report to the Committee on the case, to be transmitted to the Hospitals Commission. Dr. Eastwood made his report, and that was at once posted to Headquarters with a strong recommendation that the man be taken back into service and given treatment. Application was also made to the military authorities to reimburse to the family any hospital expense that had been incurred. The reply was that the matter would be attended to, and the man boarded. As the case was in the hands of the military, who were expected, as they had in the past, to take action the matter rested. As nothing more was heard of the case it was assumed that the regular course would be followed.

On our committee are two members of the War Veterans. They concurred in the action taken, and I understand followed it up, as would be quite regular. But no further reference was made to the case or family in the interval. Those are the facts, as you might have ascertained on enquiry. But you prefered not to do so. There are other cases, connected with the families of men returned from service, which are taken care of from the Relief Fund, but all cases that can be properly transferred to the care of the Patriotic Fund are so treated. Otherwise there would be a draft on the local fund that it should not bear.

The committee are, as far as reasonably possible, conserving that fund for use after the war. We shall have men home, possibly, unable to find work. There will be ample to do with it then. It is a satisfaction to know that the money is available without asking for subscriptions or grants, and wisely used it will be of great assistance.

In your anxiety to make a point against the Committee you have ignored a statement of the facts which I now make, and urge you to, in the future, ascertain the facts. And if you do, and accept the facts you will find no reasonable ground for complaint.

Respectfully,
F. H. DOBBIN,
Secretary.

The Examiner did not publish the article complained of by Mr. Dobbin because it was anxious to make a point against the Committee as he intimates. It was intended as a suggestion that might be carried out in this and similar cases. As for the facts in the matter referred to Mr. Dobbin's letter throws no new light on the case. He says that application was made to have Pte. Moore re-attested and placed on pay and allowances. That, of course, was a proper step, but no one knows better than Mr. Dobbin that this procedure sometimes takes considerable time, and that even after a man is re-attested there is often a considerable wait before he receives any military pay. The facts remain that Pte. Moore and his family have been in destitute circumstances for some time, and have had to be looked after by the War Veterans, and that at the same time there is an adequate Relief Fund subscribed by citizens to meet cases of distress arising out of the war which might afford assistance until the man is re-attested.

Conserving the fund for cases that come up after the war should not be allowed to interfere with helping a worthy case that comes up before that time.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Capt. Archie Roosevelt, son of the famous T. R., has been wounded in France. No safely first jobs for the sons of the great ex-President.

The statement of a Toronto officer that there was not a Royal Flying Corps squadron at the front without some Canadians in it, shows how strongly the air service has appealed to Canada's young men.

Fifteen "workless" days in all non-essential industries in the United States to release men for the farm planting is being advocated. The men who are selected for this duty will be rather inclined to think that "workless" days is a misnomer.

INCREASE GRANTED

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, March 14.— A fifteen per cent. increase in rates was granted by the Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day to the Canadian railways running into the United States. The systems are the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk, Pere Marquette and Wabash. The Canadian Railway Commission recently granted a fifteen per cent. increase to Canadian roads.

GATES CAPTURED A FARMER'S DOG

A farmer named Bothwell of Springville contributed one dollar to the Gates' collection yesterday. He drove into town on business and his dog trailed the cutter right across Mr. Gates' path. The dog catcher makes no distinction among canines. They all look alike to him. In short order he had captured the unsuspecting visitor from the townships and held him until the owner had paid one dollar into the city's treasury, seventy-five cents of which was Mr. Gates' share.

Robert Powell was fined $4.60 for permitting his dog to run at large. A similar charge against David Hamilton of Park street was enlarged for ten days. This dog bit a man and is held for examination.

Dr. Johnston reported to the police yesterday that he had seen a straw colored mongrel near R. C. Braund's store, showing symptoms of rabies.

FUNERAL OF MR. J. J. LUNDY

The funeral of the late John James Lundy, who died on Monday night at the family residence, took place this afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery, under Masonic auspices. A service which was attended by a very large number of the bereaved friends and relatives, was conducted at the home, Verulam House, Burnham street, by Rev. Mr. Rowand.

The pallbearers were Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, Henderson Nesbitt, W. G. Morrow, A. Stevenson, E. A. Peck and H. C. Winch.

Mr. H. B. Cowan Is In The West

Plans for Increasing Agricultural Production Discussed at a Conference in Regina.

REGINA, Sask., March 13. — The Ontario delegation to the three-day conference of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, opening here, arrived in Regina Tuesday night. The delegation consists of J. J. Morrison, Toronto, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario; I. N. Kernighan, Goderich; and H. B. Cowan, Peterborough. Representatives will attend from all four Western Provinces, in addition to Ontario, and a co-operative plan for increasing agricultural production will be adopted.

At the termination of the conference on food production another conference will be held with the Council of Agriculture and Commerce, at which banks and railway corporations will be represented as well as the agricultural interests of the Provinces.

Armenians Opposing The Turks

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 14.— The Armenians are offering resistance to Turkish troops, according to an official Turkish announcement received here today. In Palestine attempts of the British to advance on March 9 and 10 are said to have been repulsed. An effort to break through the line of the Jerusalem-Mapulus Road failed, the statement said.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

TO BE A GOOD LISTENER TO MUSIC YOU NEED IMAGINATION.

The writer remembers seeing somewhere that "legitimate music appeals to human feeling. It makes the mind dreamy and imaginative." In one sense that is correct. In another way it is preferable to go to a musical concert with an imagination, tuned, regulated and ready for instant use, rather than wait for it to be aroused by the music as the programme proceeds. It may be something like the old question, "which was the first, the hen or the egg?" But it would seem that the imagination adds to the enjoyment of the music, rather than the enjoyable music awakening the imagination.

Listening to the Toronto Symphony Orchestra this season, the writer's interest in their rendering of Grieg's "Solveig's Song" was considerably added to by knowing the story and how Solveig, the peasant girl, now a blind old woman, sings a symbolism of sunshine and hope, believing that the lover of her youth will yet return and find her waiting for him.

The same imagination sees in the stirring march theme in the third movement of Tschaikowski's "Pathetic" Symphony, "a Tartar horde galloping madly along the steppes, the sun glinting on its arms, full of the primitive joy of life." And that imaginary vision helps wonderfully in enjoying that great symphony.

It does not follow that an imagination of the type given us in Oliver Wendell Holmes "The Poet at the Breakfast Table" is to be encouraged, beyond the desire for humour. You remember this quotation: "I don't like your chopped music anyway. That woman—she had more sense in her little finger than forty medical societies—Florence Nightingale — says that music you pour out is good for sick folks, and the music you pound out, isn't.

"I've been to hear some music-pounding. It was a young woman, with as many white muslin flounces round her as the planet Saturn has rings, that did it. She gave the music-stool a twirl or two and fluffed down onto it like a whirl of soapsuds in a hand basin. Then she pushed up her cuffs as if she was going to fight for the champion's belt. Then she worked her wrists and her hands, to limber 'em, I suppose, and spread out her fingers until they looked as though they would pretty much cover the keyboard, from the growling end to the little squeaky one.

"Then those hands of hers made a jump at the keys as if they were a couple of tigers coming down on a flock of black and white sheep, and the piano gave a great howl as if its tail had been trod on. Dead stop—so still you could hear your hair growing. Then another jump, and another howl as if the piano had two tails trod on both of 'em at once, and then a great clatter and scramble and strings of jumps, up and down, back and forward, one hand over the other like a stampede of rats and mice more than anything I call music.

"I like to hear a woman sing, and I like to hear a fiddle sing; but these noises they hammer out in their wood and ivory anvils—dont talk to me!"

And yet, those who have to do with the giving of concerts and recitals, at least some of them, would do well to note this criticism, for it shows what does not satisfy those who attend with an imagination ready to be exercised.

DEAF MUTE LISTENS TO JOSEF HOFMAN'S CONCERT, THOUGH NOT WITH HIS EARS.

When one hears of the steps that people less fortunate than the large majority of us take to acquire for themselves those pleasures and enjoyments which to us are entirely free and natural, one gets an appreciation of the gifts which are ours for the taking. Some time ago, at a theatre in Seattle, Josef Hofmann, the pianist, gave a recital. About six feet away from him, right on the stage, sat a boy intently listening to the vibrating chords of the instrument. There was nothing strange in that; the music was enough to warrant the attention of anybody. The wonder, however, is the fact that instead of hearing the music through the vibrations of the sound waves beating upon his ear drum, this boy heard it through the stimulus that the vibrations made upon the nerve centres of his feet. He was a deaf mute. He had come to hear the great musician perform and had been allowed by special permission to sit on the stage with his shoes removed so that he might hear the music. The boy had been studying music for a long time, and had been making a special study of Rachmaninoff's C sharp Prelude. That was one of the numbers on Hofmann's programme. That the boy heard, was impressed, and took note of the master's rendition was later proven by the changes he made in his own interpretation.

SOLE OF FOOT SENSITIVE TO VIBRATIONS.

The incident is strange and worthy of thought. How the boy discovered his unique method of "hearing" music is not told. Whether it was chance or logic that made him find a way is unknown. From the logical point of view, however, there seems to be something to back up the apparent strangeness of the event. The sole of the foot is known to be one of the most highly sensitive spots of the body. One may perhaps take it for granted then, that it is as greatly sensitive to sound stimulus as it is to those of touch. It is also well known that the others are unusually acute. Whether or not the peculiarity of the boy mentioned is true of all deaf mutes, science has not yet discovered. It is a question worthy of study, however, for the love and appreciation of music among those who cannot hear is one of the paradoxes of our time.

FIRST SHIPMENT OF BANANAS SINCE NOV.

Came All the Way From Central America, But Not Quite Ripe.

The first car of bananas to reach Peterborough since last November arrived this morning at W. J. Oke's wholesale storehouse. They came all the way from Santa Marta, Guatemala, and are being delivered to local dealers and to others in nearby towns. This consignment, like all others, was shipped green and is not quite ripe. Hence the fruit will be ready for immediate retailing.

Reports from California state that the weather has been rainy for two weeks and will seriously affect the orange crop. Current prices are $7.50 to $8.00 a crate.

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heel footwear they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of a drug called freezone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain. Ask the drug store man for a quarter of an ounce of freezone, which costs very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This drug is an ether compound and dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Clip this out and pin on your wife's dresser.

School Children Promise To Be Big Factor In The Home Gardening Work This Year

Re-organization of Local Committee Effected Last Night —400 Lots Were Placed With Citizens Last Year—Vegetable Production Was Heavy.

"We have had 200 applications for garden lots from one school alone, and we expect between 800 and 1,000 applications altogether," was the encouraging statement made by Public School Inspector Mowat at last night's home gardening meeting in the City Council Chamber. Accepting this announcement as an earnest of this year's work in the home production of vegetables, it is more than probable that Peterborough's gardening activities will be limited only by the number of lots available.

Another promising feature from this preliminary meeting was the statement of Mr. Sidney Whatley, secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association, that many of the members were eager to enlist in the greater production campaign. The Veterans have not decided upon any definite action yet, pending Mr. Whatley's report of last night's conference to their meeting next week.

Committee Formed.

On Mr. M. J. Maher's motion, seconded by Mr. F. W. Doan, Ald. Dobbin was appointed chairman of the organization committee, which includes the following citizens: Messrs. J. A. Aylmer, A. Mowat, J. J. Turner, M. J. Maher, J. John, F. W. Doan, Jas. Hamilton, S. Whatley, Joseph Wearing, F. Wise, Assistant City Clerk Ingram, Mayor Duncan and Misses Pearse and Rush.

At a meeting to be held next week, the committee will prepare a list of vacant lots, and their owners will be asked to place them at the disposal of the citizens' gardening army, which will presently be opened for recruits. Mr. John warmed the cockles of Ald. Dobbin's heart, and incidentally illustrated the enthusiasm behind the 1918 campaign by volunteering to interview one hundred of the listed property owners.

The committee has found an easy solution of the problem of securing a central office. Mr. Lewis H. Ingram, assistant City Clerk, has consented to act as the intermediary between the committee and the land hungry citizens. When the list of lots is compiled, he will receive at the office of the Clerk applications for them.

It will be apparent that Mayor Duncan has got this movement off to a promising start. Its success will depend largely upon the co-operation of citizens who have vacant lots.

Last Year's Success.

Ald. Dobbin asserted that there were more vegetables grown in Peterborough last year than for ten years. About 400 lots were provided for citizens, some of whom made their own arrangements with owners of available property.

Mr. Doan suggested that last year's results fight encourage many citizens to take up gardening work this year, who were non-producers last year. A lot 45 ft. by 100 ft. yielded him twenty bags of potatoes at a total cost of 50 cents a bag.

Mr. Aylmer joined the soldiers of the soil last summer, worked one half an acre, and produced $100 worth of vegetables at a cost of only $30.

Mr. Maher remarked that he not only had a fine crop of vegetables as the reward of his gardening, but also an increment of muscles that were alone worth the toil.

Mr. Glover gardened so wisely and well that if only one hoe is working this summer he will be at the handle end of it.

Work of School Children.

Replying to Miss Pearse, Mr. Mowat said that the Board of Education could not conduct school gardens. For this work specially trained teachers were required. But every assistance and encouragement will be given to individual effort by the children. Seed will be distributed and instructions for planting and care of vegetable crops, and at the local fair special prizes will be offered for the best produce.

Mr. Mowat recommended Bulletin No. 3, issued by the Department of Agriculture, as a simple guide to amateur gardeners, many of whom require direction in their work.

RECOVERY SPEEDED BY RURAL QUIET

"Back to Nature" Treatment is Better Than "Dose of White Lights" For Convalescents—Rural Sites Are Considered Best —Nearly 12,000 Patients

Since January, 1917, the military hospital population of Canada has increased approximately six-fold. At the beginning of 1917 there were slightly over 2,100 men on the strength of the Military Hospitals Commission Command, the unit to which all wounded and invalided soldiers destined for treatment in Canada are automatically transferred upon their disembarkation from hospital ship at Halifax or Quebec. To-day there are nearly 12,000 patients attached to military convalescent hospitals.

Provision of accommodation for these men has entailed a vast amount of work and the exercise of much judgment in the selection of hospital sites. Twenty-one institutions have been erected and equipped from the ground up in that time, while 45 buildings, principally schools and colleges, have been remodelled for the same purpose.

Rural Sites Best.

Schools and college buildings have proved most suitable of the existing buildings which could be taken over because so many of them are situated on spacious grounds well out in the country. The selection of sites for new hospitals has in the main followed the same principle. So long as transportation facilities, light, heat and power were available the invigorating conditions of rural life were left to be more conducive to speedy recovery than were the more congested surroundings of a big city, with its noisy traffic, smoke nuisance, and the many temptations in exciting and often unhealthy amusements.

Two Classes.

The instructing of the returned soldiers was divided by the commission into two broad classes, vocational training and vocational re-education. Vocational re-education was for the men who were so seriously injured or affected in health that they could not go back to their old occupations. It meant practically the teaching of a new trade. In quite a percentage of cases, the returned men after concluding their courses earned larger wages than before going to the war. Some of the "bed patients" were taught such things as the operating of special hand looms. Textiles they had woven had been sold in Montreal for as high as $8 a yard. The goods were sold without being marked in any way to indicate their being the output of soldiers.

Careful Choosing.

At the present time investigations are being made to ascertain just what disability a man can suffer and still carry on in a given trade. When investigation into this question has been concluded there will be no possibility of mistakes being made. To avoid error, the speaker said, the greatest care must be exercised. Not only must the man be consulted and his inclinations ascertained, but his medical history must be gone into with minute care, so that his physical and mental qualifications may be ascertained.

Mr. Segsworth prefaced his address by pointing out that the success of the endeavours being made to restore the returned soldier to civil life will have a big effect upon the industrial life of Canada. If the incapacitated men were merely thrown back into civil life to live on their pensions the country would lose their industry. This would have far-reaching effects. Their families would be brought up in an atmosphere of charity and idleness.

BEN SPENCE IN OTTAWA.

Authority Sought to Distribute "The Parasite"—Little Encouragement Given By Censor.

OTTAWA March 14. — Rev. Ben. Spence, of the Dominion Alliance is here with regard to the publication of the Canadian edition of "The Parasite," the temperance book which is under the ban. He had an interview with the chief press censor and Hon. Martin Burrell. Authority for the distribution of the book, which is under seizure, was sought, but Mr. Spence got little encouragement. The Censorship committee, consisting of Hon. Messrs. Doherty, Burrell, Carvell and Sifton, will pass on the matter.

TO PROTECT SEA CAPTAIN.

Halifax, March 14. — President MacGillivary of the Board of Trade, who recently called the attention of Sir Robert Borden to the report that Captain Allen, of the torpedoed Canadian liner Strathcona, who is a prisoner in Germany, was not being accorded the same treatment as the British sea captains similarly situated, has received a reply from the Prime Minister. Sir Robert says that he is cabling Sir George Perley, Canadian High Commissioner, to make the necessary presentations to the Imperial authorities with a view to securing improved treatment of Captain Allen.

PIANO RECITAL BY MISS AILEEN BRAUND ON FRIDAY NIGHT

The piano recital at the Conservatory of Music Hall to-morrow evening will introduce Miss Aileen Winston Braund, a talented musician whose graduation recital in Toronto was very favourably criticized by Saturday Night and Musical Canada. Miss Braund has been heard but rarely in concert recitals, and is almost a stranger to her home audiences. She will be assisted by Miss Keitha Kidd, soprano and Miss Norma Moore.

The Great Need For Rich, Red Blood

To be perfectly healthy the human body requires a constant supply of new rich blood. Nearly all the ills from which people suffer arise from one cause—poverty of the blood. If the blood is rich and strong it absorbs nourishment from the food which passes into the stomach and distributes that nourishment to the brain, nerves, muscles and every part of the body. When the blood is weak and poor in quality it cannot do its natural work of feeding brain and body—hence weakness and disease.

Headaches and backaches, loss of appetite, poor digestion, nervous irritability, pimples and unsightly blotches on the skin all indicate that the blood has become impure, that it is not doing its appointed work, and that your condition if not remedied will grow worse and worse. To bring about a perfectly healthy condition no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Their one mission is to make new, rich red blood, which reaches every part of the body bringing with it new health and increasing vitality. Thousands testify to the truth of this statement, many of whom may be found in your own neighbourhood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Clue To Murder Of Hamilton Man

Declares That Others Will Be Dealt With in a Similar Manner.

HAMILTON, Thursday, March 14.— An anonymous letter stating that the writer had killed Thomas Georgieff, whose headless body was found at the bottom of a deserted gravel pit Tuesday morning, and that there were others who would be served the same way; the fact that the murdered Bulgarian previous to his death had just been discharged from a local hospital suffering from a venereal disease which ultimately might indirectly prove to be the motive for the crime, and the finding of a pair of trousers near the scene were the outstanding features of Hamilton's latest and most brutal crime.

The letter, which was written in Bulgarian was sent to Simon Gregrra, a boarding house boss at 762 Burlington street, where the murdered man was in the habit of having his mail directed.

It was stated that the writer had killed Georgieff and that there were others who would be served in the same manner shortly.

It further stated that the dead man was no good, had never been any good, and that he had been enticed uptown by an offer to take him to Toronto for the purpose of giving him a Turkish bath. This latter inducement was supposed to have been a sure cure for Georgieff's ailment according to his friends. He had often stated that he wanted to have one.

The fact that he was suffering from a veneral disease, which was learned from a most reliable source, is significant, as it might possibly prove to be the motive for the crime. It is now stated that the victim never carried more than three or four dollars in his pockets at a time, and as this was known to his friends, the robbery theory is not substantiated. Consequently there is the possibility that he might have been responsible for others contracting a similar disease and that in revenge he was enticed to the vicinity of the gravel pit by putting him in the motor car, which was heard late last night speeding up York street, with a woman. Once there he was stunned and the body dragged down into the pit, where it was decapitated and the head taken away, in an effort to conceal his identity.

CAPTAIN CASTLE GAVE ALL TO WIFE TELLING DEEP LOVE

Aviator Used Affectionate Phrases in Will Just as He Entered Service.

NEW YORK, March 14.—In an intensely human document, full of affection for his wife, who helped him to achieve success before he entered the theatre of war, Captain Vernon Castle, late of the Royal Flying Corps, bequeaths his entire estate to Mrs. Irene Castle. Details of the will were made public yesterday.

After Captain Castle's death, on February 15, at Fort Worth, Texas, his widow, overcome with grief, went to Havana, Cuba.

The will was drawn on September 28, 1915. After stating that he was mindful of the uncertainty of life, "especially in view of the fact I am about to enlist in the English army," he bequeathed his estate to "my beloved wife, Irene Castle, to be her property absolute in fee, forever," and added:

"I make this disposition of all my estate not only as a token of my deep love and sincere affection for my said dearly beloved wife, but also in grateful recognition of the happiness which I have enjoyed in her society during all our wedded life, and the great assistance which she has during all of that time rendered to me in my professional work and career.

"In so disposing of my property I am not unmindful of my beloved parents and other kinfolk and my many friends, and it is my desire that out of my personal effects some token of my love and affection be given by my wife to each of them so far as possible, the selection to be made by her."

Quick, Safe Way To Remove Hairs

(Toilet Talks)

Keep a little delatone powder on your dressing table and when ugly, hairy growths appear, make a paste with a little of the powder and some water, apply and let remain on the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. This treatment is quite harmless and rarely more than one application is required, but to avoid disappointment care should be used to buy the real delatone.

ANNUAL MOTOR SHOW BY RED CROSS SOCIETY

April 16th, 17th, 18th Are the Dates Set—Some Special Features

At the recent meeting of the Advisory Committee of the Red Cross Society it was decided to hold the Annual Motor Show in the Armouries on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, April 16th, 17th and 18th.

To show the interest already taken in the event by automobile representatives in the city, it is a fact that all the space allotted them has already been eagerly taken up. The space for general exhibits will be so arranged as to accommodate about fifty per cent. more exhibitors. There will be plenty of good music, an interesting exhibit of war trophies by the Veterans, and other features that will decidedly add to the magnificent show of automobiles that will be made.

Music & Drama

"FOLLOW ME"

As an exhibition of gorgeous costumes and pretty girls "Follow Me," at the Grand yesterday left little to be desired, but in other respects the production was frankly a dissappointment. Much had been said in advance about the cost of the gowns worn by the ladies, and, they were there, as advertised, but the general impression of the audience was that some of the money which was devoted to costumes could have been used to much better advantage in securing some clever people for the cast. There was hardly a good voice in the company and not even the "Jazz" effects introduced by the noisy trap drummer in the orchestra could camouflage the flaws in the singing numbers. Anna Held used to have difficulty, according to her old song of "Making Her Eyes Behave"—her daughter seemed to have the same trouble with her voice in last night's offering. Beyond making a gorgeous spectacle in her costly gowns, Miss Liane Held contributed little to make the production a success. Lewis Seymour proved a clever comedian as A Knutt, the poet, and the part could be enlarged without hurting the play any. The really big hit of the night was scored by Conny Ward and Joseph Tilyou, evidently recruited from the realms of vaudeville, who contributed an eccentric dance, followed by some clever tumbling that won them several recalls. Marie Fanchonetti, as Denise, danced and sang nicely, and Leon Francoe contributed a useful bit as "Fresco, the Waiter."

BISURATED MAGNESIA

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion

Heartburn, Belching, Sour Acid Stomach, Gas in Stomach, etc., take a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia in a half glass of hot water after eating. Is safe, pleasant and harmless to use and gives almost instant relief. It neutralizes stomach acidity and sweetens the food contents so that digestion is easy and painless. Sold by druggists everywhere.

An Earnest Effort For A Worthy Cause

St. Peter's Ladies' Aid Will Hold Tag Day on Saturday—Proceeds For St. Vincent's Orphanage

The annual appeal to the public for funds to assist in supporting St. Vincent's Orphanage is one that has heretofore been responded to quite liberally, and the ladies in charge of the collection this year are very hopeful that the response on Saturday will exceed the amounts previously realized. The increased cost necessary in the upkeep of the institution makes it necessary for the raising of more funds. At the present time there are forty orphans being clothed, fed and educated at the Orphanage, and every one of them being fitted for the battle of life in a manner that will make them good men and women and consequently good citizens—a valuable asset to the community.

The orphan appeals directly to the sympathies of fathers and mothers who realize the great care necessary to properly bring up children in this age under the best of conditions, but where a child is bereft of its parents an institution such as St. Vincent's orphanage as its salvation and worthy of the support of all public-spirited and sympathetic citizens.

The Tag Day on Saturday will give you an opportunity of showing your appreciation of the grand work that is doing for the orphans by the management of St. Vincent's Orphanage.

Peterboro' Man Sentenced To Five Years

W. J. Montgomery Goes to the Kingston Penitentiary—Has a Bad Record

COBOURG, March 14.—W. J. Montgomery, the slick young man who worked for a time on the Grand Trunk in Lindsay and succeeded in passing worthless cheques on a couple of Lindsay business men, as well as making good his escape from the window of his boarding house, wherein the proprietor had locked his belongings, was tried here yesterday morning. Montgomery's home is in Peterborough, East City.

To the charge of foregry and passing bogus cheques, and for obtaining money under false pretenses he was sentenced by Magistrate G. H. Davidson to serve five years in the Kingston penitentiary on the first charge, and three years on the second, the sentences to run concurrently. He pleaded guilty to both charges.

Confederate Money Destroyed.

In the presence of the magistrate and court Montgomery tore up numerous Confederate bills, in denominations of $1, $2, $10, $20 and $100. Some Mexican money was also taken off his person.

His Past Record.

Besides operating in Lindsay, Cobourg and other places in 1911 he served a six months' term in Welland, in 1912 he did similar time at St. Catharines, and in 1913 he was sentenced to five years in Kingston by the magistrate at Hamilton, the charge having been forgery.

Operations in Cobourg.

Montgomery presented a cheque for $17.45 to Mr. Thos. Harvey, merchant and agent for the Dominion Express Co., the same being signed by Thos. H. Moore, payable to J. R. Brown and endorsed by Thos. Brown. On this he purchased goods amounting to $4.13 and secured cash for the balance. He then endeavoured to pass a cheque for $12.65 on eight different merchants without success. It was payable to Jas. R. Marsh and was signed by Geo. D. Sheldon.

Chief Ruse Got Busy.

About this time Chief Ruse got busy on the job and in short time had his man rounded up, catching him "with the goods. The chief also got in touch with Ottawa, secured his finger prints and his past record.

Montgomery was undefended, while Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr prosecuted. He was cool and collected throughout and did not show signs of worry over his sentence.

CHILEAN PRESS IS RESENTFUL

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Roy W. Howard.)

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 14.— The ultra neutral and pro-German elements of the press are suffering from brainstorm today as the result of editorials published in the United States, interpreting the Chilean election as favourable to the Allies. They declare that the intimation that Chile is susceptible to foreign influences is insulting.

This attitude is taken, notwithstanding the freely admitted activities of the German South American Institute, which is the most pernicious force in fostering German propaganda since the activities of Bernstorff in the United States.

Hastings Personals

HASTINGS, March 13.—The members of the local Chapter of the I. O. D. E. met in their rooms on Thursday afternoon for the purpose of doing up parcels to be sent overseas.

Mrs. W. Purdy and son of Huntsville, is visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. Dodd.

Mr. Charles Armstrong of Havelock spent Sunday in town.

Mr. S. J. Fisher of Campbellford was in town on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Coughlin are rejoicing over the birth of a son.

Mr. B. Dodd of Campbellford spent the week end at his home, here.

Mr. W. A. Baker was in Toronto a couple of days last week.

Miss E. Carter spent a few days of last week with Peterborough friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Boyes of Toronto have been guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thomson.

Miss M. Butler has returned from Toronto, where she attended the millinery openings.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hore of Campbellford spent Friday in town.

Mrs. L. Kelly was in Peterborough one day last week.

Mr. Jas. Wood of Hamilton, Inspector of the Ocean Accident Insurance Co., was in town on Saturday.

The many friends of Mrs. Jas. Fife will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from her recent illness.

Mrs. De La Mater is visiting at the home of her son, Dr. De La Mater.

Mrs. L. E. Gould has returned from a visit with friends at Hamilton.

Miss Hilda Wharrie of Peterborough, is visiting Miss S. Hawkins.

Dr. S. P. Ford of Norwood was in town on Tuesday.

DON'T WORRY over the bad business of yesterday. Use newspaper advertising and make it good to-morrow.

MAY BE POSTPONEMENT

But Order Dealing With Freight and Passenger Rates May Be Passed Now.

OTTAWA, March 14.—An order-in-Council was passed to-day dealing with the freight and passenger rate question. There is a possibility that there may be another postponement of the order of the Railway Commission which goes into effect on Friday, March 15, but the expectation is that the order with some modifications will be confirmed.

There will also likely be further taxation of profits to prevent the C. P.R., which does not require increased rates, from profiting abnormally.

FIFTY YEARS RAILROADING

"Bob" Harrison, after a life of over fifty years' railroading, the chief gateman at the Union Station, Toronto, tendered his resignation to Superintendent J. J. Beck, of the Union Station.

EXHIBITION OF

SPRINGTIME FASHIONS

This is the eve of the Spring Openings. To-morrow we usher in the new modes for 1918. Every Department — millinery, ready-to-wear, dress goods, wash goods, shoe, neckwear, etc., is replete with new merchandise. Truly the store has been transformed, the sombre tones of winter have given way to light, airy hues of the new season. And we ask "what could be more pleasing to milady's eye and what could more accurately portray springtime" than this assemblage of color and fashionable apparel?

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the St. John's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of the M. S. C. C., was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mar. 12th, at the home of Mrs. Abbott, 273 Hunter street, when a large number of members assembled for what proved to be an interesting session.

The reports from the committees were read and approved as were the summarized reports of the secretary, Mrs. R. J. Devey, and the treasurer, Mrs. Aylmer.

All the reports showed a steady progress; all pledges have been met, and a general bale, including an Indian girl's outfit, will be despatched to the Gordon School, Sask., next month.

The following officers were elected for the year:

Hon. Pres.: Mrs. J. C. Davidson.
Pres.: Mrs. C. Abbott.
1st Vice-Pres: Mrs. A. L. Amys.
2nd Vice-Pres.: Miss Peck.
Sec.: Mrs. R. J. Devey.
Treas.: Mrs. Aylmer.

CABINET IN ALBERTA TO BE RECONSTRUCTED

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

EDMONTON, Alta., March 14. — Cabinet reconstruction forms is the main topic of corridor gossip in the Legislature. What is considered the most logical solution, is that the Premier will resign the portfolio of Railways and Telephones, and that A. G. Mackay, former leader of Ontario Liberals, will step in.

Saucy Mitzi and a Gay Chorus Singing "Evelyn, Quit Your Devilin'," in the famous Henry W. Savage Comic Opera "Pom Pom," Grand Opera House, Tuesday Evening, March 19. Mail orders now being booked. Box office opens Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

THOUSAND TONS OF COAL CONSUMED AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE

Lieutenant Governor's Residence in Toronto Consumes a Lot of Fuel

Toronto, March 14. — The Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature completed a good and harmonious day's work at the Parliament Buildings yesterday with a majority Liberal representation.

The principal item of business was the much discussed Government House, and its maintenance. Mr. R. Fairbairn, the Deputy Minister of Public Works, in answer to a member of the committee as to the cost of maintenance last year, replied that it was $28,559.28 as against $15,000 for 1914. During the year 907 tons of coal had been purchased at a cost of $6,418.

"Was all this coal consumed at Government House?" queried Mr. S. Clarke, Northumberland.

Mr. Fairbairn answered that it was, adding: No doubt it seems a great amount to a layman, but it is a big place to keep up."

Mothers' Club Meeting Was Big Success

Enjoyable Paper Was Read by Mrs. Jonn Allan

The Mothers' Club held their regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. After the business meeting and reports of the different committees were finished a short programme was given.

Mrs. John Allan read a most instructive paper on Child Life and Motherhood, in which she pointed out the sacredness of the child and the duty of the mother in this the crisis of the world's history. Her paper was a very able and well prepared one, affording a great treat to those who were present.

Miss E. Hinchcliffe contributed a most enjoyable solo in excellent voice and Mrs. Frank Jenne contributed a humorous recitation on the question of whether or not women should propose.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to those taking part in the programme and the meeting closed with the singing of "God Save the King."

THE LIFE OF NAPOLEON

Interesting Address Is Given By Dr. Jessie Birnie

"The Great Drama of the Life of Napoleon" was the subject last night of Dr. Jessie Birnie's address at the course of lectures given under the auspices of the Otonabee Chapter, I. O.D.E. in the green room of the Y.W. C.A.

In her lecture Dr. Birnie gave a very clear, interesting and instructive insight into the life of the great leader, and showed how remarkably alike the days of Napoleon and these of the Kaiser's aggression are. She said that in stirring times like these, when strikes, insurrections and revolutions are matters of daily occurrence, we ask ourselves if there were ever times like this before. For an answer we need only turn to the history of the French revolution, when Louis XV. and his noblemen's oppression of the middle classes threw the country into a state of revolt, followed by Louis XVI when the smouldering fire broke forth and the people finally gained their liberty, much as the Russians did during the past four months. Again history repeated herself when the first act of Russia was the throwing open of the prisons just as the people of Louis XVI time threw open the Bastelle.

On August 9th, 1792, the people marched upon the Tuilleves. Had the King acceded to their request all would probably have been will, but the weak and hesitant Louis and insolence of Marie were too much, and the gates of revolution were thrown wider than ever. Appalling slaughter and Robespierre held sway. In the provinces which had revolted against the central authority, Robespierre took terrible revenge. Again we have this act repeated in Russia to-day.

Upon this scene of chaos came Napoleon who, Dr. Birnie said, was as great a lexislator as Moses. Dr. Birnie gave a most graphic description of Napoleons life, his accession to power, the history of his conquests when he flung his power, like the Kaiser, against the powers of Europe—his coronation attended by the Pope, Waterloo, which Napoleon never could understand why he lost, and finally his last days at St. Helena, from whence his remains were taken to France 19 years later.

Vote of Thanks.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. Widdess, seconded by Mrs. (Dr.) Carmichael, was extended to Dr. Birnie for her splendid) address.

The Programme.

Miss Winnifred Parker contributed to the programme by two recitations from Pauline Johnson, which were enthusiastically received. Miss Hurley very kindly acted as pianist for the evening. Mr. Douglas Carlisle, who was to have sung, was unable to attend.

Parcels For War Prisoners

Names Should Be Registered With Local Society

The British War Office has consented that one person (the next of kin or those acting as such) may send one parcel every three months to the same prisoner of war. The regulations pertaining to these parcels are exceedingly strict and must be adhered to. Any violation of the may result in the withdrawal of the permission to send, and of the confiscation of the parcels. They are in the nature of "Comfort Parcels" and are in addition to the six parcels of food sent every month. Each parcel has to bear a Red Cross Coupon, and so every mother (or next of kin) is asked to come to the Red Cross Workroom at the Public Library and register his or her name as desiring to send the parcels either on Thursday or Friday afternoon of this week, between three and five o'clock.

The local society is desirous that every prisoner should receive one of these "home parcels" therefore they would urge every next of kin to the various prisoners to come to the library on the afternoons mentioned and register as requiring the coupons.

LAURA J. DAVIDSON,
Secretary.

BAN CANNED VEGETABLES.

That it is the intention of the Canada Food Board again to prohibit the home sale and use of canned vegetables during the coming production season, in order that more abundant supplies of the canned product may be available for use overseas, is announced by Mr. Fred Abraham, chairman of the Vacant Lot and Home Garden Section of the board's activities, who is now paying an official visit to Toronto.

HUNS MAY ATTACK ALMOST ANY TIME

Gen. Maurice Says Signs Indicate That Enemy Offensive Is Imminent.

LONDON, March 14.—General Maurice, British Director of Operations, declared in an interview with the United Press that there are indications on the west front that an offensive is imminent.

"The enemy air activity, which is the natural preliminary to an offensive, may be an accident," Maurice said "but taken in conjunction with other indications, it raises the suspicion that an offensive is imminent."

THROBBING, NEURALGIC HEADACHE CURED HEAD-SPLITTING DISTRESS VANISHES INSTANTLY

This Wonderful Curative Liniment Never Fails

RUB ON NERVILINE

Neuralgia quickly cured is twice, nay, ten times cured. Little neuralgia pains grow into big ones, but "Nerviline" in ten minutes relieves even the worst ones. Even a single application will remove the nerve congestion that causes the pain.

Nerviline penetrates deeply into the sore tissue, reaches the source of inflammation, drives it out root and branch. Every drop of Nerviline is potent in pain-subduing power, and its strongest charm lies in the fact that it rubs right in, even to the very last drop. Nerviline is not greasy, and its pain-removing power is at least five times greater in strength than ordinary remedies.

We guarantee Nerviline will cure neuralgia—not only relieve it, but actually and permanently cure it. Just in the same way will it cure lumbago, sciatica, stiffness and rheumatism.

To conquer all muscular and nerve pain, use Nerviline. A bottle in the home keeps the doctor's bill small. Get the 25c. family size bottle. Sold by all druggists everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Presenting the Season's Authoritative Modes in Elaborate Display

A new season is here. Heretofore you have had just a glimpse at the coming season's styles—you have obtained merely an idea of what is correct for Spring. Now, all uncertainly is over. As you gaze into the crystal of Fashion all former doubts are dispelled and, before you, the authentic styles stand out in all their beauty and attractiveness.

This opening event clearly indicates the style tendencies, for every garment was fashioned by a master designer and was selected with the greatest care. All is ready for your inspection. Displays have been artistically and conveniently arranged. The store is aglow with the beauty and spirit of Spring. Salespeople eagerly await the opportunity to show you how completely the new garments meet your individual needs. A cordial reception awaits you on this Opening Day.

Opening Days
Friday & Saturday
March 15 and 16

New Developments in the Spring Coats

Separate coats for Spring are somewhat shorter than for several seasons past. For general utility the majority average from forty-five to forty-eight inches, allowing several inches of the skirt to remain in view. While the new styles are full at the hem they hang straight or nearly so, being held in slightly at the waist with one of the many varied types of belts. Just a touch of the "military" is seen in many of the new collars which are, generally speaking, of the convertible type.

Sand, tan, beige, gray and blue take the lead in color and the materials include serges, gabardines, velours, and many other popular weaves. Our displays include the most desirable of the season's offerings.

The New Spring Millinery

Although there is little that is unusual in the character of the new Spring hats there is variety enough to satsify every desire. Turbans, pokes, mushrooms and sailors are the styles in a general way but the many odd treatments of the crown provide a variety which is interesting to an unusual degree. There is diversity in the materials and trimmings, too.

Amongst the most prominent straws is the new cheville which readily lends itself to unusual draped effects. Mouffleon straws in rich shades of dark brown, green and navy, visca braids in colors ranging from soft pastel shades to navy, dark green and deep cheery, hair lice, are represented in the new millinery with new bead and buckle trimmings, fruits, flowers in silk and wool and ribbons for ornamentation. Comprehensive displays are arranged for the Opening event.

Smart Dress Accessories

Much depends on the care with which such important dress items as gloves, neckwear and hosiery are selected. This is especially true this season inasmuch as the ready-to-wear styles are comparatively simple and women depend on accessories more or less for individuality in their costumes. This important point was given due consideration when we laid our plans for Spring business.

Turnbull's

Overwhelming Difficulties Have Not Prevented Complete & Comprehensive Selections

Even a woman with a most casual knowledge of market conditions will realize that Spring stocks have not been procured without facing and overcoming seemingly unsurmountable obstacles. The scarcity of materials and labor—and the difficulties of transportation have made the assembling of these representative displays a serious problem, but we have found its solution as the showings for this Opening event will conclusively prove.

Another important point—we have maintained our standard of "quality" and yet, in spite of increased manufacturing cost, economies in other directions have enabled us to offer garments of excellent quality and authoritative style at but little more than you will probably be asked to pay for inferior garments by merchants not so careful of their patrons' interests.

Opening Days
Friday & Saturday
March 15 and 16

Spring Dresses are Exceptionally Interesting

The slender silhouette is the dominant characteristic of the new Spring dresses. This is relieved by the many pleasing sash and girdle arrangements and the use of tunics which are shown pleated or gathered, long or short and sometimes cunningly caught up at the side. Sleeves in general are long and close-fitting.

Taffetas, foulards, crepe de chines, serges, gabardines and Jerseys are among the popular materials. Many tones of tan, blue and grey are shown in the plain fabrics, while many dainty designs are prominent in the fancy silks. Combinations of fabrics and of colors are a noticeable feature of the new season's styles.

Variety in the Spring Suits

Dame Fashion permits many variations in the suits. If you desire, you may wear a chic Eton or a jacket of finger tip length with a stylish ripple peplum. She approves either the semi-dressy or the strictly tailored type with which can don the irresistible Tuxedo waistcoat or vestee. There is variety in the skirts, too, many interesting features have been developed. The most favoured weaves are velours, serges, poplins, gabardines, which are shown in several shades of sand, beige and blue. The showing for this important Opening event is complete in every particular.

The Correctness of Your Corset

The new lines of the Spring ready-to-wear demand that special attention be given to the selection of your corset. The new Spring models are now ready for inspection and our salespeople will gladly show you the style that will make the most suitable foundation for your new apparel. There is no more opportune time for examination of the new corsets than during this Opening period and we urge you to take advantage of attending this special showing.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Torontos Win The N. H. A. Championship

MONTREAL, March 13.—Torontos to-night won the championship of the N.H.L. and the right to play the Pacific Coast League champions for the Stanley Cup when the Canadiens failed to wipe out the four-goal lead which the Queen City team secured on their own ice in the first of the home-and-home games Monday night. Canadiens won to-night's match by 4 to 3, leaving the complete score for the series Torontos 10, Canadiens 7.

The game was rough, with the Canadiens contributing most of the penalty list. The Frenchmen played an individual game for the most part. Torontos never forgot the lead they enjoyed, and whenever in real danger dropped into a defensive which easily and successfully checkmated the one man efforts of the Frenchmen.

Cameron and Randall of the Toronto team were marked men, but notwithstanding this they played a consistent game and they refused to dislocate the machinery of their team by retaliation. They were injured severely early in the game, but after a short absence from the ice, returned to play for the remainder of the evening, obviously suffering from the effects of the rough handling they had received. Adams, a brilliant examateur, for the brief periods when he substituted for the other players, showed some fine bursts of speed.

Holmes did some sensational net-minding for Toronto, and only let the puck get by him when the championship was virtually assured for his team.

For the Canadiens brilliant work was done by Lalonde and all, though much of it went for nothing owing to the cleverness of the Toronto defence. The officials always kept a tight grip on the game and nipped in the bud every outburst of rough work on the part of the Canadiens.

First period—
1—Torontos, Noble—12.00.

Collingwood Is Three Goals Up On Oshawa

COLLINGWOOD, March 13.—Collingwood defeated Oshawa in the first of the home-and-home games for the O. H. A. intermediate championship here to-night by the score of 4 to 1. The Oshawa team and fans arrived on the noon train confident of victory, and they placed their strongest lineup on the ice.

The game commenced on sticky ice, with Oshawa on the offensive, and by clever stick-handling Etherington early scored Oshawa's first and only goal. Oshawa still pressed until Fryer, on an end-to-end rush, evened the score. A few minutes later Collingwood tallied again. McLeod was hurt and had to retire for the balance of the period.

During the second period the game developed into a close-checking affair, and it was impossible for either team to breakaway. McLeod got the only tally of the period. Rushing from his own goal, and drawing the Oshawa defence out, he scored on Childs. The locals bombarded the Oshawa goal, but, were unable to tally again.

In the last stanza play was about even, but Fryer scored another for Collingwood. Etherington, Rowden and Childs starred for Oshawa. For Collingwood all the players played good hockey, but Fryer, Walton and McLeod starred. Foulis was checked too closely to show his usual form. The ice was too soft for good team work, and the game ended in individual work.

Collingwood—Goal, Cook; defence, McLeod and Walton; centre, Foulis; wings, Burns and Fryer; substitute, Dance.

Oshawa—Goal, Childs; defence, Fair and Rowden; centre, Rowden; wings, Roenick and Etherington; substitute, Hall.

De La Salle Go Into Junior Finals

Toronto, Mar. 14.—De La Salle, as was expected, defeated University of Toronto Schools in the second game of the O.H.A. Junior semi-finals at the Arena last night, and will enter the finals against Barrie, the first game to be played at the Arena next Saturday night and the second game to be played in Barrie on the following Tuesday. De La Salle went into last night's game with a seven-goal lead, having defeated the Bloor St. students in the first game by a score of 9-2. They further increased their lead last night by winning 10-5, thus making the score on the rounds 19 to 7 in favor of De la Salle.

In the first two periods University of Toronto Schools threatened to win from De la Salle on the game, as the students gave a strong, clever exhibition. In the first period each team secured three goals, and in the second De la Salle added two more, holding U.T.S. to one goal. In the final period De la Salle scored five times and held U.T.S. to only one goal.

CURLING

Annual Meeting on Monday.

The wake of the curling season will be held next Monday night, when the prizes won by the successful rinks will be distributed, the officers will be elected for next winter and whatever general business arises will be disposed of. All the members are requested to be present.

Archie Moore and Alex. Kay played a matched game of curling last night and Kay stipulated that, if he won, the County Constable would have to liberate the first offender he arrested. When the game was over the score board showed the totals of 14 to 6 in favour of Kay. This was one game in which coal was suggested instead of the regulation chalk.

Four rinks of Methodists have accepted a challenge from the Presbyterians for a game to be played on Friday night.

Hiller Out Of The Game

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

Toronto, Mar. 14. — It is feared here that any chance Kitchener's O. H. A. champions had of successfully defending the Allan Cup, went glimmering to-day, when it was discovered that George Hiller, the star of the team, was not in shape to play to-night. Hiller it is reported, has a small bone broken in his right foot as the the result of a slash from Bostrom's stick at the close of the game on Tuesday night. He ignored the injury at the time, thinking that it was only a bruise, and it was not until yesterday that medical attendants discovered that the injury was serious. He may start to-night but it is not considered likely. As Kitchener has only one spare man available it may be necessary to play a game of six men a side instead of seven as called for under the western rules.

Winnipeg to-day were the favorites even with the handicap to Kitchener of Hiller's being off. The odds in the betting to-day were 2 to 1 in favor of the westerners.

Although the weather here to-day is rainy and mild the artificial ice in the covered rink is said to be harder than on Tuesday. There will be a record crowd to see the game.

ALLIES HAVE SUPERIORITY IN THE AIR

(By W. A. Willison.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, March 14.—Not since the battle of the Somme have the Allies on the Western front enjoyed such unquestioned superiority in the air as now. Not only in the air fighting and in other activities by day, but in bombing operations at night, our planes are more than a match for the enemy. The outstanding feature during the past three days has been the amount of aerial activity while our anti-aircraft and machine guns, or those of the enemy are constantly busy. There was a hilarious celebration on our front yesterday when the men of an infantry regiment engaged a low flying Boche airplane with their machine guns and brought it crashing down in Lens. Last night another enemy machine came down behind our lines on a trial trip with a crew of two officers, a non-commissioned officer and mechanic, who were made prisoners.

SEVIGNY NOW OUT

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., March 14.—The resignation of Hon. Albert Sevigny from the Government has been finally accepted by Sir Robert Borden. The announcement was given out this morning. There will be no successor appointed as the Inland Revenue port folio is to be transferred to the Customs portfolio under Hon. Arthur Sifton. Mr. Sevigny has as yet not been "provided for." As far as can be learned there is no governmental appointment in sight for him. However, he has had the compensation of three months' extra salary as a Cabinet Minister at the rate of $7,000 per year since his defeat in the two constituencies on December 17 last.

50TH ANNUAL FAIR.

Norwood Agricultural Exhibition Reaches Half-Century Mark.

The Board of Directors of the East Peterboro Agricultural Society met yesterday afternoon to revise the prize list and make arrangements for the next annual fall fair which will will be the fiftieth annual exhibition. The occasion is to be marked by a number of special features. Many suggestions were offered and the directors have some of them under consideration, of which more will be heard later.—Norwood Register.

FUNERAL WAS HELD YESTERDAY

Four playmates of the late Robert Sexsmith, carried the mortal remains of their little friend, to the grave yesterday afternoon. They were Charlie Nixon, Stewart Cotton, Walter Cowling and Charlie Cowling. The funeral was held from the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sexsmith, 813 Reid street, to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D., conducted the funeral services, and Mrs. George King sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

A floral wreath was received from the employees of the G. Walter Green Co. Others who sent floral tributes were: Mrs. Theodore McWilliams, Trinity Sunday School; Mrs. Nixon and family, Pat. and Louise Hall, the Cowling children, Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, Ladies' Aid of Trinity Church, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Fisher and Stewart Cotton.

Rochester Adopts Card System To Record Deliveries Of Coal

Follows General Plan Recommended by U. S. Fuel Controller Garfield to Prevent Hoarding—Similar to Scheme Proposed For Peterborough

Rochester's plans for regulating the distribution of coal this year are very similar to the method proposed for Peterboro by Ald. Dobbin, as shown in the following report from the Post-Express:

As a part of a plan to give each householder his full requirement of coal for the winter of 1918-19, a card system will be put into operation on April 1st, when there will also be a reduction in the price. This card system is similar to that started some time ago by Fuel Administrator Miller and requires each person ordering coal to go to his dealer, fill out a card certifying to the amount of coal he used in the winter of 1916-17 and this year, and what his requirements will be for 1918-19. He must also give the amount of coal he has on hand and whether he has orders with any other dealer. If so, with whom, and what quantity. His total orders must not be more than the average amount for the winers named.

Six tons of his requirement will be delivered and after that one-half to two-thirds of what he has asked for. This is to prevent hoarding, and give the dealers opportunity for making equitable distribution.

With April 1st the price of coal will fall 30 cents, but there will be an increase of 10 cents a ton in order to give the drivers and cartmen an increase which has been promised after a conference of the dealers and the drivers with Mr. Miller. The high cost of keeping horses makes this increase justified in the eyes of the fuel administrator. A net decrease of 20 cents.

The price will remain at the April figure for five months. For instance if coal is $8.60 a ton the ten cents will be added, and then 30 cents subtracted, making the price to the consumer $8.40—really giving him the benefit of a 20 cent decrease. This arrangement will remain in force until September 1st when there will be a rise of 10 cents a ton a month, and soon the price to the consumer will be higher than now if that provision is maintained.

However, the fuel administrator promises that coal will be no higher than last winter and he has the expectation that with cooperation on the part of everyone there will be no such strenuousness in getting adequate supplies as is now being experienced.

The bride is an accomplished musical artist, and first met her husband at Kashabog Lake, where she spent several summers. Lieut. Holdcroft's many friends unite with us in wishing him and his bride every happiness and success.—Havelock Standard.

OBITUARY

HARRY OVEREND.
At the family residence, 215 Princess street, Harry, son of the late Wm. Overend, died yesterday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, after an illness of about one month's duration.

He was born in Orillia thirty-eight years ago and came to the city to reside when a child. In business he was a traveller and at the time of his death was employed with the Hessco Company, Toronto. He leaves to mourn his death his wife formerly Miss McFadden, three children, Agnes, Margaret, and Hudson; five sisters and two brothers, namely, Nursing Sisters Mary and Marion, overseas, Mrs. L. J. Picard of this city, Mrs. Price, Thompsonville, Ohio, Miss Clara at home; Dr. R. V. Overend, Hallock, Minnesota, and Arthur, Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock to the Sacred Heart Church, thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

MARJORY FLOOD.
TORONTO, March 13.—There was a very large attendance at the funeral of Miss Marjory Flod, whose sudden death occurred on Sunday evening at the home of her parents, 544 Ontario street. She was the only daughter of John Flood, qr.-ms.-sergeant at Bramshott Camp, England, and granddaughter of the late Senator J. D. Dobson, Lindsay, Ont. Only twenty years of age, she had many friends. They filled Our Lady of Lourdes Church yesterday morning when Rev. Gerald Kirby celebrated requiem mass. The chief mourners were her mother and two brothers, Cecil and John. Three aunts, Mrs. J. P. Dickson, Chicago; Mrs. H. W. Spofford, Peterborough, and Miss M. Markham, Lindsay, also attended. The pall-bearers were Dr. B. Charles Sullivan, Reginald Mead, Armand Aymong, James McConvey, John Dwan and James McMullen. The body was placed in a valut at St. Michael's Cemetery.

BIRTH.

AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 15.— Four more groups of gas projectors have been destroyed by the Americans. This is in addition to two hundred projectors previously destroyed. It looks like a gas attack on a large scale has been upset.

French Aristocracy Works.

The opening of a shop by Viscountess Gort attracts far more notice in England than it would in France, where many aristocrats earn their living in less lucrative ways than those of a Wend end milliner. The present Marquess de Torcey D'Etallonde keeps an inn at Carnac, the Marquee de Foligne is an omnibus conductor, the Comte de Rosgrand works in a flour mill, the Baron de Soigny is a postman and the Comte de St. Paul is a clerk. M. Jean de Retz of the same family as the famous cardinal is a grave digger; the Comte d'Hauteroche, descendant of the officer who, at Fontenoy, is alleged to have cried out, "Messieurs les Anglais, tires les premiere," is a gendarme, and the Viscomte de Bardeneuche used to clean lamps at the Cafe du Nord for three francs a day.

Basket Social Was Big Success

FRASERVILLE, March 15. — A most interesting basket social took place last night in the Orange Hall, which was crowded to its utmost capacity.

It would be well in the event of another such 'social sucess" that the people of Fraserville put an addition to this hall. The programme commenced sharp at 8.30 and was opened by the singing of "O Canada," which all heartily joined in, and prayer, by the Rev. Mr. Leigh. The Rev. Mr. Wickett presided as chairman, and Mr. Harold Whitfield officiated at the piano. The first recitation was rendered by Miss Colin of Springville, which was thoroughly appreciated by the audience, as was shown by their ringing encores. The Springville Orchestra, consisting of six instruments, took a prominent part in the entertainment, and after several encores, played "Coming Through the Rye" with great enthusiasm.

Springville has some very fine artists, who would soon be famous in a large city. Messrs. Rody and White of Fraserville both sang favorite old Scotch tunes. The male quartette of Fraserville are certainly wasting their talent in that village.

Miss Elison and Miss White, dressed as "Fortune Tellers," looked very sweet in their costumes, and rendered several duets. The many other duets, solos and dialogues were unexcelled. At 10.30 the sale of the baskets took place. They were auctioned by Mr. Rody and quite a nice little sum was brought in, which is in aid of Red Cross work.

March winds and April showers bring forth May flowers.

Dust in March brings grass and foliage.

Snow in March is bad for fruit and grape vine.

America Is In The War To Win Says Secretary Of War

Trip is to See How Full Resources of This Nation May Be Utilized—Will Make Tour of Lines of Communication of United States Troops.

CALL ON MARSHAL JOFFRE

PARIS, March 15.—Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, met American, English and French newspaper men and gave out the following statement concerning his trip to France:

"Our purpose in visiting France is to confer with General Pershing, to visit the American Expeditionary Force and inspect its line of transportation and its storage and supply systems in order that we in America can more effectively support our own army and the armies of our Allies.

"Of course, any visit to France at this time is a pilgrimage to the very shrine of heroism, and it will be an inspiration actually to see the great commanders and the armies which have so long held the frontiers of freedom against all attacks. In America, as in Franc, we have a civilian Secretary of War, and civilian power is supreme. That is one of the characteristics of the free institutions which we are fighing to maintain.

CIVIL POWER MUST BACK ARMY.

"Civil power must bring up the supplies of organized industrial resources and support ils armies. In America now the dominant thought in all minds is war. Industry is organized and supplies are beginning to be produced in a satisfactory quantity. War materials are accumulating and a great army is completing its training to join the force already here.

"There can be but one result when the forces of civilization in great countries like those now allied are combined to defend the vital principles of liberty. Our President has nobly phrased the spirit in which America entered the war, and his subsequent declarations reflect the feeling of the entire country that we are committed with all our resources to the winning of the war."

CALLS ON MARSHAL JOFFRE.

Marshal Joffre called on Secretary Baker this morning, and the Secretary later returned the call at he Marshal's headquarters. The Secretary this afternoon called on General Tasker H. Bliss, American representative on the Supreme War Council at Versailles.

During the Secretary's call upon Marshal Joffre he told the noted French soldier that he had been charged by President Wilson to express the President's strong personal friendship for him and to assure the Marshal that he preserved the warmest recollections of his visit to he United States.

The President, Mr. Baker, added, had directed him to convey to the Marshal an expression of the high esteem with which "the hero of the Marne" had inspired him. The Secretary conversed with Marshal Joffre for nearly an hour.

Soon before landing Secretary Baker saw French dirigibles and a large flotilla of hydroairplanes fly out from a French port in search of a German submarine which had been reported off the coast.

GRAIN MARKET

Cash oats and barley are both easier as a result of the free deliveries and an improvement in the car situation. It looks like a complete embargo on corn, though one or two cars have arrived in the past day or two. Word was received yesterday, however, by a local firm from their Chicago representative that the firm's application to the United States authorities to be allowed to ship through to Canada, No. 4 kiln dried corn has been refused by the War Board. While no surprise was felt at the embargo being placed on No. 2 and 3, this being seed corn, it was expected that the No. 4, or stock feed, would be allowed to come through, as the application was a couple of months back. One reason for the present embargo is that the United States Board is filling a big order for the allies, shipping about a million bushels of corn a day.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 54 cars, with 472 cattle, 52 calves, 2,202 hogs, and 189 sheep and lambs.

The market was strong and prices steady to firm at an advance of 25c. over last Monday's market. The run was light for cattle, and anything choice sold very firm. Sheep and lambs were firm at half a dollar higher, choice lambs selling at $20.

Hogs again went over the top, establishing a new high record at $20 to $20.25, fed and watered.

DEBATE WILL BE SHORT ONE

OTTAWA, March 14.—The address in reply to a Speech from the Throne it is announced will be moved in the House by H. M. Mowat, member for Parkdale, Toronto, and seconded by Dr. Chabot, of Ottawa, the only French-Canadian supporter of the Government. The debate on the address will open on Tuesday. It is not expected that it will be prolonged. As soon as it is concluded the new Deputy Speaker of the House will be elected and the general business of Parliament taken up. It is understood that the main estimates will be brought up at an early date in the session, and that most important Government legislature will be introduced without delay.

Preferred Two Halves.

The teacher had been explaining fractions to her class. When she had discussed the subject at length, wishing to see how much light had been shed, she inquired, "Now, Bobbie, which would you rather have, one apple or two halves?"

The little chap promptly replied, "Two halves."

"Oh, Bobbie," exclaimed the young woman, a little disappointedly, "why would you prefer two halves?"

"Because then I could see if it was wormy."

WOULDN'T SAVE EVEN WIFE

SYRACUSE, March 13.—Summoned before the district board to-day to explain the religious belief of the Pastor Russell cult as aplied to war, W. E. Amburgh, of Brooklyn, secretary-treasurer of the International Bible Students' Association, said the sect had no standard tenets or beliefs; that each member acted as his conscience dictated, and that one could be a member of the cult and yet be a soldier. He, personally, would never kill a man, he said, and even though his own life or that of his wife or child was threatened he would not lift a hand against the assailant. The Lord would take care of them, he said.

Old Eton At the War

IT has been said by many a good judge that the real secret of this war, and its fortunes hitherto, has lain in the essential difference between the German officer and the British, quite as much, in fact, as between the voluntary spirit of Thomas in the ranks and the Boche with the bayonet behind him. As a matter of fact, writes J. Collins in London to The Boston Transcript, this is merely stating the same proposition twice. It is better to lead men than to leather 'em, and it makes all the difference to the value of the impetus supplied when it is given in the form of a shining example of valor well in front. This noble emulation is also yours, judging by all the signs. The figure of a subaltern mounting the parapet and waving his men on with sword or revolver has become so tragically familiar that we have almost ceased to think what a high proportion these gallant youngsters of ours make in the enormous total of officers on our roll of honor, or even to raise our brows as we used to do when anyone cynically referred to this terrible toll of life as "the massacre of the innocents." The men themselves as you talk to them in hospital often shut their eyes and shake an aching head as they recall a favorite leader plunging through a barrage or into the teeth of a machine-gun fire, or down a reeking and bullet-riddled trench and waving his men on with a last gesture as he dropped. That is why you find so many letters from commanding officers written to the parents and widows of junior officers "gone west," which conclude with the telling words, "he was beloved by all his men" or "the platoon would have followed him anywhere."

When we begin to cast up our debts, therefore, after the war, and attend to the moral as well as the material side of the account, we shall have to pay due honor in one outstanding quarter. The British public schools have not merely sent many thousands of their best products into the service; they are turning officers out as fast as they can, and will continue to do so as long as the war lasts, and beyond. For this is the main difference between the schools and the universities in war time. Oxford and Cambridge, so far as students go, are practically deserted, and the old familiar stately halls are given up to nurses and doctors for tending wounded from the front.

But the public schools are as full and as busy as ever, in pursuit of their right vocations, and though the average of age has dropped a year or two, the quality of the lads that fill them remains the same, and happily the supply has never failed us yet. Directly the war began, the pick of their pupils moved on to Sandhurst or Woolwich. Men who had meant their sons for other lines in life revoked their decision without a murmur, and picked those youngsters the dearest wish of their hearts. Younger brothers have had the benefit, for they have moved up all the earlier to fill the gaps thus created and have gone forward in their turn, from the preparatory school or the private tutor to Eton or Harrow or Rugby, from there to the camp or military school.

There is no longer the old reluctance to leave school behind, that unaccountable reluctance which is, perhaps, the highest compliment that any school can earn. It is told of that fine spirit, the late Alfred Lyttelton, that on his last day but one at Eton, after a brilliant record at nearly all its games, he said to his chum Brodrick (now Lord Middleton): "Just think, only twenty-four hours between me and utter insignificance." It was the heart-break of one who had taken the lead in all the pursuits that lads admire, and was now dropping through into a heedless world where nobody knew the thrill of a "bully" in the football field or the glory of pulling off the gold cup on a great Thames day. There is none of the reluctance at leaving school nowadays. Athletics and the river are a necessary part of the business of life, but war, you may say, is life itself, and the men who are honored in young Britain to-day are those who win a battle or a V.C.—or a death that adds fresh laureis to their old school's fame.

Eton has many claims to be taken as the representative school in this connection. It has only one senior—Winchester School, which dates from the fourteenth century. Another decade or two brings in the fifth century of Eton's foundation, and it has an enviable list of historic soldiers on its roll, including Wellington and Roberts. Most of us remember the day in 1880, when, fresh from his Indian triumphs, "Bobs" (he was only Sir Frederick then) went down to his old school to inspect its rifle corps, to receive a presentation sword of honor in the great school yard, and incidentally to have his carriage drawn by the Eton boys as far as Windsor Bridge, to the huge delight of Lady Roberts. That rifle corps dates back to 1860, and to the volunteer movement of 1859. In the following January, when the designs of Napoleon III. were making our grandsires uneasy, the school set up a cadet corps, and a year later this was considerable enough to be reviewed by Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort on the castle lawn at Windsor. It was Prince Albert's last appearance in public, by the way, so the day was memorable in other respects, and great things were to accrue from this rally of lads in their grey tunics with the school's pale blue. In The Illustrated Times of those days there is a woodcut showing the corps there in a schoolyard around the statue of King Henry VI., and they wear the top hat which the war has practically demolished everywhere, you may say, except at Eton, synagogues, and funerals.

Strained the Glass.

The oldest inhabitant of Little Cockleton possessed a telescope he never used.

"Why don't you make use of it sometimes, James?" asked a neighbor.

"It used to be a good 'n," said James sorrowfully, "but it's broke now."

"Broken?" asked the neighbor. "Who did that?"

"Well," said James, "it was such a good 'n that I could see the old church steeple five miles away quite plain, but Joseph, the scoundrel, got the lend of it and tried to make out the steeple of the Methody chapel more'n ten miles away. He tried and tried and couldn't, so that strained my glass, an' it's never been right since. Drat Joseph!"

MUMMERS OF CANADA PREPARE FOR TROUBLE

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, and when a woman passes through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances. Many thousands in this section would testify as do the following:

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Over forty years ago I was restored to health by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It was after medicine and doctors had failed to help me or give relief. I had, through overwork, become all run down in health. I was weak and finally became a nervous wreck. The 'Prescription' was recommended to me, and at the time I started to take it I had not been able to do anything for over a year. I took the "Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' as well. It took several bottles, but I was completely restored to good health and since that time when I have felt the need of these medicines I have taken them and always with perfect satisfaction."—Mrs. Wm. Baker, 33 Page St.

Stratford, Ont.—I was all run-down, weak, nervous. I also suffered with severe pains through my back. I was very miserable when a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one bottle seemed to give renewed strength. It stopped the pain in my back, also helped my nervous condition. It is surely a good tonic for women.—Mrs. Florence Cullum, 100 Milton St.

First Woman Doctors.

The first woman admitted to the Ecole Medecine, the famous Paris medical college, who also the first to become a member of the New York Academy of Medicine, was Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi, who was born in London seventy-five years ago. She was the daughter of George P. Putnam, the New York publisher, and studied in several American schools before taking her degree in Paris in 1871. Two years later she became the bride of Dr. Abraham Jacobi, a native of Germany, who fled that country when charged with "high treason" for participation in a German revolutionary movement, and, settling in New York, became one of the most distinguished of American physicians. Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi was prominent in the profession as professor and hospital physician until her death in 1906. The first woman physician in America was Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, a native of England, who received her degree of M. D. in 1849, and later returned to England to practice her profession.

Spud Is Important.

The humble potato is destined to play an important part in the present world war. We are warned that as much depends upon bread as bullets, but owing to the scarcity of bread and an overabundance of potatoes, it would seem that more attention must be given to the storing and preserving of this crop.

"Scientists used to say that there was but little food value in the potato. But recently they have learned with others that a little learning is a dangerous thing. Now we are told that there is almost a balanced ration to be found in a bountiful meal of potatoes. At any rate it has been amply proved that there is no single vegetable that brightens so many homes or feeds so many people as the potato."—Exchange.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place!

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations, and poisons, before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation.

THEFT IS CHECKED

Insurance Embargoes on South American Shipments.

Pilfering Formerly Was Credited to the Canal Zone but Has Been Reduced to Minimum.

Pilfering is still a great problem in the case of merchandise shipped to ports on the west coast of South America. At several ports the extent of the evil has been greatly lessened as a result of insurance embargoes on goods destined for those ports or in response to constant complaint on the part of the consignees, according to Commerce Reports. In Mollendo pilfering, so far as Bolivian goods are concerned, has been reduced to small proportions in consequence of an agreement between the Peruvian and Bolivian governments which provides for the prompter dispatch of merchandise for Bolivian destination. Nevertheless, the problem of pilfering remains a serious one at practically every port on the west coast.

Formerly it was the fashion to say that much of the pilfering took place in the Panama Canal Zone, and there was probably some basis for the statement in the days when traffic through the canal was stopped by the slides in Gaillard cut and freight was badly congested at Colon and Balboa. It is probably true, however, that even in those times much of the loss attributed to pilfering was due to unusual handling or exposure. Since traffic through the canal has been resumed on a normal basis the loss from pilfering in the Canal Zone has been reduced to an almost negligible point.

Goods trans-shipped to Colon and Balboa are stored in pier sheds immediately upon discharge. The sheds are large, well built, fireproof, and can be easily guarded and protected. Both in the discharge from ship to pier and in the reloading from pier to ship the Panama Railroad company exercises strict supervision over all operations, since it has charge of all port facilities and does most of the stevedoring. To protect itself against claims for loss the railroad company long since instituted an elaborate checking system. Checkers not only take account of the number and weight of cases and packages loaded or unloaded on the piers but also note the condition of the containers as they pass over the piers and put aside for careful inspection cases that appear to be underweight or to have been tampered with. In many instances pilfering can be detected by a difference in the recorded weight and the weight on arrival in Panama, though pilferers are clever enough, as a rule, to substitute articles of the same weight for those they have abstracted.

Moreover, a number of watchmen and detectives are employed by the Panama Railroad company. Some of the detectives work as dock laborers. The watchmen cannot be in all parts of the pier sheds, and in a far corner of a shed or a hold the stevedores may handle a case with such roughness as to cause it to break open, enabling its contents to be easily carried off. Detectives can exert an effective restraining influence in such cases.

It is clear, then, that the precautions against pilfering in the Panama Canal Zone are extensive and effective and that the source of the pilfering must be sought for elsewhere.

Salaries Are Increased.

Owing to the great advance in the cost of living, the local government has increased the salaries of all its employees who were paid under 1,800 escudos ($1,945) per annum. The increases in some cases have amounted to 45 per cent, writes Consul John F. Jewell, Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa.

The resultant excess of expenditure over the budget estimate for salaries is in round figures $313,200. As the budget could not bear any additional expenditure without a deficit that would embarrass at present and in future hinder the development and the progress of the province of Mozambique, to meet this new expense item the government has increased the fees for licenses for bars, canteens, kiosks, etc., the telegraph and telephone rates, and the export tax on sugar and has established a "military" tax. Increased revenue is expected from these measures as follows: Export tax on sugar, $216,000; telegraph and telephone rates, $27,000; other taxes and fees, $46,000.

Bermuda Potato Crop.

It is estimated that the Triumph or fall crop of potatoes which will be reaped in Bermuda will be 82,500 bushels, according to Vice-Consul Stillman W. Ellis, Hamilton. This is less by 8,000 bushels than the fall crop of 1916, in spite of the fact that more acreage was planted to potatoes the past year. The reason given for this by the director of agriculture is that "the earlier plantings have been affected by unfavorable seasons and will not produce a normal crop. The fields planted later give promise of good yields."

Utilize Burning Mine's Blast.

At Zwickau, in Saxony, a fire is still burning, or was burning when war was declared, which began in the fifteenth century. This also is a burning coal mine, and as long ago as 1837 that German thoroughness which the world is learning so sadly to understand put even a burning mine to use, by conveying the hot air through pipes to conservatories of vast extent and productiveness.

Application of Reason.

It is by reasoning that we arrive at the reason of things.

TO CURB "U" BOATS

"Sea Jitneys" Suggested for Attack on German Bases.

Canadian Naval Airplane Fighter, Home to Recover From Shrapnel Wounds Expresses an Opinion.

Theorizing about war conditions has grown quite as tiresome, no doubt, to the people who read newspapers as it has to most of the people who write for them. Yet, now and then, you meet a man who theorizes from the facts of experience and knowledge and who points something out that gives food for thought. Such a case, it seemed to several of us, when a quiet little chap, son of a Canadian millionaire, told us his view of the war in its present stage, a New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star writes. His brother was killed at the Marne and he himself is home to recover from shrapnel wounds received when he was flying a naval airplane some thousands of feet above a town on the Belgian coast.

"The outstanding fact, just now," he said, "is that the German U-boats are doing pretty nearly as much as they were expected to do and that we have no effective defense against them. The Germans are almost justified in believing that they are on the way toward starving England into submission. If we don't find a new and successful way to combat the U-boats the situation in England will soon be very critical. Of course, I fancy a way will be found. But it must be something entirely new in warfare. For my part, I am convinced that success can be obtained only by the apparently desperate undertaking of assaults by sea upon the U-boat bases. I say 'apparently desperate.' By any known or tried method such assaults would be simply useless and suicidal.

"The German harbors are mined, netted from end to end and fortified with tremendous shore batteries of heavy and aircraft guns. How can the bases be attacked? Well, of course, that will be settled by some one else than I, but I have heard a theoretical plan of attack proposed by one of our naval men which made a great impression on me. He said we must build thousands of small submarines—something like the 'sea jitneys' which manufacturers have talked about—and go into the German harbors with swarms of them, at the risk of losing ninety-nine out of every hundred boats and crews. Barrage fire and bombing have been the new and successful things in land fighting.

"This officer's proposal is for something like an undersea duplication of this plan of attack. Most of the little boats would be lost, no doubt, but most of them would succeed in doing material damage with one or two torpedoes. Nets would be blown away, mines exploded, guard ships sunk and such other disorganization of the harbor defenses accomplished as to give the big ships a chance to complete the work. Yes, it's true that a man would hardly need to worry about his return trip if he went in on one of these little boats. It would be work for volunteers. But the volunteers would be plentiful enough. That I am sure of.

"If such attacks promised to win the fight against the U-boats, men would be willing to go. It would be enough for them to know that they were striking the sea murderers at their home, and that some of them might possibly get back."

German Schooling.

German schooling has proved antagonistic to co-operation, although demanding unity of action through mass obedience. It has failed to foster real co-operation, for co-operation is a method by which persons of their own volition and by no compulsion may work together harmoniously, writes Wisthrop Talbot in the Century Magazine. Only when training and schooling are the common privilege of all is that state of civic development possible which permits society to become co-operative in its action. In other words, a socialized society becomes more and more possible only as all individual members acquire each the widest vision, and thus the power to co-operate harmoniously.

The Crow.

I have seen no bird walk the ground with just the same air the crow does. It is not exactly pride; there is no strut or swagger in it, though perhaps just a little condescension; it is the contented and self-possessed gait of a lord over his domains. All these acres are mine, he says, and all these crops; men plow and sow for me, and I stay here or go there, and find life sweet and good wherever I am. The hawk looks awkward and out of place on the ground; the game birds hurry and skulk, but the crow is at home and treads the earth as if there were none to molest or make him afraid.—John Burroughs.

The Mystery of Love.

Love is the great mystery of life. It may be the growth of years, months or an instant, says the Christian Herald. Man sees a million beautiful faces; he hears a million sweet voices; he meets a million women with flowers at their breasts and light in their eyes—and they do not touch him. Then he sees the one, and she holds him for life and death. She is no nobler, better or more beautiful than were those he passed by, and yet his world is empty without her. Assuredly there is far more than fashion in this universal force we call love.

The Dominion Income War Tax

Its Meaning and Application.

THE Dominion Income War Tax Act, passed at the last session of Parliament is now in force and all those liable to taxation under the provisions of the Act must file the required returns for the year 1917, on or before 31st March, 1918.

The Act provides that there shall be assessed, levied, and paid upon the 1917 income of every person residing or ordinarily resident in Canada, a tax upon income exceeding $1500 in the case of unmarried persons and widows or widowers without dependent children, and upon income exceeding $3000 in the case of all other persons.

Corporations and joint stock companies carrying on business in Canada, no matter how created or organized, shall pay the normal tax upon income over $3000. The fiscal year of corporations and joint stock companies may be adopted if desired.

Your Immediate Obligation.—You are now required by law to fill out in triplicate, one or more of the five special forms enumerated below. Read the particulars about the forms provided, then note the form or forms that fit your case. Don't forget to make three copies. You keep one copy, and in the case of Forms T1 and T2, deliver two to the Inspector of Taxation for your district In the case of Forms T3, T4 and T5, two copies must be filed with the Commissioner of Taxation at Ottawa.

Penalties.—Default in filing returns renders the person or persons liable on summary conviction to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each day during which the default continues. Any person making a false statement in any return or in any information required by the Minister of Finance shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding ten thousand dollars or to six months imprisonment, or to both fine and imprisonment.

FORMS TO BE FILLED IN AND FILED.

Individuals.—Form T1 is for all individuals having the requisite income. Fill in pages 1, 2 and 3, make no marks on page 4.

In giving particulars of dividends received, state amount received from each company, listing Canadian and Foreign Companies separately.

Partnerships as such need not file returns, but the individuals forming the partnerships must.

Corporations and Joint Stock Companies must fill in Form T2, showing total income. Amount paid during the year to Patriotic and Canadian Red Cross Funds, and other approved war funds, should be shown under Exemptions and Deductions. A financial statement should also be attached. In giving particulars of dividends received, state amount received from each Company, listing Canadian and Foreign Companies separately.

Trustees, Executors, Administrators of Estates and Assignees use Form T3, to state particulars of the distribution of income from estates they are handling. A separate form is required for each estate and total incomes must be given as well as distribution thereof.

Employers. On Form T4 employers shall make a list of the names of employees and amounts paid to each in salaries, bonuses, commission, or other remuneration wherever the combined sum of such remuneration for the calendar year 1917 amounted to $1000 or more. This applies to all classes, regardless of number of such employees.

Corporations Listing Shareholders.—Corporations and Joint Stock Companies shall list on Form T5 Shareholders residing in Canada to whom Dividends were paid during the calendar year 1917, stating the amounts of dividends and bonuses paid to each.

ENLIGHTENMENT

The next time Mrs. Loring called she brought Julia Collins with her. I had had a headache and was lying down. But I knew it would anger George if I failed to receive them so I brushed my hair, and without changing my dress, went down.

I apologized for being in a morning gown and they pretended it did not make the slightest difference.

"Of course your husband is so particular, such a judge of what is proper to wear that you naturally are more nervous than other women when you fail to dress," Madge Loring said.

I suppose I looked my astonishment at her speech, for she added:

"You see both Julia and I are old flames of his. We both ran around with him before we married; and he has been one of our closest friends since. I can't tell you how we felt at his desertion when he went off and married you."

"His desertion"—I repeated, "I do not understand. You were married."

'Oh, that made no difference. I didn't want to lose my friend."

"But you haven't! He is still your friend," I returned bewildered with her reasoning.

"Of course, but now you are first. With some men it wouldn't be so, but of course George is different," she repeated the same old sentence she had so many times used in the short time I had known her. But this time I intercepted a knowing look she cast at Julia Collins. It angered me and helped me to keep up before them.

"Certainly he is different, as you say, if it is the custom for married men to put old friends before their wives," I said then as I ordered tea I figuratively patted myself that for once I had held my own. That I should be made to suffer for my little caustic speech I had no way of knowing.

MERTON GREY IS DISCUSSED.

"Have you seen much of Merton Gray?" Madge Loring asked while Mrs. Collins added in her soft southern drawl:

"Look out for him, Mrs. Howard; he is a fascinating man."

"He called the other day, and brought a lady with him," I replied to Mrs. Loring's question. "A Mrs. Reeve."

"Mrs. Kurtz Reeve?" she asked.

"Yes, she was charming."

"Kurtz is a charming fellow, but I understood he had married beneath him. He is one of the oldest families in town," Mrs. Collins drawled.

"Oh, she is perfectly lovely! so ladylike and yet so full of fun," I declared. "She must come from nice people."

"NICE people, yes, perhaps."

"Mrs. Collins is great for family," Madge Loring informed me.

"Well, I think no one not of good family could be like Mrs. Reeve," I defended stoutly.

"Never mind her, but don't fall in love with that nice Gray boy," Madge Loring cautioned. Had she not laughed when she said it, I should have thought her in earnest and been insulted. But her gay laugh disarmed me and I replied:

"He is very nice. I wonder he is not married."

"So do we all. It isn't because managing mamas haven't thrown their daughters at his head. Poor fellow! He's been run after ever since he first put on long pants."

THE WAY OF THE WORLD.

I did not like either her tone or what she said. It seemed rather common, almost vulgar. But it was evidently the way that worldly people talked about each other. I wished they would go. If George came in and found me entertaining them without being more suitably dressed for afternoon, he would be cross, perhaps angry.

Not that my dress wasn't perfectly good (it was a simple little blue serge with white collar and cuffs), but he liked me to wear rather elaborate gowns when I remained at home in the afternoon, although he insisted that I dress severely for the street.

Finally they rose to go.

"I shall hope to see you soon," Julia Collins said in her careless way.

"You must run in and see me real often" Madge Loring said, "I'll tell you a lot of things about George. Things that you ought to know, my dear, if you are ever to learn to manage him."

"Oh, I don't want to manage him! I shouldn't think of it," I hastened to assure her.

"You'll talk differently five years from now," she returned.

I breathed a sigh of relief when they had gone, then hurried upstairs to change my dress before George came in.

"You are looking extremely well," he said; "I am glad that they did not come when you were not dressed."

I felt horribly guilty, but said nothing. I really wasn't capable of enduring anything disagreeable.

What the two women has said about George, his desertion of them, when he married me, had made me uneasy. Not suspicious, just uneasy.

To-morrow—Useless Brooding.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Need Help to Pass the Crisis Safely—Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Can be Relied Upon.

Urbana, Ill.—"During Change of Life, in addition to its annoying symptoms, I had an attack of grippe which lasted all winter and left me in a weakened condition. I felt at times that I would never be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life, so I told my doctor I would try it. I soon began to gain in strength and the annoying symptoms disappeared and your Vegetable Compound has made me a well, strong woman so I do all my own housework. I cannot recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly to women passing through the Change of Life."—Mrs. FRANK HENSON, 1316 S. Orchade St., Urbana, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches and "the blues" should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost, you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

CHILDREN'S BREAD, NOT PARENTS' BEER

If Choice Made Between These Two, British Government Will Not Hesitate.

LONDON, March 14.—"With our American brethren we are fighting for deliverance of the world from the bondage of the sword," Premier Lloyd George declared here, in a speech before the National Council of Free Churches.

Regarding intoxicants, Lloyd George declared that if the time came to choose between bread for the children and beer for the parents, the Government would not hesitate.

Moved by Coun. McKelvie, seconded by Coun. Montgomery, that the accounts as read, be paid.—Carried.

Auditors applied for an increase of salary to $10 each.

Moved by Coun. McKelvie, seconded by Coun. Puffer, that the salaries of the auditors be increased to $10 each and that the same be paid when the treasurer is satisfied that the report is correct, and that the Board of Education be billed for one-half of the salary.—Carried.

Matter of treasurer's salary was discussed, the treasurer having refused the offer made him by the council at the last meeting.

Moved by Coun. McKelvie, seconded by Coun. Puffer, that the treasurer receive a salary of $50 a year and postage $3, and a commission of 5 per cent. on the uncollected taxes.—Carried.

Mrs. A. B. Greenbank and Mrs. W. H. Cuthbertson addressed the council on behalf of the I.O.D.E., asking the council for a grant of $100 to be used on behalf of the boys returning from overseas.

Moved by Messrs. Puffer and McKelvie that the council grant the Norwood I.O.D.E. the amount asked for.—Carried.

Miss Arnold of the High School staff spent the week end in Campbellford, with Miss Ferris.

RUINED CITIES OF FRANCE

Many of Them Have Taken on a Character of Permanency, So Endless Does War Seem to People.

There is a new kind of city on earth today, a strange, nightmare kind of a city that has taken on for the people of northern France almost a character of permanency, so endless is this war. People have lived through so much since August, 1914, that they seem to themselves to have been always at war, and, looking forward, they see nothing but long years of warfare. The ruined cities such as Arras have become a part of the natural order of things, and the strange life in them has come to seem a natural sort of life. Towns like this are found by the score where the slow pressure of the allies is forcing the Prussian back, says a war correspondent.

They are the towns that have been bombarded and bombarded again, taken and retaken, assaulted and captured, and cannonaded by those who held them the day before, until it is a marvel that one brick remains on another. They are full of ruined houses and shattered quarters of all degrees of destruction, and, stranger than all, they have blocks and sections that by some miracle escaped.

Here is a row of houses that might be in the far South, 200 miles from the battle front. The shutters are up and the streets are deserted, as though the people were late in rising. Here is a public square pitted with shellholes, one side fronted by a row of buildings, whole save for broken windows, the other bounded only by shapeless masses of brick and stone. Here and there a slow smoke curls upward from some gnawing fire. A hundred yards away there may be a stubborn family still occupying its old home, but nobody puts out the fire. The civilians are too hopeless and the soldiers are too busy.

And here is a house with the front sliced off by a shell and the rooms still all in order—a strange spectacle—with beds and bureaus and chairs and tables all in order, as though some enterprising furniture dealer had undertaken a new and ambitious form of window display. For the most part the noblest buildings, the churches and public halls and the towered relics of the Gothic period are gone—they furnish too easy a mark for the rangefinder. And ever and again a dull crash tells of another shell carrying on the barbarous work.

What Women Did in Civil War.

Women all over the United States formed societies and made bandages and comforts of various kinds for the soldiers, but their work, too, lacked the direction and uniformity which are necessary for prompt and effective assistance. In the Civil war, country women were especially generous in contributing time and labor to the cause of helping the sick and wounded. In many instances the men were not given enough green food, and farmers contributed potatoes and fresh vegetables in large quantities, which frequently saved a camp from scurvy and other diseases.

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Miss Gertrude Pratt, Wolseley St., Barrie, Ont., writes: "I was very much run down and could not sleep either day or night, and my arms and legs ached so that life was very miserable. After using six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I feel well and strong again."

AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

EASED BY SECOND DOSE OF

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all-gone" sinking feeling, or, again you may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die.

In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond question, marvellous.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N.B., writes: "I have awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At present my sister is taking them for nervousness, and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NEW RULES FOR HOSPITALS.

Officers and Nurses Requiring Treatment Will Be Sent Back to Canada.

LONDON, March 14.—Lieut.-Col. W. McKeown has been appointed to command a Canadian hospital replacing Col. C. F. Wylde. In order to relieve the burden of the hospitals in England, the Canadian Associated Press learns that all officers and nurses unfit for further service or requiring over six months' treatment, are in future to be sent to Canada to complete their hospital care.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

According to Budget

By Jane Osborn

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Morton Blake, who had been married a year and was supremely happy in his snug little apartment with his blue-eyed little wife, seated himself in his favorite easy chair with a volume of his favorite author and his favorite pipe, preparatory to enjoying for the evening all the happiness of bachelor life rolled into one with the contentment of married life, there was blue-eyed Pegg on the other side of the table with a flat, oblong book that had a new look to it. Peggy opened it with care and pressed the covers back as one does with a book that has never been opened before.

It was the budget book.

"Angelica has been here today," Peggy announced, "and she brought this—it's such a wonderful idea! Morton, did you ever hear of a budget? I never had, but Angelica explained what it means and here is the book. She has made a special study of housekeeping, you know."

"But what does Angelica know about making men happy in their homes?" queried Morton, who had not an altogether pleasant mental image of Peggy's tall, angular, many-degreed cousin, who seemed to be so fond of putting ideas into Peggy's head as Peggy was of sponging them up. "What does she know about real home making?"

"Oh, she knows a great deal," insisted Peggy. "And she says that the reason why so many people aren't happy is because the wives aren't business-like and don't apply the same methods to housekeeping that men do to their businesses. Angelica would make some man wonderfully happy."

"Did she tell you that, too?" asked Morton, puffing on his pipe viciously.

"Yes, only, of course, she is so busy telling other women how to make their homes happy that she doesn't have time. Well, she brought me this budget book and I am to put down in these little columns just what I spend each day—see, here's a place for bread and one for butter and another for meat and fish, and all the things we eat, and here's one for ice and one for help and carfare and light and things like that—Angelica says you call those last ones operating expenses. It is the first of the month, so I started right in. See, I bought some face powder at the drug store and I put that down under medicine, and the two dollars for the laundress—that goes under help. Every time you give me anything that goes in here under receipts. And every week I am to balance it both ways so I can tell at a glance just how much I am spending for every different sort of thing—and in the front of the book there is a table telling how much we ought to spend for things and if I'm spending too much for any one thing then we'll know it and can stop making that mistake. Angelica says she will help me balance and figure out the percentages—I never could do percentages."

"You don't mean that Angelica is going to keep tabs on our household expenses?" gasped Morton.

"Oh, you mustn't mind that. She helps lots of young married girls—she says she is helping them to make their husbands happy and contented. That is her life work. She started doing it only for the poor people in the settlement, but she has discovered that people comfortably off need help just as much. And so I started right away, but I can't finish till you tell me your part of it. Here's a place for 'man's lunch' and another for 'carfares,' that you must tell me, and every day you must tell me how much you have spent for magazines or papers—that goes under 'Improvements,' and if you give something to a beggar you must tell me so I can put it down under 'Church and Charity.'

"Every night I will ask you so you won't forget anything. Angelica has been helping one young couple and they haven't been a cent out of the way since they began. The husband remembers every tinty winty thing he spends and he is so happy just on account of it."

Morton snorted inwardly and had some rather sinister thoughts regarding Angelica and her missionary enterprise. "Is there a definite percentage for the amount of tobacco a husband can use?"

"Yes, indeed—but the book says that one of the things the young people ought to strive to do is to divert that money—those are the words the book uses—into other more worth-while channels, such as lecture courses, the purchase of an encyclopedia or a beautiful work of art. Don't you think Angelica is doing a wonderful work?"

"Yes, quite wonderful, not to say remarkable, phenomenal and epoch-making," said Morton, and Peggy was satisfied.

Every night for a month thereafter Morton was obliged to confess just how much he spent on luncheon, shoeshines, beggars and tobacco, and even had to admit that he lost a dollar on a bet one day and gained two dollars the next, though Peggy hadn't any idea where to enter these items and finally decided on putting the dollar down under "mortgage interest" because she hadn't anything else for that column, and calling the other simply "cash received."

Angelica had promised to help Peggy with the percentages and correct their budget at the end of the following month, and Morton was casting about in his mind for a way of defeating her in her purpose. One night early in the second month of their budget accounts he told his wife he had met an interesting old school friend of his who had a delightful mission in life. He was trying to help the men he knew to make their wives happy and he had worked out a system which as yet he had not had published. It was, said Morton, the theory of this man that the most worth-while thing in life was not money. Money was incidental. One's happiness did not depend on the amount of money one had so why take pains to conserve it? The things that counted were the words one spoke, the smiles and tears and sighs and laughter. It was as folk use these real things of life that they were either happy or unhappy. For instance, if a man laughs only when his wife hits her thumb with a hammer or when he sees a cat with a tin can on the end of its tail, he is pretty sure to make himself and his associates unhappy.

The woman who spends two hours every morning gossiping with a neighbor about another neighbor's divorce case is wasting her time and cheating her husband because a woman's words belong as much to her husband as a man's savings belong to his wife.

Peggy listened intently to the explanation, and seemed enthralled. So far, was she from suspecting Morton's scheme that she even suggested that Angelica would like to meet the stranger, and went off into a very pleasant brown study as she thought that possibly a match might be made between these two workers for humanity's happiness—and so there might, had the second philanthropist been a person of flesh and blood and not a creature of Morton's imagination. Morton gave his wife some typewritten sheets containing items and a system of horizontal and perpendicular lines not unlike Angelica's budget book and he asked her to fill in the items from day to day. He would not let her forget, he said, but would go over the sheets every evening after he had finished telling her just how much he had spent.

One of the items of Morton's scheme was labeled "tears" and under this poor Peggy felt in duty bound—for Morton had accounted for his lunch money to a penny—to explain the cause for every tear she shed. The tears she spent over the frost-bitten geranium plant were in a measure excusable, for death even of a plant is a suitable cause of sorrow, but when she wept over the fact that she was not invited to a certain luncheon party she was in the wrong because the sorrow in that case was prompted by jealousy or personal pique.

Peggy had a hard time with the item marked "laughter" for it was Peggy's nature to laugh a little quite frequently and everytime she stopped to think that she was laughing and that she must remember to put it down in the list she was sobered so she stopped laughing. And it was hard sometimes to have to put down on that sheet for Morton's eyes that she had said "darn it" because the potatoes boiled dry; still there was an item for "profanity" and Morton had decided that "darn it" was as near to profanity as Peggy ever came.

One night—it was the night before Angelica's expected visit and Morton had been unusually severe with Peggy over the sheets, as indeed Peggy had been with Morton because he couldn't remember how much he tipped that day at luncheon—Peggy crumpled down over the sheets in tears. "We're not half so happy as we used to be—before we began to budget everything," she wailed. "I wish Angelo had never left the settlement and I wish your sour-hearted old friend—I know he is sour hearted—was—was in the bottom of the ocean. And I just hate to keep accounts, I do, and I don't want you to tell me how much you spend."

Morton took a warm little hand from under the tear stained face and then raised the face and kissed away the tears.

"Shake, Peggy," he said. "We don't need any one's prescription for happiness, do we? And we are through with budgets for keeps."

"Forever," echoed Peggy, and she meant it.

DEPORTING A WHOLE NATION

Kaiser, in Action Toward Belgium, Is Partly Following Style First Set by King Sargon.

Only a few years ago, comparatively, the great King Sargon was held by critics to be a biblical myth, a monarch who never ruled Assyria, but excavations in that ancient land confounded the alleged historical experts, says the Newark News. And now comes along no less an authority than John Dyneley Prince, formerf statesman of New Jersey, master of some twenty ancient and modern tongues, and head of a department in Columbia university, calling attention to the fact that Sargon first set the style of deporting a whole nation that is being partly followed by the Kaiser in Belgium.

It was some 2,600 years ago that Sargon carried the ten tribes of Israel out of the promised land and filled up their country with Arabs and tribes from northern Asia Minor, and he did such a good job that the Jews never came back. History, however, does not always repeat itself, as witness the return from captivity of the Jews released from Babylonia through Cyrus the Persian.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

LIMERICK.

A Town In Ireland That Has Tradition Behind It.

"Derry stands for Derry Walls; Limerick for the Bridge of the Broken Treaty." The statement seems to be just enough, for, although the walls and the gates and the 'prentice boys of Derry are better known to most people than the Thomond Bridge and the Treaty Stone of Limerick, still the two sieges and what followed them are the great landmarks in the history of two counties. It was after the Battle of the Boyne. The Irish army, under the command of the Frenchman Lauzun, for James had fled the country, retired behind the Shannon, and William's victorious progress southward met with no resistance till his forces approached Limerick from the Tipperary side. At Limerick, however, he quickly discovered that he had to measure swords with no ordinary soldier. Lauzun had had no heart for the fight. He had taken one look at the fortifications of the city, and, muttering to himself that such walls might be "battered down with roasted apples," had retired into Galway. His place, however, had been taken by a man of very different metal, Patrick Sarsfield had no thought of giving up the city without a struggle, and, when William's army finally took up its position on the ridge of Singland, it found the old town grimly determined on defence. It was no question of a blockade, as it was with Derry. The next seventeen days were full of incident. William was slow and methodical. With him it was a question of concentrating sufficient force against the city, in the way of artillery, to reduce it without much loss. Sarsfield pinned his faith to a bewildering rapidity of movement, and the story of how he and "Galloping Hogan" slipped out one night with a few followers, went across Thomond Bridge, struck up the valley of the Shannon, suddenly fell on one of William's artillery trains as it approached the city, destroyed everything in sight, and then returned through Clare to Limerick, contains the central episode of the siege.

Finally, of course, Sarsfield won, and William was obliged to retire. But this outcome was only a respite. A year later Aughrim was fought and lost, and Sarsfield was again locked up in Limerick. This time he was forced to surrender, although on his own terms. The treaty which was signed at the head of the Thomond Bridge secured certain definite rights to all who had followed James, whilst he himself left the city at the head of his men, drums beating and colors flying, and more than 10,000 of his soldiers took ship with him for France, to enter the service of King Louis: "It was the first flight of the Wild Geese."

Looking back from this central point in Limerick's history, its annals still cover centuries. Many people insist that Limerick is the Regia of Ptolemy, and the Rosse-de-Naillagh of the Annals of Mulifernan, and that St. Patrick visited the city in the fifth century. Be all this as it may, when the curtain rings up certainly on its history it is a Danish settlement, and the Danes and the Irish are fighting each other, as they did, off and on, for many centuries for possession of the famous island, in the midst of the Shannon, which formed the nucleus of the city. At last, in the tenth century, Brian Boroimhe came against the Danes with a mighty host, and finally drove them into the sea. And so from 1106 until its conquest by the English in 1174, Brian Boroimhe and his successors reigned in Limerick as kings of Thomond. Henry II. gave the kingdom to Herbert Fitzherbert, in 1179, but the city was frequently in the possession of the Irish chieftains, and, as time went on, it developed into a great and prosperous seaport, with its merchants and its traders and its overweening desire to outdo its rival, Galway. In the seventeenth century, some years before the siege, it reached perhaps the height of its prosperity, but, from the time of the siege onward, as one writer has put it, Limerick has no history. And yet to-day it is a prosperous city enough, and nothing can take away from the beauty of its situation. It lies at the extremity of the richest tract of Ireland, the Golden Vale, which intervenes between the Shannon and the Galtees, great stretches of rich country, whilst beyond it lie the hills of Clare and Tipperary.

Oh, Limerick is a beautiful city as everybody knows,
The river Shannon, full of fish, close by that city flows.

And so, as a certain writer has said, one may go from the bridge leading out of the English town to the Irish town, and follow up the long street—long and winding with the curves that show one has not here a planned city, but a village casually grown into a town—past alleys with windows opening on them from houses that stood there in the time of the siege, and so out to St. John's Gate, on which are still to be seen the "flakes and scars" made by William's artillery.

Then the agent played the record and the toots of Jim's flute came from its throaty depths. Jim listened eagerly. "Now," remarked the agent, "that's just as you played it. ### Opening of Suez Canal.

"It cannot be made, it shall not be made, it will not be made; but if it were made, there would be a war between England and France for the possession of Egypt." So said Lord Palmerston, in 1851, with regard to the then proposed Suez canal.

Nevertheless the forty-eighth anniversary of the inauguration of the forbidden waterway has passed, writes a London correspondent. The first fleet, consisting of 40 vessels, passed through next day, on November 17, 1869. The greatest draught was only 16 feet. How many of those who participated in the inauguration survive? Former Princess Eugenie is one.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and bilious when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a coated tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phospated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation.

CLOVER SILAGE AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR CORN ADVOCATED TO MEET FOOD SCARCITY

Seldom in the History of Farming Has the Seed Corn Supply Been So Limited, With Prices Correspondingly High—Timothy and Clover Grass Have Proven More Than Satisfactory as a Substitute Silage.

INTERESTING ARTICLE BY WISCONSIN FARMER

The difficulty of securing seed corn this season is attracting the attention of farmers to grass silage, which has proven a satisfactory substitute for corn silage as a winter fodder for cattle. Scarcity of seed and consequent advances in prices may prevent some farmers from planting their usual extensive acreage of corn. If there were any reduction in this crop at this critical time, the effect would be immediately felt in the dairy industry of this country. The possibilities are too phegnant of serious conditions which would not only visit loss upon the farmers, but would cripple the dairy and other industries dependent upon the cattle supply.

Hence farmers should find deep interest in the following article from "Hoard's Dairyman," written by Edward Nordman, of Wisconsin, on the subject of "Silage from Clover and Timothy":—

With seed corn selling at exceptionally high prices and hundreds of farmers facing the probability of not being able to obtain all they may need, the prospect of using a satisfactory substitute for corn should appeal especially to residents of northern Wisconsin. Due to the generally unfavorable corn weather of the past few years, scores of northern Wisconsin farmers have turned to clover or a mixture of clover and timothy for their silage. Results generally have been very favorable. Rather a good clover or clover and timothy mixture silage than a poor corn silage, is the way many of them put it. Very good results are obtained from the feeding of these corn substitute silages. Some claim they noted no difference from corn silage to grass silage.

A number of Langlade county, Wisconsin, farmers have practically decided to try to get along entirely on corn silage substitutes. Less worry because of late spring and early fall frosts, less work in the spring and filling is done at a season that would otherwise be devoted to cultivating of corn.

Speaking about getting into a rut, has the reader ever noticed that mossback farmers are not the only persons who acquire this trait? When it comes to taking on new ideas and new plans in regard to farm management, be they ever so practical and beneficial, if they seem to go contrary to the established order they are as slow of acceptance by the so-called progressive farmer or college professor as by the veriest mossback. A case in point is the attitude of most of our leaders in agriculture on the subject of grass silage. It has been demonstrated by scores of farmers that a meadow of timothy and clover in northern Wisconsin, if manured as corn fields usually are, will produce more and better silage than will corn. Yet because it is a commonly accepted idea that corn makes the only silage material, farmers are again being advised to plow up their meadows and plant corn to make silage. This will of course involve a large amount of extra labor and incur risks that are entirely unnecessary.

In view of the fact that the present condition requires that every ounce of energy in this country be utilized to the best advantage, especially in the production of foodstuffs, I am taking it upon myself to point out the immense gain that would result from using grass instead of corn for silage purposes in all of the vast regions to the north of what is strictly the corn belt. Having had several years of experience with grass silage and being in a position to observe the work of other farmers who have had similar experiences, I shall attempt to describe the method that some of us have found most economical for making silage out of grass.

Three-Year Rotation.

Let me say to start with that formerly we practiced the following three-year rotation on our farm: Corn, grain, and a clover, timothy, and alfalfa mixture. Since dropping the corn we simply allow the grass to remain two years and otherwise proceed with our rotation as we did before. That is, our land is in grass two years, then it is plowed up and sowed to grain. We apply manure as we did formerly. It is hauled right from the stable whenever possible and applied directly to the meadow after the first season's grass has been cut. By following this plan we have been able to winter one hundred head of cattle with the product of sixty acres of cultivated land.

The land that we farm, clay loam soil, has been described by experts as ranging from rolling to rough, and contains large numbers of cobble stones. The meadows on our farm will average about four tons of hay per acre per season in two crops when all of the grass is made into hay. We have found the best plan to make our silage out of the first crop, cutting it rather earlier than when made into hay. This secures the first crop when it contains the largest amount of digestible nutrients and leaves plenty of time for a second crop to grow, the feeding value of which is recognized by every feeder of live stock. Our first crop produces approximately ten tons of silage per acre. We have also found it the best policy to take the grass for silage purposes that contains the largest proportion of timothy. Grass of this character makes a silage that is sweeter and more palatable than when made of all clover. We have conveniences for running a stream of water into our blower when the latter is in operation, but it is not always necessary to use this.

Method of Ensiling the Grass.

Our plan is to cut the grass very early in the morning while it is still wet with dew. Unless the day is hot and windy there will be moisture enough, but there should always be water enough so the cut material as it goes into the silo will feel wet to the hand. The grass should be evenly distributed in the silo and the top five or six feet well trampled. If these little precautions are looked after there is no reason why grass in a silo will not keep just as good as corn. We have a ten-horse power silo filling outfit owned co-operatively, which to keep going keeps eight men and three teams busy, besides three men to handle the teams. One of these men is in the silo, one helps load in the field, another helps unload, one feeds the cutter, one man keeps the knives and mower sickles sharp with an emery stone attached to the engine. He also looks after the machinery and sees that this is kept in order.

In the morning all hands turn in and bunch the grass while it is still wet. This is done by forking two mower rows in one and then putting it in piles of convenient size. A horse rake would go quicker, but on our farm it would pick up too many small stones. It takes about one hour in the morning to bunch grass enough to last one day. In this manner we are able to ensile from six to eight tons of grass per hour.

Concerning the quality of grass silage compared with silage made from corn: On our farm we have had a silo for over twelve years. A majority of these years we have succeeded in growing corn which for silage purposes was equal to the best corn grown anywhere. I do not hesitate to say that our grass silage this winter is giving as good results as the best corn silage we have ever had. We are feeding an average of forty pounds per day of this silage to our cows and not a particle of it is ever left in the feed boxes. The cows eat this silage in preference to second crop hay containing a good proportion of alfalfa. If we had the silage to give them I am convinced that many of our cows would consume fifty pounds each per day with mighty good results.

Pushing the Corn Belt Too Far North.

But there are other reasons besides those mentioned why grass rather than corn should be used for silage in northern climates. In our experience with corn we found towards the last that no matter how much fertility was used or how much labor was applied, our corn did not yield as well as it did when the land was new. On the other hand, clover and grasses produce as heavily now as when the land was first broken up. This, I take it, is because corn in our climate is outside of its natural environment, while the other feeds are right at home here. Man has the power of modifying nature to some degree, of course, but not to the extent of upsetting her laws entirely. Careful study reveals the fact that particular portions of the earth are adapted to the production of certain crops better than to others. I take it that it is always better to work with nature in this respect than it is to work against her.

Another reason why grass rather than corn should be grown is that grass is better for the land, especially if this land be rolling and hilly. When the meadows are seeded largely to clover or alfalfa the land is made richer, rather than poorer, by reason of the crop. Not so with the corn. This crop removes from the soil all of the substance that it takes to produce it and leaves the land poorer by that much. In addition, on land with a slope there is a constant loss of fertility due to wash which does not occur on grass land.

The fact that grass can be made into silage and that its feeding value is thereby greatly increased over what it is where converted into hay means more in the production of foodstuff and in the development of northern regions than appears on the surface. It means for one thing that grass in northern Wisconsin and similar regions is a more profitable crop than is corn in Illinois and the balance of the corn belt. It means that live stock farming, with the exception of swine, can be carried on more intensively in the grass regions than where corn is the main crop, and lastly because of the possibilities of live stock famine here. It means that the longer these lands are farmed the richer and more fertile they will become.

Sunday School Lesson Questions

"Jesus sending forth the twelve" (may be used with missionary applications), Mark vi., 1-31.

Golden text—"Freely ye received, freely give," Matt. x., 8.

1. Verses 1-3. To what degree may a teacher of the Bible equal Jesus in His ability to arouse enthusiastic interest?

2. To what extent is the ability to teach a natural gift, or an acquirement by hard study?

3. Verses 4-6. Why is it that, like Jesus, the very best of teachers of the gospel can, as a rule, do more efficient work away from their own homes?

4. Verses 7-13. Why did Jesus send out His preachers by twos, and not singly, as is the modern method?

5. What evidence is there that Jesus meant it to be a perpetual plan for His preachers, and missionaries, to be exclusively supported by the free gifts of the people among whom they laboured?

6. Verses 14-16. How did the fame of Jesus affect Herod?

7. To what extent can an aroused conscience give torment to the sinner?

8. Verses 17-18. Why would you say, or not, that a good man is under obligation at all times to rebuke evil at no matter what risk to himself?

9. What effect did John's reproof have upon Herod?

10. Would John have rebuked Herod if he had followed Christ's injunction, "Neither cast ye your pearls before swine....lest they.... turn again and rend you?"

11. State the circumstances and answer, why it was wrong, for Herod to marry his brother's wife

12. Even if an act should not be wrong in itself, is it ever wise or not, for a person to do anything which outrages the moral sense of the community? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club).

13. Why is it right, or wrong, to seek a divorce for a legal cause, for the purpose of marrying another?

14. Verses 19, 20. When a person is rebuked for his son, how does he generally feel toward the reprover?

15. If Herod had such faith in the goodness of John, why did he put him in prison?

16. Verses 19, 20. How much virtue is there in doing some things that are right, if in the main our life is wrong?

17. Verses 21, 22. What is the general influence of having big dinners or banquets in the home?

18. When a man is under the influence of wine and a licentious dance, what would you say as to the goodness of his resolutions?

19. What to-day is the general influence of wine and dancing?

20. Verses 23-29. Would you say, or not and why, that Herod would have given the order to have John beheaded if he had not been under the influence of passion?

21. What would you say were the steps that led up to the brutalizing of this woman, and which caused her to ask for John's head in a charger?

22. Verses 30, 31. Why is rest as essential as work, for the successful completion of our work?

Snider Spent $500 Without Results

Then Takes Tanlac and Health is Restored—Gains Twelve Pounds

"I have gained back twelve pounds of my lost weight and I don't hesitate to say that I believe Tanlac has saved my life," said Frank Snider of 106 Duchess Street, Toronto, recently, in one of the most remarkable statements yet published in connection with the Premier Preparation in Canada. Mr. Snider is a valued employe of the Chisholm Milling Company and has lived in Toronto for sixteen years. He is also well known in London, his former home.

"I don't reckon anyone ever had a worse case of stomach trouble than I did," continued Mr. Snider. "During the past five years I went down in health and lost weight until I hardly looked like myself. During the past three years I have spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment and medicines, but kept getting worse instead of better. Several specialists told me they could do me no good and I was given to understand there was no hope for me. I couldn't digest anything properly, and I suffered so after meals that I could hardly stand it. I finally got so I couldn't retain anything I would eat and for fifteen months I lived on a diet of such things as oatmeal and milk—the very lightest foods—but this also failed to help me. There was always a hurting in the pit of my stomach and pains in my sides and back around my kidneys. Sometimes I would get so dizzy while at my work that I would just pitch right over on the floor. Many a morning I have started off to work and before getting a block away would have to turn around, go back home and stay. I was off from my work the greater part of two years. Would work a few days and then be laid up for a week or two and was so weak that I could hardly get around at all. Many a night I suffered so much pain from the gas and bloating that I had to get up out of bed and walk the floor for hours.

"Now his is just the way I struggled along for five years and words can't describe my suffering. I tried so many things without getting any relief that I became so down-hearted and discouraged that I told my wfie I guessed it was all up with me. Everything had failed to do me any good and my hopes of getting any better had about all left me. One night, while reading about Tanlac, I told my wife to send and get me a bottle, and it was the luckiest day of my life when I began taking it. The first few doses made me feel better than I have in ten years. My stomach don't bother me any more now, except that it is hard for me to eat enough to satisfy my big appetite. I am free from all pain now, and I haven't missed a day's work since a short time after I began taking Tanlac and I certainly do feel very grateful for what it has done for me. My wife and her sister, who lives in Kitchener, and my brother, in London, are all taking Tanlac on account of the good it has done me, and I will gladly tell anyone that I believe Tanlac is the greatest medicine in the world."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; Havelock, by A. C. Denike; Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; Fowler's Corners, W. A. Hunter; Gelert, by A. J. Scott; Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.

FOOD THE SOLDIER REQUIRES

Twelve Ounces of Meat or Its Equivalent, Fruits, Fat, Bread or Cereal, Sugar or Sirup.

The general knows to a nicety just what part each regiment is to play in a campaign, and the girl may learn to marshal the foods represented in the five great groups so that she knows just which group of foods will provide strong muscles to carry the soldier into battle, which will furnish strong bones to meet the onslaught, which the heat for the struggle, and finally, how much driving-power is needed to carry it through, according to Winifred Stuart Gibbs in St. Nicholas.

So, then, when we marshal our forces we find that a man needs in a day 12 ounces of one, or of a combination of the following: Meat, poultry, cheese, dried vegetables, fish or eggs. To vary the above he may count every glass of milk drunk equal to an ounce of any one of the others.

The soldiers, either in home or military life, must have four pounds of fresh fruit and vegetables in order to keep the bony structure in good condition. He will need the three-quarters of a cupful of fat (this includes butter, oil, the fat of meat eaten, or any other fat in the daily diet) to keep him warm, and to this group he must add one and one-fourth pounds of bread or cereal; and finally, in order to complete the necessary amount of driving-power, he must have two ounces of sugar or one-third of a cupful of sirup.

His Mistake.

As Grogswig fumbled at his front door at four o'clock one morning policeman flashed his light on him and then said:

"Here, you can't open your door with that. That's a cigar."

"Holy smoke," said Grogswig, "I've smoked my latchkey, then."

NINE BOILS

Kept Coming On Neck One After the Other

Anyone who has ever suffered from boils, knows how sick and miserable they make you feel.

When you think you are about cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your wretchedness. All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not cure them and stop more coming.

Boils are simply bad blood bursting out, and the bad blood must be made pure before the boils disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the greatest blood purifier known. It cleanses the system and removes every particle of foul material from the blood, then never another boil comes and the cure is permanent.

Mr. Geo. Ayers, 302 Gloucester St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I wish to tell you what I know about your wonderful Burdock Blood Bitters. In the spring I suppose my system needed cleaning out, for I had nine boils come on my neck one after the other. I quickly got a bottle of B.B.B., and before it was half finished I felt a great change, and it certainly put an end to my boils, otherwise I might have had a lot more. I recommend B.B.B. to all I can, for I know it to be a great remedy."

INCREASED RAIDING AND BRISK ARTILLERY FIGHTING REPORTED

Australian Troops Distinguish Themselves by Several Raids in the Ypres Sector--Enemy's Guns Have Been Busy Against Both Front and Rear Lines on the Whole Front From Vermelles to the South of Armentieres ---Portuguese Troops Repulse An Attack.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 15.—Increased raiding and artillery activity in the Ypres sector and on the front of Armentieres is reported in an official statement from the War Office last night. Australian troops carried out successful raids south of Ypres and captured a number of prisoners. Near Armentieres Portuguese troops drove back an enemy attack. The text reads:

"In an encounter last night in the neighbourhood of the Ypres-Comines Canal, between Australian troops and a large hostile patrol, we captured twenty-seven prisoners. Our casualties were slight. The Australians carried out successful raids during the night west of Houtem and in the neighbourhood of Gapaard, east of Messines. We secured a few prisoners in each case, and inflicted a number of casualties on the enemy.

"The hostile artillery has shown great activity to-day against both front and rear lines on the whole front, from Vermelles to the south of Armentieres. Under cover of smoke released during this bombardment, a strong party of the enemy endeavoured to enter our trenches, but was driven back by the fire of Portuguese troops. The enemy's artillery activity also has been above normal to-day east of Ypres."

German Trenches Are Occupied By Sammies

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Fred. S. Ferguson).

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 15. — American troops now occupy their first German trenches.

They consist of two kilometers (1.242 miles) of front line positions in the Badon Viller region, on the Luneville front.

The positions were occupied in broad daylight by the Americans, after the German evacuation. A German barrage later forced a withdrawal, but the Sammies returned, and now firmly hold the positions.

ROBERT HICKS COY'S FUEL REGULATIONS

Subject to the Fuel Controller's Regulations at All Times

The Robert Hicks Co., Limited, herein announce their policy for coal distribution for the coming season:

1.—No orders booked in advance of shipments received.
2.—Priority to customers on record and in rotation of delivery as per record.
3.—Not more than 80 per cent. of normal requirements will be delivered to any one customer between April 1st and September 1st, and any lesser percentage that we may decide upon as conditions warrant.
4.—When lists on record have been supplied as above, any surplus coal will be distributed to customers of later record, conserving a reasonable supply in the late fall months, to tide over periods when transportation may be difficult or suspended.
5.—Customers must fill in cards signed by them stating the stock they have on hand, and the normal quantity of coal used; agreeing to notify us and any person appointed by the Mayor or City Council, to regulate, control or centralize the distribution of coal in the city, should they procure a further supply.
6.—Orders will not be accepted by telephone and will only be acknowledged when accompanied by cash.
7.—Should the supply of coal be sufficient for all requirements, and greater than anticipated, the balance of the normal requirements will be delivered on each order in rotation.
8.—We would suggest that the different church bodies come together and agree on a policy of conserving fuel, acceptable to the Mayor, as Local Fuel Controller, or to Robert Hicks Co., Limited.

Explanatory.

The above announcement is in reply to the numerous requests we have to accept summer orders now, and will be effective only when spring shipments are received.

The object of these regulations is that in the event of a shortage of coal, such shortage will not all be borne by the winter purchaser, and also to discourage the starting of furnaces in the early fall.

The Veterans Will Parade

All members of the Peterboro Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, are asked to meet at the Y.M.C.A. in uniform at 7.30 o'clock to-night, to take part in the procession to the Grand Opera House, in connection with the Greater Production campaign. It is desired that as many members as possible should be on hand on this occasion.

MANAGER IS BLAMED FOR WASTE OF FOOD

Superintendent of the Wm. Davies Co. Throws Responsibility Upon Man in Charge of Winnipeg Plant For the Loss of 8000 Pounds of Chicken

SHOULD HAVE REPORTED

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, March 15. — "I say plainly that the public are entitled to know the facts about the matter," said Mr. E. C. Fox, superintendent of the Wm. Davies Co., to-day, in reply to the charge made by Controller Arthur Puttee, of Winnipeg, that over 8,000 pounds of decomposed chickens had been taken from the Company's Winnipeg plant and destroyed.

"There is nothing mysterious about the case, and I state frankly that it is all wrong knowingly to carry produce of that kind for such a length of time. The management of the company must take the full responsibility. The company was entirely out of poultry in Toronto and did not know that there was any in the plant at Winnipeg. The man in charge of that branch of our Winnipeg business purchased the chickens in 1916, and was afraid he would lose if he sold at the prevailing prices. He didn't sell in 1917 because he was afraid to cut the price down low enough. If he had reported the matter to Toronto, as he should have done, he would have received instruction to sell and would have come out all right.

"The fact is the poultry was stored in a part of our cold storage plant where there was defective insulation in the wall which caused a leak, thus allowing the warm air to enter. There is no reason for the country to get worked up about the matter. It was a case of an employee of the company failing to report what stock he had in hand. There is an awful lot of feeling about cold storage plants in the country at the present time and a good deal of the feeling is all wrong. "The chickens represent about one hundredth of one per cent. of the stock we handle. Reports in Toronto show that large quantities of produce are lost each year, but there are no prosecutions. It is a crime to carry produce as long as the chickens were held in the cold storage plant in Winnipeg."

MAYOR DUNCAN URGES SUPPORT

Mayor Duncan urges everybody to support the Shamrock Tag Day collection which will be held to-morrow. The object of the collection is a worthy one. The funds are used in connection with the maintenance of St. Vincent's Orphanage and a hearty response is hoped for.

CAN'T USE EGGS FOR SHAMPOOING

Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., March 15. — Fines of $100 to $1,000 may be imposed on barbers who use eggs for shampoo. It takes three eggs to prepare a shampoo, and the yolks are wasted. This is the new order issued by Food Controller McGregor.

Peace Is Ratified

Moscow Pan Soviet Congress Overwhelmingly in Favour—Terms Open Up Vast Territories to German Penetration

TRADE ARGUMENTS

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, March 15.— A meeting of the Bolsheviki faction of the Pan Soviet Congress in Moscow cast 453 votes in favour of accepting the German peace with 8 members not voting.

There were 1,000 delegates to the Pan Soviet Congress in Moscow today and ratification of the Brest Litovsk peace terms was assured by a large majority. The attitude of the social revolutionaries of the left has not been determined, but it cannot change the result.

Former Foreign Minister Leon Trotsky has been named War Commissary.

In open violation of the peace treaty with Russia, Germans and Turks at Trebizond have started a quick advance towards northern trans-Caucasia. Russian forces near Shachtachtey are offering stiff resistance.

It is reported, without confirmation, that the Turks have occupied the Batum district.

WHAT IT MEANS.

Canadian Press Despatch:

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 15.—One year ago to-day Emperor Nicholas abdicated as autocrat of Russia, and yesterday the all Russian congress of Soviet by an overwhelming vote agreed to the German peace terms.

German militarism takes from the present Russian government thousands of square miles of land and millions of inhabitants contained in the former Imperial territories of Finland, Poland, Courland, Lithuania, Esthonia, Livonia and Ukraine in Europe and Baloum Kars and Erivan in the Caucasus.

The Russian army must demobilize, the Russian fleet is interned and favourable trade agreements are to be given Germany and her allies. Announcement of the allied policy towards Russia and of the Japanese intentions in Eastern Siberia will follow quickly the news that the Lenine government, after four months of rule, has surrendered completely to the bombs of Germany and opened up vast European and Asiatic territories to German economic and military penetration.

Rathmore In Collision With Naval Vessel

Twenty-six People Are Missing as Result of Accident

LONDON, March 15.— Twenty-six persons are missing in consequence of a collision between a naval vessel and the British steamship Rathmore. The Rathmore was bound from Holyhead, Wales, across St. George's channel. There were 640 passengers on board the Rathmore, which was badly damaged and was towed to port.

Shamrock Tag Day An Appeal To The Public

The work carried on every day in the year at St. Vincent's Orphanage should excite the charitable and generous impulses of the citizens on Shamrock Tag Day—To-morrow. This foster home is the only one they know, and its maintenance is largely carried on by public assistance. Every Tuesday afternoon in the year, except during the hot weather months, the ladies' auxiliary spend hours in preparing the clothing for these little wards. Their services, the material used, everything in fact, is a contribution, and the work is made a labour of love. The clippings from the cloth are gathered up and sold, and the proceeds provide for the thread and buttons required.

Shamrock Tag Day has met with a fine response by the public of Peterborough, and it is hoped that to-morrow's offering will be equally generous.

DR. HARVEY EXONERATED OF CHARGE OF BREACH OF FUEL REGULATIONS

City Failed to Show That He Had More Coal Than Controller's Order Permitted When He Received a Ton in February—No Defense Was Heard by Magistrate

BOUGHT LESS THAN LAST YEAR

Without hearing the defence, Magistrate Dumble this morning dismissed the charge against Dr. Harvey of "having unlawfully received a quantity of coal, which added to the quantity he had on hand, constituted more than an estimated supply sufficient for his needs for a period of two months, contrary to the Fuel Controller's regulations."

"Discharged," announced the Magistrate, as Dr. Harvey was proceeding to the witness box to testify in his own defence.

"You haven't proved that there was more coal than the doctor needed to carry on for two months," he added, addressing Chief Thompson, who conducted the prosecution.

"I think that's right, your Worship," agreed the Chief.

Such was the result of the only charge laid by the city under the Fuel Controller's regulations. Many investigations were made during the winter, but in not one case was it found that citizens had committed a breach of the Controller's order.

This morning's case showed that Dr. Harvey had not ordered the ton of coal he received on February 18th until his supply had been reduced to considerably less than his requirement for two months' burning.

Mr. F. W. Miller's Report.

Mr. F. W. Miller, the first witness for the prosecution, said:

"I was appointed by the Mayor to investigate the coal question, to find out the quantities of coal in the cellars of citizens. It was for the purpose of ascertaining whether there was an oversupply or not. Three weeks ago there was a rumour that Dr. Harvey had got a ton of coal and that he had quite a quantity before it was put there. Constable Lawrence and myself went to Dr. Harvey's. He was very obliging and didn't hesitate to show us the supply in his cellar.

We found quite a quantity of coal there. I thought there would be probably five or six tons. The doctor said he thought he had about three tons before the last ton was put in. I came back and reported to the Mayor, who handed the matter over to the Chief."

To Chief Thompson — "I thought there was about five tons, but we gave the doctor the benefit of his own estimate of four tons. This was furnace coal.

Mr. Miller quoted from the official U. S. table of weights and measures of coal to show the space occupied by one ton of furnace coal.

JAPANESE INTERVENTION A QUESTION OF TIME

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Ralph Turner.)

TOKIO, March 15.—The Japanese intervention in Siberia is believed to be merely a question of time. All indications and the Japanese mobilization increases this belief, although Government officials have not disclosed their policy towards Siberia.

It was learned to-day that Japan intends to mediate between North and South China, unifying all factions to meet the Russian crisis.

RUSSIA MUST HAVE HELP TO COMBAT GERMANS

Foreign Secretary Balfour Declares That Allied Point of View Was That They Should Help Russia to Help Herself

DEBATE IN HOUSE

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 15.— The debate on the question of Japanese intervention in Siberia in the House of Commons yesterday brought from Foreign Secretary Balfour the declaration that German penetration in Russia must be combatted.

The allied point of view was that they should help Russia in protecting herself against Germany.

Although he did not think that Germany would send an army to Vladivostok, he said he had absolute faith in Japan's loyalty in carrying out any decision reached by the Allies.

Mr. Balfour said he was unable to see how, without external help, Russia was going to resist this German malady, adding: "Therefore the question we had to ask ourselves was could any of the allies go to Russia in her extremity with that help and sympathy she so sorely stood in need of? Help and sympathy the allies desired to give was not invasion in plunder. What America, Great Britain, France and Japan desire to give at the present moment is help, help to get Russia through the great crisis in her destiny.

A Lakefield Appreciation

LAKEFIELD, March 15. — The passing of Mr. F. R. Yokome is a cause of deep regret to many friends and admirers in Lakefield. A man of fine education, wide reading and the highest culture, coupled with a fearless character and innate refinement of the best type, he was an ideal journalist; and those who enjoyed the privilege of training under him have been furnished with a valuable asset in the editorial field.

He was inseparably associated with The Examiner in the minds of its readers—at least those of riper years, and its splendid editorials and articles were always read with benefit and pleasure.

To whatever point the wide circulation of The Examiner carries it, its readers will learn of Mr. Yokome's death with a sense of personal loss and sorrow that the products of his gifted mind and inspired pen are no longer to be enjoyed.

COPIES OF "THE PARASITE" SEIZED AT SPENCE'S HOME

Secretary of Ontario Branch of Dominion Alliance Is to Be Charged With a Violation of the Censorship Regulations

POLICE TAKE ACTION

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, March 15.—The police to-day seized one thousand copies of "The Parasite," prohibited by the censor, at the home of Rev. Ben Spence, secretary of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Prohibition Alliance, and issued a summons for Spence on charges of breach of censorship.

Ten thousand copies of this work, of which Spence is charged as co-author with Arthur Mee, are held under seal by the Dominion Government in the Methodist book rooms, where the edition was printed.

Meetings Will Continue To-night

Last night the first of the series of special services to be conducted by Adjutant Trickey, the musical revivalist, was held at the Brownton Salvation Army Hall. This meeting took the form of a reception to the Adjutant, refreshments being served. Commandant McElhiney was Master of Ceremonies and spoke words of welcome. Ensign Harrive and representative speakers from No. 1 and No. 2 Corps each spoke briefly. The meeting was most interesting, there being plenty of campaign music and singing. The Adjutant reviewed his travels during the past three or four months, and stated that over four hundred men, women and young people had been to the front seeking the higher life. The Adjutant's theme was in reference to the Bible incident of the "man who came through the roof." The duty of Christians was clearly pointed out and at the close eight persons came to the front.

To-night, at 8 o'clock, the Adjutant will sing his campaign songs, "I am Determined," "The Healing Waters," and "Pack Your Worries," and the subject of the address will be "A Half-Baked Cake." A good crowd will no doubt be present. The public are heartily invited to any of the services.

FARMERS TO BE GIVEN LOANS TO PURCHASE SEED

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, March 15.— To further the Ontario Government's effort to increase production of food in the province of Ontario, Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer on behalf of the Government, to-day signed an agreement with the Canadian Bankers' Association by the terms of which farmers may secure money by way of loan to buy seed through all branches of banks comprising the Association. A loan to the maximum of $200 to any one applicant may be obtained on application to branch managers up to and including the first of July, 1918.

MORE FOOD PRODUCTION.

The campaign for more food production is not limited in its usefulness to the war although it is a necessary war measure, says the Toronto Star. There is sure to be a scarcity of food for many years after the war. The cost of food was rising before the war in this country and in the United States. Both countries had ceased to be distinctively agricultural. The rural and urban populations are now nearly equal. The urban population of the United States according to the last census was 46.3 per cent., and the urban population of Canada 45.5 per cent. In the years since the census was taken, 1910 and 1911, the urban percentage has probably increased.

After the war the world will need many things, but nothing so much as food, without which no industry can be carried on. No farmer need fear a return of the conditions of some twenty years ago, when farmers in the United States and Canada were unable to find adequate markets for their products. The advantage for years to come will be on the side of the producer, of the man who has food to sell, not the customer.

The drift from the countryside to the city will be checked. The attractions of city life will be offset by the comparative security and independence of the farm. Every man who remains on the land, every man who goes back to the land, will be helping himself and helping the country. He will be contributing his brains and labor to producing food, instead of more mouths to consume it.

Manufacturers are looking forward to the day when the making of munitions and other war supplies will cease, and are thinking and planning substitutes which will enable industry to be carried on, and prevent unemployment. There will be a race for foreign markets. In this field will be keen competition and it is is doubtful whether the most strenuous effort will provide Canada with outside markets equal to those created by war.

It will be wise, therefore, to enlarge the home market by increasing the farm population of Canada. Protective tariffs will be useless unless we have the farm population to produce food, and with it to purchase manufactured goods. Encouragement should be given to farmer immigrants rather than to artisans. A vigorous effort should be made to populate the great fertile regions of the West. Land lying idle should be forced into cultivation by taxation. New farm land should be settled, and intensive cultivation applied to old land.

ON DOGS.

A reader suggests that in view of the activity of the newest city official this article on dogs may be timely. Some people do not like dogs. They are to be pitied. Persons who do not care for animals are incomplete human beings. They have a blind side and by just so much are their souls dwarfed. The virtues of a dog may be few, but they are flawless and in that respect superior to human graces. When he loves, he loves whole-heartedly, without calculation and for all time. His faithfulness is as a rock in a weary place, a shelter from the storm. Even ill usage will not wholly alienate his affections and custom does not stale the strength of his devotion. He is a friend in good fortune or in bad. Rags or cloth of gold are as one to him, and even cupboard bone will not tempt him from a poor master to a rich one. The beautiful lines of Bishop Doane to his dog, written many years ago, are worth repeating when one thinks or speaks of dogs.

I am quite sure he thinks that I am God,
Since he is God on whom each one depends
For life and all things that his bounty sends
My dear old dog, most constant of all friends,
Not quick to mind, but quicker far than I
To turn to God, I know and own; his eye
Deep brown and liquid watches for my nod
He is more patient underneath the rod
Than I when God his wise correction sends—
He looks love at me deep as words e'er spake
And from me never crumb nor sup will take,
But wags thanks with his most vocal tail
And when some crashing noise wakes all his fear
He is content and quiet if I'm near,
Secure that my protection will prevail,
So faithful mindful, thankful, trustful, he Tells me what I unto God should be."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

That Canada must plan for an fuel supply not merely for next year, but for a decade, is the opinion of Professor Gillespie, chairman of the Toronto branch of the Canadian Society of Civic Engineers.

The announcement that men in depot battalions who have been overseas may wear the cap and collar badges of the unit in which they served, will be a welcome one for the returned men.

Apparently the responsibility of enforcing the new food regulations is to be thrown upon the municipalities. By the terms of the order-in-council, wilful waste of any food or food products resulting from carelessness, manner of storage or any other avertable cause is now illegal and subject to heavy penalties. Municipalities are obligated to enforce this regulation within their respective municipal limits," says the official statement of the Food Board.

LAKEFIELD COUNCIL MEETING

LAKEFIELD, March 15. — The Council met in the town hall on Monday, March 11. All the members were present. The following statement of accounts due was presented:

R. Simpson, shovelling snow, $22; J. Watson, stationery and postage, $2.25; Lakefield Electric C., one month, $61.45; W. Stables, draining, etc., $10.45.

Moved by Coun. Porter, seconded by Coun. McDonald, that the accounts be paid.—Carried.

The remainder of the evening was spent in debate. Reeve Fizgerald and Coun. Charlton have resigned from their respective positions.

Miss Christie of Hastings is spending a few days with Mrs. Alex. Kidd of Smith.

Mr. W. M. Graham spent a few days in Toronto, making selections for his spring opening.

Miss Vera Gardines of Norwood is visiting Miss Olive Northcott.

Mrs. Sawyer of Havelock is visiting friends in the Village, renewing old acquaintances.

Mr. Hilliard Miller of the Royal Bank staff, Ottawa, is at his home in Smith for a few days.

Mrs. Barlow of Toronto spent a few days with Mrs. F. C. Marshall this week.

Mr. Dave Webster has returned to the village after an absence of some months in the Southern States.

Mr. F. C. Leonard was one of the week-end visitors in Lakefield. He was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Strickland.

The many friends of Mrs. T. Watson will regret to learn that she had a bad fall on the ice on Wednesday, and injured herself severely.

Rev. Robert Laird of Toronto, formerly a missionary to the Fiji Islands, spoke at both services in the Presbyterian church on Sunday.

Services at St. John's Church were held in the Sunday School room on Sunday, owing to the scarcity of fuel.

The Young People's Society of the Presbyterian Church have decided to buy a piano for their use.

Mr. E. Peacock of the Commercial House has purchased the Midland House, formerly occupied by Mr. Roland D'Arcy (now of the Royal Flying Corps). Mr. Peacock will move in early in April and contemplates many improvements to the property. His many friends wish him all success.

The Girls' Auxiliary of St. John's Church held their annual meeting on Monday evening, March 11th, at the home of Miss Hampton. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Hon. President—Mrs. H. A. Ben Oliel.
President—Mrs. Marling.
Vice-President—Miss Watson.
Secretary—Miss Ogilvie.
Treasurer—Miss Smith.
Dorcas Secretary — Miss Grace Hampton.

PRISON FOR COAL THEFT TO WARM CHILDREN

MONTREAL, March 14. — Jos. Chanell stole thirty-five pounds of coal, valued at $1.50, as he had five children and no fuel with which to keep them warm, he said. Judge Leet in the Police Court here sentenced him to jail for ten days.

ELECTRIC HEATING IN PETERBORO' IS NOT FEASIBLE UNDER PRESENT CONDITIONS

Work Would Involve Development of Power, Construction of New Transmission System, Rewiring of Houses and Many Other Difficulties Not Apparent to the Layman —Present Supply of Power is Inadequate and is Needed For Industrial Development.

VERDICT OF ENGINEERS

At a meeting of the Engineers' Club, held last evening in the Public Library, it was practically conceded that the cost of commercial heating by electricity was prohibitive and that the present supply of electrical energy can be used to greater advantage in connection with industrial development rather than heating private dwellings. One exception noted at the meeting was the matter of electrifying steam railways. This would result in a great saving of coal and provide a more efficien service under all weather conditions. Mr. C. E. Canfield, president of the club, presided at the meeting. The chief speaker of the evening was Mr. F. R. Shirley, an engineer in the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company. Mr. Shirley presented a very interesting paper covering the practical experience which he has had in connection with the matter of electric heating for private dwellings and also buildings in connection with power plants.

Has Many Advantages.

In this paper Mr. Shirley enumerated the many advantages of electrical heating as follows:

Number one—Great efficiency. The electric heater being nearly one hundred per cent efficient. Ordinary gas is not more than twenty per cent., while coal is less than fifty per cent.

Number two—Entire absence of smoke, dust and fumes.

Number three—Elimination of storage and handling of fuel.

Number four—Lessening of fire hazard.

Number five—No vital oxygen is consumed from the air as in the case of open flame heaters.

Number six—Greater flexibility in temperature control.

Number seven—It is extremely portable, heaters being readily located wherever required.

Number eight—Heat is instantly available at the turn of a switch.

Practical Experience.

Mr. Shirley's first serious attempt at electrical heating was in Northern Ontario when with the British Canadian Power Company at Cobalt, the houses for the staff were electrically heated. Heaters were cheaply constructed of ordinary stove pipe wire at a cost of about three dollars each. In a house occupied by Mr. Shirley, with a cubical content of about 7,230 feet, about thirteen Kilowatt power was installed, which was a total of 1.8 watts per cubic foot. This total amount was never turned on more than two or three times during the time that the house was occupied by the speaker. The maximum in cold weather was usually 8.9 kilowatt or 1.23 watts per cubic foot. This amount in addition to heating the house to a temperature of seventy degrees did all the cooking. The outside temperature at times went as low as 43 degrees below zero. At one period in February, 1914, the minimum temperature for a continuous period of three weeks ranged from eighteen degrees below zero to forty-three degrees below zero. During the severe weather no difficulty was experienced in keeping the house at a temperature of seventy degrees, and using only 1.23 watts per cubic foot as a maximum. The average for this period did not run over ninety per cent of this or approximately one watt per cubic foot, making the cost of heating the house and doing the cooking in the severe weather about forty-eight cents per day or the price being paid for power at that particular place, viz.: 1-4 per kilowatt hour. At the present rate in Peterborough of one and a quarter cents per kilowatt hour this would have cost $2.40 per day or about seventy-two dollars per month less discount.

Heating in Quebec.

An experiment conducted in Quebec also under the supervision of Mr. Shirley, a continuous test run on electric heaters from February 17th until March 31st, 1917, gave an average internal temperature of over seventy degrees. The average minimum temperature outside to the end of February was 8.67 degrees below zero. The maximum amount of power used at any one period was 1.63 watts per cubic foot of heated air space.

In view of the results obtained Mr. Shirley said he would have no hesitation in saying that equally good results can be obtained in Peterborough by using a maximum installation not exceeding 1.25 watts per cubic foot of heated air space. The average power required would probably not run over .75 or 1 watt per cubic foot even in the severe weather.

An average house in Peterborough would probably have eight thousand cubic feet in capacity of air to heat. Supposing it is desirable to heat it to 70 degrees all over. About 8 kilowatt would probably be sufficient to take care of the average conditions. At the present rate of power in Peterborough of 1 1-4 cents per kilowatt hour this would cost ten cents per hours or $2.40 per days less the discount. As it is hardly desirable in most cases to heat the entire house to seventy degrees this figure might be cut in half or say $1.25 per day, less the discount. In view of the possibility of the Hydro rates being cut to five-eights of a cent per kilowatt hour where the power consumption runs up to 60 kilowatt hour this would reduce the cost to 62 1-2 cents per day less ten per cent discount or about 55 1-4 cents per day. For an average thirty day month this would amount to about $16.50 per month. This consumption for six months of the year would amount to $100, which figure would not be unreasonable and would be equivalent to nine or ten tons of coal.

Power Supply.

The next problem that presents itself said Mr. Shirley, is can we obtain the necessary power? Peterborough has a population of about 23,000. Assuming four or five persons to a house there would be approximately five thousand homes in the city. Providing twenty per cent of the houses would use electric heating and that an average of eight kilowat per hour was installed which would be a fair estimate, we would require eight thousand kilowatt or over ten thousand hores power. A fact to be considered is that the greater part of this power would be used during the winter months only and some other use would have to be found for it in the summer to make the installation profitable.

COST OF RE-WIRING.

Mr. C. E. Sisson estimated the cost of re-wiring a six or seven roomed house for electric heating purposes, at about one hundred dollars. He commented upon the poor quality of wiring in use in Peterboro at the present time.

A SUGGESTION.

Mr. J. C. Shook said he had found out more at the meeting than he had found other ways in two years. He suggested that the city council appropriate a sum of money to be used for experimental purposes in the development of electric heating.

ADAPTABLE TO CHURCHES.

Mr. Shirley remarked that electric heating was particularly adaptable to a church, where the building was heated only for a short period.

NO POWER AVAILABLE.

Mr. G. R. Langley said that it was possible that a house could be heated for one hundred and five dollars for four and a half months of inter-season weather such as early fall and early spring at a rate of one half cent or less as promised by Sir Adam Beck. In this case the electrical heating would be used as an auxiliary system. Mr. Langley also emphasized the fact that at the present time there was no power available for heating purposes, and will not be any next winter, or for some years to come.

INTERESTING FIGURES.

Mr. C. Fessenden presented a number of calculations which he had made, chief among them, that a half pound of coal for heating purposes is equivalent to one kilowatt, except in the case of railway engines where it takes eight pounds of coal in the summer time to equal one kilowatt, and a larger amount in winter. "We can save more coal by using electricity on the railways than in heating houses," said Mr. Fessenden. With a half cent rate we could compete with coal at fifteen dollars per ton.

MAYOR DUNCAN.

Mayor Duncan said he had asked Sir Adam Beck if it would be possible to secure electrical energy in the event of electrifying the branch lines of the Grand Trunk radiating from Peterboro to Port Hope, Lakefield and other places, and had received a negative reply. "There is no power available until more is developed," was Sir Adam Beck's reply. Mayor Duncan said he was in favor of electric heating and intimated that the price of power would soon be down to one half cent a kilowatt.

Ald. J. Edgar said that fifty thousand tons of coal was consumed in Peterboro each year, representing at present prices approximately five hundred and fifty thousand dollars. This, Ald. Edgar contended would be sufficient to pay interest and sinking fund on a six million dollar investment for electrical development.

One of the engineers present remarked that an investment of six million dollars in power development would only supply a portion of the electrical energy required and in any case would not entirely do away with the consumption of coal.

SIXTY-FIVE DEGREES.

Mr. A. B. Cunningham reviewed for the benefit of the meeting some experiments he had made in connection with coal and electrical heating. In many cases Mr. Cunningham favored a temperature of sixty-five degrees.

HEATING INSTALLATION.

Mr. J. J. Turner, president of the Board of Trade, said he was contemplating electrical heating installation and was in the market for all the information that he could obtain on the subject.

CANNOT BE STORED.

Mr. Andrew Murray wanted to know if electrical energy could be stored, and the reply was a negative one.

AMPLE WATER SUPPLY.

Mr. R. B. Rogers related his experiences with electrical energy as developed by him on his farm, and which is used to pump water and light the buildings, etc., at a monthly cost of a little over three dollars. Mr. Rogers said there was ample water storage in the north country for use in connection with electrical development.

"At present," said Mr. G. R. Langley, "the power we have is needed for industrial development, and not for heating. In this way the power can be utilized to greater advantage, and more economically, with the exception of railways."

"For the last twenty years the demand for power has been in excess of the available supply," said Mr. H. Fife.

THINK AHEAD!

Gentlemen:

Our best advice is to look ahead and have us book your order TO-MORROW for your NEW EASTER SUIT, Made to your Measure. It will be real economy.

Every day you put off ordering, the more you'll have to pay on account of the advancing price of woolens.

Don't take any chances. You have to pay more at other stores now, but our foresight enables you to pay less at Scotland Woolen Mills Company.

If the war continues the wool shortage will make such Pure Wool Suits almost impossible at any price.

We'll promise to have your suit ready for Easter.

Railways Rushing Liquor For Oases In The "Bone Dry" Desert

Three Hundred Pounds of Liquor One of the Big Consignments Delivered to Private Home in the City—Farmers Are Stocking Up, Too, According to Reliable Reports

Anticipating his official suppression on April 1st John Barleycorn is breaking up his forces into little groups and disposing them far and wide over a country that will be superficially "bone dry" on All Fools Day. That harsh phrase sounds decisive and conclusive, but Barleycorn was always an adept in compromise. Even now he is planting little wells of refreshment in many an oasis that will remain green and gushing for many a month after his departure, leaving an otherwise arid vastness, a desert in which old familiar connotations such as Burke's Irish, Hennessey's Three Stars, Mackie's White Horse, and Gordon's Dry, will be gradually forgotten as facts, effects and sometimes pleasant memories.

But as the official conserving and reforming sponge looms over Barleycorn's sparkling forms, he is pouring into cellars in streams that stretch from Montreal with a considerable backwash into Peterboro. Never has there been such stocking up of booze, according to the the express companies' receipts, and empty coal bins are finding a new fuel that to John's staunchest followers is a year round necessity. Five gallon consignments are paltry orders in the same express car that bears three hundred pounds of liquor to one man, and twenty-five gallons to another. Many an individual shipment represents $50 of hard-earned coin, and $125 lots are not uncommon.

Old John goes into a long, perhaps, permanent exile with the parting compromise that this tidal wave will for the most part eddy into the homes of reputable citizens, where excesses and debauchery are bad form. It's a substantial salary, or a great sacrifice, that permits the purchase of one hundred dollars' worth of booze in a single throw. Then think of the strain on the cellar's capacity. The coal scarcity has its compensations. Then, another ancient excuse is medical necessity. It is a simple sum to ascertain the number of doses in a five gallon keg of whiskey, allowing a wine glass measure per dose. Even one keg offers a long treatment, to be gradually reduced and diluted as the supply runs low, with no extras for Christmas. It will probably be deemed advisable to close the "coal" bar on Sundays; on a local option basis the well has great possibilities providing friends are not admitted to the secret draughts.

All the planted wells are not confined to the city. There are many temperate men in the townships whose orders proclaim their practice or belief that they can take a drop, and leave it alone. Any other construction of their actions would suggest one great spree as a last orgy with Barleycorn. It is more likely that these limited supplies will be carefully hubanded, like the miser's gold, or a hoard of coal in a winter like 1917-18.

But old John's days are numbered, and his resources are inexorably limited, while the "bone-dry" law remains. He may totter on the plank but the grave yawns for him, and when he finally disappears may it be in the manner of the expressive "sprulos versenkt"—sunk without a trace.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE "THE SPY" TO-MORROW

One of the Greatest Films of Its Kind Shown

"The Spy," a photo play depicting the workings of the villainous secret German spy system, is the feature of the Royal programme at the Grand to-morrow, matinee and evening. Dustin Farnum takes the leading part and plays the role so true to life that his sufferings appear very real.

There is a peculiar turn in the plot of the picture, wherein the female spy who is to watch the character taken by Farnum, falls in love with him and he with her, and it enables him to carry out what he went to Germany to accomplish.

See it at the matinee to-morrow, only 10c and 15c.

The Box Office opens to-morrow at 10 a.m. for sale of seats for this big attraction, which comes to "The Grand" Tuesday evening next, March 18.

Greater Production And Better Wages Discussed By The Veterans

The attendance at the meeting of the Great War Veterans last night, to consider the proposal that the Veterans should ask the government for the lease of the rifle range land in order that the members might work the land, was not very large, and the plan was not very favorably received. It is altogether probable that a proposition to secure grounds within the city limits, or close to them, where the Veterans could cultivate a garden, will be substituted for the original plan.

The difficulty in connection with the Rifle Range property was that it was too far away to make it feasible for men to cultivate it after their day's work was done, while it was felt that if enough men were found to go out and live on the ground, there was no way of finacing the proposition.

The garden lot idea will be taken up at the next general meeting.

The members present felt that the position of caretaker at the Rifle Ranges should be given to a returned soldier, and passed a resolution to that effect which will be forwarded to Mr. Burnham. The latter was also asked to inquire into the reason why an assistant caretaker was not appointed for the armouries.

WAGES TOO LOW.

A letter from Superintendent Killaly, of the Trent Canal, asking for the names of returned men who wished employment as laborers, caused considerable discussion. The maximum wage offered was $2.35 per day, which the members felt was too low in view of the high cost of living and of the scale of pay for laborers in other work in this district. It was felt that the government should pay the same scale of wages, and a resolution was passed pointing out these fact, to be forwarded to the Minister of Railways and Canals, Mr. Burnham and Mr. Killaly.

ST. ANDREW'S CANVASS WAS SPLENDID SUCCESS

The elders and managers of St. Andrew's Church with the assistants selected for the purpose at a meeting held recently, made a house to house canvass of the congregation on the first three evenings of this week. A report of the work was made last night at a meeting of the workers held in the school room.

An increase in contributions was asked for, both for mission work and for the maintenance of the church, and the request met with a ready response.

The canvassers were unanimous in reporting that they had been given a hearty reception everywhere, and the results are most gratifying.

There is a gratifying increase shown both in the number of new attendants at St. Andrews and in the amount of contributions pledged for the current year.

All the returns are not yet in but sufficient were available to indicate that the envelope contributions will this year exceed those of 1917 by over $350 for the maintenance of the church and $300 for missions. When all members and adherents are heard from these figures are certain to be still further augmented.

The men who made the canvass take this opportunity of thanking the members of the congregation for the cordial reception which they extended the visitors and their generosity in the matter of pledges for support. The interest manifested in the welfare of the congregation on all sides was especially noteworthy.

One of the most pleasing features revealed by the canvass was the popularity of and the esteem in which Rev. W. L. H. Rowand, the minister in charge, is held by the members of the congregation. His pastoral work especially is appreciated. Mr. Rowand has been ten months in his present charge yet in that time he has called on every member and adherent of the church at least twice and has been particularly attentive to new arrivals in the city who are likely to associate themselves with the church.

Mr. Rowand believes in systematic visitation. He adheres to the good old Presbyterian custom of announcing each Sunday the districts in which he will make his pastoral calls on certain days of that week.

PLANNING FOR NEXT WINTER'S COAL SUPPLY

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MONTREAL, March 15. — The Canadian Railway Association for national defense has started a vigorous campaign among all agencies handling coal to assure Ontario and Quebec having a sufficient fuel supply next winter. Railways, dealers and consumers are being urged to co-operate to secure service during the spring and summer. It is understood that C. A. Magrath, the Dominion Fuel Controller, wants to be relieved of his duties, but the government is urging him to continue in view of the valuable services given in the past four months.

THE LEVEL-HEADED business man economizes in many ways, but he never reduces his newspaper advertising when he needs new business.

WILL NOT HESITATE TO CHOOSE BETWEEN BREAD AND BEER

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 15. — When it comes time for the government to choose between bread and beer, said Lloyd George, at a meeting here, the government would not hesitate for a moment. In the meantime, he said, the consumption of intoxicating liquors is now only one-third what it was four years ago, and no spirits were being manufactured at all.

PILOT IS DISCHARGED

Canadian Press Despatch:

HALIFAX, N.S., March 15.—Habeas corpus application in the case of Pilot Francis MacKay committed for trial for manslaughter in connection with the Imo-Mont Blanc collision, which caused the Halifax disaster, was granted to-day by Judge Russell, who stated there was no evidence whatever upon which an unbiased tribunal could hold Pilot MacKay criminally culpable. MacKay was discharged.

Mr. Gates Loses His First Case

There were mutterings of hostilities this morning after Magistrate Dumble dismissed a charge against Chas. "Bud" Tucker, of having permitted his dog to run at large. Mr. Tucker declared the dog did not belong to him.

After it was all over, Mr. Gates found consolation in the remark, in the ante-room, that it was the first case he lost.

He had based his information on circumstantial evidence, but his case had one glaring loophole. He had heard that two dogs were loose on Charlotte street. He found one (a cocker spaniel) which answered Mr. Tucker's call. Investigation of the police records showed that he had taken out two licenses for cocker spaniels; hence, Mr. Gates concluded that the dog he had seen was one of Mr. Tucker's.

The defendant explained that he had two registered dogs, but there was another spaniel at the place he boarded, and this was the dog Mr. Gates had seen on the street.

"We will have to wait your turn," Mr. Dumble remarked. "He's after you."

Mr. Tucker replied that the catcher was too officious. If he had taken the trouble he could have found out who owned the dog.

"Come along now!" was Mr. Gates advice, given with the gesture of a policeman. One thing lead to another, and the pair started down stairs, the wordy war increasing in sharpness as they descended the steps. Finally the court room door had to be shut to dull the rumblings.

"Any time, at all, old top!" from Mr. Gates, sounded very much as if he had thrown down the gauntlet and was prepared for any turn.

Red Cross Tea Last Evening

The George street Sunday school class of Miss Parker held a Red Cross tea last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Brownscombe, Murray street, to supplement the funds being raised by this class for Red Cross purposes. Occasion was taken to present Miss Marjorie Mather with a shower in view of her approaching marriage.

Splendid Options Of Horticultural Society

Make It Worth the Membership Fee of One Dollar

A complete list of the different options offered by the Peterborough Horticultural Society was published a few days ago in these columns and brought forth very gratifying response in the number of members enrolled for this season. A glimpse at the list offered must have aroused the question in the minds of those uninformed with this organization of just how these premiums could be handed out on the payment of the one dollar membership fee a little explantion would therefore be quite in order. The different Horticultural Societies throughout the province are financially aided by the Ontario government in proportion to their membership and amount of money vaue in goods which they distribute each season it therefore follows the stronger the Society the more help it will receive from the government. Present members are therefore urged in their own interests to see that their friends are made aware of the advantages of becoming members. Additional option sheets may be had at Mr. Denne's store or any member of the Board of Directors. This society is backing up the Greater production movement by offering their members seeds berry plants, potatoes, etc., at wholesale prices. Get a list and see.

Mr. Joseph Wearing Asked To Accept Local Appointment

Another Movement Sprung Up to Assist Greater Production

The Canada Food Board has requested Mr. Joseph Wearing to accept the position of city director of soldiers of the soil. The purpose is to enroll boys between the ages of fifteen and nineteen for employment on farms. During 1917 several thousand Canadian boys demonstrated their willingness and efficiency in farm work and this year, because of the urgent need of increased food production and the shortage of man-power on the land there is a strong demand for all boys patriotic enough to enlist in this movement.

Mr. Wearing has readily consented to do everything in his power to assist the work, but is afraid that with so many organizations in operation there is a danger of overlapping. The result of the meeting in the Opera House to-night should result in a centralization of effort and a co-ordination of all local movements for increased production.

SHAMROCK TAG DAY

St. Peter's Ladies' Aid intend holding their annual Tag Day on Saturday, 16th March, 1918, in behalf of the orphanage at St. Vincent's Home. We hope and feel assured those who contributed so handsomely in the past will kindly remember them this year also. As they have to depend almost on voluntary offerings, and there are at present in the home over forty orphans, I'm sure you will feel recompensed when you know those children pray daily for their benefactors.

Jiggs Does the Shopping

Now then, Jiggs, leave this list at the store on your way to work this morning, and tell them to have the things ready for you when you call this evening on your way home.

Aw! have a heart Margie. I ain't a horse, and I wanta go to Dinty's to-night.

You insect! You won't go to Dinty's, you'll do as I tell you.

Well, why can't they send 'em?

Don't you argue! It's cheaper to have you carry them.

Aw! Say! I ain't gotta carry all them things at one time. I'll get 'em to-morrow at the store across the road.

You overfed, lazy wretch! You must get these things to-day at A. W. Paskin's store. Do you think I'm going to miss such a chance as those Shamrock Day bargains. Now, then, write down this list and don't you forget anything.

Recruiting Men For Duty In Canada

COBOURG, March 15. — Capt. O'Leary, who arrived in the town on Wednesday to secure one hundred men for coast duty, garrison artillery, at Halifax, and twenty-five men for heavy artillery at Quebec city, expects to secure a number of eligible men here. In his recruiting he is not allowed to take men who come under the class which is now available for service, and this branch of the service provides an excellent opportunity for those who belong to late classes to get into the service. The men will come under the same pay and allowances as the overseas service, but will be held for duty in Canada only. As men are signed up they will be placed on command and will then be sent out on recruiting duty. The coast defence and heavy artillery service should appeal to many young men in this district, and Capt. O'Leary will likely not have much difficulty in securing his men. He may be found at Cobourg Armouries for several days by those wishing to join his unit.

ARE TIRED OF BEING ORGANIZED

"Stop Organizing and Get to Work" Suggests Over-Advised Farmer

The following letter, which appeared in the Toronto Globe, contains more truth than fiction;

Editor Woman's Page. — Most heartily do I back up the letter signed M. Sauter. Stop, stop organizing and get to work, is the word. We farmers' wives are so deathly sick of reading about the conference here and organization there that we are nearly ready to give up in despair if it were not for our sons at the front.

Farmers' wives always have to conserve, at least the majority. Butter and eggs have to be used sparingly as they give the income from which we clothe ourselves and provide the groceries as well. As for bacon, I have not had one ounce in my home since the Government asked us to save more than a year ago, and only pie since Christmas, but we do not starve, either. It is lazy housewives that use the things most easily prepared, or at least it seems so to me.

The reports of luncheons, teas, etc., as M. Sauter says, shows plainly it is the common (or I should say uncommon), as they are the only patriotic people who are conserving. You need only look at the names of the women at these wonderful conventions at Ottawa or Toronto to know they are composed of the monied classes, as other women have all they can do to stop at home, make over old clothes for children and self, and thus conserve, also get the housecleaning done so we can go out and grow food for those kind city people who give so much advice and practice it so little.

Commandeer what you want or need, Mr. Foodman, and don't spend thousands in talking to get hundreds and please remember thrift, just the same as charity, begins in your own house. We could do just as much conserving without so much interference and in better temper as well.

ONE OF THE OVER-ADVISED.
The Pines, Niagara, Ont., March 11.

A BONE DRY RESOLUTION.

When I secured a copy of Wednesday's "Examiner," I immediately looked for a letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham on the above subject, not that I had heard of his writing one, but because I had told the members of the Ministerial Association that we would hear from him in some such way as this, and that therefore our resolution must be most carefully worded. It was carefully worded —time was devoted to that purpose during the hour of meeting, and a resolution presented which secured the unanimous approval of those present. Attention was called to the fact at the time that there was no approval of 2 1-2 p.c. beer implied in the resolution as it was worded, but that the will of the great mass of working men had been expressed again and again in favour of prohibition. Mr. Burnham says: "I had hoped that you would have passed a resolution in favour of bone dry prohibition, etc." I am not speaking for the Association, but for myself, and yet I think I can say that we all respect Mr. Burnham sufficiently to wish that we might never need to disappoint him, but on the other hand, when the Ministerial Association of Peterborough passes a resolution unanimously, it must be conceded that they know whether they have expressed their thought or have failed to do so. Those whom the resolution is intended to influence will find no loose joints in connection with it, either will Mr. Burnham when he studies it more closely. Thanking him for his helpful co-operation in some connections, and you, Mr. Editor, for this space.

Yours,
J. R. WEBB.

Had Headaches Was Always Tired

Sleep or Rest Was Impossible, For Nervous System Was Greatly Exhausted and Irritated

Jordan, Ont., March 15. — As the result of Mrs. Thwaites' happy experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, many people in this district have put this great food cure to the test and proven its exceptional restorative powers.

This was an extreme case of nervous exhaustion and the cure effected was so thorough and radical that there could be no doubt of the value of this treatment. This is how Mrs. Thwaites describes her cure, and her statement is certified to by her pastor.

Mrs. Stephen G. Thwaites, Box 205, Jordan, Ont., writes: "For about a year I was troubled with nervousness, and took doctors' medicine, but it did not seem to relieve me. I could not sleep nor content myself to do anything. I had severe headaches, was tired all the time, and afraid to stay alone. I also tried several nerve medicines until almost discouraged. At last I discovered Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and found relief in this. I had only taken one box when I began to feel better. I continued using this treatment until my nerves were restored to perfect health. I think the Nerve Food splendid for nervous troubles of any kind, and cannot recommend it too highly."

Rev. S. F. Coffman, Vineland, Ont., states: "This is to certify that I know Mrs. Thwaites, and her statements are correct."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

KITCHENER RETAIN THE ALLAN CUP

Beat Winnipeg Ypres Team Last Night by 4 Goals to 1, Winning the Round By 6 to 4—Combination of O. H. A. Champions Too Much For the Westerners

TORONTO, March 15.—Kitchener are Allan Cup champions

After having been beaten by Winnipeg, champions of the Manitoba Hockey Association, in the first game of the Allan Cup series by 3 to 2 at the Arena on Tuesday night the Ontario Hockey Association champions came back last night, and, showing a reversal of form that was positively startling, defeated Winnipeg by 4 to 1, thus winning the highest hockey honours, that Canada offers by 6 to 4.

KITCHENER DESERVE VICTORY

Kitchener are to be congratulated upon their victory. They were beaten on Tuesday night by Winnipeg under Ontario rules, playing three periods and using the off-side play, which allows a player to be skated onside. They were beaten by a team which seemed superior in speed, shoting and stick-handling ability. And yet they went into last night's game playing under Western rules, which provide two thirty-minute periods of play and seven men a side, and beat the Westerners at their own game. It was a feat worthy of the highest praise, and the vast crowd that utilized every inch of space in the Arena thoroughly appreciated the fact and cheered the winners to the echo.

BACK-CHECKING DECIDES GAME

Kitchener won because they checked back. They hammered away at the speedy Winnipeg forwards, outskated and outstickhandled them, and never at any moment allowed one of the Westerners to get a clear strat. In the first fifteen minutes of the opening period the stick-handling and back-checking of Parkes, Hiller, Solomon and Leroux bewildered the Westerners. The trickiness of the Green Shirts proved very effective, and but for the sensational work of Winkler in goal the O. H. A. champions would have had at least five goals in the first eriod.

PARKES THRILLS CROWD

And when Parkes, the former Argonaut star, after stick-handling his way beat the Winnipeg forwards and drawing out the defence, beat Winkler with a waist-high shot after fifteen minutes of play, the crowd went simply wild with excitement. Although the majority of those who came to the Arena expected to see the Winnipeg team win they realized that after the first ten minues of play that the Westerners would be forced to extend themselves to the last ounce to hold the one-goal lead. Parkes' brilliant play which tied the score, gave the fans an opportunity to give vent to their pent-up feelings and the rafters shook from the cheers which reverberated throughout the building.

WINNERS' FINE COMBINATION

It was argued that the seven-man game would favour the Westerners, not only because they were familiar with that style of play, but because the presence of a fourth man on the Kichener forward line would upset the play of the O. H. A. champions, and would prove more of a hindrance than a help. The individual play that was a prominent feature of the first game was noticeably lacking in last night's contest. The Kitchener forwards showed the fastest, most accurate passing game that has been shown at the Arena this season. They swept down the ice in perfect formation, passing the puck with a regularity that kept the Winnipeg defence guessing and bored right in on the nets. It was a distinct triumph for seven-man hockey.

A FINE EXHIBITION.

The play scintiliated at all times, and the multitude who witnessed the game were kept on the verge of hysterics by the sensational plays that prevailed. The minute that a Kitchener man lost the puck to an opponent the entire forward line swept back at bewildering speed to check the Westerners' forward line, and their back checking was most effective. The Western team has been taught to use a poke or a sweep check but realizing that this mode of play was proving ineffective against the Green Shirts the visitors used heavy body-checks, in an effort to slow up their lighter opponents. Bostrom, the big defence man of the Winnipeg team, blocked Parkes and Hiller time after time with jarring body-checks, but was unable to stop the tenacious play of the Kitchener stars.

CURLING

The Presbyterians and the Methodists will cross brooms at the curl. rink to-night, with four rinks apiece. The Methodist skips are: W. G. Morrow, R. P. Best, H. Foote and R. Hicks; and the Presbyterians, J. H. Connal, R. M. Waddell, J. W. Mcdermid and J. Brightman.

Dr. Harvey Exonerated

"The size of a bin for one ton of egg coal would be 35.18 cubic feet. I formed my estimate from the amount of coal there, and in my opinion there was about five tons."

Cross-examined by Mr. O'Brien, Dr. Harvey's solicitor, Mr. Miller stated that Dr. Harvey acted as if he had nothing to hide. "I surmised that he knew we had authority to investigate his supply."

Witness admitted that it was important that a doctor's premises should be kept warm because of the fact that persons who were ill went there.

Turning to the capacities required for coal in different sizes, Mr. Miller stated that pea coal took up a greater space than large coal.

"Wouldn't the proper course have been to measure the coal?"

"Yes, but at the time I didn't think of it.

Although he hadn't measured it, Mr. Miller said he felt sure there was over four tons in Dr. Harvey's cellar. The doctor's house was a large one and the office was heated from the same system.

"There wouldn't be more than five tons there," witness concluded.

"I have a bin of my own and I judged, in part, from that measure, my general knowledge and the bulk of coal there."

P. C. Harold Lawrence.

P. C. Lawrence said that the coal in Dr. Harvey's cellar was the stove size, between nut and egg sizes. It was in a large bin, which we estimated would hold 15 tons when full.

To Mr. O'Brien witness said he had not measured the coal.

Mr. W. E. Taylor.

Mr. William Taylor, of H. B. Taylor & Sons, coal dealers, said his company had supplied Dr. Harvey last year with his coal. He produced copies of the doctor's orders, showing that from April 1st, 1916, to April 1st, 1917 Dr. Harvey had received 17 tons, 1,210 pounds.

On April 28th, 1911, he renewed his order for 17 tons for the year ending April 1st, 1918.

Of the new order, 16 tons 350 lbs. were delivered on April 30th, 1917.

"We delivered no more coal to him until February 18th, 1918. He called up, telling us he would need coal in a short time. For that reason we sent him the ton Feb. 18."

"A few days later I visited Dr. Harvey's," Mr. Taylor continued. "I saw his coal bin. I estimated the quantity at about four tons. That was a few days after the coal was delivered. There was about three tons of coal in the bin when we put in the other ton on Feb. 18th, which completed his order."

To Mr. O'Brien, witness stated that Dr. Harvey had ordered and received this year less coal than last. There was more coal burned this past year than ordinarily.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 15.—(Official).—Our raiding parties raided the enemy's lines last night west of Villers Guislain and brought back a few prisoners. Hostile raids were repulsed in the neighbourhood of Passchendaele and Poelcapelle. Our and the enemy's' artillery showed some activity during the night south-west and west of Cambrai, south of Armentieres and in the Messines and Menin Road sectors.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Fred. S. Ferguson).

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 15. — Captain Archie Roosevelt, son of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, received the French War Cross on Tuesday for gallantry in action while lying on an operating table in an evacuation hospital, it is announced to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MOSCOW, March 12.—Moscow has again become the official capital of Russia. After two hundred years the Government has been transferred by its present head, Nikolai Lenine, back to the historic capital, in the heart of Russia. Lenine and virtually all the Governmental Commissioners, except Leon Trotsky, arrived here on Tuesday and officially opened the various Ministries to-day, preparatory to the session of Congress on March 14. Indications are that Lenine retains a firm grasp upon the situation, and that the Congress will vote to ratify peace. It is freely declared that the peace will necessarily be only temporary.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, March 15.—German reports indicate that the raid by British aviators on Coblen, Germany, on Monday, resulted in very heavy damage, especially among munition plants, in which fires are burning and heavy explosions occurring.

AMSTERDAM, March 15.—According to news received here, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg has stated in an interview in Berlin that the Entente had shown an unresponsive attitude toward Germany's peace terms, and that the great German offensive therefor must go on.

In well-informed neutral countries recently Associated Press correspondents were told that the Germans were prepared to lose 300,000 men in an offensive operation. The Verdun offensive of the Germans, in which they failed ututerly to break the French line, has been estimated in conservative quarters as having cost them something like 500,000 men.

Copenhagen, March 15. – Men in the workshops of the Austrian railways have struck and refused to obey orders of military to return to work. The strike is spreading to the other factories.

Berlin, March 15. – Strong French detachments gained a foothold yesterday west of the Nauroy Road, on the German Crown Prince's front, Champagne district.

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 15.— Representatives of all professional unions quit the party following the Bolsheviki vote ratifying the German dictated peace, prior to the Pan Soviet Congress at Moscow, called for to-day.

"Professional unions" is the usual Russian designation of the organizations corresponding to American trades unions. It should not be confused with the organizations usually regarded as professional men— doctors, lawyers, engineers, etc. These are designated by Russians as "intelligencia."

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 15.—Twenty thousand casualties have resulted from the civil war which has broken out in Turkestan between the Soviets and the natives, according to despatches received here to-day. Fierce battles are being fought.

Turkestan is a vast region in Asiatic Russia lying east of the Caspian Sea and north of Afghanistan. It is peopled largely with fierce tribes of Tartar and Mongolian descent.

Fire Was Caught Just In Time

Returning to his office, corner of Hunter and George streets, yesterday afternoon at 5.30, Mr. A. E. Dixon discovered the beginning of what would probably have been an exceedingly serious fire. A defective chimney had set some joists in the buildable smoke. Mr. Dixon notified the Fire Department, which arrived and had some difficulty in locating the cause of the smoke.

Had the smouldering joists not been noticed, and allowed to break into flames towards midnight, a more disastrous fire than has already visited the city, would probably have ensued.

War Bureau To Spur The Interest Of The Citizens

Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, addressed an assembly of business and professional men at luncheon at the Empress to-day on the purposes and operations of the War Lecture Bureau, a branch of which it is expected will be organized in Peterborough. Members assume the duty of giving five-minute talks on war themes in theatres and other meetings, thereby taking advantage of these opportunities to keep the public acquainted with the progress and developments of the war, to sustain the patriotic fervour of the people and thus prevent any spirit of apathy and indifference, in short of war weariness, from finding a place in the public's mind.

Among those present were: F. D. Kerr, George H. Roper, A. Mowat, Rev. C. J. Phelan, Chief Thompson, Rev. W. H. White, H. J. Staunton, B. D. Hall, Adjutant McElhiney, S. R. Armstrong, Rev. R. A. Whattam, Rev. B. Greatrix, Rev. W. L. Rowand, Rev. Dougald Brown, Adjutant Trickey, Rev. Dr. Wilson, Capt. Oliver Hazzlewood, of Toronto, Joseph Wearing and Mr. J. J. Turner, who presided.

An opportunity for "Five-Minute Men," who have the splendid results of the "Four Minute Men" in the United States for their guidance and inspiration, is presented in publicly emphasizing, now, the need of greater production of food stuffs this year. Mr. Wearing has given addresses in the theatres in behalf of the Bureau which is a Government agency with President Falconer of Toronto University as its head.

The following officers were appointed: President, Mr. J. J. Turner. Secretary, Mr. Joseph Wearing; Executive, Mrs. R. Harstone, Mr. F. D. Kerr, A. Mowat, Rev. C. J. Phelan, H. J. Staunton, Adjutant McElhiney.

WEDDING BELLS

HOPKINS—WARMAN.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Warman, 9 Monaghan Road, when their eldest daughter, Esther, was united in marriage to Mr. Walter P. Hopkins, only son of Mrs. Hopkins, North Monaghan. The bride looked very charming in her dress of white georgette crepe, with the customary veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of tea roses and white carnations. Miss Minnie Warman, who acted as bridesmaid, was very dainty in rose-coloured satin, and carried a lovely bouquet of pink carnations. The wedding party entered the parlour to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Jones (cousin of the bride). The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, after which about thirty guests sat down to a very dainty luncheon. The tables were very tastefully decorated with white and pink carnations. Very many handsome and valuable presents were received by the young couple, including a very costly case of silver and lovely marble clock from the staff and employees of the Henry Hope Co., of which firm the bride was a valuable employee; also a handsome set of carvers from the Canadian Canoe Co. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins left on the 3.29 C.P.R. for a short honeymoon, and on their return will be at home to their friends at the "Homestead," North Monaghan.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS INCREASE THE RATES

C.P.R., However, Must Yield Special Tax on All Profits Over Normal Dividend Allowance—New Rates Will Be Effective at Once—End to Huge Surpluses.

$7,000,000 PER YEAR

OTTAWA, March 16.—The Government has announced the ratification of a 16 per cent. increase on all freight and passenger traffic in Canada, effective at once, as a temporary measure of relief to the railways, pending "further study" of the permanent solution of the "huge and complex" railway problem. The recommendation that such action be taken came from the Dominion Railway Board.

Coupled with the granting of the increase as ordered by the Railway Commissioners last January, and held up until now, pending the appeal of the westerners to the Cabinet, there is a special tax imposed on the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, which provides that all the increased net revenue which accrues to the company through the increase in rates, over the revenue of 1917, shall be returned by the company in the form of taxation to the Federal Treasury.

$7,000,000 PER YEAR.

The amount of this special tax on the C.P.R. shall in no case be less than seven million dollars per year, unless, as is very unlikely, the total net revenue of the company from all sources is not sufficient to pay the normal dividend of 10 per cent.

Just what the total amount of the taxation will be is, of course, dependent on the uncertain traffic volume from now on, the greatly increased costs of operation, equipment and maintenance, etc., all of which make it difficult to estimate even approximately the net revenues of the company for the next two or three years.

WILL HAVE TO DRAW.

But, in any event, the provision that the Government shall take, in addition, 50 per cent. of all net earnings on the transportation system over and above the amount required to pay the normal 7 per cent. on common stock alone, makes it pretty certain that the C.P.R. will have to draw fairly largely on its income, apart from operating revenue, to keep up the full 10 per cent. dividend.

Moreover, in addition to this, the company is still subject to the provisions of the Income War Tax Act of 1917 in regard to all earnings from "special income."

END TO HUGE SURPLUSES.

It is evident that, considering all the conditions, the C.P.R. cannot go on piling up huge reserves out of present income sources The double hold which the Government is taking on the company, first in taking all the net revenue derived from the increase in rates, and, second, in taking 50 per cent of all net earnings above the amount required to pay 7 per cent. on common stock, will mean, under present operating costs, that the company will have to dig into its income from special assets and reserves in order to keep on the 10 per cent basis.

CATTLE MARKET

Another week of light receipts and a corresponding return to high prices. After several weeks of comparatively fair or normal receipts, and a decline in two weeks of about 50c. in cattle prices a change to storms and bad roads resulted this week in a shortening of supplies, and a corresponding stiffening in prices, so much so that in the case of lambs and hogs former high record marks were reached and passed. Monday's market opened with a good steady demand for choice butcher cattle, but on the whole the market was inclined to be slow. The bulk of the day's offerings was of poor quality, and prices averaged 10c. to 15c. lower on the common to medium qualities. By Tuesday a sudden change in the general tone of the market took place. As a result of heavy stormy conditions during the previous Saturday and Sunday, shipments of live stock on Monday were completely held up, the consequence being that there was practically no market on Tuesday. It was then evident that receipts for the week would be light, and buyers in the market got busy, a keen demand for all classes of live stock setting in. Prices began to take the up-grade, and on Wednesday's and Thursday's market cattle of anything like fair quality were from 20c. to 25c. higher than the previous week. The cattle were, however, for the most part bought when good and empty, almost immediately on arrival at the market. Even choice small bunches and individual heifers and steers fetched some very high prices, going as high as $12.50 and $13.

Cows and bulls continue to hold in a good strong market, the choicest offerings selling freely from $10 to $10.50.

Choice milkers and springers continue in good demand at prevailing high prices.

There is a steady demand for good stockers and feeders.

Choice veal calves averaged higher prices.

Sheep and lambs averaged high, the latter going up to $20.

Hogs passed all previous high records in this market, going up to $20.25 fed and watered basis in Thursday's market.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts this week 376 cars, with 4,478 cattle, 916 calves, 9,478 hogs, 452 sheep and lambs and 285 horses.

City Cattle Market: 24 cars, with 213 cattle, 166 sheep, 372 hogs and 144 horses.

GRAIN MARKET

Under a steady pressure of more liberal offerings, the cash oats situation is gradually becoming easier. Manitoba oats at Fort William were yesterday quoted from 5-8 to 1 1-8c lower than Thursday, making a decline of 4c to 5c in the past few days. Barley is also on the down grade and yesterday is quoted 2c lower. Rye is in a slightly easier market. The corn situation is full of trouble for local firms that have licenses for a number of cars already bought, but are unable to get them through, owing to the action of the U. S. A. War Board which has prohibited further importations.

CONSTIPATED CHILDREN

Nothing will so quickly remove childhood constipation as will Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are pleasant to take; do not gripe and never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels. Concerning them Mrs. Adolphe Noel, Petite Lameque, Que., says:—"Baby's Own Tablets are the best remedy for constipation I know of and I would strongly recommend them to all mothers of little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW TO MAKE SCOTCH STEW.

"The cheaper cuts of lamb or mutton are utilized in this dish.

"Three pounds of meat cut into small pieces will make a stew for a large family. Remove all skin and superfluous fat from the meat, then cut into small pieces. Wash carefully put into the kettle, and cover with about three pints of cold water; bring to the boiling point quickly, then skim, and add one-half cupful of barley that has been soaked in cold water over night. After the stew has again reached the boiling point, draw the kettle to the back of the stove, and simmer gently for an hour and a half or two hours. Now prepare the vegetables for the stew, about one-half cupful each of potatoes, turnips, carrots and a tablespoonful of onion. Peel and cut the vegetables into small pieces, add them to the stew, salt and pepper to taste, then let cook until the vegetables are well done. Now stir two tablespoonfuls of flour and a little milk to a smooth batter, add to the stew one-half cupful of rich, sweet milk, add the thickening, let boil up, stirring all the time, then serve when a gravy has formed. This is amost delicious stew. Cut stale bread into thick slices, these slices into small pieces, place in the bottom of a deep platter and pour the stew over them."—"Farm and Fireside."

It is always safe to send a Dominion Express Money Order. Five dollars costs three cents.

RECORD ACHIEVED BY NAVY UNPARALLELED IN HISTORY; REPORT PRAISES BUREAUS

House Investigators Reserve All Criticism, Regretting Only Building Programme Delay

DEVELOP NEW DEVICES

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 15.—The American Navy stands before the world without a parallel in efficiency and achievement, according to an elaborate report submitted to the House by the sub-committee which for several months has been investigating the Navy's part in the war. Not a word of criticism of any branch of the Navy Department is contained in the report. Practically every bureau receives unqualified praise for its efficiency and loyalty to commanding officers.

Here are some of the outstanding features of the report submitted:

"More than 1,100 ships have been furnished and equipped with guns, ammunition and spare parts.

"In addition to supplying ordnance to our own navy, the department also as furnishing large and small calibre guns in appreciable quantities to the navies of England, France and Italy, together with ammunition. Allied merchantmen also are receiving similar aid from America.

"Records of encounters between American vessels and German submarines show a comparatively small percentage of successful enemy attacks.

"The unseen torpedo is responsible for eighty per cent. of sinkings.

Develop New Devices.

"The Bureau of Ordnance has developed much new material, including depth charges, submarine bombs, non-rihocher shells, bomb dropping devices, smoke screen apparatus and other designs that remain secret.

"In 1918 destroyers will be built in from one-third to one-half the time required under pre-war conditions.

"About one hundred interned German vessels, which the enemy attempted to destroy before the war, have been put into service, after it was supposed they were damaged beyond repair, and are now flying the American flag.

"Aircraft development has produced results that promise to meet the requirements of the navy.

"No better trained or more effective fighters are on the French firing line to-day than Marine Corps units, which may be increased.

"While detailed reports cannot be submitted as to the operations of the American battleships abroad, the report says: 'All is well with the fleet.'

"The business office of the Navy, the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts economically and wisely is expending $3,000,000 a day."

Building Programme Abandoned.

The report, which was prepared by Representative Oliver, of Alabama, chairman of the sub-committee which made the investigation, and submitted by Representative Padgett, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, makes but one recommendation. It calls attention to the fact that the building programme has had to be temporarily abandoned and recommends that it be resumed as soon as possible.

"It is a matter of regret," the report states, "that the great demand upon the ship construction capacity of the country, coupled with the urgent demand for a large increase in the destroyer force, has made necessary a temporary abandonment in part of the navy shipbuilding programme. The navy needs both scout and battle cruisers, without which our dreadnought fleet loses a large part of its fighting potentiality.

"That the expansion of the navy has resulted in gain rather than loss of efficiency is primarily due to the one factor—preparedness. This, we think, very fully appears from our report on the bureaus, the office of operations and the fleet, which follows."

Here is the outline presented by the report as to the work of the various bureaus whose chiefs were examined during the course of the investigation:

"The Bureau of Supplies and Accounts is the navy's business office. Under its chief, Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, it has established and well deserves a nation-wide reputation for business efficiency. It has the responsibility of feeding, clothing, and paying the entire personnel of the navy and supplying all the vessels of the navy with stores and equipment. Under its system 300,000 men and 1,100 ships were just as promptly and well provided for as 15,000 men and 300 ships had been before the war.

Nothing Like Internal Bathing For Constipation

If people only knew what Internal Bathing is doing for thousands of others there would be fewer Pills and Laxatives swallowed and very much less suffering from Constipation and the accompanying Stomach and Nervous troubles resulting from it.

Mrs. Cave, 341 Ellery Street, Victoria, B. C., writes:

"Before using the 'J.B.L. Cascade' I suffered constantly from Constipation and frequent bilious attacks and sick headaches. Since beginning your system of Internal Bathing with the 'J.B.L. Cascade' four months ago I have not had one attack and feel stronger and better in every way. My only regret is that I did not get a Cascade sooner."

By the proper application of Nature's cure, warm water, by means of the "J.B.L. Cascade" the lower intestines are kept free from all poisonous waste. Drugs force Nature. Internal Bathing assists her.

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, a specialist on Internal Bathing, invented and perfected the "J. B. L. Cascade," which has done more during the past 20 years in restoring health and lessening disease than all other means combined. Ask the Warne Drug Co., Peterboro, for Booklet, "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." They will also be pleased to show and explain the J. B. L. Cascade to you.

Hans Kudlich Austrian Patriot

DR. HANS KUDLICH, national hero of the Austrian peasants, who liberated fourteen million from serfdom in 1848, died at his home in Hoboken the other day at 94 years old. For half a century he was a successful practicing physician in New York.

It was Carl Schurz who linked with the name of Abraham Lincoln that of another great emancipator and patriot, Dr. Kudlich, who died beloved by free people everywhere, and revered by three generations of the liberated peasantry of Austria.

The name of Hans Kudlich, more than that of any other man stood for the abolition throughout the Austrian empire of the accursed relics of the feudal system and the serfdom of the peasantry.

Dr. Kudlich was born in 1823, in the village of Lobenstein in northern Silesia, the son of a well-to-do father. In that town to-day stands a great monument built in the form of a tower, which bears his name graven in granite and which commemorates his deeds. It is only one of scores of monuments erected in his honor all over Austria by a grateful people, but the shaft reared at his birthplace is perhaps the most impressive of them all.

Hans Kudlich, March 13, 1848, headed a student demonstration in the streets of Vienna, where he was studying law in the university. He and his associates were determined to present to the Diet a petition favoring the freedom of the peasant class. Troops were called out to disperse the agitators and in the clash which followed Kudlich's blood was said to have been the first shed in the revolution of 1848. The young patriot suffered a bayonet thrust through the hand, severing an artery, the scar of which wound he carried to his death.

Rescued by his comrades, he recovered from his wound and emerged from concealment to find himself the idol of the common people. They clamorously made him their leader and elected him to the reform chamber, which was to essay the task of drawing up a reform constitution for the empire. There young Kudlich, only 25 years old, introduced and championed to its passage the celebrated bill liberating the peasantry from the terrible burdens imposed upon them by the state, the church and the nobility. As a youth in Silesia his spirit had groaned under the oppression he had witnessed and studied. As a leader of the reform Chamber of Deputies his eloquence and enthusiasm swept away all barriers of opposition. His measure was passed and the peasants were liberated.

Much of the work of that reform chamber was blotted out in the counter-revolution which followed and the assembly itself was dispersed at the point of the bayonet. But young Kudlich's great achievement was left intact, for the threatened throne of the emperor could not challenge safely another peasant uprising.

Under stress of the counter-revolution, however, he was forced finally to flee to America for his life.

Throughout the dark years of the civil war he unflinchingly upheld the hands of President Lincoln and was a potent force in arousing that great German-American movement which was no inconsiderable factor in recruiting the armies of the North and in helping to save the Union.

Following the close of the Franco-Prussian war amnesty was proclaimed for past political offenders. This brought to Dr. Kudlich the first opportunity to visit safely the home of his youth and the people for whom he had done so much. His tour through Austria was a veritable triumphal progress.

At one large centre of royalty and titled prerogative, so the story goes, the authorities suggested to Dr. Kudlich that they would be glad to confer upon him the freedom of the city on the sole condition that he would drink a toast and speak a sentiment to the health and happiness of the kaiser. Dr. Kudlich smiled and replied:

"I should rather not do that, and as for the freedom of your city, when I contemplate many of those upon whom you have conferred that distinction, I do not know that I covet it." The youthful liberator of 48 was still the lion of democracy. As a place of residence, the fatherland did not appeal to him at all he said.

One of Dr. Kudlich's most cherished souvenirs, which came to him in 1908, was a great bound volume containing the autographs of 30,000 emancipated peasants and their liberated children and grandchildren. Until the beginning of the present war letters came to him weekly and almost daily proving how well his memory was kept green in his native land. Many of these bore special stamps showing the engraved likeness of Dr. Kudlich himself, for on each recurrent anniversary of emancipation special issues of souvenir stamps, the proceeds of their sale being devoted to patriotic Tenton societies.

When Germany began war in 1914 Dr. Kudlich became violently excited and condemned the outbreak of the European conflagration. He asserted often that if his native country had carried through his reforms to a finish, the great conflict would never have taken place.

Razor Strop Rhymesters.

The dearth of barbers has forced a good many men to shave themselves who, before the war, regarded even a safety razor as a fearsome and dangerous implement.

There is a kind of moral satisfaction in shaving one's self which is induced by no other toilet function. I know a verse writer of some distinction, observes a writer in the London Chronicle, who asserts that his happiest rhyming feats always come to him with the rhythmic sweep of the lather brush and the razor—not a safety.

And our novelists, particularly the Victorian ones, are fond of the dressing-gown and shaving dishabille of their heroes.

The most remarkable barber in English literature is Thackeray's Mr. Eglantine, whose affection for "The Ravenswing" was inspired by the glories of that young woman's hair.

A bigger bar for you now because we are withdrawing all Premiums—due to the impossibility of getting good ones in the face of war conditions. This will be great news to many thousands who bought Comfort Soap because of its sheer merit and never saved the wrappers for premiums.

To other thousands who got Comfort premiums we honestly say we simply could not ask you to accept the kind of premiums now being made. The value isn't these! But the value is in the bigger, much bigger, Comfort Soap bar—at the same price.

HOW CAMEL WAS PERSUADED

Beast, Resented Carrying Bushman's Teakettle, and Was Lead to Believe Rider Did the Work.

In 1866 camels from India were first brought to Australia for general service, says Norman Duncan in his book, "Australian Byways." It was a happy experiment. A herd of more than 600 arrived with their Afghan masters in 1884. It is estimated that there are now 10,000 camels at labor in the dry, back regions of the commonwealth. An Australian loves a horse and respects the sturdy worth of a bullock; he regards a camel, however, with tolerance rather than approbation, and will not employ so outlandish and perverse a beast except to the great advantage of his needs.

"We used to think," said Jerry, the camel driver employed by the author, "that we couldn't get along without the 'Ghans."

"Surely they know how to take care of camels?" I asked.

"No fear!" Jerry scoffed. "They had a lot of superstitions—like curing a camel with a necklace of blue beads—and that's about all. The government breeds better camels now. That's only natural; we're white. I don't mean to say, though, that we've bred the devil out of our camels. Sometimes I lose patience with the brutes.

"A couple of years ago I was traveling to the north of this with a train of four pack camels. One morning when I was packing I found that I had forgotten to stow away a billy can (bushman's teakettle). When I picked that little billy can up and made for the nearest camel, meaning to hang it on his pack, he began to double and groan, as if it wasn't his billy can, and he wasn't going to carry more than his share, and what did I mean anyhow by proposing to overload a poor camel that way? So to make things easy I switched off to the next camel. And he began to groan. They all groaned. Not one of them would have that little billy can on his back.

"Well, I was disgusted. Instead of hanging it on a pack I mounted my riding camel, with the billy can in my hands. He was horrified. Goodness, how he bawled! When he got up he was bawling still. Wouldn't move a step! And then I leaned forward and shook that billy can in his face. And that satisfied him. Off he went without a murmur. Why? I reckon he thought I was carrying that billy can."

Ship of Mystery.

The manufacture of a large part of machinery to replace anything broken is almost impossible in the limited space of the battleship's machine shops. But wondrous feats are performed in the repair ships that accompany fleets on stations remote from dock facilities, states a British war correspondent.

The repair ship is a huge floating smithy and machine shop packed with everything that the wit of man can concentrate into the space for floating wounded battleships. These ships employ some of the best artificers from our naval dock yards, and are scattered in every quarter in which the British fleet is stationed remote from dock facilities. The Boche has nothing like them, and it has been stated that no inquisitive Boche has ever been allowed to intrude his nose aboard one to investigate its mysteries and take the information to his employers of how the strange feats performed by the repair ship are effected. The repair ship is the abode of secrets.

His Sacrifices.

"Are you reducing your expenses, Bill?" "Indeed I am. A man can't stand this high cost of living on the salary he gets. I've cut out the wife's weekly matinee, countermanded her new suit, discharged the nurse, made the kids give up moving pictures and ice cream, stopped the high-price milk for the baby and chloroformed the cat to save its living expenses. But if this sort of thing keeps on I may have to stop buying cigars and stop my club dues."

A BIG RANCH.

One Thousand Hereford Cattle soon on 10,000 Acres in this County.

Havelock, March 14. — Messrs. Conklin and Robertson, the gentlemen who have purchased the Sandy Lake ranch, are men who evidently believe in doing things. Already they have made a start to erect three houses on the ranch and to get everything in readiness for the stock, which will be sent north in a few weeks. They have also leased 10,000 acres of Crown land in the immediate vicinity from the Ontario government, so that they will have plenty of grazing land for the cattle. The leased land extends to Clear Lake on the north, to the west side of Blue Mountains on the west, to the south of Twin Lakes on the south and east to Trout Lake. Messrs. Conklin and Robertson have purchased about 400 head of two year old heifers for delivery his spring, and hope to increase the herd to 1,000 head a year or so. They intend going in for Hereford cattle as they claim that that breed do better on grass than the Durhams. They are being assisted in every way possible by the Ontario government.

DENVER MONKEY A HUGGER

Simian Causes Sensation When He Boldly Embraces Young Woman Passing Along Street.

The lovable monkey is loose. When he swung from the low branches of a tree at Twelfth avenue and Detroit street and threw his arms about the neck of a young woman pedestrian there was a lot of commotion, says the Denver Post. Aside from breaking the spooning laws, the monkey shouldn't have chosen broad daylight. A scream from the young woman brought residents to their doors. They saw her running in one direction and the monkey in another. It was difficult for them to ascertain which was the more frightened—the young woman or the lovable monkey.

Patrolmen from the Capitol Hill station have been pursuing the lovable monk all over the Montclair district. Where the monkey came from is a question. The zoo keeper at City park says all his monkeys are "just where they should be"; that none of them would be ungentlemanly enough to leave home and try to hug pedestrians.

Residents of the Montclair district have joined in the hunt. A tree-to-tree search is being made by the posse, including an examination of the nursery at Eighth avenue and Clayton street, where the affectionate simian was last sighted. The monkey sought temporary haven on the front porch of G. A. Clason's home, at 945 Detroit street, but when an attempt was made to capture him he curled up his tail and departed suddenly.

In addition to the frightened woman pedestrian, the monkey was seen hugging several trees. Just now he is hugging some secluded spot. Residents hope he is apprehended, as they do not want to be monkeyed with any more.

Call British Tanks "Willies."

During the summer of 1916 an enemy agent, trying to tap the wires in England might have been mystified to pick up such messages as: "Twelve Willies reach you today," or "Send tails for six females," writes Col. E. D. Swinton in the World's Work. "Willie," a pet cognomen adopted as suitable for the telephone and obviating the use of a code for telegrams, was suggested by the fact that the first experimental "Landship" completed, though equally malevolent, was smaller and less powerful for evil than its immediate successor, eventually the type adopted. When the two creatures were together they gave the ludicrous impression of being giant and parent of a monstrous and evil brood. Hence, naturally, "Little Willie" and "Big Willie." The "Big Willies" were also somewhat unbiologically classified as males and females, according to their armament. Incidentally, to help to conceal the destination of the tanks at the stage when any illusion as to their purpose was precluded, they were painted with the inscription, "With Care. To Petrograd," in large Russian characters.

Female machine operators fifteen years of age and over are to receive 10 per cent bonus on their actual earnings. The minimum rate for those of eighteen years and over, who have been engaged as machine operators for more than one year, is to be 13 cents an hour for hot-wax machines, and 11 cents for dry-thread machines. The time rate for female operators between the ages of fifteen and eighteen is to remain as at present, provided that after being engaged on machines for one year the time rate shall not be less than eight cents per hour. Time and a half has been settled as the wartime rate.

HE WANTED ONLY BIG GAME

English Warrior Bravely Describes Numerous Encounters With the Ferocious African Beasts.

Once I was talking with one of those gentleman rankers of the old England, who by this time is probably somewhere in France, for he was always looking for trouble where it was thickest, writes a New York Sun war correspondent. He had been away for about three years in the jungles of Africa at that time and was giving a little account of himself.

Among his frank admissions was the story of holding off a band of Ashantees for six days single-handed, while he kept busy with two rifles and a revolver. Also he had got away with a few tons of illicit ivory in the African jungles and had slain six more bull elephants than the law allows. Incidentally he had shot a lion which was charging him and had a hand-to-hand clinch with a gorilla.

He had done things like that before, this harum scarum offscouring. There was nothing at which he ever stopped, being mostly composed of iron nerve and steel muscles. He had a soft, caressing way when he talked, and when he dropped back into civilization he continued to wear the wrist watch with its grimy leather band which he had taken with him through so many adventures in the equatorial wilds.

"Bally effeminate," he observed, "this tickbug, eh? Maybe wrong, old man, but deucedly convenient to squint down at and time the two-horned rhino that happens to be charging a chap, eh, what?"

WAR BREAD CAUSES TROUBLE

Said to Be Responsible for Digestive Disorders Which Are Followed by Eruptions.

Reports of illness through eating war bread are being received from all over the country, and the news that Lord Rhondda has instituted an inquiry into the cause will come as a relief to many, says the Dundee Advertiser.

The bread is said to have given rise to digestive troubles and then eruptions in many districts. This is said to be due to the fact that some bakers are using imported flour, which contains beans and rice—ingredients which are quite unfit for breadmaking. The inclusion of the germ sets free a large percentage of fat which is unsuitable for weak digestions. Then, of course, regulation flour does not possess the keeping properties which wheaten flour does, and this fact again gives rise to disorders.

The gray loaf can never be as palatable as the white one, but it can be made equally digestible and nourishing if the necessary precautions are taken. Still, our bread of today, with all its defects, is not as bad as that which the Parisians had to satisfy their hunger at the time of the siege of Paris, when a quantity of straw was mixed with the flour in order to help eke out the supplies of grain.

RENNIE'S War Time Production Seeds

THERE must be no "slackers" this year, either among the seeds or the growers. Every man and woman with garden space, must produce to the limit of his or her ability. And that is why Rennie's seeds are so essential—live, vigorous seeds from tested stock, to ensure record crops.

Coons and Turkeys.

They are hunting coons in Massachusetts and eating them. They are said to be a fine substitute for turkey—more than a substitute, better. That is all right—they can eat them. Our Pilgrim Fathers can eat all the coon they want. We will take a second helping to turkey, declares a writer in the Columbus State Journal. We try to imagine the eating of coon. We can't do it any more than we can think of eating cat. But hunting coons is different. Here is the process: Take an automobile. Put in guns, dogs, and a companion or two, and then, when far into the country and near a forest, unloose the dogs and send them into the woods. Soon they start to barking vigorously and there is a coon. The papers tell of one party of four starting but after dark, returning at midnight with nine coons. That couldn't be done in Ohio, which is not a primitive state, like Massachusetts. Our coon crop is gone. We are sorry. The coon is a fine animal for coon, but not for meat. John Alden and his merry men are welcome to it.

Stopping the Ex-Czar's Express.

The ex-czarina's belief in the unspeakable Rasputin proves that she was of a strongly superstitious turn of mind, and she is generally regarded as the true maker of the revolution in Russia, but an incident which occurred whilst the ex-czar was traveling from Petrograd to Moscow proves that the superstition is not all on her side.

It appears, says a writer, that the ex-czar wears a ring in which he believes is embedded a fragment of the true cross. It was originally one of the treasures of the Vatican and was presented to one of the czar's predecessors for diplomatic reasons. The value he places on this supposititious relic was proved when he accidentally left it behind him when traveling to Moscow. He had the train stopped instantly, a special express chartered, and a trusty messenger sent post-haste back to fetch the missing ring, nor would he allow the train to budge an inch till his messenger returned, hours afterward, with the relic!

Cleaned Up for Nothing.

George's voluntary scrubbings were few indeed. In fact, he seldom washed his hands before a meal, unless ordered to do so. When Uncle Matt was expected for a visit George was made to wash himself vigorously and comb his hair neatly. But Uncle Matt did not come and that night, walking up to his father, he said emphatically: "And all my cleaning up for nothing!"

Food for the Dog.

Meat is the natural diet of the wild dog and should be an important item in the sporting dog's diet, observes Outing. So long as it is untainted it makes little difference whether it is horse, beef or mutton, but pork is not so good, and any quantities of fat should not be fed. Generally it is best to cook the meat in a sort of stew with vegetables mixed, but occasionally a dinner of raw lean meat is a welcome change and serves as a tonic and mild laxative. During the hunting season it is a mighty good Sunday dinner for the shooting dog.

Efficiency of Sammy's Kit.

It may sound strange to American ears, accustomed as they are to denunciations of our national unreadiness, says Leslie's Magazine, to hear that the American soldier's equipment is conceded by military authorities to be the finest of any army in the world.

Thus it is that Sammy will go to France (or to Russia or Mesopotamia or wherever the fates decree) carrying on his person the most complete, most adaptable, lightest, handiest and most thoroughly efficient living, working and fighting outfit of any soldier on earth, not excepting either our enemies or our allies. The personal equipment of the American infantryman (and we take the infantryman because he is both the backbone of the army and the bulk of it) represents American business efficiency and applied common sense in its highest practical manifestation. Each detail of every tiniest article, even the most insignificant strap or lace, is the result of scientific study and experiment. Some things about our army may not be above friendly criticism, but when it comes to the design of the individual soldier's outfit the United States army has no peer.

WAS OFF WORK 4 OR 5 MONTHS A YEAR WITH CONSTIPATION

If the truth were only known you would find that over one-half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They work on the bowels gently and naturally, and will cure the worst cases of constipation.

Mr. Sylvester Clements, Galt, Ont., writes: "I desire to express my heartfelt thanks for what Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have done for me. I have been suffering from a bad stomach and constipation and would be off work 4 or 5 months a year. I was hardly able to be inside without getting a severe headache. I tried doctors' medicine and other remedies, but got no relief until a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. Now I can work inside without any headaches or pain. I would not be without your remedy for anything. I write this so that anyone suffering the same as I did may use them and be cured."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Quality Goes Clear Through GRAY-DORT

For Particular Reasons

ALMOST every Gray-Dort owner has some special reason for preferring this car. One bought it for its appearance. Another bought it because of its motor. Designed by Planche, perfecter of the famous Peugot Motor. Yet another is won by its ease of driving and comfort of riding.

Many men find it the only car within reach of their purses that offers so much. Many more, who could buy costlier cars, are influenced by its extreme economy in operation.

But all Gray-Dort owners have a common satisfaction in the greater utility and service-worth of the Gray-Dort car.

And all Gray-Dort cars are built to evoke this common satisfaction, to provide pleasure, economy, service exceeding that generally given by a light car.

So you may be sure that whatever particular feature in a Gray-Dort may appeal to you, the remainder of the car is of a quality with it.

That is the reason the trend of the Canadian motor car market is to the Gray-Dort.

The new Gray-Dort embodies all the good features that won instant success for former models. The 4-cylinder motor is a triumph of smooth, economical speed and power. The chassis is sturdy and quiet. The springs are long. The upholstery is deep. The equipment is absolutely complete from electric starting and lighting to the tools. New lines of beauty have been given this model. The five passenger touring car is $1,125; the three-passenger fleur-de-lys roadster is $995; the Gray-Dort special, beautifully finished and with extra details of equipment is $125 above the list. All prices are f.o.b. Chatham.

SEVEN-NAMED HERO

Lafayette Only Nineteen When He Came to America.

Congress Commissioned Him Major General and Washington Invited Him Into His Military Family.

Marie Jean Paul Roche Yvet Gilbert Motier was born September 6, 1757.

You know this seven-named hero better by his title than by any of his septet names; he was the Marquis de Lafayette.

While the birthday of Lafayette has not been generally celebrated in the United States, no 6th of September has been permitted to pass without some recognition of Lafayette's services.

At the age of thirteen he inherited an immense fortune, and he was only sixteen when he married the granddaughter of the Duke de Noailles. Despite his aristocratic education and environment, he was from childhood an ardent lover of liberty.

"Republican anecdotes always delighted me," he wrote in his memoirs, "and when my new connections wished to obtain for me a place at court I did not hesitate displeasing them to preserve my independence."

When he first heard of the Revolution in America he "espoused warmly the cause of liberty" and offered his services to Silas Deane, the American revolutionary agent in France.

"When I presented to Mr. Deane my boyish face, for I was scarcely nineteen years of age, I spoke more of my ardor in the cause than of my experience," wrote Lafayette, "but I dwelt upon the effect my departure would cause in France."

The credit of the Continental congress was so low that Deane could not procure a vessel, so Lafayette bought and secretly freighted the ship Victory to carry himself and a dozen or so other officers across the Atlantic. Among Lafayette's companions was Baron Johann de Kalb, a native of Bavaria, who had long been in the service of France. Against the wishes of his relatives and the entreaties of the French king Lafayette sailed for America. From the Victory he sent a message to his girl-wife:

"From love to me become a good American; the welfare of America is closely bound up with the welfare of mankind."

Lafayette and his party landed near Georgetown, S. C., in April, 1777, and then traveled by land to Philadelphia, where the congress commissioned the nineteen-year-old boy a major general, and Washington invited him to become a member of his military family.

The boy general joined the Continental army in August, 1777, and in the following month he fought at Brandywine, where the Stars and Stripes were first carried into battle. Lafayette fought as a volunteer, and was badly wounded. After several brilliant exploits he returned to France in 1778 and was hailed as a hero.

During the French revolution he was an ardent republican and dropped his title when he was made commander in chief of the National Guards. He was driven from his country by the extremists, and the Austrians flung him into a dungeon, where he was confined for five years.

These are Anxious Days

NEVER in the history of this old world have the people lived under such tremendous nervous strain as to-day. Millions awake each morning in fearful dread of what the day may bring forth, and live each hour with nerves at highest tension.

While many are falling under the strain, others have found one means or another of fortifying the nervous system so as to maintain health and vigor.

The treatment most widely used is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, popularly known as the food cure, because it feeds the exhausted nerves and stores up nerve force and nervous energy.

Nothing breaks down the nervous system so quickly as worry and anxiety, and this is why so many people are suffering from nervous headaches, sciatic and neuralgic pains, nervous indigestion and general failure of the vital organs to properly perform their functions.

When you get so nervous that you do not rest and sleep well nights it is time to be alarmed, for it is very much easier to prevent nervous prostration, paralysis and locomotor ataxia than it is to cure these dreaded diseases.

After years of testing under the most severe circumstances Dr. Chase's Nerve Food stands in a class by itself as the most successful nerve restorative to be had. This is being proven every day by new evidence. Ask your neighbors and friends about it and read the reports in this paper, from time to time, from persons who have been cured.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

SUNDAY SERMON

For Those Who Do Not Go to Church

The prodigal son's return; his repentance and pardon: Luke 15th chapter and 18th verse. "I will arise and go to my father."

Affections when sanctified by divine grace, prove happy means of turning sinners from the error of their ways. By them the heart is disposed to receive instruction and they are sensible proofs of the vanities of this world, and of the evil of sin. Apply it spiritually, when we see what inseparable comforters we are, what physicians of no value we are—none but Christ can avail, none but he can help us. A soul, groaning under the power and guilt of sin must apply to Christ for pardon and peace.

Having viewed the prodigal in his abject state of sin and misery, we are next led to consider his recovery from it. This begins by his coming to himself. He had been blind both to his interests and his obligations; but by his afflictions he was brought to reflect and to consider his ways. This is a turning point in the sinner's conversion. The Lord opens his eyes and convinces him of sin; then he views himself and every object in a different light from what he did before. His first thought was of the plenty in which his father's servants lived, and which he might have enjoyed still but for his own sin and folly.

Thus the convinced sinner perceives that the meanest servant of God is happier than he is; that his wickedness has reduced him to a state of misery and danger, from which he cannot escape, unless he return to the Lord. Accordingly, the prodigal resolved to arise and go to his father. He resolved to confess his faults and folly. I have sinned. For as much as we have all sinned, it behooves us to own that we have sinned, referring ourselves for the covenant of grace which offers forgiveness to those that confess their sins. He would not extenuate the matter. I have sinned against heaven and before thee. Let those who are undutiful to their earthly parents think on this—they sin against heaven and before God. God is here called Heaven to signify how highly he is exalted above us, and the dominion that he has over us. The malignity of sin is against Heaven. It is committed in contempt of God's eye upon us. To regard God as a Father and our Father will be of great use in our repentance and return to him. He would acknowledge that he was not worthy to be received as a son, but was willing to be employed as a servant. In this resolution he drew all his encouragement from the remembrance of his father's goodness which at the same time aggravated his own folly. Thus sinners under conviction are led to hope in the mercy of God against whom they have sinned and are invited to return to him with earnest supplication.

The prodigal arose and went on his way and did not stop till he reached home—though we may well conceive of his distress and fears. But while yet at a distance his father (who is represented as regretting his absence) had compassion and ran to meet him, fell on his neck and kissed him, expressing entire reconciliation to him while the son acknowledged his guilt and unworthyness.

Thus the repenting sinner resolutely quits the service of Satan and returns to God by prayer. The Lord meets him with unexpected tokens of his forgiving love. God forgives the sins of true penitents. He forgets them. He remembers them no more. Ezek. 18:22.

Again the reception of the humble sinner is like that of the prodigal. He is clothed in the robe of the Redeemer's righteousness—made partaker of the spirit of adoption, prepared by peace of conscience, and gospel grace to walk in the ways of holiness, and blessed with divine comfort and love while the whole family of God rejoices at his being restored as a child to his father's house, and recovered to a life of righteousness. His heavenly father puts him in full possession of all the blessings of his salvation and seals him with the spirit of adoption and comforts him beyond his largest hopes.

Before he was dead, dead in Adam, in whom all died, dead in law being under sentence of condemnation; and death; dead in trespasses and sins, which is a spiritual or moral death, in which all mankind are by nature, and is alive again; the spirit of life from Christ had entered into him, and Christ was formed in his heart; and a spirit of life was infused into him. Principles of grace and holiness were wrought in him, to do his Father's will. There is excellent food provided for all that arise and come to him. Christ, Himself, is the Bread of Life. It was a great change with the prodigal, who, a little before, would fain have filled himself with husks. Now, he found his words made good. In my father's house there is bread enough and to spare. In the latter part of this parable we have the character of the pharisees; they were exact in outward duties, proud of their fancied goodness, thought themselves peculiar favorites of Heaven, and could not endure that publicans and sinners should be admitted into the Kingdom when angels, and the Lord of Angels were rejoicing over repenting and pardoned sinners, they envied and murmured like the elder son when told that his brother had returned and that his father had made rejoicings. How hateful must that disposition be which leads anyone to murmur and repine at an event that fills the holy inhabitants of heaven with rejoicing. The father goes out to entreat his son to come in and share the feast; but he answered with boasting and complaint. This elder brother no doubt said more than was true, when he gloried that he had never transgressed at any time, his father's commands; if so, he would not have been so obstinate to his father's entreaties. However, we will admit it comparatively, he had not been so disobedient as his brother had been. Oh what need have good men to take care of pride. Those that have long served God and have kept from gross sins have a great deal to be humbly thankful for, but nothing proudly to boast of. This represents the condescension of the Lord, and the proud manner in which His blessings are received. The Jews murmured at the calling of the Gentiles and numbers in every age object to the Gospel and its preachers on the same grounds. What must that temper be, which incites a man to despise those for whom the Saviour shed His precious blood, who are objects of the Father's choice. Any difficulty in applying the latter part of the parable will disappear, if we advert to the general scope. Had the pharisees been obedient and deserving their present privileges would have been the case with the Jews at the calling of the Gentiles. In the meantime it is meet that all God's servants should rejoice in the repentance of sinners and labour and pray for the same many are apt to limit the mercies of God and to give up some cases as hopeless—Paul before his conversion had been a prodigal—but after his conversion had greater measures of grace given him than any others of the Apostles.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES SUTHERLAND,

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Wife's Revenge

By RUTH GRAHAM

There is nothing so much to be dreaded by a nation as anarchy. War is bad enough, but anarchy is worse. Doubtless as many crimes are being committed in Russia since the deposition of the czar as were committed during the reign of terror in France. An overturning of a regularly constituted authority gives every person who has a grudge against another an opportunity to get rid of him.

When the French revolution broke out Jules Rappelier and Louise Davelle were lovers. Jules was twenty-five and Louise was twenty-two. They were young enough to love desperately and old enough to take an interest in the throwing off of that kingly authority which had beggared France. But when this authority had been thrown off and it was time to replace it with a steady government, that same element which always arises in the work of revolutions, commonly called the Reds, took possession of France and while its rule lasted was far worse than the rule of the Bourbon kings. Then Jules Rappelier and Louise Davelle withdrew themselves from participation in the movement. They were married and so far as one can live happily under such circumstances they were happy.

One morning a blow fell upon them. While they were at breakfast an officer and a file of soldiers entered and the officer said:

"Citizen Rappelier by order of the convention I arrest you as an enemy of France."

"Who is my accuser?" asked Jules.

"I have nothing to do with that; I have only to obey orders," replied the officer.

Jules turned to say good-by to his wife. She fainted in his arms and he was obliged to leave her in charge of a servant maid. He never saw her again.

The accused being brought to trial asked the name of his accuser. The judge whose legitimate profession was chopping meat replied that if the name of his accusers were given the enemies of France would live to tyranize over the people of France as they had done for centuries. Jules replied that from the inception of the revolution he had been a revolutionist. It availed nothing; he was adjudged guilty and two days later punished on the guillotine.

His widow shut herself in her home and would see no one but her mother. One day a sympathetic note came to her from one whom she had known as a friend of her husband offering his services in any way she might require them. Gaston La Fevre, like Rappelier had taken part in the beginning of the revolution when many true men and women were supporting it, and when the power fell into the hands of such men as Robespierre and Danton La Fevre had continued one of its supports and in time one of its leaders.

Louise wrote to him to come and see her and when he called she said to him:

"You were a friend of my husband; some enemy entered a false charge against him; if you would serve me give me the name of his accuser." La Fevre promised that he would do his best in the matter.

"Monsieur," replied the widow, "if you get that name for me any reward you ask of me shall be granted."

La Fevre called on Madame Rappelier occasionally to report progress. Though there was really no progress to report. He said he had appealed to Robespierre to give him the name of her husband's accuser, but Robespierre had refused. This was as far as La Fevre ever got.

He continued his calls, however, and one day he said to Louise:

"Why continue this fruitless effort? Jules is dead and cannot be brought to life. You are at the beginning of what may be a long life. Forget the past, or that part of it which is painful, and look rather for happiness than grief. I love you; let me be the means of your again being a happy wife."

"No," replied Louise. "I have but one object in life and shall never have another. It is to find my husband's murderer, and avenge his death, and I shall succeed in my quest."

Her words were a heavy blow to her suitor and he left her and from that moment ceased his visits.

No permanent authority was established in France till Napoleon was made "first consul." Then one day his wife received a visit from Madame Rappelier, a stranger to her. When the visitor departed she had Madame Bonaparte's promise that she would ask her husband for an order to permit the widow to examine the records kept during the revolution concerning those who had died on the guillotine. The boon was granted and a few days later Madame Rappelier sent a note to La Fevre asking him to call upon her. He came at once. The widow received him like a statue of ice.

"Monsieur," she said, "I have learned the name of my husband's murderer."

La Fevre turned pale. He had no power to ask who the person was.

"His name is Gaston La Fevre."

La Fevre quailed.

"Monsieur," continued the widow, "I recommend you to expiate your crime on the battle field."

Not long after this La Fevre found death by unnecessarily exposing himself to the real enemies of France.

A man never has to go half way to meet trouble.

Deliveries by Ford One-Ton Truck

THE commercial car is looked upon today as a necessity by progressive business firms who have hauling and delivering problems to consider.

Wholesale or retail merchants who must deliver quantities of merchandise have found the horse-drawn delivery to be too slow, expensive, and entirely inadequate.

The Ford truck, with a single driver, will do more work and cover more ground than two teams and two drivers, for it travels in half the time. This truck will reduce your hauling costs. It eliminates one driver's salary and the care which horses always require. It will make your delivery service more efficient. It will widen your area of distribution. It will be constantly ready for work—day or night. It will show a profit on your investment.

There has been a popular demand for a Ford truck as is shown by the many uses, for commercial purposes, to which our standard chassis has been put. Now, after most careful designing and exacting tests, we are able to offer the Ford One-Ton truck to meet this demand.

The Ford truck is supplied as a chassis only. This permits the purchaser to mount any one of the many body styles specially designed for the Ford truck, and already on the market, and he can select it to meet the individual needs of his business.

Price $750 f.o.b. Ford, Ont.

If You Won't Consider Your Pocketbook
Will You Consider Your Health?

WEARING Rubbers has a decided bearing on your bank account. Rubbers make shoes hold their shape better, and wear twice as long. But—if you won't consider the economy of Rubbers, there's still the question of health.

As the umbrella protects the head, and the raincoat shields the body, so Rubbers are the third member of the Watershed family.

Rubbers mean dry feet—and dry feet mean protection against colds, grippe, sore throat, bronchitis and dreaded pneumonia.

If you don't wear Rubbers in order to save money, wear them to save your health.

BUMPER BEAN CROP ASSURED

Experts Agree That Final Figures May Show 25,000,000 Bushels, and Lower Prices Are in Sight.

There is cheering reassurance in the news that this year's crop of beans will be much more than double the average yield, says the Indianapolis News. As a rule the country produces 10,000,000 bushels a year. In 1916, however, when the demand was greater than ever before, the crop was only 9,000,000 bushels. The shortage was immediately reflected in the soaring prices, and the lowly bean, as a consequence, came in a new prominence. Scarcity served as nothing else to bring about a realization of its value and an appreciation of the place it occupies on the American menu.

This year, experts agree, the final figures may show a crop of 25,000,000 bushels. The consumer this winter should find beans restored to their normal prices.

"Navy" beans they are called by some, by others they are known as "army" beans. The New Englander calls them merely beans. The reference to them, however, as "navy" or "army" beans is not without significance. Time was when the bean was a staple in the rations of both the navy and the army. It appeared frequently, morning, noon and night; it was served boiled and baked and in soup. The Civil war, it has been said, was fought on beans. The ration of the United States soldier and sailor is more varied today, but the bean is not lacking. It is there as of yore, better understood and no less strengthening or palatable.

How many thousands of bushels of this year's enormous bean crop the army and navy of this country and the armies and navies of our allies will consume it would be difficult to say. But the experts are of the opinion that the crop is by no means greater than the demands that will be made upon it. Even so, there should be no shortage and no exorbitant prices. Bean eaters everywhere will appreciate Mr. Hoover's careful consideration of the product, to the end that prices approximating the ante-bellum charges may be restored.

Figured on a Big Scare.

"Mamma, didn't you say last week you wanted the carving-knife and the chopper sharpened?"

Mrs. Suburb—Indeed I did. Bless your little heart! How thoughtful you are! They are both so blunt as to be useless.

"Well, I'll take 'em round to the cutler's for you."

"How sweet of you to offer to do such things for your mamma, my little cherub! I'll wrap them up."

"No, don't wrap them up. I want them to show. There's a boy out there waiting to lick me; but I fancy when he sees me coming he'll go home!"

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Sir Geo. Foster Will Again Introduce His Bill.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 15.—Daylight saving will be introduced in Parliament again this session with a better prospect of being adopted. Sir George Foster, who presented the bill last session, will bring it in again in the same form, and leave it to the judgment of the House.

Last year the proposal met very little encouragement. When it came up there was opposition from all quarters, while very little was said in favour of it. Conditions have altered this year, and the outlook is more hopeful because of the United States adopting the system. Influences are at work, both for and against the measure, but anyway, it will be discussed, and if it commends itself to the House generally, it will be passed. It is not likely to be pressed as an ordinary Government measure commanding a party majority.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up, and the skin is left soft and velvety.

301 GEORGE St. Opp BARRIES

Motor-Driven Barges a Success.

A train of barges driven by motor traction recently reached the Regent's canal with loads of coal from the Midlands in England. These were the first motor barges to navigate the English canals for any distance, and the beginning of a development which the board of trade is watching with interest. In their journey of 150 miles from Cannock Chase to St. George's wharf, King's Cross, the motor barges navigated seven different canals, and managed all the locks with ease, leaving the horses on the towpath panting after them in vain. The motive power is a small motor driven by a mixture of paraffin and petrol. This is fixed to the stern, and can be transferred from one barge to another in a few minutes.

Smith Township Council Meeting

Accounts Passed—Road Masters, Commissioners and Other Officers Appointed

The members of the Municipal Council of the Township of Smith met in the County Council, Peterborough, on Monday, March 11th, at eleven o'clock. All the members were present, with Reeve Nichols in the chair. The minutes of the last two meetings were read and confirmed.

The Clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law to be passed at the next meeting, making commuted statute labour at $1.50 per day.

On account of increase in the price of wire fence it was thought desirable for the township to pay 30 cents per rd., instead of 20 cents, as formerly. The Treasurer was instructed to pay the following accounts:

Harry Milburn, amount of pay sheet, $79.75; Albert McIlmoyl, work on road, $20.15; Nicholls Hospital, per Mrs. Hobson, $19; S. A. Northey, 1 sheep killed, $15; H. Roseboro, work on road, $26.50.

After verbally appointing the following road masters, commissioners, and sheep valuators, the Council adjourned, to meet again on Monday, April 8th.

The following are the road masters for 1918: Thos. Armstrong, Peter Nichols, Roy Northey, Richard Fairbairn, John Armstrong, Gordon Fitzgerald, James Cassidy, Wilbert McNaughton, Peter Bullock, Jr.; Norman Bullock, Robt. Northey, Vivian Harvey, T. Z. # CANADA MUSTERS HER MANHOOD

SINCE our gallant First Contingent sailed to join the "Old Contemptibles" in Flanders, Canada has answered every call for "more men". Her latest and perhaps most timely response is the new "Selected Army"—men worthy to reinforce the Divisions that upset precedent and astonished military Europe.

A few weeks in Khaki in touch with our seasoned battalions Overseas, and the men of this new army will develop into the same "Fighting Sons o' Guns" of whom George Pattullo wrote admiringly in the Saturday Evening Post:

"The Canadians at the Front shave every day. Let that sink in. Right up there in the trenches—often ankle deep in mud, sleeping in funk holes, each man cooking his own meals, fighting lice and rats and Bosches, with everything combined to break down habits of cleanliness—they rigidly observe the rule for smooth faces and chins. Of all I saw, that hit me hardest, because it meant so much".

The shaving equipment issued to your boy or your friend in our Canadian Army must be on a par with his fighting equipment and clothing! Ask him, and from his answer judge how much he would appreciate a Gillette Safety Razor—the razor that has made good so emphatically that over a million have already been sold for troops from this side of the Atlantic.

See that he has a real military razor set—the Gillette Khaki Combination (No. 18), the Khaki Soft Roll (No. 19), or the new Canadian Service Set (No. 20). It's a send-off worth while!

USELESS BROODING

CHAPTER XVII.

All the next day I brooded over what my callers had said—and implied. I did not understand such talk at all, yet I knew there was more meant than I had grasped. I was not silly enough to suppose an attractive man like George had never paid attention to any one but me. Or that he perhaps hadn't had some sort of love affairs. Although he had told me that he had never asked anyone to marry him.

I recalled that day. It was about a week after we became engaged. I had told him I loved him; and asked him some questions about his bachelor days, simple little questions a girl like myself would naturally ask. "Had he ever cared for anyone else?" etc. He had answered by saying:

"I have never asked anyone to be Mrs. Howard. Isn't that answer enough to your question?" and I had taken it to mean he had never loved anyone else. Perhaps men might care a lot for someone, yet for some reason not want to marry them. Oh, his life was so complicated! So different from the simple life at home. There seemed always an undercurrent. Always things were just beyond my depth. And Madge Loring said such unsettling things. I couldn't ask George about things, especially things connected with his life before I knew him. He would flush angrily, call it catechizing, tell me he had never endured it, and never would; that it irritated him greatly. So instead of talking things out, I brooded over them, more perhaps than was good for me.

A Faint Understanding.

I had lived with George about eight months. I was beginning to understand him better, to see the strength of his passions, the quality of his moods, the weaknesses of his nature. I was beginning to realize that he had been two men to me: the man I loved and married and understood, and the man I loved and did not understand, save faintly. It was the sort of feeling one has when they haven't seen a person for a long time and in the interim they have developed unknown qualities—qualities which puzzle and which seem to hold you away from them.

Occasionally I would feel that he was like the man I married. Then I would be very happy. I would seat myself on the arm of his chair, and murmur gay little jests close to his face; quaint little endearments, while I patted his coat and sometimes kissed him lightly while we talked.

But such times were now growing to be almost things of the past. Sometimes he would push me away, gently, with a remark that he was in no mood for nonsense. Or he would look so severe, be so cold and distant that I had not the heart to try to show my love for him; else was afraid to. Then he would stay out so many evenings. He belonged to several clubs, and whenever we were not engaged for dinner or the theatre he would go to some club and remain until after I had gone to bed.

I used sometimes to get terribly lonely. That is one reason I was so glad to know Evelyn Reeve. That was her name she told me, and then we decided that henceforth we would be Evelyn and Helen to each other.

A Half Love Not Enough.

I often wondered if I possessed even the half of what I gave in love to George. I knew that half would not satisfy me, yet was not sure that even so much was mine. Ever since the day that Madge Loring had drawn the curtain of George's past life just a bit aside, I had been in a sort of a doubting state that made me most uncomfortable.

Then too when we went out in the evening, or had anyone at the house, they talked about operas, the latest society sensation, some new dancer, or singer. Talked in such a way as to shut me out. It chagrined, and frightened me. I longed to grasp quickly the things that George seemed so to admire in others. I was willing to learn anything if only it would help me, teach me how to hold my husband.

Usually too, George would praise these older women. Praise them unstintedly. But scarcely ever did he praise me; and when he did, I attached so much importance to it that instead of comforting me, it made me unhappy, while I waited for the next time when he should be pleased, but which was so long in coming.

I felt that I wasn't suited to these people, to his world. I did not understand them. And sometimes I thought I never would. I cried and worried a good deal. Would it always be so? I must learn to control myself better.

I would I used to declare vehemently.

Sometimes I thought of how my girl friends said they envied me, marrying a rich man and going to live in a city. I wondered if they would, if they knew how lonely I was. How alone.

Then, too, I had a feeling that George wasn't always at the club when I was alone. Call it woman's intuition — what you will — but often I felt sure that he was with those old friends of his instead of with me.

Tomorrow—A Happy Afternoon.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 55 cents and gives you 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, it is splendid.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ENEMY MUNITION STOCK DROPS SIXTY POINTS

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 14.—According to advices from Zurich the German Socialist newspaper, Vorwaerts, says the scandal in Germany connected with graft at the Daimler munitions factories, which the Budget Commission of the Reichstag is investigating, has caused a veritable panic in the Berlin Stock Exchange. The Daimler stock fell two-thirds of its value, a large number of other war stocks suffered similar shrinkage, due to popular belief that the greater part of the war factories have been guilty of grafting and will be prosecuted by the German Treasury.

Immense Number of Tons of Explosives Have Been Dropped Behind the Enemy Lines---Artillery Is Rumbling at Increased Pitch at Several Sectors on the Line---Unprecedented Influx of German Troops Into Belgium --Welsh Soldiers Make Successful Attack.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, March 16. — British aviators have downed 118 German war planes in day fighting since March 1, it was announced to-day. Of these, 64 were demolished and 54 were sent earthward uncontrolled.

Night fighting in the air continues. An immense number of tons of explosives have been dropped behind the enemy lines. In one instance, what is believed to have been intended for a big German attack, was broken up by British bombing raids. The enemy troops were completely shattered.

German forces were discovered massing early in the night near a certain village. British planes, in relays, bombed the village from 8 p.m. to 3 a.m. The Germans were so badly disorganized that the attack never developed.

Daylight bombing also has been carried out. The airmen broke many records during the recent ten days of spring sunshine, which was broken by last night's rain.

On the battle line the situation continues to resemble that of runners poised on tip-toe for the starting gun.

The artillery, especially near Cambrai, is rumbling at increased pitch. There was also a quickening of cannonading near Lille.

Both sides keep up raiding activities, at the rate of several a day. What these things mean, remains to be seen. Like the Tommies out here, the public must wait and see.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 16.—The Welsh troops carried out a successful raid last night in the neighbourhood of Armentieres and captured fifteen prisoners and two machine guns, the War Office reports. Hostile artillery was active south-east of Ypres, in the neighbourhood of Menin Road and south of Houltholst Forest.

Tne Canadian General Electric Co. Makes Important Announcement

Nine-hour Day To Be Established--Wage Rate Nine Hours Work With Ten Hours Pay

Information has come to us from reliable sources to the effect that the Canadian General Electric Company has notified the employees of the local plant that hereafter a nine hour day will prevail, and that the rate of wages paid previously will be maintained without the operation of the bonus system, which has prevailed for some time back, and was put into effect by the Company to aid production on war contracts.

The effect of the new order is that a man will receive for a nine hour day the same wages as he previously received for his ten hour day with the bonus added, without the possibility of the bonus being lost, and is really a reduction in hours of from 10 to 9 hours as a working day, and a maintained increase in wages of 20 p.c., with the bonus discontinued, or a total increase of 30 p.c.

COAL ORDERS COMING IN.

Police Handling Many Applications and Supply Is Short Yet.

The police had a pile of coal orders this morning that carried a reminder of February's intensity. Many orders have been filled recently through the station, but the bundle Sergeant Reid had this morning offered an evidence that the supply is yet several laps behind the demand. At that there has been a fairly steady flow of coal to the city recently.

A general meeting of the Greater Peterborough Association will be held on Monday night next, at eight o'clock, in the City Council Chamber. A large attendance is desired.

One question to be discussed is the amalgamation of the Association with the Board of Trade.

RUSSIANS REPLY TO THE PRESIDENT'S SYMPATHY MESSAGE

Pan Soviet Congress Expresses Its Appreciation to the American People and Voices Hope That a Lasting and Just Peace Will Soon Come

TEXT OF THE MESSAGE

(By Joseph Shaplen.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 15.—President Wilson's message of sympathy to the Russian people was read to the Pan-Soviet Congress at Moscow amid a silence interrupted by murmurs regarding the Japanese situation.

The Congress, which met yesterday to vote on the ratification of the German-Bolsheviki peace terms, to-day adopted a resolution in reply to President Wilson's message.

The resolution read: "The Congress of Soviets expresses its appreciation to the American people, particularly the toilers and those who are being exploited, for their sympathy toward the Russian people, at a time when the Russian Socialist Republic is experiencing its greatest hardship.

"The Republic takes advantage of President Wilson's message to express to all peoples, perishing and suffering as a result of the imperialist war, its warm sympathy and confidence that the time is not far distant when the masses will overthrow capitalism and establish a Socialist society, which alone is capable of giving a lasting and just peace and assuring the welfare of the toilers."

Shower For Young Bailieboro Lady

A very pleasant surprise was given to Miss Miriam Dawson, Bailieboro, on Thursday, March 7th, when about eighty of her friends from the Bailieboro Methodist Church and vicinity, met to extend to her their good wishes and to present to her a miscellaneous shower, with the following address:

Dear Miriam: Your many friends and neighbors of Bailieboro and South Monaghan, having heard of your intended removal from our midst, cannot let you depart without tendering to you some expression of the high esteem in which you are held in the neighborhood. We would not attempt in this short address to portray the many virtues you possess, nor do we even expect to reward you adequately, much less appreciate fully, the many valuable services and acts of kindness which you have rendered in this community.

As a slight token of our esteem for you, and of the affection we hold in our hearts we present to you, and hope you will accept this miscellaneous shower. We earnestly desire and pray, that in your new home, during the years that are to come, you will find them useful, and that they will serve as remembrances of your many friends and well wishers of Bailieboro.

After a suitable reply, a varied programme was given, and a dainty lunch served by the ladies, the rest of the evening being spent in music and dancing.

NOT AGREED OVER TERMS

Conflict Between the Bolsheviki and the Social Revolutionaries of the Left, Over the Ratification of the Pact is Growing Steadily

COMMISSARIES QUIET

(By Joseph Shaplen.)
(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 16.—Several revolutionary commissaries have quit the Russian cabinet pending settlement of the peace question at the Moscow Pan-Soviet Congress. They have decided to leave the Government, if the German dictated terms are ratified.

The conflict between the Bolsheviki and the Social Revolutionaries of the left, over the ratification of the pact is growing.

The prospects for the reassembling of the Constituent Assembly to form a coalition cabinet are becoming stronger.

M. Manespirodonowa, leader of the left faction, appealed to the peasants to rally to the defense of the land against the Germans, declaring the lefters represent the masses.

The Bolsheviki factional peace vote followed Premier Lenine's speech to the Moscow Soviet in which he said:

"The broad masses are undergoing self-discipline. We are compelled to stand unheard of humiliation, but we will stand it without surrendering our positions.

"We have the right to expect aid from our only friends, namely, the proletariat of all countries, who will understand that we are defending Socialism, not militarism.

"Tens of millions of Russians must be made to understand this. First we must conquer the present chaos, otherwise we will be unable to defeat the international Bourgeoisie. When the international proletariat hurries to our aid we will win."

Justice Commissary Steinberg declared his violent opposition to the peace terms.

The Cossacks and Ukrainians are not strongly represented in the Congress.

The movement of German and Turkish forces in the Trans-Caucasus region is regarded as a violation of the clause of the pact, in which the Russians agreed to evacuation of this territory, but did not agree to Turkish occupation.

Eggs Take A Drop In Price

Enormous quantities of eggs were brought in to the market this morning and the prices were appreciably lower. Butter was very scarce; few chickens came in:

Eggs sold at 45c to 50c per doz.
Butter went at 48c to 50c a lb.
Chickens, at 32c a lb.
Turkeys, 30c a lb.
Potatoes, $1.90 to $2 a bag.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR. OVEREND TO-DAY

The funeral of the late Harry H. Overend took place this morning at 9 o'clock, from the Sacred Heart church. The requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. McFadden, of Wooler, assisted by Rev. Fr. O'Brien, Rector.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Geo. Ball, W. J. Grady, Alex. Kay, R. Carson, F. Holmes and F. R. J. MacPherson.

A large number of the commercial travellers attended the funeral in a body.

Lack of Food Will Lose the War —Food Producers Constitute the Second Line of Defence—Potatoes and Beans Are Two Essential Products.

MEETING LAST NIGHT

The Peterborough Board of Trade went over the top last evening in a successful effort to further the greater production campaign. Representatives of the Government were present to emphasize in words the seriousness of the situation and outline plans for at least a partial solution of the problem. The speakers made a direct appeal to a representative gathering of Y.M.C.A. boys who occupied the front seats of the Grand Opera House and enlivened the proceedings with a number of cheer songs until the meeting was formally opened by Mr. J. J. Turner, president of the Board of Trade. The Salvation Army band headed a body of war veterans to the meeting, and other local organizations present at the meeting included the Otonabee and 57th Chapters of the Daughters of the Empire. A feature of the programme was the excellent singing of Mrs. George King, who kindly responded to several encores, Mr. George King presided at the piano.

Mr. Frank Yeigh.

The first speaker introduced by Mr. Turner was Mr. Frank Yeigh, who at the conclusion of his address, hurried over to the Empire Theatre, where he delivered an address under the auspices of the war bureau. Mr. Yeigh opened the meeting in the Opera House with a resume of the formation of the war lecture bureau and its object, which has a nation-wide purpose in connection with the greater production movement. The subject of Mr. Yeigh' address was, "The Canadian Boy." "The boy of to-day is a national asset," said the speaker. Thousands of boys are wanted to help produce foodstuffs. The boy of to-day is a soldier of the soil and in that capacity constitutes the second line of defence. The letters S. O. S. means more than soldiers of the soil. They mean save or starve, sow or starve. Last summer thousands of boys were actively engaged in greater production. This war is doing wonders for the boys of this land. It has implanting in their hearts a true conception of patroitism. They will be better Canadians for it. It is a rare experience for the boys who have had an opportunity of serving on the farm.

Enchtusiastic Workers.

Mr. Yeigh read a number of extracts from enthusiastic boy workers who served their country last year on the farm.

Twenty-five thousand boys are wanted in all Canada and fifteen thousand in Ontario alone. The situation is largely in the hands of the boys. Not only boys are wanted, but parents who will encourage their boys to go. The call is extended to the boys of Peterborough. Every boy here can do his bit, and a mighty important bit it is. The spectre of famine hangs over the land to-day. Boys are wanted to grow

ALLIES ARE STEADILY BEATING THE SUBMARINE

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Germany's trump card, the submarine, is being surely and steadily beaten by the rapidly increasing number of destroyers and chasers, according to information Secretary Daniels has given the House Naval Affairs Committee. The menace will be greatly lessened this summer, the Secretary believes.

"I have no doubt that we are going to win a victory over the submarines, we are winning surely and steadily," Mr. Daniels is quoted as saying. "All we can say is that we are capturing more submarines and destroying more submarines. The British Admiralty is of the opinion that the Allies are capturing or destroying more submarines than Germany is able to build."

GERMANS MAY HAVE MADE NEW PROPOSALS OF PEACE

Diplomats Feel That Underground Feelers Have Been Going Out For Some Time—Terms However Could Not Be Considered

LORD CECIL'S REFERENCE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Inferences that Germany may have made a new peace offer to the Allies, proposing terms at the expense of Russia, coincide with an undercurrent of discussion which has been running in diplomatic circles here for some time.

The statement of Lord Robert Cecil in London yesterday that no such proposal should be considered, coupled with Marshal Hindenburg's announcement that the German offensive would go on, served to strengthen the view of neutral diplomats, who for some time have believed that some sort of underground feelers have been going out.

American officials and Allied diplomats agree entirely with Lord Cecil's statement that no such terms can be considered.

Some of the neutral diplomats have for some time firmly believed that Germany would be willing even to give up Alsace-Lorraine if she were permitted to retain her hold on the Baltic Province and mineral belts in the other nearby sections of Asia.

FORD TRACTORS

How Peterborough Could Become a Distribution Point For Ford Tractors

Mr. Duffus, Ford dealer, is in possession of a letter from the Ford Motor Company, which gives full information with reference to the distribution of the Ford Tractor to the Canadian Government.

This letter points out that any place, where a reasonable number of these tractors are sold, will be designated as a distributing point, that is to say, if the farmers in this district took a number of these tractors, Peterborough would be designated as a distributing point, and while there is no remuneration in it for the Ford dealer, yet he states he would be only too glad to give any information which will facilitate the distribution of the tractors and help greater production.

The price of the tractor is $750, f.o.b. Dearborn, Michigan, free of duty. Parties desirous of obtaining a Ford Tractor would be well advised to take the matter up without delay in order to get delivery within reasonable time. 1d-1w-12

JAPANESE ARE MURDERED BY THE BOLSHEVIKI

Killed In Defending Their Property During Recent Disturbances in the Capital of Amur, Japanese Embassy Learns

MAXIMALISTS ACTIVE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 16.—Maximalists in Siberia have murdered 150 Japanese in Blagovieshtchensk, capital of Amur Province, according to a report forwarded by Repter's Limited.

A despatch from Tien-Tsin, China, to the Daily says that the Japanese Embassy at Peking has been informed that during the recent disturbances at Blagovieshtchensk three Japanese were killed and seven wounded while defending their property against the Bolsheviki.

Blagovieschtchensk is on the Amur River, near its confluence with Zeya, and is opposite the Manchurian town of Aigun. It is five hundred miles north of Harbin and has a population of 24,000. There are extensive gold mines in the district.

Presentation In Smith Township

Last evening the ladies of Central Smith Red Cross Society held a social at the home of Mr. James Young. The Rev. John Galt occupied the chair and the following interesting programme was presented:

Opening address—O Canada.
Chairman's address—R. J. Galt.
Reading—Mrs. Proudlove.
Piano duet— Misses Ruby Archer and Mary Graham.
Vocal solo—Mrs. Young.
Piano solo—Miss B. Y. Galt.

Speeches were given by Messrs. A. Scott, T. H. Graham, and Harold Archer.

During the evening Mr. Alex Edmison on behalf of Central Smith patrons, presented Mr. and Mrs. Proudlove with a handsome mahogany clock, Miss Ruby Archer read the following address:

Mr. and Mrs. Proudlove:

Dear Friends,— We the patrons of Central Smith butter factory, are gathered here to-night to try to express to you in some small way our appreciation of your faithful and untiring labour at our factory for the past six years. No doubt you have often found the work very arduous as well as very trying, but apparently you considered duty came before pleasure, and through all our difficulties and discouragements you stood by us, not only as A1 butter makers, but your buttermilk has also been a great attraction to thirsty wayfarers who consider it second to none. For all this we, the patrons, are truly grateful, and as a token of our appreciation we ask you to accept this clock. We also feel grateful we are not giving it as a parting gift, as we hope to have you as neighbours as well as butter makers, and that this clock may tick took for many years at old Central Smith.

Signed—Alex. Scott, Fred Scott, Percy Edmison, T. H. Graham.

A WAR SPEAKING PROGRAMME

The Dominion Government has made a commendable move in organizing a war publicity propaganda under a War Lecture Bureau, which in turn, is operated by authority of a Director of Public Information.

Germany has taught the Allied nations a lesson in this regard, though her's has been truthfully described as a poisoned propaganda, and which has done much harm, especially in Russia.

Great Britain is only now waking up to the importance of mobilizing public opinion through the spoken word and Canada equally needs it.

The programme of the Bureau is being carried on in Peterborough as it is in hundreds of Canadian cities and towns. The effect of a Dominion wide plan of this character cannot but be of great value in sustaining the morale of the Canadian people, and in keeping all of us keyed up to the fullest prosecution of the war.

SOLDIERS OF THE SOIL.

The call goes out next week for the boys of Peterborough to register in the army of the soldiers of the soil to help on the farms during the coming season. Last year several thousand boys volunteered for this work and made good their willingness and usefulness, being a surprise to their employers who were at first rather doubtful as to the value of the experiment. It is hardly necessary to point out that the Allies need every pound of foodstuffs that Canada can produce. Without help Canada's farmers cannot roll up the crops that are needed and here is where the boys, too young to go to France, but anxious to do their bit in winning the war, can get into Canada's second line of defence by volunteering for farm work.

Every boy between thirteen and nineteen years of age who completed three months' service on a farm, will be awarded a national soldier of the soil bronze badge, which will be proof in the years to come, that at the great work can get the necessary indemocracy trembled in the balance, although he was too young to fight, he did his share by helping to produce the food that was a big factor in the winning of the war.

Boys who want to enlist for this greatwork can get the necessary information from Mr. Joseph Wearing, who is the director for this district.

WESTERN COAL TO THE RESCUE.

"Why should the homes and industries of Ontario want fuel while the coal mines of Alberta lack orders" asks a booklet recently issued by the coal operators of Northern Alberta.

This question is well worth immediate consideration by the Dominion Fuel Controller and by the people of Ontario, says the London Advertizer. Mr. McGrath was formerly manager of one of the western mines, and should be able to bring his experience to bear upon the matter. If the statements made by the western coal operators and by John T. Stirling, Chief Inspector of Mines of the Province of Alberta, are based on facts, there can be little defence for continuing the present system of coal supply for Ontario and the district west of the Great Lakes.

Mr. Stirling points out that during 1917 the production of coal for Alberta was 4,863,414 tons, and with sufficient demand the mines at present in operation could increase this production to 7,500,000 tons without increasing the amount of labour at present engaged or the overhead charges.

The inspector asks why it should be necessary to import into Western Canada 3,000,000 tons of coal per year from the United States at a time when the operation of industry in the United States and Canada is being slowed down because of the shortage of coal. Not only could the western mines provide more than sufficient fuel to meet all demands existing in the provinces of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, but the mines could also provide a considerable amount for the American territory within easy reach of the mines.

The westerners claim for their coal that it is entirely suitable for both domestic and industrial consumption. "It is used in stoves and furnaces with immense satisfaction," to quote the pamphlet.

"Why, then, should Canada be cold?" ask the mine operators. At the present time the mines of the west are operating less than fourteen days a month. Full operation would enable the railroads to make use of box-cars at a time when grain is not being carried. Redistribution of the whole coal supply of Canada would enable the country to dismiss its coal problems for next winter, and prove to the United States that Canada was willing to relieve her ally's burden as much as possible. The Fuel Controller should take some steps toward making full use of Canada's coal supply. Three million tons would help mightily in relieving the eastern situation. Now is the time for action rather than next winter. Since $25,000 fuel experts did not seem to effect much benefit, why not try a little common-sense?

CHINA AS AN ALLY.

China, which at the request of President Wilson severed relations with Germany and later, on the representation of the Allies, declared war on Germany, has given over 100,000 of her best men to the cause of the Allies. They are behind the lines working as mechanics, carpenters, bridge, and road builders. They are strong, brave, and indefatigable and good-humored workers. For two years or more they have been crossing the Pacific and Canada enroute to France in contingents of 2,500 or thereabouts. Prior to embarkation in China they are given a camp and military training experience for some weeks under the supervision of English and Canadian officers.

Those who have seen these Chinese realize that every one is hand-picked, and that they are all in the pink of physical condition. Returning American officers from France are enthusiastic over the useful qualities and indispensable character of the service these Chinese are rendering the fighting armies. They are described as tractable, cheerful, brave under fire and able to live on the most simple fare and one easily supplied.

The question naturally arises: Why are not a greater number employed in France in the capacity of workmen or as soldiers? asks M. A. Oudin, manager of the Foreign Department of the General Electric Company. General Chung, head of the Chinese Military Mission in America, has announced that China is willing to send 500,000 fighting men to the western front. The Chinese Minister, Dr. Wellington Koo, in a speech before the New York Chamber of Commerce, said that China could help to win the war by her resources and by her man power if given assistance.

Here is the answer to our question. China needs assistance if her limitless resources of grain, raw material and men are to be made available for the benefit of her Allies. China is poor. Her credit has been disparaged by other nations who wished to exploit her, although she has never failed to pay a debt. At the present time China cannot borrow except on onerous terms that offend her dignity and sovereignity and impair the commercial opportunity of other nations not parties to the loan. Wealthy nations such as England and France to-day are situated like China in that they are not able to borrow money, and their credit is impaired by the drain upon their resources. To these countries and other countries in Europe the United States has loaned, or will have loaned in the course of the next few months five thousand million dollars, but apparently so far not one cent has been loaned to China. Yet China must be financially assisted to make her an effective ally.

The eyes of our administrators and of the people have been fixed upon the western front in the correct belief that the war will be decided there. In concentrating our efforts upon this point have we not neglected the Far East? We seem to have shown an apathy and an indifference to the problems affecting American economic interests there, interests of transcendent importance, and we seem above all to have overlooked the direct help offered us from that quarter in winning the war and winning it expeditiously.

The war has cut down the agricultural output of the European Allies by fully one-half and the deficit must be made up by the United States. If the war should drag on one or two years more the United States will suffer seriously from a shortage of food and possibly man power. All the Allies will then look longingly at the world's greatest storehouse, China, and will look unavailingly unless early means are initiated by which it can be tapped.

One of China's greatest needs today is transportation. With a population of over three hundred and fifty million people and an area of 4,278,352 square miles, she possesses only 6,500 miles of railroad. The most fertile sections and the great wheat fields are for the most part reached by railroads as yet only on paper or by railroads the construction of which has been stopped by the war. In some interior districts the local price of good, hard-grained wheat is less than 20 cents Mexican money per bushel. Given trasportation facilities, the quantity raised would be enormously increased over that required for local consumption and the surplus for export would be sold at the world's market price less the cost of railroad and ocean trasportation. The Allied countries would benefit by the added supply of foodstuff and the economic condition of the communities served by the railroads would be vastly improved.

The practical utilization of such a situation for the benefit of the Allies would be assured if financial assistance were given China for the immediate and hurried completion of railroad lines, the construction of which has been stopped by the war. The plan for carrying out a comprehensive scheme for placing at the disposition of the Allies, including the United States, the resources and man power of China, is said to be already worked out in sufficient detail for immediate action. What seems to be needed is an active and enlightened public interest. A loan to China of from thirty to forty million dollars for the above-mentioned constructive purposes, to be spent under American supervision, would seem to be a matter of the highest military necessity, concludes Mr. Oudin.

EYES, BRAINS, HANDS

Use your eyes and brains, as well as your hands, to make money, but no use making money unless you save it. Peterborough is certain to grow rapidly after the war, and every lot I own must become city property very soon, and will then be worth more than double my price, yes, from 3 to 5 times my prices. I know it. But my day is past and I want to sell now. Here is the work where your eyes and brains, if wisely used, cannot fail to prove the wisdom of buying my lots for a home, or a safe and very profitable bank for your savings, large or small. House renters, see me now and own your home, with a good garden. If you can pay rent you can buy from me.

WILL INVESTIGATE WASTE OF CHICKENS.

Winnipeg, March 15. — J. D. McGregor of the Canada Food Board, has appointed T. B. Tustin, chief Food and Dairy Inspector for the city, to investigate the conditions at the Wm. Davies cold storage plant, with full power to act. This was announced at the Food Board office.

Last week 8,500 pounds of chicken were found to be rotten in the cold storage plant and had to be sent to the incinerator. The city officials reported the matter to the Food Control Dept., both in Winnipeg and Ottawa, and the appointment of Mr. Tustin is the result.

The investigation will deal first with the Davies plant, but it is expected that it will eventually extend to the other cold storage plants in the city.

THE HOME HEALTH CLUB

(Edited by Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Ill.)

Vinegar As a Medicine — In going over the list of various home or kitchen remedies that are always easily procured and inexpensive, it is wise to not overlook our good old friend, "Vinegar." Instead of Vol. 5, let us this time turn to our Vol. 3 of the Home Health Club, and see how effecthally vinegar may be used in the home treatment of eczema in a nursing baby.

"Let us for example, take a case such as I have seen. The entire head is a solid mass of sores, covered with a thick scab, and where the little hands have been able to get at the skin on the forehead and around the ears, fresh and bleeding sores are seen. The itching is intense, and the little one is cross and fretful. Havnig no other remedy at hand that is better, or that the poor man can afford, then heat a little white vinegar, adding enough water to prevent it smarting or burning the child; then dip a soft rag or sponge into this and gently touch it to the afflicted parts, not making it too wet—simply enough to moisten the scalp around the edges, adopting the plan of healing gradually. Now remember that the vinegar must not be strong, must not cause much smarting if it should get into your own eye, which is no more tender that the afflicted skin on the neck around the ears, and forehead. This weak solution should be applied at least twice a day, and the application immediately followed by an application of the finest almond or olive oil. After the application of the diluted vinegar, the angry-looking sore spots will usually assume a hsalthy, pink color and remain so for some time after the olive oil has been applied, and as the healing process is continued, the scabs disappear, the itching ceases, and presently we are rewarded by seeing a clear, healthy skin in the place of the sore distress. Sometimes the distress may be wholly overcome in a day or two, and cases that have continued to grow worse under a treatment of mineral ointments and drugs are speedily cured by these simple means. Soap and water only add to the irritation, and should not be used. If it is very necessary to wash a child when he is first attacked by the distase, use a litle borax in the water and immediately follow the drying with the treatment above described. One important point that must not be lost sight of when treating nursing infants is the fact that it is to the mother's diet that we must look for a permanent cure. Starchy foods should be avoided, especially the starches of cereals; baked Irish potatoes are permissible, but sweet potatoes should be avoided, as well as tea and coffee. I trust that all sufferers from this annoying disease may find speedy relief in this simple cure, and that the interested ones will follow the course of the Home Health Club to the finish for still more complete knowledge."

Now, I presume that I could fill this entire paper in telling you of ways in whihc vinegar can and has been successfully used as a home remedy. It is a splendid antiseptic and sterilizer, and when conditions are such that a bath is impossible, I advise sponging the body just before retiring with hot vinegar. This should never be done at any other time than just before going to bed as it opens the pores of the skin and there would be no danger of taking cold unless the sponging was followed by an olive oil rub.

In Vol. 2 of the Club Books is described a simple means of cure for night sweats by the use of vinegar and other kitchen remedies.

CLUB NOTES.

How to Save Coal.—It is the doctor's duty to find out things for the benefit of humanity and it is then his duty to teach. In these days of coal shortage, life may at times depend upon fuel. How to make one ton of coal do the work of three tons is information that may save life. Try the following in a small way. If it works for you as it has for others, then you can use it exclusively. All I ask in return is that you write and tell me of your success or failure.

Take common salt, 1 pound, Oxalic Acid 2 ounces, water 1 gallon.

Mix these together. Now take a bucketful of the finer coal and mix it with two bucketfuls of ashes that are free from clinkers and slate. Moisten these with the solution and feed the mixture to your fire.

The chemical change that takes place is simple and gives a practical explanation of the process. The aquose solution of alkaline salt, mixed with the coal ashes produces a mild lye, which, when mixed with coal and the unburned matter in the ashes and subjected to heat, gives off oxygen gas; this insures rapid combustion while the addition of oxalic acid produces a stranger chemical change, resulting in the formation of a carbide and acetylene gas, thus producing an intense heat similar to burning coke.

By using practical common sense and good judgment in this experiment, you may save about one-third of your coal bill.

Toothache.— A foreign exchange publishes what the writer pronounces a prompt cure for toothache. It consists of inhaling the strong penetrating odour of the volatile oil of mustard. In some cases, he claims, the effect is almost instantaneous.

Hardware And Metal Markets

Few Changes in the Price of Metal

Further advances in linseed oil have been recorded during the week and $2.00 oil has now become a reality. The latest increase of 5c per gallon, following on a 23c jump last week, brings the price of raw to this figure.

Turpentine reveals a somewhat weaker tone and declines ranging 2c to 7c per gallon have been made. The situation in the primary market shows little action though hopes of improvement in regard to shipment of supplies to Great Britain are held out.

At the instigation of the Federal Trade Commission in the United States, manufacturers are practically unanimous in signing a stipulation in which they agree not to use the term "Manila" in the brand-name or label on any of their rope containing less than 100 per cent. of pure Manila fibre, unless the matter contain qualifying words which conspicuously and clearly show the percentage of Manila hemp in the rope. Similar action may follow in Canada.

The order issued by the Dominion Government prohibiting export of scrap iron will not affect scrap merchandise from all accounts. The only ones to suffer, it is said, will be manufacturers of shells and articles of iron and steel which produce scrap iron. Canadian buyers of scrap steel and iron, it is said, paid far less than those of the States and the feeling exists that the steel men seem to have got behind the Government and forced its hands so as to corner all thes crap iron for hemselves at a cheap price. The market holds firm, though Eastern reports indicate advances in many lines.

The hardware market generally remains firm, sheets, plates, pipe, boiler tubes showing no tendency to change. Advances have been made in cistern pumps, wrenches, cross cut saws, buck saws, hand saws, measuring tapes and sash weights. Business is reported in fair volume and in many lines shipments are going forward as rapidly as railways will accept the freight.—"Hardware and Metal."

Quick Help For Chest Soreness!

All Congestion Made To Go Quickly!

Worst Cold or Sore Throat Cured in Quick Order

RUB ON NERVILINE

WORST COLD OR SORE THROAT CURED IN QUICK ORDER.

RUB ON NERVILINE.

Rub Nerviline plentifully over the neck and chest—rub it in well—lots of rubbing can't hurt. The relief will be surprising.

Nerviline is effective because it is powerful—because five times stronger than an ordinary liniment. Nerviline is penetrating, sinks in through the tissues, gets right in where the soreness and the congestion really are. Is action is marvellously soothing. Rubbed on at night it draws out the inflammation and before the morning takes away that feeling of tightness and stops the cough entirely.

Where can you find so powerfully searching a relief as Nerviline for a bad cold? Search the world over and you'll discover nothing half so good. For nearly forty years Nerviline been quickly curing colds, coughs and throat troubles. Thousands use it for rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia—they all speak well of this grand family liniment, because they have proved its almost magical power.

Whenever you have an ache or a pain, be it neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, joint or muscle stiffness always remember that Nerviline is the quickest safest cure. Every good dealer in medicine sells the large 25c family size bottle of Nerviline, or direct from the Catarrhozone Co., of Kingston, Canada.

Encourage The Horticultural Society

Full Value Received For the One Dollar Membership Fee

If every member of the Horticultural Society was as energetic as Secretary Williamson, the membership list would be continually troubled with growing pains. Although his own business affairs keep him hustling early and late, his enthusiasism for the development of the Horticultural Society never slackens. The five different sections of options that members are entitled to choose from in consideration of having paid the small sum of one dollar for membership fee, offer inducements of actual value well worth the money alone, without any other privilege. For instance, the following are a few of the options:

Option No. 32: Fifteen packets of Vegetable or Flower Seed. You may choose your own assortment.

Option 33: 4 Boxes of Seedling Plants, Onions, Tomatoes, Cabbage, etc.; your own choice.

Option 35: One year's subscription to the Canadian Horticulturist, and two boxes of seedlings; your own choice.

Option 36: One peck of Irish Cobbler Potatoes.

Option 37: Two small fruits, or Grape Vines, such as Raspberries, Currants, Gooseberries, etc.

Option 38: Twenty-five Strawberry Plants.

Does it not appeal to you that any two of the above would come in very nicely as a good start to really producing something during the coming season? Make your own choice of any two, marking the same distinctly and enclose a dollar membership fee to the local Horticultural Society to Secretary Williamson, 203 King street, or the same may be left at Mr. Denne's store, where an official receipt will be given you. Do this at once.

Canada First Says Sir Wilfrid

OTTAWA, March 16.—"One way in which to keep out country on its high level is to make a firm resolution that it shall be Canada first, Canada last, and Canada all the time," declared Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Leader of the Opposition, in an address at an Irish concert. The Liberal Chieftain reviewed the Irish question briefly, and declared that John Redmond had died broken-hearted.

Redmond had followed in the footsteps of Daniel O'Connell and Parnell, declared Sir Wilfrid, and had even succeeded in 1914 in having placed on the statute books of Great Britain a law for which O'Connell and Parnell had striven, but failed to secure. The law was not put in force, however.

"Why was it held up?" asked Sir Wilfrid. "It was not put into effect because some men under the guise of loyalty promised to bring on civil war. Then the great war broke out, and it must be said to the glory of John Redmond that when he saw the approaching peril he asked the Irish people to give way for a time. I speak of John Redmond and the Irish question because it is a lesson for us in this country.

"The Canadian Confederation is not on trial. It is stable, and will last. There may be a cloud, and there may be reverses, but the light of freedom is always there and will prevail in the end.

"Canada is a difficult country to govern. There are many languages, many races and many religious beliefs. However, it is not impossible. I do not expect any Canadian to forget his ancestors and the country of his birth. I would not forget the land of my ancestors, dear old France. There is room for us all in this country. I am an old man now, but through my ministry I always endeavoured to keep Canada together and make it a united people."

Are Your Feet Calloused?

Easy to remove lumps by applying Putnam's Corn and Wart Extractor. This purely vegetable remedy acts painlessly and is guaranteed. Insist on "Putnam's" only. 25c per bottle.

Never heap coals of fire on an enemy's head until you burn your own fingers.

Whooping Cough

"The disease I most dread is Whooping Cough, for children are often permanently injured by the awful straining of the cough. You should never neglect it, and treatment should be started at the first symptom. You cannot mistake the symptoms: protracted coughing, worse at night; peculiar whoop; labored expectoration of mucus; apparent suffocation after coughing.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is a positive remedy for this disease—repeat the dose frequently, for if given freely it liquifies the tough mucus, makes it easy to expectorate and counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. There is no danger whatever from Whooping Cough when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Presentation Was Made To Mr. And Mrs. Charles Coben

Ex-Reeve of Galway Leaves For a New Field of Activity—Presentation Followed a Successful Sale

At the close of Mr. Coben's sale of farm stock and implements, such sale being the result of Mr, Coben and family's departure for Saskatchewan, the neighbours and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Coben took them by surprise, and made the following presentation to them. Mr. Coben, although taken unawares, replied in a feeling but thoughtful manner, explaining why he was making such a move, although hard to do, from the fact that he was leaving kind friends to whom all credit is due for any measure of success referred to in such a kind address.

Refreshments were served, followed by the usual entertaining, as is characteristic of Mr. and Mrs. Coben, bringing to a close the enjoyably spent evening by singing "God Save the King."

The Address.

The address follows:

To Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Coben and Family:

We, your friends and neighbours, have met here this evening, on the eve of your departure for the West, to spend a pleasant evening and to express to you even in a small way the respect we have for you.

Your many friends regret to learn that you have decided to remove from the township in which you have spent the best years of your life in your successful business of a farmer; because, sir, you have been most progressive, alert and efficient in your occupation, and you have stood at the very front of those who are identified with the agricultural interests of the township.

The profession of farming has gained by your work and example.

As a neighbour you, and your good wife, have always been ever ready to help the sick and needy, and the vicinity is much indebted to you for your valuable assistance.

Ever since you engaged in taking a share of the burdens of public life your services have met with the approval of the people of this locality, you having filled the different positions of Township Councillor and Reeve, and also Warden of the County all with much credit to yourself and a benefit to the community.

As you leave our midst we want you to know that you will be missed. You have been a force in the community and your influence has been for good.

MR. CHARLES COBEN, of Galway, who, with his family, is moving to Saskatchewan.

And to help you to remember your old friends in Galway and vicinity, we would ask you to accept this suit case, and with it goes good wishes for your prosperity, good health and God's blessing in your new home on the prairies.

Signed on behalf of the community,
A. Morrison, Reeve of Sommerville.
J. Clark, Reeve of Galway.

15,000 Boys Needed in Ontario

Food is the crucial need of the Allies today. In England well-to-do people are standing in line for their food supplies. In France, the bread ration has been reduced. Surely every boy between the ages of 15 and 19 is old enough to realize his grave responsibility in this crisis, and will enrol immediately with the

Soldiers Of the Soil

15,000 determined boys are needed—Boys willing to sacrifice their holidays and work faithfully and cheerfully alongside the farmers of Ontario and serve their King, their Country and their Allies in this, the supreme crisis of the war.

National Bronze Badges of Honour will be awarded as a recognition of the services rendered by the boys on the farms this year.

Of course wages will be paid. Boys earned from $12.00 to $30.00 a month and board last season. But the soldiers in the trenches never considered money—they went.

You're made of the same good stuff. You'll go, too.

Direct Tax On Farmers

OTTAWA, March 15.—Plans for the taking of an agricultural census, which the Government contemplates in co-operation with the Provincial Departments of Agriculture, apparently have ultimately in view some measure of direct taxation on the farming community. So far all farmers are practically exempt from war taxation on incomes or other forms of direct Federal taxation. But, with the imperative need of increased revenues to meet the burden of the war, and its aftermath, the Government realizes that increased direct taxation falling on everyhing must come. As yet there is no adequate or detailed information as to farmers' annual profits or wealth. To secure this and as a basis on which to determine any further measure of direct taxation as suggested, the agricultural census is to be made. It will be in the form of questionnnaries sent out to each farmer asking for data as to his revenues and expenditures, the value of his land, stock, buildings, etc., the net return on his investment after allowing a reasonable amount for the labour of himself and family, and all other information tending to show as accurately as possible the financia status and yearly income of each farmer.

Details as to the method and time of taking the census are still to be settled, but it is probable it will be made in connection with the coming national registration next June.

Tell Your Wife Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift corns or calluses off with fingers.

Not a twinge of pain or soreness before applying or afterwards. This may sound like a dream to corn-pestered men and women who have been cutting, filing and wearing torturous plasters. Yes! Corns lift out and calluses peel off as if by magic, says this Cincinnati authority.

A quarter of an ounce of freezone costs but a few cents at any drug-store. Apply a few drops directly upon your tender corn or callus, and instantly the soreness disappears; then shortly the corn or callus will be so loose that it lifts off.

Freezone dries instantly. It does not eat out the corn or callus, but just shrivels it up so it lifts away without even irritating he surrounding skin, omen should keep it on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

Slie—Do you think we ought to pay $3 each for these theatre tickets? "They're worth it! The play may not be any good, but we will be warm for a couple of hours." —Life.

BRITISH FORCES ARE ACTIVE, SAYS BERLIN

Canadian Press Despatch:

BERLIN, March 16.—British troops on the Franco-Belgium front were extremely active during the evening yesterday and also at night, notably in the regions south from Arras as far as St. Quenin, Army Headquarters announced to-day.

Revival Services Continued

Last night at Browntown Hall, the second series of revival services was held and the subject taken up was "A Half Baked Cake" from Hosea—Ephraim is a cake not turned. A number came to the front in response to the appeal made. Special campaign songs were sung. It is expected that a large crowd will attend to-night to hear the subject, 'Six Stages in a Man's Life.'

To-morrow (Sunday) at 10 o'clock, the Adjutant will speak on "Conquering an Army"; at 3 p.m. "A Singing Battle"; at 7 p.m.; "The Great Question."

The public are generally invited.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys, and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble

PATRIOTIC TEA WAS A SUCCESS

Great success in every way attended the patriotic tea given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan, Robinson street, yesterday afternoon, in aid of the Ashburnham Patriotic Society. No pains had been spared in any department of the tea to make it the decided social success it proved to be. The house was most charmingly and appropriately decorated in both Easter and St. Patrick style, the charming dining room tables being exceptionally tastefully decorated in green-shaded candelabra, green candles, shamrock and quaint little Easter bunnies. The drawing room was a bower of white narcissus and shamrock.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Whitehouse, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Butcher, Mrs. Couper, Mrs. Convery, Mrs. Doris, Miss L. Scott and Miss Morgan, assisted in the tea room, while an attractive musical programme was given, the artistes being Mrs. P. C. Ferguson, solo; Mrs. Perrin, solo; while Miss Sage played.

In the evening, which was equally successful as the afternoon, Mrs. Parsons, president of the Society, Mrs. Gus Hay, Mrs. Terrott Glover, Mrs. Weir, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Gillespie, and Miss J. Conroy.

The evening programme included piano solos by Miss Holden and Miss Holden, and solos by Mrs. Wand and Miss Lynn.

SELECT MEDICINE CAREFULLY

Purgatives are dangerous They gripe, cause burning pains and make the constipated condition worse. Physicians say the most ideal laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut they are exceedingly mild, composed only of health-giving vegetable extracts. Dr. Hamilton's Pills restore activity to the bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. For constipation, sick headache, biliousness and disordered digestion no medicine on earth makes such remarkable cures as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c box yourself.

THE SUCCESS OR FAILURE OF WAR DEPENDS UPON FOOD PRODUCERS

food and other necessities of life. It is a grand opportunity," said Mr. Yeigh in conclusion.

A Bright Spot.

Mr. Riddell, chairman of the labour department of Resources committee, was the next speaker. "Peterborough is one of the bright spots in Ontario for increasing production," said the speaker. Nothing is more inspiring than to see the effort on every hand to further the cause for which we are fighting. Few fields offer greater opportunity for patriotic effort than the farm. The ultimate prospects for victory may well rest with the workers of the land. It has been said that victory may be with the country which can put the last hundred thousand men in the field. It will be no use putting the last hundred thousand men in the field if they are hungry.

Lloyd George has pointed out that the plough is our hope. Lord Rhoonda and others officially intrusted with the food situation of the world, are urging greater production. Food supplies have decreased since the outbreak of war. A soldier requires four times as much beef and six times as much bacon as a civilian.

Where seven acres was devoted to wheat in Canada last year there must be ten acres this year. The keystone of the arch of food production is farm labour. If we fail in our efforts to increase the production of food it will be because we have not sufficient labour. This year forty thousand additional farm workers will have to be placed on the land if we are to do our share. We are going to get that number of workers. Last year we had seven or eight thousand boys. This year we are planning to send out over seven thousand men for farm work. For the harvest we are planning to get twelve thousand five hundred. Next week will be recruiting week for the boys. Mr. Joseph Wearing, who has been appointed local director of soldiers of the soil, will receive applications for enrollment in the army of the S.O.S.

A National Call.

The next speaker was Mr. McCready, secretary of the Resources committee. The speaker said that the people of Canada to-day were confronted with the necessity of producing more food. It is a big national call that must be met. From all appearances it would seem that Germany to-day is in a better position to continue the war than she was last year or the year before. The way to make a war short is to prepare for a long one. Lack of food will lose the war, and lack of food is largely responsible for the Russian revolution. The break in the Italisn front last fall is traceable to that cause. The fear of the allies to-day is that Italy and France may break owing to lack of food. The big problem facing us in Canada to-day is to organize in an effort to increase the production of food.

The question of increased food production is largely an urban problem. Two persons reside in the towns and cities for every person who resides on the farm.

The speaker suggested greater efforts in the matter of backyard gardening with potatoes and beans as two essential products. If our meat consumption is restricted we can not do better than use beans as a substitute. The children of the schools should be organized for the purpose of backyard gardening. An army of several hundred school children could do valuable work if properly supervised. The secret of success in this kind of work is good organization. The call to Canada to-day is to organize your forces, man, woman and child, and produce food.

Success or Failure.

Captain Hezzlewood of the Canadian Food Board, said that the success or failure of this war depends upon how the food producers of North America go over the top and in what spirit. The situation to-day is most disheartening. The success of this war depends not so much on what is going on at the front but what is being done by the people of this continent. There is a depreciation of foodstuffs throughout the world. All the warring countries are starving to-day. It is only from the North American continent that we can get shipping enough to transport food to the allies.

The speaker closed with a stirring appealing for co-operation in the matter of food production.

At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was extended to the Salvation Army Band, the speakers, and others who assisted to make the meeting a success.

The Difference BETWEEN PASTEURIZED AND RAW MILK

PASTEURIZED MILK has been heated to a temperature of 145 F. and kept at that temperature 30 minutes. By this heating process any disease producing sediment, dirt or pus, that gets into the milk, is destroyed and makes the milk safe, without destroying any of its nutritive properties.

PURE MILK is just the unclarified milk as it comes from the cow, with whatever impurities that may get mixed into it. See the difference?

EVERY DROP OF MILK FROM THE PETERBOROUGH CREAMERY is both Clarified and Pasteurized before bottled. That's your safety.

An extra quart of Milk a day will cut your meat bill in half. Order from one of our milkmen or at the office, 377 Aylmer street, or call 'phone 650.

"Exemption Board" For The Railways

Recalls Conscription Debate When Member Said: "We Will Fight the Act With the Act"—The Increase in Rates

POSITION OF GOVERNMENT

OTTAWA, March 16.—The Union Government has issued its ultimatum re railway rates and railroads. Beyond the fact that the Cabinet has resolved itself into an exemption board for railways, it has not cleared the air to any considerable extent. The only thing that stands out clear and distinct is that the increase in rates is meant to wipe out existing deficits in the operating expenses and fixed charges of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern Railways.

In other words, the Government has stopped making grants to these roads, and called on the public to do it instead. Of course, the Canadian Pacific Railway is expected to pay at least a part of this back. But how much? The clause covering the taxation of C.P.R. profits is clothed in all the simple legal phraseology of the Military Service Act. It will be remembered that during the conscription debate Gauthier, of St. Hyacinthe, declared: "We will fight the act with the act."

May Fight Taxation.

How well this has been done is evidenced by the number of empty uniforms in Quebec. The Canadian Pacific will probably also decide to fight their taxation clause with the clause. And if the net result is the collection of as many dollars from the C.P.R. as the Military Service Act collected conscripts from Quebec, Sir Thomas White will not have to sit up night to count them.

As things stand at present the Canadian Pacific pays dividends as it stands, while the C.N.R. generally requires about $15,000,000 and the Grand Trunk $8,000,000 from the Government. The net deficits annually of the two roads would be about $23,000,000. Of course this should not be as large in future as the Government has generously voted about $40,000,000 for roling stock about $40,000,000 for rolling stock roads that it has the habit of donating to.

What It Means to G.T.R.

How much the 15 per cent. increase will mean to the Grand Trunk is variously estimated at from thirteen to twenty-two millions, according to who does the figuring. Just how much of this somewhat shifty amount the Government will be able to corral is even more in doubt. One optimistic Minister with a hard constituency to please has visions of the whole amount flowing into the Dominion coffers. A pessimist recalls the success with which the Government has heretofore recovered any and all things the railways got their hands on, and doesn't think the Government will get a cent. However, those who try to strike a happy medium have it figured that the Cabinet decision really means: "We'll let the public pay the deficits on the two losing concerns and we'll split the extra surplus fifty-fifty with the C.P.R."

One View of Case.

In other words, they think that the C.P.R. will gather another $14,000,000 and if the Dominion Government is lucky it will get about $7,000,000 of it. But this is all conjecture. Probably Hon. Arthur Meighen thinks he knows what that clause means. No one else ventures to make a guess. Meantime the entire question of nationalization appears to have been shelved for the coming session at least.

The Union Government has seized on the greatest of its troubles firmly by the nape of the neck and the waistband, hoisted it on to the shoulders of the public, and settled back with a satisfied sigh. Of course, the high cost of living has again been added to, and this time without the aid of the Food Controller, but the public need only remember that we must make yet greater sacrifices in order that the war may be won.

Union for Uncle Sam.

One or two little things that stick out are that while transportation is considered one of the factors to be considered in connection with increased production, the United States might learn simplicity of methods from this Union Cabinet of which we are all so proud. Your Uncle Sam went to all the trouble of taking control of the railways and co-ordinating them in order to secure a lessening of cost of operating and greater efficiency. He even refused to consider a blanket increase in rates. He appeared to be obsessed with the idea that the plain people had certain interest in the matter. How much easier it would have been for him to simply raise the freight rates. Of course he would not have found it necessary to put a direct tax on the people of millions of dollars and collect it in the way of rebates from prosperous companies. He has so many commissions and controllers to pay.

Drayton-Acworth Report.

It might be mentioned, too, that the money paid to the Drayton-Acworth reports should be a charge on the C.P.R. rebate. It mentioned various methods by which economies could be affected in transportation. But why worry about trifles This Union Cabinet is composed of statesmen who think in a large way. With one stroke of the pen and one small section of Hon. Arthur Meighen's legal mind, they have swept the transportation question from their paths. The session of Parliament is another trifle they expect to move as lightly as it. Then on to England to win the war.—Toronto Telegram.

ROBERT HICKS COY'S FUEL REGULATIONS

Subject to the Fuel Controller's Regulations at All Times

The Robert Hicks Co., Limited, herein announce their policy for coal distribution for the coming season:

1.—No orders booked in advance of shipments received.
2.—Priority to customers on record and in rotation of delivery as per record.
3.—Not more than 80 per cent. of normal requirements will be delivered to any one customer between April 1st and September 1st, and any lesser percentage that we may decide upon as conditions warrant.
4.—When lists on record have been supplied as above, any surplus coal will be distributed to customers of later record, conserving a reasonable supply in the late fall months, to tide over periods when transportation may be difficult or suspended.
5.—Customers must fill in cards signed by them stating the stock they have on hand, and the normal quantity of coal used; agreeing to notify us and any person appointed by the Mayor or City Council, to regulate, control or centralize the distribution of coal in the city, should they procure a further supply.
6.—Orders will not be accepted by telephone and will only be acknowledged when accompanied by cash.
7.—Should the supply of coal be sufficient for all requirements, and greater than anticipated, the balance of the normal requirements will be delivered on each order in rotation.

We would suggest that the different church bodies come together and agree on a policy of conserving fuel, acceptable to the Mayor, as Local Fuel Controller.

Explanatory.

The above announcement is in reply to the numerous requests we have to accept summer orders now, and will be effective only when spring shipments are received.

The object of these regulations is that in the event of a shortage of coal, such shortage will not all be borne by the winter purchaser, and also to discourage the starting of furnaces in the early fall.

Doctors Stand Amazed At Power Of Bon-Opto To Make Weak Eyes Strong--According To Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed To Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say that they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me.' A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a deep green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above is not a patent medicine, or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by the Warne Drug Co. and others.

BIG INTERESTS ARE SAID TO BE AFTER W. F. O'CONNOR'S HEAD

Ottawa, March 15.—Big interests, and others associated with them, are again after the official scalp of W. F. O'Connor, K.C., Commissioner of the Cost of Living under the Labor Department. Some time ago, following the expose of the bacon profits and the substantiation of the report by a royal commission, there were strong suggestions that by some species of camouflage Mr. O'Connor and his activities might be submerged. Nothing came of it at the time, but there have been murmurings ever since, notably when the hoarding of eggs was recently denounced.

DIVIDE UP WORK.

The latest idea is to abolish the office in so far as Mr. O'Connor is concerned, and to divide the inquisitional authority now exercised. The Food Controller would look after the food questions, the Fuel Controller would attend to the fuel supply and the Trade and Commerce Department would investigate other factors entering into the cost of living. A division of authority along this line is under consideration, and the fact that three different departments would replace the present centralized system under a competent and aggressive officer suggests that further activities would be peculiarly limited and lacking in co-ordination.

NO PECUNIARY LOSS.

It may be explained that Mr. O'Connor is an officer of the Justice Department, which pays his salary. He receives no remuneration as commissioner in the cost of living, and if the officer were abolished he would suffer no pecuniary loss. It is conceded however that he has been exceptionally successful in disclosing conditions which have led to some measure of remedy, but obviously much more is to be done. If the office is now abolished and the work divided up as indicated, there is slight probability of further activity and particularly of publicity.

A PAINSTAKING MAN.

The Cost of Living Commissioner is both a lawyer and an accountant, and has the reputation of being a very painstaking man whose reports have not minced matters or withheld any vital facts.

His unpopularity with certain interests consequently is in the inverse ratio to his public service.

HOMESTEAD RULE FOR SOLDIERS BENEFIT

OTTAWA, March 14.—On the recommendation of Hon. Arthur Meighen, Minister of the Interior, a new homestead regulation has been adopted providing that, in the case of an entrant for a homestead being absent on military service and unable to cultivate the land, he may lease it to other parties.

LIMITING CONSUMPTION OF WHEAT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Further limitation of wheat consumption in the United States and Canada is under consideration by the food administrations of both countries to make certain that the sub-normal visible supply will tide over the American people and their Allies until the next harvest. Plans for accomplishing additional saving are being worked out carefully, and the only bar to success feared by the officials is senseless hoarding which may be practically eliminated by the people uniting.

The Allies have been promised 90 million bushels of grain between Jan. 1 and July 1. There is no intention of failing to carry out this programme which is regarded as most important duty now confronting the American continent.

The lack of labour is so great in France that women have been assisting by pulling the ploughs and the cultivators.

MUSKRAT PELTS WORTH A DOLLAR TRAPPING SEASON WILL BE LATE

Indians of Hiawatha Have Thousands of Traps Out At the Mouth of the River And are Praying for an Early Break Up of the Ice—Price is Very Attractive.

From the mouth of the Otonabee river northward a distance of twelve or fifteen miles thousands of traps have been set out in the muskrat marshes and in the sedge along the stretches of shallow shore. Several Harwood trappers recently began to lay their traps on this side of the lake, but found that the Hiawatha Indians had preceded them. The Indians had pre-empted every stump, clump of bushes or other projections to which they could attach their traps.

The market price for rats' pelts today is one dollar, and every trapper is bent upon making as large a haul in hides and therefore in money, as possible. Five hundred pelts is not a large catch for some of the Hiawatha men, and if the rats are numerous this Spring some of the trappers will realize close to one thousand dollars for about three weeks' work.

The Curve Lake Indians of Chemong haven't set out their traps yet, probably for the season that they have practically no competition from the white men. But north and south they are anxious for an early break up of the ice. Farmers never complained of the weather more bitterly than are some of the trappers railing against the late winter, the thickness of ice, and the deep snow. The open season ends on April 21st, and from present prospects there will be practically no trapping until the first week in April. This would leave about fourteen days for the pelt harvest at a time when every pelt represents a dollar bill, or perhaps a little more. The season officially opens on March 15th, but there will be few traps yielding profits this month, according to the present outlook to the Indians.

The trapping fields are not only around Chemong Lake, the mouth of the Otonabee and in scattered sections of Rice Lake, but also along the Indian River, the Beaver meadows, and in bays of the Otonabee near the city.

TWENTY LOSE LIVES IN FIRE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TRURO, N.S., March 16.—Twenty men were burned to death when the lumber camp of A. A. Sutherland at Alvin Siding, N.B., was destroyed by fire last night.

Declaration From Wilson Is Expected

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, March 16—There were indications in official circles today that President Wilson might make an early declaration on the Russian situation. It was not indicated what might be the form or its manner of dealing with the same.

A CARLOAD OF TRUCKS

There is evidence of a great shortage of trucks for this year's requirements due to the fact that those who have hauling to do have suddenly realized that the motor truck is much more economical than horses.

The Duffus Garage have received a carload of Smith Form-A-Trucks, nearly all of which have been sold. They have also received several of the Ford One-Ton trucks which are sold.

The Ford Motor Company, Toronto, have several hundred orders for One-Ton Trucks which are yet unfilled.

Disease Comes Through The Blood

To Cure Common Ailments the Blood Must Be Made Rich and Red

Nearly all the common diseases that afflict mankind are caused by bad blood, weak, watery blood poisoned by impurities. Bad blood is the cause of headaches and backaches, lumbago and rheumatism, debility and indigestion, neuralgia, sciatica and other nerve troubles. It is bad blood that causes disfiguring skin diseases like eczema, and salt rheum, pimples and eruptions. The severity of the trouble indicates how impure the blood is, and it goes always from bad to worse unless steps are promptly taken to enrich and purify the blood. There is no use trying a different medicine for each disease, for they all come through the one trouble—bad blood. To cure any of these troubles you must get right down to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is just what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. They make new, rich, red blood. They simply purify and enrich the blood, and the disease disappears. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured thousands of cases after other medicines had failed. Here is proof of the power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to cure. Mrs. M. Stills, who resides near the town of Napanee says: I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly. I was very much run down in health, suffered from frequent spells of indigestion, biliousness and sick headache. I had an almost constant pain in my head and my housework was a course of dread. In fact I felt so miserable that life held but little enjoyment. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I did and the result was simply marvellous, and can best be summed up by saying that they made me feel like a new woman, and fully restored my health. I would advise every woman and girl who has poor blood, or is run down in health to give these wonderful pills a trial. I am never without them in the house.

At the first sign that the blood is out of order take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and note the speedy improvement they make in the appetite, health and spirits. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THOSE MAIDS OF YESTERDAY.

A. P. H., in Punch.

Where are the maids that used to lay my table
And cook my meals and (sometimes) scrub the floor?
Florrie and Maud and Emily and Mabel,
All, all are gone to prosecute the War.
In reeking vaults and mountain dells
They tend their sheep and fill their shells,
While my wife answers all the bells
And no one shines my Sam Browne any more.

Where is Elizabeth, whose eyes were argent?
How like a drone her hospital must be.
Winnie's a "Waac," and bound to be a Sergeant,
Judging from how she dominated me.
(Only I hope she never stoops
To talk like that to lady troops)
And Maud who dropped so many soups—
What does she do with bombs and T.N.T.?

Our car stands starving in the duty garage,
But Mabel drives a whacking Limousine;
And when they sparkle us with bits of barrage
We know that much of it was made by Jean;
Our income slowly disappears,
While they ger more than Brigadiers—
No wonder now the agent sneers:
"You can't get girls to come to Turnham Green."

Do they look back and hope that we are happy,
With no one left to fuss about our food;
And when some foreman is extremely snappy
Recall with tears my courtier attitude?
Rather, I ween, with mirthful hoots,
They think of master cleaning boots,
And thank their stars, the little brutes,
They bear no more the yoke of housemaid-hood.

And what will happen when the Bosch goes under,
And all these women swing their swords away?
Will the dear maids come back to us, I wonder?
Shall I be able to afford their pay?
And will they want Munition rates?
Ah, who can read the ruthless Fates
Meanwhile we wash the dirty plates
And do our whack as willingly as they.

Time is always represented by men. Women are calendar shy.

It costs some people more to keep up appearances than it does to live

Few Changes In Grocery Market

Nova Scotia Apples Are Going to Waste—The Milling Situation

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

Rumours of a tax on tea are going the rounds though no particular reason is assigned for the belief in some quarters that this will be put into effect. It is belt that the personnel of the present Government would permit action of this kind being taken, though the revenue likely to be collected is not looked upon as great.

The situation in molasses is very firm and higher prices are expected. Present stocks are light but goods now in transit should relieve this condition on arrival.

Dried fruits in many lines are reported very short, and the primary markets are pretty well depleted. Raisins have been received and a few odd shipments of prunes, but transportation is such an uncertainty just now that no plans can be laid for distribution of the goods on arrival.

The primary market on all spices is very firm and an advance on cassia is reported locally. Cream of tartar is stiffer and quotations as high as 96c per pound are being made.

Heavy demands on nuts are reported during the week and wholesalers report stocks which had been heavy reduced to somewhat below normal. The demand has been created owing to the approach of the Jewish holidays.

Rice Advances.

The higher grades of Japan rices show an advance of ¼c, and seconds ¼c per pound. No change in other varieties is reported as yet, but the freight situation will govern these as well and conditions seem to be urging prices upwards.

Future supplies of oranges seem somewhat uncertain. Nova Scotia apples are threatened with absolute waste owing to lack of cars in which to ship. Potatoes have registered a further decline.

The milling situation shows some improvement and one mill reports running to full capacity for the first time in four months. Grain is moving a little more freely. Mill feeds are very scarce and not equal to the demand.

Every man has his price and it is greater than his neighbors think he is worth.

CHILL STARTS COLD

WAS SICK FOUR WEEKS

JUST ABLE TO CRAWL ABOUT

Mr. Weldon T. Hawkes, Curryville, N.B., writes: "Last spring I was taken very ill with a severe cold. I got wet and it started with a chill. I was sick four weeks, and was just able to crawl about. People all said I had inflammation of the lungs, and I think I did. I told a friend to get me two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before the first one was taken my cold and cough were broken up, and the second did its work completely. I am raising a family and I find that it is a good medicine for the children."

There is no remedy that will cure stubborn colds or coughs, the kind that won't let go, like Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It allays the inflammation, soothes the irritation, heals the diseased mucous lining of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and rids the system completely of all the bad effects of lingering coughs and colds.

There are so many spurious "Pine" preparations on the market that you should see you get "Dr. Woods" when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c.; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A TRIUMPH FOR MISS BRAUND

Young Pianist Played Remarkable Programme at Conservatory

A crowded hall greeted the piano recital given in the Conservatory of Music last night by Miss Aileen W. M. Braund, who recently received her A. T.C.M., assisted by Miss Keitha Kidd and Miss Norma Moore, all pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade. Miss Braund, who has recently received much favourable criticism in such discriminating journals as the Saturday Night and Musical Canada for her brilliant performances while in Toronto, astonished and delighted her audience last night by her really masterful rendition of so comprehensive a programme. In the Ballade Op. 47, a selection which seldom appears on a programme, was rendered with most unusual skill by the youthful artiste. The phrasing and technique displayed by Miss Braund in her interpretation of this difficult number was truly a revelation to her music loving audience.

Miss Keitha Kidd, whose splendid soprano voice was heard at its best last night, is the possessor of a voice of charming sweetness and extraordinary range. Especial mention might be made of her rendition of Pipes of Pan, in which her voice is given splendid scope for displaying the splendid qualities of voice she possesses. In this number, given with great ease and clearness of tone, she was called upon for a response.

Miss Norma Moore, who filled the difficult position of accompanist, did so in a most praiseworthy manner, all her accompaniments being given in that most sympathetic manner which is so important to the principal. In the dual piano selection, both she and Miss Braund were heard to perfection.

Mrs. Greenslade Congratulated.

Mrs. Greenslade was enthusiastically congratulated on the high degree of perfection attained by her pupils all of whom have undoubtedly a future before them in the musical world.

Received Many Flowers.

During the evening Miss Braund who was gowned with charming simplicity in a white satin and tulle dress, was the recipient of many beautiful flowers, which she acknowledged with many pretty smiles.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

COLLINGWOOD AND OSHAWA ARE TIED FOR INTERMEDIATE TITLE

OSHAWA, March 15.—In the return of home-and-home games for the O.H.A. intermediate championship between Oshawa and Collingwood, the Oshawa team won by the score of 3 to 0, thus making the series of games a tie. Collingwood defeated Oshawa in Collingwood on Wednesday by a score of 4 to 1. The cold snap of last night gave the Oshawa rink a fine sheet of keen, hard ice, and the game was the fastest exhibition ever witnessed here. The rink was filled to the limit.

The visitors came down with their lead of three goals, confident of victory. They played a defensive game throughout and brilliant rushes on their part were few and well taken care of by Oshawa's strong defence. Both teams checked back strenuously, and in spots it was rough. McCleod, for Collingwood, played a rough game and was penalized more than all the rest of the players put together. The game started with Oshawa making a rush on the Collinwood goal, around which most of the play was confined, till in six minutes Rowden scored the first goal for Oshawa. McCleod got past all Oshawa players alone with the puck, but Childs in goal came out and met him and saved the situation. This was the only dangerous spot in the whole game for Oshawa.

Oshawa's Defence Strong.

The Collingwood forwards seldom got past the Oshawa defence, and the period ended one to nil in favour of Oshawa. In the second period Oshawa scored two more goals, Rowden getting the first after a clever bit of combination and passed from Bowne. Rowden was making a nice rush when McCleod and Walton sandwiched him, throwing him into the air. He fell backwards, hitting his head on the ice. He was carried to the dressing-room, and in about ten minutes he appeared on the ice and started to play again, but had to stop. After the game he was removed to the hospital suffering from concussion of the brain.

The play was mostly around the Collingwood goal, Cook being kept busy, but Roenick got another goal with Bowne's assistance. Score 3 to 0.

In the last period, with the score a tie for the championship, both teams played hard. The Oshawa boys rushed Collingwood goal so often that the Collingwood defence players resorted to rough play, and on two occasions the northerners were playing only four men.

The teams will play off at Toronto.

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

CAN. GEN. ELEC. WIN FROM PRINTERS

The Printers and the Can. Gen. Elec. met in a Ten-pin League game at the Water St. Alleys last night. The Can. Gen. Elec. team won two of the three games. The total pinnage was: Printers 2367; C.G.E. 2330. For the Can. Gen. Elec. Fielder was high man, with 505 for three games.

Anderson, for the Printers, had a three-game total of 543, and also high single of 205. The scores:

DOG IS TABLE DELICACY.

Special Breed is Raised for Purpose by the Chinese.

Certain bon vivants have been testing the merits of the Chinese edible dog, and they pronounce it very good dog, indeed.

This dog, it appears, is destined from the beginning for the table. Like the edible rat of the same country, it is fed mainly upon vegetable food, which is often delicately prepared and specially devised, in order to give the dog's flesh a peculiar flavour and aroma. The result is something quite different from the flesh of the ordinary dog of the western world.

The genuine Chinese edible dog is known by its bluish-black tongue, which is a peculiar mark of its variety. In infancy and early youth the dog's tongue is red, and upon reaching maturity and the edible age it suddenly becomes black, sometimes within two weeks.

Another peculiarity of this dog is its lack of the barking faculty. It is said that the dog can bark, and on occasions does so, but these occasions are rare.

Many experiments, most of them unwilling, were made with the flesh of dogs during the Paris siege of 1870. Newfoundlands and St. Bernards were preferred, under the mistaken impression that they would prove more eatable than other varieties. They proved to be detestable

2,000 M.S.A. DESERTERS.

Ottawa, March 15.—According to a statement made this morning by Inspector J. J. Graham, of the Military Service Branch, Dominion Police, there are about 2,000 deserters under the Military Service Act in Military District No. 3 (Kingston.) About 200 deserters have been apprehended.

Montreal, March 15.—There are 1,-152 absentees or "deserters," in this military district now.

"What do you think of these meatless days, Mrs. Jims?" "I think it is just as well that people should now and then learn to be valetudinarians."—Baltimore American.

Fine Concert By Gazely's Orchestra At Victoria Hall

The concert under the auspices of Gazely's orchestra in Victoria Hall last night attracted a fairly large attendance. The orchestra, composed of about twenty-five instruments, made a favourable impression. It did not attempt a pretentious programme, but its fine numbers were well presented. The marches with which the first and second parts opened were especially acceptable, and the medley of war songs received a spirited rendition. Mr. Gazely has grouped a promising organization whose future depends on its aims and enthusiasm.

The violin section has about twelve instruments, but it may be due to faulty acoustics that they did not produce the volume of tone that was expected of their numerical strength. The bass section was entirely satisfactory and would have provided sufficient background for more treble strings, reeds and brass than the orchestra at present includes. This is a matter of adjustment of balance that can be improved by increasing the forces of these sections. The development of an orchestra is no easy undertaking, but Mr. Gazely has made a promising beginning and his future work will be watched with interest. He is a versatile musician and as a solo cornetist revealed his talent and ability in "The Men of Harlech," written in difficult variations.

The programme was as follows:

PART I.

March—"Under the Double Eagle," Orchestra.
Song—"The Outlaw," C. A. G. Spence.
Instrumental Duet—Selected, Parkins and Gazley.
Song—Humorous, C. Coleman.
Cornet Solo — "Men of Harlech" (with variations), Geo. Gazley.
Selection—"War Songs," Orchestra
Recitation—"The Revenge," C. A. G. Spence.
Violin Solo—"Life let us Cherish" (with variations), Master Schwartz.
Song—Selected, W. Farr.
Clarinet, 'Cello and Violin Trio — Intermezzo Cavalleria Rusticana), Rogers, Farthing and Schwartz.

PART II.

March—"The New Ideal," Orchestra.
Song—"Laugh and Grow Fat," C. A. G. Spence.
Instrumental Trio—Selected, Gazley, Parkins and Bula.
Song—"Sweet Chiming Bells," Mrs. H. Loader. (With bell accompaniment.)
Medley Waltz—"Baby Grand," Orchestra.
Recitation—"England's Hymn of Contempt." C. A. G. Spence.
Song—Humorous, C. Coleman.
Instrumental Duet—Selected, Parkins and Gazley.
Song—"The Holy City" (with string obbligato), Miss D. I. Spence.
March—"The British Belle," Orchestra.
"God Save the King."

Mr. Walter Farr displayed a powerful bass voice of pleasing quality in his solo, "The Deep Blue Sea." He should easily use it to even better effect than in his number last night.

Master Schwartz, a juvenile violinist, delighted his audience in his solo, and also in the fine trio with Messrs. Rogers and Farthing.

One of the best items on the programme was Mr. Spence's recitation of Tennyson's epic, "The Revenge." With dramatic appreciation of its spirit, excellent elocution and enunciation, Mr. Spence gave the stirring poem a splendid reading. His voice, appearance and stage presence recalls Sir James Forbes Robertson. His songs were also worthy of mention.

During the intermission Mr. Harry Carte assisted by two Y.M.C.A. boys, gave a clever display of gymnastic and acrobatic feats.

NO APPEAL BY FRANCE FOR MORE U. S. TROOPS.

Washington, Mar. 14. — Published reports that France had appealed to the United States for more soldiers, drew an official denial from Major-General March, chief of staff, who said no such appeal had been made, and that the movement of American troops to Europe would continue to go forward according to the programme already worked out.

Fitting Them For Success In Future

The rehabilitation of many returned soldiers in the Canadian forces has started with a struggle with the English language. The vocational training department of the Military Hospitals Commission, to whom the government has entrusted the business of making veterans fit again for civil life, has scores of men enrolled in English classes in the military convalescent hospitals.

French, Swedes, Italians and Norwegians, who enlisted in the army of their adopted country when the war broke out are returning unfit for further military service, and the government is giving them every opportunity to become equipped for success in the future.

ENGLISH THE FIRST NECESSITY.

It is commonly known, that many foreigners who emigrate to Canada, are condemned to common labor by a lack of a knowledge of the language. Abilities that would enable them to become very useful factors in business are lost to them because of their handicap, and they are eager to embrace the opportunity which is being afforded them during their days of convalescence.

In the west where foreigners are to be found in large numbers, men who have learned English will find places in the business world easily. The appreciation of the work which the commission is doing in this line, was evidence recently in Saskatoon, when a very perturbed manager of a big firm phoned to the hospital to see if they had a man who could translate some Norwegian mail for him.

The school was ready with the man.

ORTHOPEDIC HOSPITAL

General Logie, Major W. C. M. Marriott, O.C., Capt. Ferguson, adjutant, and Capt. Thompson, M.O., welcomed His Excellency the Duke of Devonshire, the Governor-General of Canada, on the occasion of his visit to the North Toronto Orthopedic Hospital, which is the centre for amputation cases provided by the Military Hospitals Commission in its system of convalescent hospitals for returned soldiers.

In the aggregation of 500 soldier patients which filled the assembly hall there were men from all corners of the Dominion, some minus legs, some arms, and one minus both legs and arms the cheeriest of the lot.

In addressing them the Duke said: "I hope that you will believe me when I say that representing the King it is my good fortune, if I may use that word, to express thanks to you men for what you have done for freedom and humanity.

"Everything that can be done will be done to help you spend happy, useful and prosperous lives. I wish you all luck and prosperity."

Following his short address the Duke called for three cheers for the King and every man who could stand or lift himself on his crutches rose and joined in the response.

His Excellency spent some time talking to different soldiers who were still confined to their beds or wheel chairs.

AUSTRIAN TERRITORY "COMPLETELY FREE"

LONDON, March 16. — An official statement from the Austro-Hungarian War Office, received here, says:

"The last narrow stretch of Austro-Hungarian territory occupied by the Roumanians has been evacuated. The eastern boundary of the monarchy, after two and a half years of the heaviest war burdens, again is completely free."

SUGAR UP 10 CENTS A CWT.

WINNIPEG, March 16.—An increase of ten cents per hundredweight in the price of sugar was announced by local wholesalers as a result of the increase in freight rates which went into effect to-day. Sugar is now selling at $9.35 per 100-pound sack.

TEACHERS THREATEN TO RESIGN IN A BODY.

Unless the St. Thomas Board Gives Them at Least $200 Increase.

ST. THOMAS, March 16. — The entire staff of the public and high school teachers of the city sent word to the Board of Education threatening to seek other employment unless they were given an increase of at least $200 per annum. The teachers claim that the cost of living has advanced, and that the purchasing value of the dollar has also decreased considerably.

BRITISH LOAN GREAT SUCCESS

LONDON, March 16.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons Wednesday that the special effort last week to sell National War Bonds throughout the country had resulted in subscriptions totalling £127,870,240. To this sum, he said, must be added £2,900,000 of the Postoffice issue of £8,100,000 in War Savings Certificates, making a grand total of £130,870,240 subscribed for the prosecution of the war.

The Chancellor said that since October, when the issue of war bonds began, the total amount sold was £570,000,000.

A SUFFICIENCY.

A caboose, Doronthy, is a utility car attached to the rear of a freight train. By the way Dorothy, your question recalls a little story. One warm summer day Mrs. Murphy was sweeping off her piazza when Mrs. Carr, the engineer's wife, came along carrying her latest baby, the tenth.

"Arrah, now, Mrs. Carr," cried Mrs. Murphy, "and there ye are up and around again with another little Carr."

"Yes, Norah," said the engineer's wife, "another little Carr it is, and as far as I am concerned I pray the Lord it's the caboose."

CHARGED WITH AIDING MEN TO EVADE DRAFT.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Accused of conspiring to sell to soldiers at military camps a drug that would produce symptoms of ill-health, and enable them to obtain a discharge from the army, Dr. Philip G. Becker, a New York physician, and Harry E. Walters, a former soldier, were arrested and arraigned before a U.S. commissioner. Dr. Becker was held in $10,000 bail, and Walters in $500.

AUSTRIAN CHAMBER SCENE OF TROUBLE.

Washington, March 16. — An official despatch from Zurich says that tumultuous scenes occurred last Wednesday in the Austrian Chamber on the discussion of the food situation. They were provoked by the Austrian Teutons, who accused the Czechs of wanting to starve Austria. When a Czech orator declared that Prague had no flour, no potatoes, no wine, no milk and no eggs the Austrians cried, "We have not any either," and Pan-Germanist member Wolff said: "You are the allies of England."

ASKS $5,000 DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

OTTAWA, March 15. — Because, she alleged, he failed to keep his promise to marry her, Miss Laurencia Desjardins, an Ottawa domestic, has instituted a breach of promise suit for $5,000 against Arthur Robillard, a local labourer. The plaintiff's claim is made up as follows: Trousseau, $200; health impaired, $2,000; humiliation, $1,500, and for the loss of the opportunity to marry she wants $1,300. Robillard stated that he never refused to marry Miss Desjardins. The action will be heard in a few weeks.

SOMETHING VERY NEW IN

WASH DRESS FABRICS

We take very great pleasure in introducing to the Ladies of Peterboro our New Cotton Wash Dress Fabric, named

Normandy Voiles

THE raised design on the fabric is called "Flock Work" and is made of wool composition pressed on and around the threads of the Voile by hydraulic pressure. It can be washed in soap and water just the same as any printed Voile or piece of White Goods and is guaranteed to be fast. The makers have had three years experience in selling this quality in the United States and have never had a garment returned from either unsatisfactory washing or wear. The material is 36 inches wide, comes in all the new Spring shades and design combinations but more particularly in the overcheck patterns so popular just now.

The goods are priced at

85c per yard

and are now on sale at our Wash Goods Counters.

Advertising Cuts
Street Car Cards
Any Kind of Drawings

When you want any of the above, drop a line to Box 172 The Examiner. Do not forget a cut in your advertisemen, doubles its value by drawing attention to it. 2d-63

PLYMOUTH BRETHREN ARE LIABLE TO DRAFT.

OTTAWA, March 15.—The Central Appeal Judge has declined to grant exemption from military service to Plymouth Brethren. In a judgment rendered here, Judge Duff finds: "I have been unable to accept the contention made on behalf of the connexion commonly known as Plymouth Brethren, that they are exempt from combatant military service under the Military Service Act.

"Indeed, Mr. Elliott (a Calgary minister in the Plymouth Brethren Church) did not dispute that the taking part in combatant military service would not, according to the corporate views of the Plymouth Brethren, be regarded as a disqualification for membership; wickedness alone, he said, would be a ground of exclusion, and that would not necessarily be regarded as wickedness in all circumstances. This conclusion necessarily requires me, in accordance with the law, to reject the claims made by members of this connexion, for exemption as conscientious objectors."

WILL NOT ESTABLISH HOSPITAL HERE

Peterborough Was Once in the Running For a Convalescent Home

Col. Gardiner, of the Canadian Army Medical Service, was in the city a few days ago looking over the prospects for a convalescent hospital for soldiers. Col. Gardiner was impressed with the Protestant Home, and later his attention was directed to the Margaret Cox Home for Girls. The Barnado Home authorities in Toronto were communicated with, and they willingly agreed to lease the Peterborough institution until after the war. Since that time the city has received a communication from the Director-General of Medical Service, stating that the present need did not require the establishment now in Peterborough of a convalescent home. It is the intention of the authorities to locate a hospital in Kingston, where land has already been expropriated for that purpose.

TROUBLE IN CHINA CAUSES CONCERN IN JAPAN

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 16.—In reply to a question in Diet yesterday, the Japanese Premier, Count Terauchi, said, according to a Reuter despatch from Tokio, that the dissension prevailing between North and South China was the source of serious concern for the Japanese interests, but that Japan would take no steps in the way of mediation. The Premier characterized as untrue the report that a small body of Entente troops had been despatched towards Siberia.

WEDDING BELLS

COLE—DAWSON.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. Harry Dawson, Bailieboro, when his second daughter, Mable Miriam, was united in marriage to Archie Clifford Cole, of Port Hope. Only immediate relatives were present. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. M. W. Leigh, B.A., after which a delightful dinner was served. The bride was gowned in white silk crepe de chene, hand embroidered, with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her travelling dress was of blue serge. The gifts, which were costly and numerous, showed the high esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Cole will reside in Hamilton.

OBITUARY

MINA RICHARDSON.

The death occurred at Janetville of Miss Mina Richardson, formerly of Peterborough. The remains will arrive in the city on the C.P.R. noon train, and the funeral will take place from the station to Little Lake cemetery. The late Miss Richardson formerly occupied a position on the teaching staff of the local schools and subsequently was a director in Annesley Hall, Toronto. It is a little over ten years since the deceased left the city. Mr. Edward Richardson, Thomas street, this city, is a cousin.

M. ELIZABETH BUTLER.

Mary Elizabeth, second daughter of the late Robert Butler, Bailieboro, and sister of Mrs. J. A. Harner, Cobourg, and Mrs. Adam Dawson, of Peterborough, died in Cobourg today.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning from All Saints' Church, on the arrival of the 8.20 train from Port Hope to the Little Lake Cemetery.

HOW JAPS AND ALLIES.

Fifty Steamers Now in Service of Latter.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Figures compiled at Tokio indicate that there are 50 Japanese steamers, with a combined tonnage of 160,000 tons, now engaged in the service of the allies. Of these nineteen Japanese steamers, aggregating 65,534 tons, are under charter to the Entente powers directly for war use, according to an announcement made by the Tokio Department of Communications.

100 CASUALTIES IN A DAY AMONG THE AMERICAN FORCES

WASHINGTON, March 16.—More than 100 names were contained in the casualties list cabled the War Department by General Pershing, but only 62 were made public last night because of delays in checking. Although the list was the longest yet received from France, in a single day, the number reported killed in action was comparatively small.

U. S. WILL HAVE MADE GOOD ITS AIR PROGRAMME BY JULY.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—American-built battleplanes will be France by July in sufficient quantity to ensure adequate air protection of the sectors when held by American troops. This statement rests on the highest authority, and was made with full recognition of all failures and disappointments that have hampered the development of the air programme.

GUNS BOOMING ON VERDUN FRONT

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, March 16.—Active artillery fighting on the Verdun front and in the Woevre is reported in to-day's official communication.

Artillery Is Active

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME (Official), March 16.—Harassing actions by opposing artillery were more frequent in the zone north of Ponte Della Priuls and south of Zenson, on the Piave front. Hostile patrols were put to flight in Asiago. Our bursts of fire repeatedly discharged enemy rear-line movements.

SERBIANS IGNORE BULGARIAN OFFER.

London, March 16.—It is admitted that offers of peace have been made to Serbia by Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria, but it is said that Serbia has absolutely refused to consider them.

ST. THOMAS APPOINTS A POLICE WOMAN.

St. Thomas, March 16.—The St. Thomas Police Commissioners today decided to appoint a policewoman to patrol the streets for certain hours every evening to look after the welfare of young girls in the city. The appointment was made on the recommendation of the National Council of Women.

BRIDGENORTH FARMERS ARE WITHOUT HELP

One Farmer's Plan For Meeting the Situation

BRIDGENORTH, March 16.—Mr. Forsythe and Mr. Albert White have completed their contracts of cutting ice. They have cut 3,000 blocks of ice. They have supplied three cheese factories and the farmers in the vicinity, and a number of cottagers.

Lost a Horse.

Mathew Bell, of Selwyn, had the misfortune to lose a good horse. The animal dropped dead at the sawmill.

Left for the West.

Samuel Bell and Wallace Nichols, of the village, have left for the West.

Food Supplies.

A great quantity of wood, hay and grain has been passing through the village from Ennismore and Harvey to the city.

Buying Horses.

Mr. Samuel Deyell and Mr. Brown were in the village looking around for some good horses for Saskatoon.

Attending Meetings.

Clayton Telford, president of the Farmers' Institute, and Allen B. Mann, secretary-treasurer, has been attending the meetings in West Peterborough this last week. The meetings were not very well attended on account of the bad roads and bad weather.

Help Wanted.

Between Bridgenorth and the city, a distance of six miles, there are eleven farmers without any help, and they do not know where to get any. In conversation with one of them the question was asked: "What are you going to do?" The reply was: "Will turn the calves on the cows and just work as much land as I can and let the rest go, which means less production."

Voice of The People

Peterborough, March 14, 1918.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In reading the account of W. J. Montgomery, in the Examiner of the 14th, does his sentence mean eight years in all or does it mean five years on the both charges? Thanking you for space in your valuable paper.

Faithfully,

Note.—The sentences are to run concurrently, which means that Montgomery will have to serve five years in all.

IRISH CONVENTION RESULT TO BE KNOWN IN A FEW DAYS

DUBLIN, March 14.— John Dillon, who succeeded John Redmond as leader of the Irish Nationalists, said to the Associated Press that he did not think any statement of the Irish party policy could usefully be made until the result of the convention was made known.

This, he trusted and believed, would be within a very few days.

WORLD'S RECORD MADE IN PRODUCING MILK

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 14.— A world's record production of 918.6 pounds of milk was made in the seven days ended last night by Raphaella Johnna Aaggie IIII., a registered Holstein owned by the Napa State Hospital. The best previous record was 902.1 pounds of milk in seven days, made by Riverside Sadie De Koll Burke, owned in Woodland, California.

Exports Of Meats To The Allies To Be Increased By Fifty Per Cent.

Shipments May Be Doubled Under Arrangements Being Made to Use America's Great Surplus to Build Up Reserves—Will Provide More Food For the Allies.

INCREASE IN TRANSPORTATION

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 18.—Meat exports to the Allies will be increased fifty per cent. and perhaps doubled soon under arrangements being negotiated by the Food Administration with the allied food representatives here.

The purpose is to build up the allied meat reserves from the great surplus which has been accumulated in this country and which recently brought a relaxation of restrictions on meat consumption. The Allies would furnish all the vessels for moving the meat.

The increased exports are dependent on the shipping procurable, but it is understood reat Britain expects to find the vessels. Nwes from Londn of the imminent requisitioning of Dutch shipping encouraged the belief of officials that arrangements for the increased export might be regarded as certain.

Statements by Lord Rhondda, the British Food Controller, that the meat ration might be doubled in April were taken as further proof that the British government was ready to furnish the vessels.

America's meat storage warehouses are filled, according to recent statements of the Food Administration, and the available supplies will be increased greatly before May 1 by the slaughter of hogs and cattle backed up on the farms by the failure of transportation. Relaxation of consumption restrictions has had little benecial effect, it is said, and producers fear a drop in the market.

Increased exports to the Allies, it is believed, offer the solution for an unusual economic situation, as well as to further the war programme by providing more food for the Allies.

Two Munition Factories Fired In Coblenz Raid

Continual Explosions Rendered Efforts of Firemen to Extinguish Flames Unavailing—Heavy Damage Caused By Bombs Dropped by British Aviators.

RAIDERS REACH REAL MILITARY OBJECTS

LONDON, March 16.—Monday's air raid on Coblenz caused very heavy damage to that city, according to German reports, says the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Amsterdam. Two munition factories were reported burning, he states, and vast quantities of explosives were continually going off, rendering the efforts of the firemen to extinguish the flames unavailing. On the other hand, Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent quotes the Cologne Gazette as saying that the hostile airmen who attacked the town of Coblenz at noon on Monday dropped about ten bombs, which caused only slight material damage, none of which were military. Two women were killed and twenty persons injured, the newspaper stated.

The raid on Coblenz was by British aviators. They were officially reported by London on March 12th to have dropped a ton of bombs on this city of nearly 50,000 population, attacking factories, stations and barracks.

Every Weak Throat Quickly Strengthened And Bronchitis Cured

Grand Results Follow the Direct Breathing Remedy, Which Cures Without Drugging.

The country is fairly wild over the wonderful recovery that throat sufferers are making every day with Catarrhozone. From ocean to ocean come letters telling of rapid cures—and cures when the complaint was chronic and long standing. It's a brand new principle upon which Catarrhozone works—not a single dose of medicine to take—nothing to upset the stomach or spoil digestion.

You can breathe through the Catarrhozone Inhaler medicated air that is full of healing, soothing balsams, full of piney antiseptic essences that resemble the air of the pine woods in the Adirondacks. The piney vapor has a truly marvelous action on weak throats. It brings strength and health to the bronchitic, stops that hacking, irritating cough, prevents hoarseness and difficult breathing. You can't find anything for weak-throated people on earth more beneficial than Catarrhozone. It means heaven on earth to the man that has had bronchitis, catarrh or throat irritation. You will realize this the first time you use Catarrhozone, which is a scientific preparation specially designed for diseases of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes. Get the large size, it lasts two months, costs $1.00; medium size, 50c.; sample size, 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

VIENNA IS SO VERY ANGRY.

Austrian Papers Print Frenzied Comment on Dutch Shipping Transfer.

AMSTERDAM, March 18. — Extracts from Vienna newspapers regarding the Allied intimation that Dutch shipping in Allied ports would be taken over, contain violent abuse of the Entente and of the United States. The Neue Freie Presse represents the proposed action as making Dutch neutrality a thing of derision and an undisguiesd outrage. It is particularly bitter against the United States, which it declares to be primary responsible for this "unprecedented act of violence against a neutral people."

HOW BIG SHELLS ARE TESTED

High Explosives Subjected to Heat Treatment, Also Tried in a Brinell Ball-Testing Machine.

If you wish to test the hardness of an apple, the most natural way is to press down upon its surface and note the indentation of your thumb. This is simple and conclusive evidence. The French government employs a very similar test to prove the hardness of its high explosive shells, says the Popular Science Monthly.

To secure the maximum of destructiveness, it is important not only that the steel projectiles should be of a certain hardness, but also that they should not be too hard. After the casing has been roughly formed and hollowed out, the shells are subjected to what is known as a "heat treatment," by which the steel is brought to the correct hardness. To make doubly sure, the shells are tested in a Brinell ball-testing machine.

This machine tests the hardness of the shell exactly as your thumb tests the hardness of the apple. It is fitted with a small, hardened steel ball, which is pressed into the shell under a specified load. The indentation made by the ball is measured, and if within certain limits, the hardness is correct. If not, the shell must be further treated.

A Race of Cripples.

The military medical authorities have examined our citizens by the thousands. The results of this examination in many instances, writes Benard Macfadden, in Physical Culture, have been as follows:

Out of every five examined, one is considered sound. The other four are cripples. Some part of their internal organisms is affected. The heart, stomach, lungs, kidneys or some other vital organ or function is crippled.

For generations the blind have been leading the blind.

The physical body is of no special importance. The house in which we live needs no special attention. It "just grows." No matter how dirty it may be. So long as the dirt does not show on the surface, there is no occasion for complaint or criticism. That has been our attitude.

It is about time for us to change. It is about time for us to give the body its proper appreciation. Learn to respect it, to revere it, to care for it as you would for your most precious possession.

Can't Lose Glasses.

Military eyeglasses is the contribution to the field of war inventions by Dr. Robert J. James, well-known Seattle physician and surgeon.

The outstanding features of the new eyeglasses, according to the inventor, are: They cannot be jarred loose from their places even under the most severe treatment, the tightening hold on the nose, which is injurious to one's health and comfort, is eliminated and gives way to three natural points of suspension, and the glasses may be removed with one hand.

The glasses have two extensions at either side of the face slightly above the eye. The small plate at the end of the extensions holds the glasses firm and does not rest on any vital nerve or blood vessel, as is the case when the only point of suspension is at the nose.

LOYAL IRISHMAN

Sees Duty is to Fight Against Germany.

BOSTON, March 15. — Captain T. F. MacMahon, of the Irish Guards, now attached to the British and Canadian Mission, 44 Bromfield street, yesterday received a letter from a friend in Connaught, which described how Ireland is answering the call to arms.

It reads as follows:

"Conditions in Ireland are very good, considering the war and the weather. We have plenty to eat and drink, but one misses the young men that used to be around.

"They tell me that over 2,000 have joined in Sligo town since the war started. Personally you know I am a staunch Home Ruler, and think that we ought to join with the other nations of the world in upholding liberty and democracy.

"Good God, are we to stay out of the whole thing and then have home rule refused because we did not fight for France, Belgium and civilization? Every one's hand will be against us, and we will be wrecked for the third time.

"However, excuse my inconsistency, but I always get mad when I think of a certain small section of Ireland doing nothing and making a hell of a noise. They may spoil all the good work of our regiments, but so far, thank God, they haven't succeeded."

SEE LOANS TO FARMERS.

Ontario Govt. Arranges With Banks —Limit is $200 and the Rate 6 Per Cent.

To further the Ontario Government's effort to increase production of food in the Province of Ontario, Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, on behalf of the Government, Saturday signed an agreement with the Canadian Bankers' Association by the terms of which farmers may secure money by way of loan to buy seed through all branches of banks comprising the association.

Loans to the maximum of $200 to any one applicant may be obtained on application to branch managers up to and including the 1st July, 1918, the time of payment being set sufficiently far ahead to November 1st, 1918, to enable the farmers to gather their crops and dispose of them to advantage. Security in the form of a promissory note will be accepted, and interest at the rate of six per cent. will be charged.

Building a Trench.

Trenches on the western front appear to the civilian eye which is fixed upon photographs to be just a ditch backed by dugouts. In reality, details a trench correspondent, an enormous amount of work and scientific study is required for the establishment of a complete winter trench.

For every mile a trench over 6,000,000 sand bags are needed. One man can fill a bag with earth and lift it to place 25 times in a night, when all the work of repairing trenches is done. It would take a battalion eight months to do this work.

A mile of trench and its concomitant protection demands 12,000 six-foot stakes, 12,000 small pickets, 6,250,000 sandbags, weighing 1,000 tons in all; 30,000 feet of corrugated iron, 1,125,000 feet of timber, etc.

TRUE LOVE OF SLOW GROWTH

But, Having Flowered, There Is No Test Which It Cannot Pass With Triumph.

True, lasting love is a little slower in starting than is false love. It is a little more dignified; a little more truthful and pure from the start. It is less disturbed by jealousy and trifling differences. It is more sturdy, though less flamboyant. It is less easily disturbed by frosts of misunderstandings and other disturbances.

So much for the beginning of love.

The second test of love is time—separation—distance. The passing fascination shows itself in this test—it cannot pass it; it cannot last.

Only true love lasts, and that lasts because it reaches down to the bedrock of mutual esteem, and is of durable material; of mutual interests and sympathy it is compounded.

When love has passed its second test—time—it is usually able to pass its third test, which is altruism, or service.

At some time or other in life, love always asks: What will you give for love? And he that loveth truly answers: I will give my time, my personality, my position, my wealth—all will I give for love.

But he that does not love deeply, says: I would keep love, but I do not wish to give up too much for it. Foolish fellow. His love fails in its test. He loses his love because he will not pay the price of keeping it.

The final test of love is its influence. True love makes one better. The wrong sort of love is degrading, not uplifting. He does not love truly who is not a finer, stronger personality because of love.

Real love is the sun of one's life; it brightens, gladdens, uplifts and beautifies.

SING TO SETTLE QUARRELS

Eskimos Have Peculiar Manner of Adjusting Their Grievances—Enemy Must Listen.

The Eskimos, who live in the ice-bound, barren Northland, have a way of settling quarrels which seems very strange and amusing to those who live in a land of policemen and courts of justice. There, when quarrels arise, the man who has a grievance writes a song in which he tells the wrongs that have been done him. When this has been composed to his satisfaction, he invites his enemy to come and hear him sing it. This the enemy must do, and he brings with him all his relatives and many of his friends, while the singer also has gathered his friends and relatives for the occasion, which is considered something of a general entertainment by the people of the village in which the men live.

Then, while other men of the village pound madly on huge drums, the song of wrongs is begun. When it is finished, if the audience expresses approval, the singer is considered to have won and to have a just cause of complaint. But if dissatisfaction is expressed, that is considered sufficient punishment. After the song everyone dances and the party breaks up in great good humor.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

GAVE HER DELICATE CHILD VINOL

It Built Him Up and Made Him Strong

Newaygo, Mich.—"My little boy was in a delicate, weak, emaciated condition and had a cough so we had to keep him out of school for a year. Nothing seemed to help him until Vinol was recommended, and the change it made in him was remarkable. It has built him up and made him strong so his cough is almost entirely gone. We can not recommend Vinol too highly."—Mrs. E. N. Hanlon.

Mothers of weak, delicate, ailing children are asked to try this famous cod liver and iron tonic on our guarantee. Children love to take it.

MEANING OF NAME DECEMBER

Twelfth Month's Title Derived From Latin Word "Decem," When There Were Only Ten Periods.

The name of December is no longer appropriate, for it is derived from "decem," the Latin word meaning "ten," declares a writer. The name was first applied by the Romans when the year was divided into ten months, with the addition of supplementary days to complete the period required for a revolution of the earth around the sun.

When the calendar of Romulus was amended in 713 B. C. by Numa Pompilius and the year was divided into twelve months December became the twelfth month, but retained its original name. The Emperor Commodus, who reigned in the second century, attempted to change the name of December to Amazonius, in honor of a fair favorite of that name, whom he had painted to resemble an Amazon. This innovation was not popular, and when Commodius died from poison administered by another feminine favorite the name of Amazonius died with him.

The ancient Saxons called the last month Winter-monat, which was afterward changed to Heilig-Monat, or holy month, when they were converted to Christianity. The modern Germans again changed the name to Christmonat, because the month contains the anniversary of the birth of Christ.

WHERE GRAMMAR CAME FROM

Barbarous Macedonian, Who Made Himself Owner of All Egypt, Held Responsible for Invention.

The world reached its highest known stage of intelligence before grammar was even invented, much less studied, Ernest C. Moore writes in the Yale Review. I have had some curiosity to find out where and how so great a blight upon young life first came into being, and why it ever became a school study, and I find that the Greeks knew it not; that their triumphant literature and their matchless oratory came to flower before grammar was dreamed of; that it was not in any sense one of the great arts which they wrought out and with which they armed the human race; that after Greece had declined, a barbarous Macedonian made himself owner of all Egypt, and in order to surround himself with the most spectacular form of ostentation of which his vain mind could conceive, he set to collecting not only all the rare and precious objects and books and manuscripts there were in the world, but he capped it all by making a collection of the living men of the world who had any reputation anywhere for knowing and thinking.

Taking them from their homes where they had some relation to the daily necessities of human beings, and had really been of some use, he shut them up for life in one of his palaces at Alexandria, which the folks were in the habit of calling "the hencoop of the muses;" and out of sheer desperation, since they could do nothing better to amuse themselves, they counted the words in the books which real men had written, and prepared tables of the forms and endings which the users of words employed. The lifeless dregs of books which their distilling left we now call grammar, and study instead of books and even speech itself. In their lowest depth of indifference to the moving, pulsing life of man, not even the Alexandrians sank so low as that.

ALL AIRCRAFT OUTRIVALED

Ancient Bird, the Pterodactyl, Had Twenty-Five Foot Wings, Weighed About Twenty-Five Pounds.

Whence do the angels derive their wings—the angels, that is to say, of painting and sculptural art? From what source is the accepted model for these appendages derived?

It is rather difficult to say, according to the Philadelphia Public Ledger. But apparently the wings conventionally worn by angels are those of the albatross. At all events, albatross wings correspond most nearly to the patterns.

The albatross weighs about 18 pounds and has a wing spread of 11½ feet. Each of its wings has an area of seven square feet. With a wing spread proportionate to size, an angel as well equipped for flight as the albatross ought to be able to fly very well.

The trumpeter swan, which is the greatest weight-carrier of all long-distance flyers, would be at a disadvantage as compared with an angel. It weighs 28 pounds and has a wing spread of only eight feet.

But no angel or modern bird could compare as a flyer with the pterodactyl of 6,000,000 years or so ago, which, weighing perhaps 25 pounds, had a wing spread of 25 feet. Its bones were almost paperlike and its body hardly more than an appendage to its wings. With a head that was principally a daggerlike beak, and a pouch like that of a pelican, it fluttered mothlike (looking for fish) along the shores of the Cretaceous sea that extended northward from the present Gulf of Mexico to and over Kansas.

He was "some" flyer, the "pteranodon" (as naturalists call this species of pterodactyl); our modern flying machines have yet to rival his performances.

Icelanders as Emigrants.

It is claimed for the Icelandic settlers that they have played no small part in the progress and prosperity of the province of Manitoba, Canada, and it is asserted that the story of the foreign population of Winnipeg must necessarily begin with the Icelander. He has set the pace for all the incoming races. He is the illustration par excellence of how a people of ambition and industry can master difficulties, triumph over prejudice, and attain their desired place in the commercial, the political, the intellectual and social life of a hustling and growing city in a strange land. Outside the city it is not unusual to find Icelanders with farms of 1,000 acres.

Bossy Lacks 'Preciation.

Stephen called to see the new Jersey calf, so he was taken out to the pasture where it was. The week-old calf was at one end of the lot looking through the bars, while the mother, old Bess, was as far the opposite side as she could get, gazing into space. After waiting some time for a display of affection between mother and daughter Stephen looked up with a puzzled expression and said: "What's the matter with that cow, uncle? Don't she 'preciate that calf?"

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phospated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation.

RAISINS AND WINE

Important Products of the Famous Malaga District.

Vines Not Trained on Arbors, but Pruned to Form Bushes Covering About One Square

The two principal varieties of grapes grown in the Malaga district are the muscatel and the Pedro Ximen. Raisins and wine are both made here from the muscatel and wine from the Pedro Ximen, observes a correspondent.

The vines are not trained on arbors, but are pruned to form bushes that cover an area of about one square yard at harvest time. The vines are set out in rows ten feet apart. During the spring and summer they are carefully cultivated and sprayed with sulphate of copper to destroy insects. The grapes begin to ripen about the first of August. Laborers with large flat baskets or trays gather the fruit. It is not all cut out at one time, but the field is gone over periodically and only the ripe clusters are cut from the vine with scissors.

The raisins produced near Malaga are not treated with sulphur, lye, or oil, as is the practice in other parts of Spain. In or near the grape field there is thrown up an earth terrace inclined toward the setting sun. This is divided into sections about ten yards long and twelve yards wide, around which a low brick or stone wall is built, to protect the raisins and to support the canvas stretched over them at night or during inclement weather. The object of this slanting surface is to keep the sun constantly shining upon it. The bottoms of the drying beds are covered with fine gravel to retain the heat.

Immediately after being gathered, the grapes are spread out on the beds for exposure to the burning sun. At nightfall the raisins are covered with canvas to protect the fruit from the heavy dew, and, as stated, the canvas is also spread over them in the event of rain. There is rarely any rain in this section during May, June, July, August and September. During the process of drying the grapes that remain green or become spoiled are carefully removed, and the clusters are turned from time to time in order that they may color uniformly. The drying process takes about three weeks, so that the first raisins of the season are ready for packing about the end of August. Heaviest shipments go forward in September.

Before packing the raisins are sorted and graded. After small and imperfect raisins have been cut off the clusters are laid in boxes lined with white paper and containing usually 22 or 25 pounds of fruit. Good fruit which has become detached from clusters through shaking and raisins cut from small and irregular clusters are separated from the rejected fruit and are also packed for shipment. The boxes of raisins are then brought to Malaga by the growers for disposal to the shippers and dealers. The prices realized vary considerably according to the quality of the fruit and the quantity of the crop, also according to the condition of the industry in the other countries where raisins are produced and the general demand in the world markets.

Costa Rica's Coffee Exports.

Official statistics of Costa Rica's coffee exports for the past season show shipments totaling 27,044,550 pounds gross—10,089,630 pounds less than during 1915-16. Of Beneficiado or full milled coffee 24,749,135 pounds were exported, and 2,295,415 pounds of the Pergamino (parchment) grade, these quantities being respectively 91.51 per cent and 8.49 per cent of the total. The United States took 58.16 per cent of the shipments, the United Kingdom 40.14 per cent, and Panama the bulk of the remainder. Some coffee was sent to France, Italy, Spain and Chile. The province of San Jose supplied 46.34 per cent of the exports, Heredia 16.32 per cent, Cartago 13.22 per cent, and Alajuela 12.98 per cent. The estimated value of the coffee exported was 8,128,489 colones. (At normal exchange the colon is worth $0.4653; exchange now fluctuating.)

The 1917-18 crop is placed at 30,000,000 pounds, but the season is not far enough advanced to make any definite estimate.

As Effective as Tanks.

Cyprus, the founder of the Persian empire, first put into practice the idea of equipping the wooden ammunition carts of ancient Romans and Egyptians with sharp scythe-like knives. These were fastened to the body and wheels of chariots, and were effective in charging among massed troops.

In the middle ages the modest knived chariot was transformed into a movable tower, covered with surface armor, affording protection to men inside. These were moved during a siege over the moats surrounding castles. From them a platform was let down on the top of the walls, which served as a bridge for the attacking troops.

Alice Was Not Particular.

Little Alice was a great pet of her grandmother, who lived in the same house with her. Alice had the bad habit of running away, and her mother often had to resort to rather strenuous measures to keep her at home. One afternoon her mother was ready to go to her club, but as usual Alice was missing, so she started out in search of her. Finding her at one of the neighbor's, she started with her toward home in silence. Suddenly Alice looked up with a winning smile and said: "Oh, mamma, you don't need to go home; you can just go on to your club, and grandma can whip me."

HAPPINESS INDUCES OLD AGE

Human Body Demands Enjoyment, and Like a Rose, Will Not Thrive In Shadow.

A woman has declared that at one hundred and six she is in better health and happier than at any previous time in her life, according to the Christian Herald.

Surely a woman who is healthy at one hundred and six ought to be happy. She would have to be happy to be healthy.

None but a happy disposition could carry one through so many years. A gloomy temperament would strangle life out of the body long before the age of one hundred and six.

The human body can no more thrive in shadow than can a rose.

We live by desire to live. Enjoyment of and zest in life are a constant source of life supply.

Old age ought to be the happiest period of life, particularly for a woman. If she has kept her mind active and has wisely refused to settle into the dull rut that people always have ready for her, she can begin in old age to enjoy life in earnest.

In old age there is no more worry about the babies, no more suffering for others. The children are grown up, and, if her part has been well done, they are a prop and a solace to her. Grandchildren are a delight without the bitter, constant worry.

The woman grown old in years should be at her best mentally. She is free to indulge her tastes, enjoy a good book and the conversation of genial minds.

Women retain their vitality and spirits longer than men do. The burdens of life fall from them gradually, and the peace of retirement from active duties comes upon them little by little and almost imperceptibly.

Hub (meeting wife downtown)—"What makes you so late?"

Wife—"I stopped to shorten one of daughter's dresses for the party she's going to to-night. I can hardly realize that she's quite grown up now."—New York "American."

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face Was Such a Sight

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. Those festering and running sores appear on the forehead, on the nose, on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unsightly to both you and your friends.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This sterling remedy has been on the market for over 40 years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. Victor G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear, so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run-down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is All the face is clear."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

War-Time Soup

By Clarisse Bent

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Sam Conway, like many a father with one lone child, was tremendously proud of his daughter Joan. So there was a bragging note in his voice as he talked to the young man with a lieutenant's bar on his khaki shoulders, who sat beside him as they drove home from town in Mr. Conway's car. But the young man—Tom Shortley—had met Joan, the winter before when she visited a friend in his home town. And one reason he was so glad to undertake a trip to collect funds for the recreation work of his camp was because his itinerary included Joan's home town.

"Yes," said Sam, as he dexterously swung around a corner into the long suburban road that led to his house. "Joan's a great girl. You see we've got no men in our family to send to the front; can't say I'm sorry Joan's not a son, for I'd miss her a lot. But when this economy war talk came into fashion, Joan said she must do her bit to make up for being a girl. And as luck would have it, our servants—a cook and a waitress—left. We live in a factory town, you know, and Mrs. Conway couldn't get anyone to take their places. All the girls like to go to the factories now. She was discouraged and then Joan said she'd keep house, without servants—just with somebody to come in and serve the dinners and to clean up now and then. And, by jove, she's done it, and every cent she saves in that way and in making us eat scrapple and beans instead of beefsteak and white bread, she takes to buy worsted or to give to the Red Cross or some other pet charity.

"Joan likes to have me bring folks home for dinner—likes to be surprised, and show them what she can do." Mr. Conway turned into the short drive that crossed his unpretentious lawn and led up to the comfortable frame house. "There she is, now, with her mother. Won't she be surprised?"

At that moment Joan, ensconced in a corner of the living room window seat, looked up from her knitting.

"Who on earth has father got now?" she asked her mother. "Oh, mother, if it isn't that Mr. Shortley I met out at Alice's last winter—you know—I told you about him! His father's the big Standard Oil Shortley—they've got heaps of money. Oh, I wish I'd planned a different dinner." And with a hurried review of the war-time menu she had planned buzzing through her head, she helped her mother greet the guest, and listened, panic-stricken, to her father's loving but bragging voice as he said:

"Yes, Joan's a great little cook. She manages to give us mighty good things to eat and she hardly spends anything for them."

Joan was glad to make an unostentatious escape to the kitchen. She stood a bit in awe of Tom Shortley. To be sure, he had seemed to find her interesting when she had met him the year before. But his money! What must he think of a girl who got dinner herself? Joan felt sure that the girls he knew couldn't tell corn meal from oat meal and went to dinner fresh from the hands of dainty French maids instead of fresh from an interview with a stupid little Irish girl that came in by the hour to act as waitress and wash the dinner dishes, like Maggie Clark.

However, Maggie Clark was the problem of the moment, and Joan hurried to help set an extra place at the table.

"Now, Maggie," said Joan, as together they left the dining-room and went to the kitchen, "We've got to do some clever work to make the dinner do for four, instead of three. Of course, there's enough of the meat and vegetables—" and Joan looked complacently at the steaming dish of baked rice and tomatoes, the well-browned potroast and the saucepan of butter beans she had herself canned from the garden in the summer.

"Now listen closely, Maggie," said Joan. "There's only dessert enough for three — you see, it's charlotte russe. But you whip up an egg white, for there's no more cream, and I'll get the stale sponge cake out of the cake box and we'll make something that will do. There," as they together improvised an imitation dessert that matched the others in appearance, "now that will do for me. It would be awful if anybody knew, but nobody will. Here, Maggie, this one on the top shelf of the refrigerator is mine.

"And there's only soup enough for three. It's cream chicken soup, and it's perfectly delicious, even if it is made of the ends of a chicken we've had two or three times before. It would ruin it to dilute it. But it's white, you see, and nobody can tell the difference if I have hot milk instead—hot milk will look just the same." As Joan talked she was heating milk over the fire. "Now you run and tell Mrs. Conway dinner is served. Then, Maggie, remember, put the soup in three plates, and put this hot milk in the fourth plate and give that plate to me for my soup. Hurry it in just as soon as we're through with that grapefruit that's on the table. Thank goodness there's enough of that."

A few minutes later the four were seated around the candle-lighted table. Joan's cheeks, a bit flushed from her recent contact with the heat from the kitchen stove, glowed softly in the flickering beams and her eyes sparkled with excitement.

Maggie looked at Joan with a knowing smile as she placed a plate of soup before her, and Joan salted and peppered it well before she tasted it. She did not relish hot milk. It was all right in coffee for breakfast, and it wasn't bad on toast when one was ill—but plain hot milk in place of soup!

Then Joan lifted her spoon to her lips. Horrors! What she tasted was not milk, but delicious soup. Maggie had made a mistake. Who had the hot milk? Joan looked stealthily at her mother. It couldn't be that her mother had it. A faint line of perplexity, something like a frown, would surely mark her mother's smooth brow if she were eating hot milk instead of soup. And it couldn't be her father. "Dear Dad," thought Joan, "he'd speak right out in meeting and ask why I'd taken to serving milk toast without the toast if he'd got the wrong plate." Then Joan stole a look at Tom Shortley opposite her. He must have the hot milk. He was eating his soup most attentively, interspersing the task with answers to her mother's questions about how many pairs of woolen socks each man in camp had and her father's questions about his success in the work he was doing and with an occasional smile at Joan herself across the bowl of garden chrysanthemums.

In panic-stricken regret Joan finished her soup. At first she thought hurriedly of exchanging plates with the guest, but she quickly decided that silence was her only course. And that would have been all right if suddenly she had not become that bragging, affectionate note in it.

"My favorite chicken soup, isn't it, daughter?"

"Yes, dad." Joan blushed, as she answered his smiling look.

"She's some cook, isn't she, Shortley? And this soup is one of her specialities. She knows it's my favorite."

For a minute Joan almost lost control of herself. She wanted to laugh, and she was afraid she was going to cry. To make matters worse, Mr. Shortley looked straight at her and praised the soup, and said he thought cooking was a wonderful accomplishment for a girl to possess.

Joan never knew how the rest of the dinner passed. She knew her father complimented her cooking two or three times more, and she knew that each time Tom Shortley joined him. Whether she ate white of an egg and stale sponge cake or whipped cream and fresh sponke cake for dessert, she never could tell.

But when, wrapped in a big cape, she took Tom Shortley out to see her chrysanthemums in the frosty garden before he left her, and he told her in the chill moonlight that he could not leave her without telling her that he had come to realise what she meant to him, for a moment all thought of soup left her mind.

"You see," added Tom, almost with reverence, "you're so wonderful — so much more wonderful here at home than you were last winter. That soup—I mean, any girl who could cook like that and plan to work herself so that she could save money for wool and sweaters for a duffer like me—well, you know what I mean, don't you, Joan?"

"Oh, how I hate that soup," cried Joan passionately. "But, Tom, I — I love you. And I meant to have it for myself. Oh, I'll explain some time."

"I don't want any explanations," said Tom. "You've said the only thing I wanted explained."

And after Tom was gone, Joan came back to earth and went into the bright living room, where her father and mother were sitting by the fire. She drew a little stool between them and sat down, her right hand on her father's arm and her left stroking her mother's fingers.

"That was delicious soup, dear, tonight. You've never made it better," said her mother comfortably, after a moment.

Joan sat up with a start. "Dad," she cried. "Then, you had my dish—the hot milk. But how did you know? Oh, dad, I'm sorry."

"I smelled the chicken," said the father. And the bragging note came into his voice. "I played my part pretty well, didn't I? I guessed what the trouble was."

"Well, I'm sure I don't know what you're talking about," said Mrs. Conway.

"Oh, nothing, mother," said Joan, throwing one arm about her mother's neck and another about her father's. "Only—you see, Tom and I—Oh, dad, I'll make a whole chicken into soup for you tomorrow."

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

May be Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — This Letter Proves It.

West Philadelphia, Pa.—"During the thirty years I have been married, I have been in bad health and had several attacks of nervous prostration until it seemed as if the organs in my whole body were worn out. I was finally persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made a well woman of me. I can now do all my housework and advise all ailing women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I will guarantee they will derive great benefit from it."—Mrs. FRANK FITZGERALD, 25 N. 41st Street, West Philadelphia, Pa.

There are thousands of women everywhere in Mrs. Fitzgerald's condition, suffering from nervousness, backache, headaches, and other symptoms of a functional derangement. It was a grateful spirit for health restored which led her to write this letter so that other women may benefit from her experience and find health as she has done.

TOPOGRAPHIC MAPS AND WAR

Drawings Give Leaders a Comprehensive View of the Important Geographic Relations.

It has been said that many of the battles of the Civil war would never have been fought had there been topographic maps, for those in command could have studied a map of the country about them and they would never have subjected their men to such marches as were made and then have expected their men to fight, states a student of military engineering. But topography in its general sense and as it is shown today on the maps of the geological survey was little known in the sixties. The engineer corps of the army was highly efficient, even at that time, but the topographic engineer did not appear in the American army until August 6, 1861, when an act of congress authorized the enlistment of one company of topographic engineers. This company was afterward merged into the corps of engineers.

Today within the wide boundaries of our country, which embraces more than 3,000,000 square miles, there are a hundred million people. They live on farms, in villages and in towns and cities. Their dwelling places may be separated by broad rivers and rugged mountains, but the use of the topographic map is gradually knitting them systematically together, and at any time that this widespread population may be required to move in concerted action for a common cause the topographic map will give the leaders a comprehensive view of the geographic relations, so that the problem of moving can be solved more quickly and with better judgment. The topographic map, it is pointed out by experts of the survey, like the telephone and the typewriter, has become a necessity, and we wonder now how we have ever done without it.

The "man in the street" may have thought little of the value of the work of the topographic engineer, and to him and others who have not considered the importance of that work some illustrations of its value might be interesting.

A well-known author, soldier and topographic engineer found the topographic maps of the survey indispensable in every branch of his work. By studying a country before going into it he became so familiar with the details of many interesting features of which the natives had never heard that his stories acquired a realism that could not have been infused into them had he dwelt in the country a lifetime.

Again, 15 cents spent by a reclamation engineer in connection with a private engineering project saved his company $3,000 and established a project which would never have seemed possible had not the three topographic maps he purchased given him a comprehensive view of several hundred square miles of country, where the drainage problems are most intricate and delicate. Many such examples are cited by officials of the survey.

"WHO WILL WIN THIS BATTLE?"

Your kidneys are the filters of the body. If they become inactive and fail to eliminate the waste matter, they are apt to throw the whole mechanism of the body out of order, thus toxic poisons can accumulate in the system and be as deadly as snake venom.

Besides causing the minor ailments of rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago and backache, neglect of the kidneys is apt to develop into more serious diseases, such as diabetes or stone in the bladder.

Rid the body of toxic poisons—clean the bladder and kidneys and cure the twinges of rheumatism with Anuric and you win the battle of life.

Anuric was first discovered by Dr. Pierce, and has benefited thousands of sufferers as well as appeased and eliminated the ravages of the more serious kidney diseases. Now procurable at any good drug store, or send Dr. V. M. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch office, Bridgeburg, Ont., 10 cents for trial package.

Thorold, Ont.—"I was wonderfully helped by taking 'Anuric.' For about three years I had kidney trouble and rheumatism. I also had backache. My limbs would swell and I had rheumatism in my arms and hands. My hands would swell and joints would be so sore and stiff I could scarcely do my work. They would pain me something awful. I doctored but without relief. At last I saw 'Anuric' advertised. I began its use and two bottles completely cured me of all my rheumatism, and I think it was permanent for that was a year ago and I have never had any return of this ailment. I have never found a medicine so good as 'Anuric'."—Mrs. E. H. Hutt.

STOP HEADACHES BEFOREHAND

You never had a headache when you were well.

To keep well is to keep clean, inside.

To relieve headache, and to prevent it, keep the liver active and industrious and the bowels as regular as a clock.

Two generations of healthy, vigorous people have done this by taking one pill at bedtime, regularly—a larger dose when nature gives the warning.

Find Prehistoric Weapons.

While the wastage of the Yorkshire cliffs is to be deplored, the result is sometimes of advantage to the geologist and antiquary, says Nature. Recently, in the vicinity of Scarborough, a fall of the cliff revealed a board of bronze weapons which consisted of battleaxes, spears, chisels, gouges, portions of a sword, etc. Twelve of the axes, of the socketed type, are perfect. One shows the unusual feature of a rivet hole in place of a loop for secure hafting; another contains a portion of the original wood shaft. Some of the axes are in the rough state, as if just turned out of the mold; others have obviously been in use. The collection evidently formed the stock in trade of a metal worker of the Bronze age, at least one thousand years before the Christian era.

Record Year for Kingston.

Consul Felix S. S. Johnson of Kingston, Ontario, reports that on the basis of business already done the declared exports from that Canadian district to the United States during the past calendar year will approximate $5,000,000 in value, as contrasted with $2,434,642 in 1916 and $1,238,281 in 1915. In 1910 Kingston had an export trade with the United States of less than $900,000.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Pronse, cattle dealer, Sheho, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Switzerland's Live Stock Prices.

The price of oxen bought at a recent sale ranged from $440 to $480 the pair; bulls were sold for $160 to $180 each; cows, $240 to $280 each; young cows, $160 to $200 each; goats, $12 to $16 each; small porks, $12 to $16 each; medium-sized porks, $40 to $60 the pair; fat porks, 32 cents per pound; sheep, $12 to 16 each.

Boys—Here's a Real Job for You

Starvation faces millions of the women and children of our Allies. The cry reaches Canada for food, more food and yet more food.

Canadian farmers are willing to raise every pound of food the soil will yield. But it takes plenty of work to plant, cultivate and harvest the grain and roots.

S.O.S.

Soldiers Of the Soil

15,000 boys, from 15 to 19, must be obtained in Ontario to help in this emergency. Boys, it's a real job—one requiring work and self-sacrifice. Think of your grave responsibility and the awful result if you don't rise to the occasion and "do your bit."

Thousands of Canadian boys made good on the farm last year. They were paid from $12.00 to $30.00 a month and board. This year there's an additional incentive for boys to distinguish themselves—A National Bronze Badge of Honour.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

A HAPPY AFTERNOON

(By Jane Phelps.)

A HAPPY AFTERNOON.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Mrs. Reeve called one afternoon and invited me to go to a concert with her.

"I know it is inexcusable to ask you on such short notice, but I did you on such short notice, but I did hour ago."

"Oh th . doesn't make any difference! I'll be ready in a jiffy," I exclaimed, then hesitated. I wanted to ask her to my room to chat while I dressed instead of leaving her down in the drawing room alone, but would it be the right thing to do? "Would you like to come up with me while I change?" I finally ventured.

"Indeed I should!" and we chatted away like a couple of magpies while I got ready.

The concert was wonderful! I loved music and it was always a treat for me to hear the great artists. Kreisler was the violinist, and I scarcely breathed while he was playing, so fearful was I that I might lose a note.

"I wish you could see your face." Evelyn said to me when he had finally made his last bow. "You look as if you—well as if you had been listening to the angels."

"Oh, he is so wonderful! his music is angelic" I returned.

When the concert was over Evelyn insisted that we have tea together, so we went into a dear little tea room near the hall and had tea and sweet cakes, and told each other of our girlhood of our families, and all the little confidences so dear to girlish hearts, but which sound rather foolish when repeated. It was almost dinner time when I reached home. By hurrying, I would have just time to dress before George came in.

An Evening Call.

"We will call upon the Loring's after dinner," George said.

"Shall I dress again?" I asked, never dreaming of objecting, although I dreaded the ordeal.

"No, you look very well," he said after inspecting me critically.

I told him of my afternoon, of the cute little tea room where we had tea, of Fritz Kreisler's playing, and of how much I had enjoyed it all. He said very little in return, but that little was kind, and I was happy.

We found Mr. and Mrs. Loring at home, and from the conversation I knew that Madge Loring had telephoned George. Why hadn't she telephoned me? Surely it would have been the correct thing to do!

We played cards in the library, then had a delightful supper. Just as we stopped playing—by the way, Mr. Loring and I had beaten them badly—Mrs. Loring said glancing around at the well filled book-shelves.

"I haven't a complete library, Mrs. Howard, I have no books such as you bought the other day—not one," then she laughed merrily.

"What books? I thought we kept pretty well in touch with the book market," her husband said looking in a puzzled manner from her laughing face to my flushed one. I had looked at George, and knew he was annoyed that the subject should be brought up.

A Good Beginning With a Bad Ending.

"Oh, it is too good to keep, Latham, Mrs. Howard bought all the books on etiquette and social department in Bangs' store the other day. You should have seen the bundle. It will take you most of your time for months to read them," she said to me then again laughed uproariously.

"You believe in being correct, Mrs. Howard, I see. You should have credit," he said stiltedly, and his voice was full of laughter. Someway it hurt and embarrassed me more than his wife's open laughter had done.

George scarcely spoke all the way home. Once when I timidly ventured a remark he replied:

"You see what a laughing stock you have made of yourself and me, don't you" and said no more.

"Where are those books?" he demanded as soon as we had reached the house.

"In the guest room."

"Come along with me," and he strode angrily in advance. "Is this all, every one?"

"No, there is one in our room."

"Go get it!" and I obeyed. "Now you take what you can carry, I'll take the rest," and he preceded me again, this time to the kitchen.

The fire in the coal stove was not quite out and one after the other he stuffed the books from which I had hoped to learn so much into the fire. Of course it made a terrible smoke, and we both coughed over it; but he never stopped a moment until the last book of them all was either burned or so scorched as to be unreadable. The covers he had thrown on the floor.

"Now if you want to buy books you ask me first!" he declared when all black and dirty we left the kitchen. "I never shall hear the last of this!"

"I think it is worse for Mrs. Loring to keep laughing at me than it was for me to be ignorant enough to buy them." I said with a boldness unusual to me; and which brought such a frown upon George's face that I rushed into the bathroom to wash before he could answer.

McMick's New Building.

There is a fine new building of white marble and Greek architecture in a western city. On the corner-stone is engraved the date of the building's erection. It was begun in 1909, but, following the usual custom, the date is in Roman capitals, thus: MCMIX.

The other day one citizen approached another and asked him if he had seen their common friend Danny that day.

"I sure did," replied the second man. "A few minutes ago I seen him standing in front of McMick's new building over there on the corner."

The Gentle Passion.

William Gillette, the actor, was showing George H. Broadhurst, the playwright, over his country estate. They arrived at the sheepfold and at sight of their master the woolly inmates came bleating to the barn.

"See how the little things love me, George," said the owner proudly.

"Love, thunder," said Broadhurst. "They come to you because they are hungry and they think you are going to feed them."

"George," said Gillette, "when you have reached a certain age that is good for love."—Saturday Evening Post.

SCOT BEATS LAW BY A NOSE

Thirsty Sandy, in Wild Race Against Time, Arrives on Quarter Minute and Gets His Drink.

Writing in Everybody's, Maude Radford Warren enumerates some amusing incidents showing the effects of limited war prohibition in England. One evening the author witnessed the following race against time that was staged near Victoria station, London, at an hour when traffic is thickest:

"Presently a shouting and cursing arose at the center of the intersecting streets. People turned, peering and gaping. Streaking straight through the traffic, regardless of thundering trucks and sliding cabs and obstructing pedestrians, came a Scotchman. His eyes were glassy and staring; his kilts were flying; his knees were twinkling. On he came, straight for the public house. If he could get a hand on a glass of his national vodka by 9:29½, he was saved. Would he make it? A group of ribald Americans cheered him on, yelling at him in race track fashion. His fellow Scotchmen silently made way for him, and some of them even pushed people out of his path. But they did not cheer; it was a matter too deep for sounds. On came Sandy; panting, glaring, he leaped through the door, and a sympathizer from over the seas who followed him reported that 9:29¾ he had a strong Highland paw curled around three fingers of Scotch. The early closing law, thanks to good sprinting, had been respected—but nevertheless, the trench had been taken and the day saved."

MAY KEEP ENGAGEMENT RING

Jersey City Judge Rules in Favor of Girl Whose Intended Sought Return of Sparkler.

There can be no Indian givers on the Jersey side of the Hudson, so ruled a judge in Jersey City, writes a New York correspondent. As a result of the decision a young swain is out a $150 diamond ring, which he wanted a blue-eyed, petite blonde to return to him.

The two were engaged, and, according to custom, he placed the sparkler in question on her left hand. They then quarreled because she, according to his testimony, preferred the tango, jazz and foxtrot to sitting on a sofa and discussing their future. Therefore he broke off the engagement and demanded his presents back.

The judge was called upon to decide whether an engagement ring was a gift outright or merely a gift contingent upon the fulfillment of a promise to wed. The court then arranged a little "Solomon judgment" skit that worked to perfection, so far as the judge and the young woman were concerned.

Increasing Use of Rare Metals.

"Among the remarkable industrial developments to which the European war has given impetus has been the enlarged use of the rare metals," says Maj. William A. Mensch of San Diego, Cal. "Tungsten, vanadium and molybdenum, used in making steel, seem to be the leaders. Of these three perhaps the least familiar to American steel makers is molybdenum, which, though well-known to European forge masters, has but comparatively limited use in this country.

Record Broken.

The total value of the mineral production of the country in 1916 was more than $3,470,000,000, increasing $1,076,200,000, or 45 per cent over the $2,393,800,000 recorded for 1915, and exceeding the former record year (1913) by more than $1,000,000,000, according to the geological survey, department of the interior.

Pains Followed The Nerves

From the Feet to the Top of the Head — Could Not Attend to Business For Five Months—Gaining Strength Every Day.

Bowmanville, Ont., Feb. 16. — A great number of people in this district have been trying out Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results and none are more enthusiastic than Mr. Allen.

His nervous system had become so completely run down that he had to give up his usual occupation and he suffered keenly from neuralgic pains which would dart along the nerves, causing keen distress.

But he found a cure and does not hesitate to recommend it to others. This is his letter.

Mr. Samuel Allen, Coleman Street, Bowmanville, Ont., writes:

"Last summer I suffered from a severe attack of nervousness. I was laid up, unable to attend to my business, for five months. I would be taken with pains which commenced in my feet and ran right up to the top of my head. I had frequent dizzy spells, sometimes so bad that I would fall over from dizziness. At last I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and they proved of such benefit to me that before long I was able to return to work. I am still using the Nerve Food and gaining strength every day. I can heartily recommend them to any one suffering from nervous trouble of any kind."

This letter is endorsed by Mr. John Lyle, J.P.

"NOTHING ELSE LIKE IT," SAYS MRS. KING

Health Restored After Four Years of Suffering—Gains Ten Pounds.

"For about four years," said Mrs. Joseph King, "I have suffered from stomach, nervousness, and a general run down condition, without being able to get anything to help me until I began taking "Tanlac."

Mrs. King and her husband, who is a well-known employee of Gooderham and Werts, reside at 189 Berkeley street, Toronto. They are lifelong residents of Toronto and have a host of friends.

"I was so nervous," continued Mrs would make me so weak and tremwould make me so weak iand trembly that I would have to lie down. Many a night it was two or three o'clock before I could close my eyes for sleep. Then I could only doze, and seemed to get no rest at all. My stomach was out of order all the time and I never had much appetite and what little I did eat invariably gave me indigestion very badly. After eating I nearly always had a bloated feeling and severe pains in and about the stomach. My back hurt me up. In fact all the pain is gone and aches and my nerves at times got so bad that I just had to go up-stairs away from everybody, and be quiet before I could feel right again. I seemed to have no life or energy at all and felt tired and worn out all the time.

"My husband had more confidence in Tanlac at first than I did and insisted on me trying it, but now I do not think there is anything like it. I have taken three bottles now and it has certainly done me a world of good. My appetite is just splendid, and my stomach trouble is gone because I can eat just anything, and never feel a sign of indigestion. My headaches have been entirely broken up. In fact all th pain is gone and my nerves are perfectly calm. I rest well at night now and get up in the morning feeling fine. My weight has increased ten pounds and my health is better than it has been since my troubles began. So I have the best of reasons for praising Tanlac, and I cheerfully recommend it to everybody."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle and Son.

Need Parcel Post Facilities.

One of the most urgent necessities in behalf of the American export trade with Paraguay is the establishment of a large parcel post system with this country, writes Consul Henry H. Balch, Asuncion. As there are very few large distributing houses in Paraguay practically all the important mercantile establishments import their goods direct from the foreign markets, and as many of the orders are small or for goods that do not occupy much space the parcel post is extensively used by the average Paraguayan importer.

A good percentage of the large trade that Germany, England, and France had with this country at the beginning of the war was developed through the parcel post system that those countries maintain with Paraguay. Merchants frequently state that they would turn much of their trade to the United States which has hitherto gone to Europe if there were a parcel post convenience. In fact, parcel post orders from the United States are rather frequently received by Asuncion merchants through third parties located in Buenos Aires.

Holland's Foreign Trade.

The "In- en Uitvoer" publishes the following analysis of Dutch foreign trade during the first half of 1917:

The value of the leading articles imported into Holland from Germany, or rather, of those articles which are included in the official figures of the central bureau of statistics ("Maandstatistiek van den In- en Uitvoer en van het Entrepotverkeer"), in the first quarter of the year was 25,365,107 florins (about $10,400,000 at exchange of $0.41), and, in the second quarter, 45,284,606 florins (about $18,567,000), a total of 70,649,713 florins in the first six months of 1917. The value of the chief articles exported to Germany was 49,247,575 florins (about $20,191,500) in the first quarter and 52,841,202 florins (about $21,665,000) in the second, or 102,088,777 florins for the half year. Thus, in the first quarter Holland sent almost twice as much to Germany as it received, but in the second quarter the import trade with Germany almost balanced the export trade.

The Matterhorn.

The Matterhorn was the favorite peak of those who "went in" for the hazardous sport of mountain climbing in the Swiss Alps. Now reports say that there is no more mountain climbing being done. It is easy enough to guess why, writes Niksah. For those who went around the world looking for hazardous occupations before the war there is now no need to make extended search, to stop at expensive hotels, or to hire a retinue of guides. Nineteen nations offer the adventurer more or less of a salary along with board, lodging and hospital facilities for the pleasure of risking his neck. No wonder mountain climbing has fallen off.

There are those who say that it will never again regain its old high estate. They rather think aviation will attract most of the devotees who survive the war. But your true mountaineer laughs at such a suggestion. For him there is no thrill to replace the one he feels as he swings by his fingertips over a 500-foot drop.

FASCINATION OF AIR LIFE

First Trip in Army Airplane Is Thriller Apart From Everything Else in Life, Says Flier.

An aviation student in one of the Western schools declares that the sensation of the first trip in one of the government's aircraft is not to be compared with anything else he ever experienced. He explained it thus:

"I wish I had the ability to describe the fascination of this work of learning to be the cavalry of the air, or eyes of the army, or anything else one chooses to call us.

"Let me tell you that your first trip in an airplane is a thing apart, absolutely new and different from any experience that you ever had.

"You climb into the bus with your sweater and your leather helmet and goggles, looking like something you would throw a raw fish to if you saw it in a cage, and the lieutenant shoves on the power and you go bumping and bouncing along the ground with a big wind in your face and the 'prop' spinning out in front like a Dutch windmill gone crazy.

"Then suddenly the bumps are gone and you go whirring swiftly and steadily up into the clear air and sunshine and the earth falls away like a fade-away on a movie screen and the foolish little people on the ground turn up their white faces at you as you go over.

"I hope I don't get mumps or liver complaint or some fool thing that will keep me out of it all. This is my pet fear more than that of taking a fall or getting smashed into."

KAISER'S BIRTH CAUSED JOY

Queen Victoria, Upon Receipt of Telegram Announcing Tidings, Could Not Maintain Usual Dignity.

Anecdotes about the royal family are usually rather flat, but here is a good story of Queen Victoria, relates a correspondent, the ironic and terrible commentary on which she mercifully did not live to see:

"The queen, whom we had so lately parted from in calm dignity, was flying with the eagerness of a young girl, and so rapid was her movement, and so joyous her expression, it was plain that her suite had much difficulty in keeping pace with her speed. Catching sight of a friend in the distance, as she came up the long room, she suddenly waved aloft a telegram form that she was holding in her hand, and called out in triumphant tones, unheeding the shocked expression of her attendants at such unconventionality: 'Lady Login! Lady Login! I am a grandmother!'"

Such was the welcome given to the English queen's first grandchild—Kaiser Wilhelm II.

NO CHANCE FOR THE GERMS.

HEART WAS BAD NERVES ALL GONE

Very important it is in this age to have a clear cool head, a strong heart and steady nerves.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry, fall to the lot of women attending to their household duties and social obligations. The constant strain under which they continue day in and day out will soon shatter the strongest system. Before long the heart gets weak, flutters and palpitates, the nerves become unstrung, you start at the least sound, the pulse becomes weak and irregular, then finally comes physical breakdown or nervous prostration.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the remedy you require to strengthen your heart and steady your nerves.

Mrs. Jackson, 457 Bolivar St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Fifteen years ago I was so bad with my heart I could not walk across the house, my nerves were literally all gone, and I was frightened at my shadow. I commenced to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills; and was soon able to do my own work. I have told dozens of people about them, some as bad as I was, and to-day they are also doing their own work. If more people would take them there would not be so many weak hearts."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ADROIT PEACE MOVE BY THE GERMANS

French Secure Many Prisoners In Four Successful Raids

Poilus Are Unusually Active Over the Week End and Their Efforts Are Effective--Belgians Have Taken Over a New Sector on the Western Front and Are Ready For All Emergencies.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 17.—(Official).—French raiders were very active last night and brought back more than 130 prisoners in four raids.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ON THE BRITISH FRONT IN FLANDERS, March 17.—The important coast sector of the Western front which for a considerable time has been held by the French, has been taken over by the Belgians. That King Albert's new army has been able to assume this additional burden speaks highly for the condition of this comparatively small fighting machine which has battled so valiantly from the beginning. On a recent visit to the Belgian front your correspondent learned that the Belgians had effected a great improvement in their organization during the winter months, and certainly the morale of the troops and the officers seems at the highest pitch. Lieutenant-Colonel De Ceyninck, Minister of War, informed your correspondent that it sometimes had been difficult to restrain the Belgian soldiers until the proper moment for action came.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, March 18.—Leon Trotsky remains in control of the situation at Petrograd, while Nicholai Lenine is managing at Moscow, it is agreed by special despatches received here to-day.

Trotsky, it was declared, relinquished the Commissarieat of Foreign Affairs to M. Chicherin because he had his hands full as President of the Revolutionary War Commission and Food Dictator.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 18.—Grand Duke Nicholas has been arrested again with General Silinsky, late Chief of Staff. He is expected to be exiled to Perm, where Grand Duke Michael has been sent.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, March 18.—Increased artillery activity along some sectors of the mountain front and along the Piave is reported in to-day's War Office statement. Austrian raiding detachments along the lower part of the Piave line were driven off.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, via London, March 18. — Twenty-two Entente airplanes were brought down by Germans yesterday on the Franco-Belgian front, Army Headquarters reports to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, March 18.—The Bolsheviki Commissaries quit the Russian Cabinet, in addition to the four Social Revolutionaries of the Left, as a result of the Pan-Soviet's acceptance of the German peace treaty, by a vote of 704 to 281, at Moscow on Saturday, it became known to-day. The Lefters' action was pre-announced, but that of the Bolsheviki came as a surprise. The Bolsheviki Ministers were M. Ditbenko and M. Kolontai. The Social Revolutionaries were M. Steinberg, M. Kalegaiff, M. Karelin and M. Prossia. The latter announced their party's intention of declaring a "merciless war on Imperialists."

The ratification of the peace pact was a sample of the "steam roller" process.

M. Martoff, chief of the Menehivik, charged that the full treaty was not publicly known, and declared that the indemnity demanded by Germany was 9,000,000,000 rubles, instead of the 3,000 million rubles previously announced. He also charged that the treaty declares Petrograd a "free city."

"We are facing dissolution, not only from Germany but from Japan," declared Martoff. Regarding the economical terms of the treaty, Martoff asserted the de-nationalization of the Russian banks was a triumph of the capitalists. He said that the treaty provided for a division of Russia between Germany, Austria, Roumania, Japan and other Powers. He pleaded for a rejection of the treaty and a union against foes.

Premier Lenine spoke at midnight and repeated his arguments for the ratification of the pact.

Peace negotiations have been started with the Rada Government of the Ukraine, in compliance with the agreement with the Central Powers, it was reported to-day.

Herr Von Rosenburg, the German Foreign Minister's assistant, has been named Envoy to Moscow.

Herr Baltin will come to Petrograd to take charge of German finances

A conference of workmen representing every factory in Petrograd made a public declaration yesterday against the caucus vote of the Bolsheviki faction which favoured the ratification of the peace terms.

All relatives of the Romanoffs, "the family name of the formre Czar," above sixteen years of age, have been ordered to register. It is believed possible they will be exiled to Siberia.

MISSING SINCE TUESDAY; FOUND DEAD AT HIS HOME

James Edmison, Died of Heart Failure, Evidently While Removing His Boots -No Relatives Here

INQUEST UNNECESSARY

Stretched out dead on the floor of his living room at 297 Murray street, the body of James Edmison, about sixty-six years of age, was found on Sunday morning by neighbours who had missed him since last Tuesday. Death was due to heart failure Coroner Greer decided, and no inquest will be held.

Edmison lived alone in a house west of Stewart street; he had no relatives in Peterborough but was well known to the residents in that section of Murray street. They had remarked his absence during the latter part of the week, but were not particularly concerned by it, for the reason that he had previously disappeared for days at a time, but always returned on Sundays. Yesterday, however, his home seemed as lifeless as it had been since Tuesday. Consequently, Mr. J. Gibbs, 475 Stewart street and Mr. Harry Stabler forced an entrance, after peering through a window, and found the body stark and cold in death. Apparently Edmison, who was wearing his overcoat, was overcome while bending forward to remove his boots. According to the police report he had been dead since Tuesday.

Very little is known of the dead man's affairs. He had worked in the Quaker Oats building last summer and had invested $200 in Victory bonds. He had other small means, it was believed, but the police could not definitely fix the amount. A Bank of Toronto account book showed a balance of $10, and his purse found in his pocket, contained $16.45.

After examining the body, and deciding that an inquest was unnecessary, Dr. Greer ordered it removed to Comstock's undertaking rooms.

The police were unable to locate any relatives of Edmison, but a letter indicated relationship to a Mr. Bert Mullin, of Edmonton.

It was learned that Edmison formerly resided at 138 Rubidge street with his sister, Mrs. Ryan, who with her family went to British Columbia. Six or seven years ago he moved from the Rubidge street house, which he owned. It was stated that he had been employed on street work and generally worked as a labourer.

NEW MOVE FOR PEACE

Germans Prepared to Make Concession in the West if the Allies Will Allow Her a Free Hand in the East.

A SUBTLE PROPOSAL

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner)

LONDON, March 18. — Germany has substituted its most subtle peace drive for its long prepared western offensive.

The results of this move depends on the ability of the Allies' statesmenship to show the people that the war is lost—and will merely be repeated—if the Allies are induced to trade their advantage in the west for Germany's obvious advantage in the east and make peace on these German terms.

There is every indication that the recent German peace feelers soon will assume tangible form, including not only the complete restoration and reparation for Belgium and Farnce, but a compromise on the disposition of Alsace and Lorraine, besides an adroit offer to assume liability for the big French loans to Russia which the Bolsheviki repudiated — provided Germany is given a free hand in the east.

The messages of President Wilson and other Americans to the Russian Peace Soviet at Moscow are regarded as of unusual timeliness. Their purpose is interpreted as not only to stimulate Russia, but to obtain the approval of the world's democracies for the American policy of no peace at Russia's expense.

An interesting development is the fact that many resonable British labourites, hitherto classed as Pacifists, are outspoken in their denouncements of such a peace, considering it not only dishonourable but calculated to strengthen the Teutons for a more formidable onslaught against western democracy a few years later.

The greatest interest is displayed in next week's meeting of the German Reichstag, which will discuss the Russian peace treaty.

The Motor Show Is Under Way

Special Meeting of Committee Was Held Saturday Evening

The Motor Show committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society held a meeting Saturday evening to organize for the show which is to take place in the armouries during the third week of April.

The show this year, so far as the programme for the benefit of those who attend the show is concerned, will be an excellent one. There will be something going on all the time, and if Mr. G. O. Cameron puts into effect all the ideas that were brought out, the show will be immense. There will be further particulars every few days.

Over 2000 "Original Firsts" Have Arrived In Canada

Two Victoria Cross Winners on Board the Ship While the Lieut. J. R. Stratton, M.C., of Peterborough is Among the Decorated Officers.

A NOTABLE EVENT

St. John, N. B., March 17. — "Original Firsts"--the words themselves are worthy of inscription in letters of gold on Parian marble--to the number of 2,000 and more men and officers arrived here by two steamers today. Two Victoria Cross winners were among the lot and there was a sprinkling of men of other contingents, though now it seems as though the second and even the third contingents were "Originals," too.

Other decorated men in the party were Capt. A. Lindsay, M. C., of Toronto, and Lieut. J. R. Stratton, M. C., of Peterboro, Ont., of the 237th Field Company, Royal Engineers.

"You know I got a bar to the Victoria Cross," said the famous Corp. J. C. Kerr, the first Maritime Province soldier to win the highest decoration within the gift of the war office, and he pointed as explanation of his statement, to his English bride who stood proudly by his side. "I prize the bar more than the Crose," he shouted, for the interview was secured under difficulty, the gallant soldier leaning over the high rail of the ship and the newspaperman straining his ears from the wharf to catch what the Victoria Cross man had to say.

Kerr is still the unassuming lumberman he was when he left the Canadian shores. He was working in the Peace River woods when war broke out. He enlisted in the 66th Battalion, and on arrival in England was drafted to the 49th, and on the firing line.

A Soldier Superb.

In trench warfare Kerr had always shown his valor, but when the real testing time came at the Somme he proved to be a soldier superb. He was in the attack, and a party of Germans had taken up a covered position and with a machine gun were mowing down Kerr's pals as they dashed to the attack. This was too much for the brawny lumberman. Single handed he rushed the position and bayoneted and clubbed several of the Boches, and then seizing the German machine gun, turned it upon the enemy, and routed the entire party, killing most of them. Hailed as the Canadian Michael O'Leary, he took his honors easily, and was later decorated with the Victoria Cross by the King. No less a soldier than Brigadier-General MacDonell, who for a long time was commander of the 5th Brigade in France, and who is now O. C. of this district, made his way on board of the ship yesterday to grasp the hand of this gallant Canadian lad.

There is only one thing that Kerr can do better than fight, that is smile. He is a general favorie with the men who treated him as a sort of demi-god on the way over on the ship. He has no eyes for anyone but his dainty little English bride, but he is eager to get home and see his aged father and mother, who live in a little hamlet outside of Parrsboro', N.S.

Capt. Strahan a Gallant Fighter.

There was another famous Canadian soldier in the party in the person of Capt. H. Strahan, V.C., M.C., of Chauvin, Alta., who won his decorations with the Fort Garry Horse. Strahan is a six-footer who claims Scotland as the land of his birth. Filled with the "wanderlust," he came to Canada several years ago, and, hearkening to Greeley's advice, went West. He enlisted with the Fort Garry Horse and finally reached the firing line. He had not been ther many months before his constant gallantry under fire was noticed by his superiors and he was decorted with the Military Cross.

Eight Miles Through German Lines.

It was in the Cambrai sector that the bigger opportunity came. The British had made a big push, and

RECRUITING FOR RAILWAY AND FORESTRY UNITS

The following telegrams have been received from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.:

"Lieutenant has secured permission to recruit in Peterborough and will be along in a few days, probably Monday. If Peterborough men choose they can be kept together; great variety of callings.

"Lieutenant Bowen informed me this morning that he is almost certain to be in Peterborough, at the Armouries, on Tuesday and Wednesday next, in connection with his Railway Construction and Forestry Battalion recruiting."

SOLDIERS OF THE SOIL WORK AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

Boys Who Can Work on the Farms this Season are Urged to Enroll—Blanks May be had at the Y. M. C. A. or From Mr. Wearing.

BACK YARD GARDENS

This is Soldiers' of the Soil week at the Y.M.C.A. in a special sense. The boys of the Association are being strongly urged to enroll, and enrolment blanks are to be had at the Y. M. C. A. for the convenience of the boys.. Other blanks are being provided at Mr. Mr. Wearing's office, Mr. Wearing being S. O. S. Director for Peterborough. Mr. G. H. Roper has been appointed Supervisor for the Soldiers' of the Soil movement for the district including Lindsay, Omemee, Fenelon Falls, Norwood, Havelock, Campbellford, Warkworth and Peterborough. In each place there is a Director to promote the campaign in that centre. The duty of the Supervisor is to visit the different centres and report on the work being done, and the results.

The Y.M.C.A. is formulating plans for a vigorous campaign amongst the younger boys in back-yard garden work. The objective is at least one hundred boys enrolled in this movement. A meeting of a Supervisory Committee will be held this week and the boys will be enrolled immediately. A number of prizes such as were generously donated last year are already in sight, and Mr. Denne, President of the Peterborough Exhibition, has promised to give the boys ample space for their exhibits this fall as well as any assistance in his power.

BOWLING LEAGUE.

A Business Men's Bowling League has been formed, the first game of the League to be played this evening at 7.30 o'clock between teams captained by Messrs. E. Walton and J. E. Smith. The next game will be on Friday night between teams led by Messrs. C. C. Parsons and R. G. Dobbin. A schedule will be published this week. New equipment has been secured for these games and the League is sure to be a great drawing card with the business men.

The Boys' Hexathlon results are now all in and the total shows a lead for Peterborough over last year's score of 98 points, when the local Association finished 9th amongst the Associations of North America; 145 boys completed, this being an increase of 35 over last year.

FRANK JENNE Says:

You like to feel that the merchant with whom you deal is an authority on his merchandise — that he knows the markets and what is wise and unwise purchasing. In other words, you like to have confidence in him as you have in your family physician or attorney. The merchant wants you to have just that reliance on him. Now, whenever you are down town drop into my store and look at anything you want to, ask about it, and do not feel you are obliged or expected to purchase it.

"Come to me."

CANADIANS IN SUCCESSFUL RAID NEAR MERICOURT

Difficult Manoeuvre over Machine-Gun-Swept Area Effectively Carried Out and Nineteen Prisoners Were Brought Back.

ALL LIKE CLOCK WORK

(By W. A. Willison).

(Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press).

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London, March 17. — Nineteen prisoners taken, twenty Germans killed by rifle fire or bayoneted, others blown up in their dugouts, and an indefinite number wounded—such is the record of twenty-five minutes' work of our infantry in front of Mericourt this morning. In addition, an enemy machine gun was captured, his forward and rear assembly areas and communications were shelled and gassed by our heavies, and his field guns were swept by our machine guns and shelled by our trench mortars. The raid was one of the most successful in Canadian history. Our men, in moving to the attack, had to cross half a mile of No Man's Land. This difficult manoeuvre over the machine-gun-swept area was carried out with complete success.

Just before the raiders attacked a regular pitched battle was waged only two hundred yards away between the Canadian patrol and an enemy raiding party of double strength. When the miniature battle was over and the Hun had been forced to abandon his offensive intentions we had one man wounded, and we had captured two mortally wounded Boches.

Good Smoke Barrage.

There was a subsequent lull over the whole sector, the enemy evidently thinking that the failure of his own raid marked the finish of the morning's proceedings. At 5.30 a.m. he realized his mistake. Our whole front, south and north of Mericourt, woke up on the minute. Our raiders were now going forward under the protection of a mixed smoke barrage, our artillery supported by trench mortars, machine guns, Stokes, and by our heavies, which shelled the enemy main machine gun positions and strong points with gas, compelling their crews to keep underground. At the same time our artillery to the north and south was supporting our attack, while our centre battery guns were doing excellent work on the enemy gun positions. Our smoke barrage, according to enemy prisoners, was very effective, blinding the enemy and covering our attack. Certainly his machine guns were unusually quiet during the operations.

Our raiders encountered scarcely any opposition in advancing to the enemy outpost positions. They then moved up a hostile trench to the Boche, "a living line," where the party bombed their way along more than a quarter of a mile of trenches north and south. Enemy dugouts were blown up and the men who offered resistance were killed or captured or driven out, and some of the

MR. HALL VINDICATED.

During the recent election Mr. R. R. Hall lost no opportunity of pointing out Canada's duty to the Allies in the matter of food production and although his remarks were sneered and laughed at by supporters of the Government, the truth of his arguments is now coming home to every one. One suggestion Mr. Hall made was that vast tracts of land in the West should be broken up for cultivation. From Montreal comes the announcement that this suggestion is to be acted upon. The Montreal Builders' Exchange proposes that the large supply of idle men, machinery and capital in the country be used in developing the western lands.

The idea is to break up 540,000 acres for a crop next year by the aid of 3,000 men, and it is said this number could be obtained without taking any from the farmers. That the need is imperative is evidenced by the statement by Dr. James Robertson of Ottawa, recognized as an authority on food problems, that unless Canada can keep up the supply to the Allies we cannot hope to win the war.

BRITAIN'S SHARE.

The statement by General Maurice director of British Military operations, as to the part Great Britain is playing in the battle for democracy, is a welcome one. Enemy propaganda has tried to instil into the minds of the people of France and of the United States the idea that Britain was "slacking" and not putting her full strength into the struggle. This insidious campaign has even reached this country and ignorant people have been heard to repeat the statement that Britain has been sacrificing the flesh and blood of her Allies.

In a few words General Maurice shatters such foolish and dangerous talk. He points out that over and above her naval contribution Great Britain's military effort is greater than could have been anticipated by any one four years ago. On the western front half the German forces between Switzerland and the North Sea are opposed to British soldiers. In addition, British forces are fighting in Italy, on the Macedonian front, in Palestine, in Mesopotamia, and in East Africa, where the Germans are being cleared out of their last colonial posession. "Without boast or exaggeration it can be said," concludes General Maurice, "that no member of the Entente has yet taken a share in the war corresponding with that borne by the British Empire."

THE 1918 WHEAT PRICES.

The action of the United States Government in fixing the price of the 1918 wheat crop at $2.26, is taken as indicating that the Canadian price will also be raised a few cents per bushel. While some of the American farmers and others interested had been agitating for $2.50 or $2.75 per bushel, the general impression seems to be that as the producer derives a fair profit on wheat at over $2 per bushel, it is best and wisest to keep the price of this leading staple from becoming more oppressive to consumers in America and to the Allied peoples overseas. It is to be remembered that, generally speaking, Canadian producers have a wider margin of profit in a given price per bushel, fixed at the same figure for both countries. The chief advantage they possess, especially in the Western provinces, is that the capital investment in their land is usually much less—the American farmer, with land valued at $60 to $150 per acre, must get a larger net return to cover the annual interest, than is required by our Western farmers, with land values at $20 to $50 per acre.

On the other hand, as was brought our in last year's discussion on the fixed price of wheat, the United States has more to gain than has Canada from the policy of keeping prices down. A much larger proportion of our wheat production is exported; and higher prices, therefore, make our wheat shipments count more heavily in satisfying our obligations held in other countries and in purchasing goods abroad. Owing to the comparatively small proportion of their wheat crop which is exported, a higher price in the United States would not produce the same relative results in increasing the payments due to the United States by foreign countries. The principal result of the rise in price would be to increase the toll which the working man and other dwellers in towns and cities were required to pay to the agricultural communities. However, the various interests in Canada connected directly or indirectly with the production of food stuffs, are apparently content with the present prices. They, like their American confreres, who are heartily in the war for the overthrow of Prussian militarism, do not wish to augment their gains through throwing increased burdens upon the hard pressed people of Britain, France and Italy; so it may be assumed that the fixing of 1918 prices at but a small advance over last year's prices will not cause dissatisfaction here.—Victor Ross, in Board of Trade News.

THE TRAFFIC TAX.

The industries of Canada are not likely to appreciate the action of the Dominion Government in increasing the freight rates. It looks as if the powers that be at Ottawa have sidestepped the railway problem. Instead of following the example of the United States and Great Britain, nationalization of the Canadian lines has been indefinitely postponed, and the C.P.R. will receive the benefit of increased rates, which it does not need, in order that temporary assistance may be provided for the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific. The line of least resistance policy of the Government results in business being heavily penalized by indirect taxation. Upon the grain growers of the West particularly will this fall heavily, and the Government's action will be severely criticized in the provinces, which gave Union Government almost unanimous support. It has been a weakness of Sir Robert Borden that he has very often taken the easiest way, and in the postponement of the nationalization of the railways and in the failure to deal with the problem on broad lines, he has been true to his record. The policy adopted is a tribute to the powerful influence of the railway interests.

PETERBOROUGH'S LOSS.

Canadian journalism lost one of its most brilliant writers and the city of Peterborough, one of its best citizens, in the death of F. R. Yokome, who for thirty-six years filled the editorial chair in the Peterborough Examiner. The deceased was a finished master of the English language, and his writings were widely quoted by the press of the country. As a student of current and past history, and as a finished scholar he had few equals in the journalistic field.

A journalist has come to be recognized as one of the viral forces in the public life of the nation, and nowhere was the aggressive, thinking, powerful type more thoroughly embodied than in the late Mr. Yokome, who, throwing up the medical profession for the quill, while quite a young man, he entered upon a long and honourable journalistic career, first in Napanee and later in Peterborough. He took an immense interest in the policies of the Dominion, and his polemics, reinforced by his historical learning, rendered him a formidable press propagandist. His editorials were trenchent and telling and his forcible style, combined with his wide experience, lent him a peculiar aptitude for his profession. The public weal, whether for city or nation, was his primary consideration.

Mr. F. R. Yokome has moved over the Great Divide, leaving behind him a record of public service and private integrity, which stand as a monument and example.—Lindsay Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Kitchener hockey team, amateur champions of Canada, have read the Kitchener Council a nice little lesson in patriotism. Because the Council cut the insurance of Kitchener soldiers overseas from $1,000 to $500, the Hockey Club has refused to accept a civic banquet. Their action will add to the friends they have won by their playing.

PRESS COMMENTS ON ROUMANIA'S PEACE.

"A Clew."

Springfield Republican: "The demands made on Roumania give a measure of the disaster which the Bolsheviki leaders brought upon their country, and a clue, if anybody still needs one, to the vast design of a Mitrel-Europa to dominate both Europe and Asia."

"A Ruinous Peace."

Philadelphia Public Ledger: "With a pistol pressed against her forehead, Roumania accepts a ruinous peace. It is a peace deliberately calculated and cunningly contrived to destroy her independence as a sovereign nation."

"The Latest Chapter."

Baltimore American: "The ravages of Roumania is the latest chapter of ruthlessness that exposes the whole grisly falsity of all Germany's protestations of desire for peace that would comport with the rights and interests of all concerned."

"Important."

Charleston Post: "The defection of Roumania can hardly be regarded as a serious loss, objectively, to the allies. Subjectively, it is of course important. It makes more easy the way of the Central Powers into the Near East, and it releases, probably, a number of German troops."

"A Sample of the Hun."

Bridgeport Post: "One gets a sample of the Hun, and the Austrian is as much a part of him as the German, in the treaty terms forced upon poor Roumania. The little land must give up territory and be practically a vassal state of Berlin and Vienna."

"Same as Before."

Columbia State: "Happily for the Western Allies, the collapse of Roumania, long discounted and expected daily for weeks, will not seriously affect the war situation. Germany has already got all the food stuffs she could get from the country, and unless she can get the Roumanians to join in fighting the Entente, the conditions are the same as before."

"A Shocking Example."

Charleston News and Courier: "The terms which Germany is imposing upon Roumania, are even more outrageous than those which she is imposing upon Russia. It is doubtful whether there is in all history a more shocking example of the ruthless employment of might in violation of the principles of justice. Not only is Roumania as a nation to be blotted out of existence, but the people are to be subjected to deepest humiliation."

U.-S. TO GIVE UP BIG LINER.

Niewe Amsterdam Will Go Back to Holland Unless U-Boats Get Her En Route.

WASHINGTON, March 18. — The Giant Dutch liner Niewe Amsterdam will be sacrificed as a transport ship by the allies because America keeps her promises.

The great vessel will not be included in the Dutch ships to be taken over next Monday by the United States and the allies, and as a result probably will drop out of trans-Atlantic service for the rest of the war.

Release of the 20,000 ton vessel looked to for transport service, is the result of President Wilson's insisting that since the Dutch Government was promised (under the negotiations pending before the allies determined to take her ships) that the Niewe Amesterdam should be allowed to return, the United States must abide by her promise. Once she gets back to Holland she will be subjected to the same German threats as all other neutral vessels and it is believed by officials here that the Netherlands Government will hold her in port for the duration of the war.

The late Admiral Dewey was a lover of children, and when he took his constitutional, always spoke to those he met.

"Well my little man," said he, to a small boy of the neighborhood, "what are you going to be when you get to be a man?"

"Oh, an animal in the navy, just like you," replied the child, promptly.—Harper's Magazine.

Caught in His Own Trap

By RICHARD MARKLEY

I was passing through the gate at a railroad station in a large city to get aboard a train when I saw a man some distance ahead of me carrying a number of packages strapped together. One of the packages fell to the platform unnoticed by the man carrying them. He was two or three car lengths ahead of me when he disappeared from my sight, and I ran to the package he had dropped hoping to be in time to take it to him.

There was no one between me and it, but there was a man close behind. When I took up the package the man looked disappointed and irritated that he had not secured it himself, but he did not attempt to get it away from me. I did not know which of two cars its owner had entered. I looked into one for someone carrying packages strapped together, but it was necessary to pass through it to find him. I was not successful and went into the other car. Here too I missed my man. The man who had seen me pick up the package approached me and asked if I had found the owner and I admitted that I had not. He suggested opening it to see if its contents would give a clue. I did so and there in a pasteboard box was a pearl necklace which I knew to be of enormous value.

"I thought so," said my companion. "Thought what?" I asked.

"It's what I have been after for a week. That necklace was stolen ten days ago from a very wealthy woman and the detective agency with which I am connected was employed to recover it. Give it to me with your name and address and I'll see that you are rewarded for the find."

"Not unless you show your authority as a detective," I said.

He opened his coat and showed some sort of a metallic badge.

"Very well, I'll go with you to your office."

This did not seem to please him, but he assented. We left the train together. I in possession of the necklace. Outside the station he called a taxi, and we both got in, he giving the driver an address. We were driven to a house in a street which had once been used for dwellings, but now was filled with shops of a low grade. Alighting at a house, the ground floor of which was used for a shop, my companion led me up to the second story. We entered a room and he locked the door behind us.

It did not require much time for me to see that I had been trapped.

"Now," he said to me, "I've got you where you can't get away, Pete Kearney. I know the gang to which you belong. That package was dropped purposely to fall into your hands. Had I attempted to take it from you at the station there would have been a struggle and your pals would have got the plunder and run away with it. Surrender it and all will be well."

I did not know the man's exact game but I must play a game as well as he.

"You're not going to get the swag," I said, "you might as well give up this game. If you will open the door and let me out I'll not peach on you; if you don't I'll land you in state's prison."

He drew a revolver from his hip pocket and cocked it. I believed that he was bluffing.

We did a lot of talking at the end of which I turned my glance to the only window in the room changing my expression at the same time to surprise and exultation. He looked in the direction I looked. I seized the wrist of the hand that held the pistol and with my other hand gave him a blow that dropped his weapon on the floor. Then I gave him a shove that sent him against the wall, and picked up the pistol.

The rest was easily done. I marched him to a police station, and left him there with a charge of assault. Having learned the name of the owner of the necklace I delivered it to her the same evening. She wrote a check for ten thousand dollars and handed it to me, but I declined to take my reward for what I had done. The necklace was worth fifty thousand dollars.

Langham-Sayers Battle.

On October 18, 1853, Nat Langham defeated Tom Sayers in 61 rounds at Lakenheath, England. Sayers was then at the commencement of his ring career, and, although much smaller than his opponent, he showed remarkable grit and endurance. Langham soon disappeared from ring annals, but within four years Sayers fought his way to the championship, defeating Perry the "Tipton Slasher" for the big title. Sayers held the belt for three years, retiring from the ring immediately after his bout with John Hession, the American heavyweight, in which he was saved from defeat only by official interference. Sayers was small for a heavyweight, but was speedy and scientific, and able to land a powerful punch.

"Paris of Asia."

Saigon is known in the east as the "Paris of Asia." The title is well deserved and it was not earned without effort. Saigon is the capital of an important province in French Indo-China and in order to administer the colony successfully it is necessary that able Frenchmen should be induced to live there. This is one of the great problems of empire, for the outposts of empire are rarely pleasant places.

DE LA SALLE WIN ROUGH GAME FROM BARRIE BY 6 TO 3

TORONTO, March 18.—That the exhibition of hockey afforded by De La Salle and Barrie in the first game of the O.H.A. junior finals at the Arena Saturday night was one of the most unsatisfactory affairs ever provided for hockey fans, appeared to be the opinion of the majority of those who witnessed the fixture. De la Salle won by 6 to 3, and will therefore carry a three-goal lead to Barrie for the final game Tuesday night. The brand of hockey displayed by both teams was at times weird, while at other times it scintillated. Slashing, tripping, cross-checking, butt-ending—in fact, all the elements necessary to transform a good hockey game into a near-riot—entered into the play at times, and as an evidence of the spirit of ill-feeling which prevailed throughout the game it is only necessary to quote the figures of the penalty time-keeper, who had fourteen penalties on his score sheet at the end of the first period. In the finals and semi-finals of the Allan Cup series there were not that many penalties imposed all told.

Barrie Should Win Return Game.

On the showing of the teams Saturday night De la Salle will be extremely fortunate if they succeed in holding the lead in the return game in Barrie, particularly on hard ice, as on the form of the visitors they should win in their own town and by a sufficient margin to capture junior honours. In the first fifteen minutes of play they carried De la Salle off their feet. Out-skating and out-checking the Green Shirts, they swept down the ice, presenting a forward line that has the combination play more accurtely developed than any junior team that has performed here this season.

Barrie Scores Early.

Barrie scored twice in the first six minutes of play, and the De la Salle team were gone. Both the forwards and the defence became so "rattled" that they forgot all they had ever learned about hockey. During the remainder of the opening period they played like an aggregation of school boys who had never seen each other before, failing to pass the puck, stumbling and falling all over the ice, and shooting at random from angles which made it impossible to score. Then to cap the climax they commenced a campaign of foul play that was as bad as, if not worse than, anything seen at the local arena in a long time

Dye, as has been his custom all season, started the roughness when he skated directly across the rink and with his stick aimed at Meeking's chin, attempted a cross-check which, if it had materialized, would have put the Barrie boy away for the rest of the game. The elusive Meeking dodged just in time and Dye crashed into the boards and was temporarily laid out. After a delay or four or five minutes while Dye was resuscitated, and while on his way to the penalty box for a five-minute rest, he dropped his stick and fell headlong to the ice. Another delay resulted while Dye was carried into the dressing room and the substitute who took his place went into the penalty box.

A Regular Donnybrook.

From that point on the game developed into a free-for-all, with the players of each team equally guilty. There was a constant procession to and from the penalty box and four men aside was a common occurrence. Under the conditions good hockey was impossible. The game, which at the start promised to be a fast, clever exhibition of the great winter sport, deteriorated into a series of individual battles, with the players of both teams neither asking or giving any quarter.

Planning To Enroll 15,000 Boys For Farms

Special to The Examiner:

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS, Toronto, March 18.— The Ontario Government's campaign to enroll 15,000 boys betwen the ages of 15 and 19 for farm work, commences to-day, and it is hoped by the end of the week that the whole 15,000 who are asked to sign up as "soldiers of the soil" will be enrolled.

The enrolment blank which the boys are asked to fill out asks several questions regarding the amount of their experience and the length of time they are willing to work for the minimum wage, $15 a month and board. The agreements which the boys make are only binding for two weeks, and at the end of that time they can change their places nf they think that they are not getting enough money.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

FINAL GAMES IN TEN PIN LEAGUE.

During this week the final games in the Ten Pin League at the Water Street Alleys will be played. The De Laval team are now the League champions, with 29 wins and 10 losses. A great fight is evident for second place. The Printers have to win one game from the leaders to hold second place. The High Rollers and the Can. Gen. Electric are tied for this place. The standing is as follows:

| | Won. | Lost. | P.C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| De Laval | 29 | 10 | 744 |
| Printers | 25 | 14 | 641 |
| High Rollers | 22 | 17 | 564 |
| Can. Gen. Eletcric | 22 | 17 | 564 |
| Grocers | 17 | 22 | 436 |
| West Ends | 16 | 23 | 410 |
| Centrals | 15 | 24 | 385 |
| The Macs | 12 | 27 | 308 |

The remaining games are:

To-night—High Rollers vs. Centrals.

Tuesday—Grocers vs. Can. Gen. Electric.

Thursday—Printers vs. De Laval.

Friday—The Macs vs. West Ends.

Weekly Prizes.

J. Gillespie carried away the prize for three highest consecutive games of five-pins with 633 for a total.

For three highest games of ten-pins, Sam. Anderson won the prize with 637 for a total.

DETROIT LADY WINS; IS BOWLING CHAMPION.

Cincinnati, O., March 15. — Mrs. F. Steid, of Detroit, is the champion individual woman bowler in the country by virtue of rolling the highest score in the International Women's Bowling Tournament here. Mrs. Steid totalled 537 for her three games, just two pins more than Mrs. O. Kissner, of Milwaukee, who led on the first day. Mrs. Kissner gets second, while Mrs. A. Jager of Toledo, finished third with 529.

In the doubles, the leading honours went to Mrs. R. Acker and Mrs. J. Reilly, of Chicago, whose score of 1,012 was not overcome during the bowling yesterday. Mrs. T. Jonas and Mrs. R. Abraham, of Milwaukee, took second place with a score of 1,006, while Mrs. Sterz, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Garwood, of Cleveland, finished in the third place with 1,000.

The Leffingwell ladies' team of Chicago won the national women's bowling championship for five women teams when they scored a total of 2,479 pins. Their totals for the three games were: 805, 865, 809.

Capt. Lamedoc Also Released

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

HALIFAX, March 18.—Following the release of Pilot MacKay on habeas corpus, the courts to-day ordered the release of Captain Lamedoc of the French munition ship Mont Blanc. Lamedoc was held in connection with the Halifax disaster.

Splendid Recital At Conservatory

A delightful piano recital was given on Saturday afternoon at the Conservatory of Music by a number of primary, junior and senior pupils from Mr. Gliddon's Studio. An excellent and varied programme was presented and much enjoyed by the friends present. The playing of the pupils showed the result of careful and conscientous training, correctness of touch, rythmical exactness, and brilliant execution. The following is the programme:

1. (a) L'Avalanche, Heller. (b) The Mill, Krogmann. Tom Darcey.
2. Dance of the Wood-nymphs, Kussner. Thelma Darling.
3. At the Fountain, Ducelle. Margaret McKeen.
4. Morceau, Harold Lancashire. Gray.
5. Duet, Fred Green and Paul Gliddon.
6. Nocturne, Chopin. Flossie Mitchell.
7. (a) Le Leux Alouettes, Leschetizky. (b) Rigaudon, Raff. Dorothy Stuart.
8. (a) Duetta, Mendelssohn. (b) Impromptu in C sharp Minor, Hugo Rheinholdt. Olga Fowler.

"Even when a young woman rejects you for some other suitor it is not the part of a gentleman to criticize her." "No?" questioned the rejected man. "Positively not. None but a cad would in any way reflect upon a young lady." "Say, can't I even suggest that I think she has poor taste?"—Detroit Free Press.

Heroes Of The Road

The late Dave Bowker.

IN order to give some recognition to men who have done so much to build up its fine record of efficiency, the Canadian Pacific has decided on a new policy which should attract wide interest. Hitherto on this continent railway locomotives have been identified by numbers only—a practise which has prevailed elsewhere except on certain English railways. On the Great Eastern, for instance, one famous engine was called after the chairman of the company "Claud Hamilton." On the Great Western Railway, the shield over the great driving wheel carries a distinctive name—thus the giant of the "Star" class is called "The Great Bear," there is a "Knight" class, in which the "Knight of the Garter" is conspicuous, while one well known engine is named "King Edward." On the London and North Western Railway one of the most powerful locomotives is named after the Greek hero "Achilles."

The Canadian Pacific believes that it is not necessary to go back to ancient Greece to find the names of its heroes. They are among us today, driving through the fierce blizzards of our Canadian winter the freight trains laden with supplies for the Allies, or the lighter but speedier passenger trains on the Imperial Highway which links Atlantic with Pacific. Take for instance Bronco Wilson, one of the most popular engineers on the Western Division, who won his reputation on the old Prince Albert Branch, famous for having no water but lots of snow. Bronco is the cowpuncher of the "iron horse" and would consider it the biggest disgrace out of jail to let an engine die on the road, and if his engine was badly stalled would draw off the fires, put slabs on the top of the hot grates and in spite of the blinding steam caulk the tubes and light the engine up again. Achilles, the greatest of the heroes of ancient Greece, sat sulking in his tent because Agamemnon took one of his slaves. The lack of a maid would certainly not prevent a C. P. R. engineer from driving his locomotive to White River at 60° below zero, with the wind against him blowing fifty miles an hour. "Romance is dead," says the pessimists. "No," says the C. P. R., with Rudyard Kipling.

"All unseen, Romance brings up the 9:15."

It has, therefore, been decided to name certain of the Canadian Pacific locomotives after the engineers, who by meritorious conduct or by acts of special bravery have, in the opinion of the management, earned the right to special distinction. Some of these names may even be taken from the 92 engineers who are on the pension list—men like Ash, Kennedy, who grew up with the west and ran engines when the C. P. R. was still laying tracks across the prairies—a big man physically, mentally and morally, commanding the respect both of the men and of the big officials—the father of the western engineers, and now Assistant Grand Chief of the Brotherhood. Other names may be taken from those who have passed away into the land where there is no longer need of railways—such, for instance, as Dave Bowker, identified particularly with No. 920, who for thirty-four years drove his engine without a black mark against his record. Then again there are [illegible] like Norman Wight, compelled by ill-health to forsake his engine but prosperous now in another business. Seeing one day a child on the track too late to stop his train, Norman Wight ran along the pilot and by leaning forward lifted it out of harm's way just in time. This earned the medal of the Royal Humane Society, and surely earns the right to name an engine.

There are other C. P. R. engineers still on duty who have done good work and whose names may soon be commemorated on some giant high type passenger engine. They are to be found on every division from St. John, N.B., to Vancouver, B.C., men fiercely loyal to their Company and to their President, Lord Shaughnessy whom they know as the man who always gave the Brotherhood a square deal. The names of these men may not be known to the general public for often the engineer's best record is to be never heard of, and they themselves are the last men to seek the limelight. Take, for instance, Jack Hartney, so skilful in starting that the passenger does not know the train is moving till he looks out of the window. Jack Smith, on the run between Ottawa and Montreal, is another notable charicter. In the days when the C. P. R. and the Grand Trunk used to race between these two cities Jack always claimed that he never raced, but at the same time that he was never left behind.

On the other side of the Continent are Alf. Solloway, a veteran who joined the C. P. R. thirty years ago and knows Cascade Canyon like a book; Lew Patrick, the safe man of the Selkirks, who in the old days before Rogers Pass was tunnelled, when the C. P. R. in winter did sometimes have slides, was said to be able to smell a slide ten miles away; Willis Arm strong, another mountain man with eyes that hardly needed the head light to see through the dark canyons, and Dan Murphy, of the Crow's Nest, a big man in a big locality. On the prairies besides such men as Bronco Wilson, there is Con Leary, nicknamed the President—openhanded, big hearted and always on time; and John Pascoe, 100% efficient as an engineer, never known to have an engine failure, the man who made the success of the Cross Plough. Billy Woods is further east, a sky pilot in overalls with strong moral influence on his fellows. Alph. Bilble and George Leach are railway leaders in Ontario, each of them steady as a clock. In Quebec there is Arthur Charlebois—known as the Snow Man who can buck a snowdrift when no one else can. Mate to him is Harry Leclerc, known as Bronze Buck, a French-Canadian worthy of his race and always on time.

Over two thousand locomotives run in the Canadian Pacific service, with over two thousand engineers. It is not the intention to name every locomotive at once, but only those in passenger service, and to keep each name as a privilege and a reward. The idea is one which should appeal to every man who knows the value of personality in good railroading. It appeals to the C. P. R. because it will make for efficiency and encourage that esprit de corps which is the keynote of the whole Canadian Pacific System. The engineer does not think of his locomotive merely as a machine. It is something almost human to him. "She's a good engine" you hear one call to a passing conductor, "but full of hard luck." It takes an engineer months to master the peculiarities of a new locomotive, and for that reason he is not much in love with any pooling system, preferring to have one engine at any rate "assigned" to him—an engine that he can almost call his own. Were he to learn that his favorite engine would eventually bear his own name, surely he would take greater pride than ever in work well done.

Aspirin Famine Due To Embargo

Government Will Not Allow Canadian-made Substitute to Bear the German Title

Toronto, March 18.--Users of aspirin within a few weeks may not be able to obtain it by even asking their druggists for "acetyl salicylic acid" the name given it by the Canadian government. This in effect, is the statement made by officials of the T. E. O'Reilly Company, the only Canadian manufacturers of this chemical preparation.

Aspirin was a German discovery. Germany sold it to the world before the war. The public still believes aspirin has a more euphonic sound than acetyl salicylic acid, and Toronto sufferers continue to ask for aspirinat the rate of 2,000 pounds per month.

An official of the O'Reilly Company explained the situation thus: "An embargo has been placed on raw materials for aspirin and at great odds the local firm has been filling orders for the British and Italian governments, taking care of home consumption, and saving the Canadian users of aspirin about 60 cents of every dollar they spent for this drug one year ago. Appeals were made in vain to Ottawa for suspension of the German patent on aspirin.

COST HAS COME DOWN.

"Prior to the entry of the United States in the war, Germany continued through the United States, to sell aspirin on the Canadian market. The United States representative of German manufacturers obtained a footing in this industry now outside of Germany. The cost of aspirin was then $10 per pound to the Canadian consumer; now it is $3.25. One year ago our firm started to compete with Germany. It was encouraged by the government but warned not to fool the public by selling them acetyl salicylic acid for aspirin. It is one and the same thing as far as the trade is concerned, as phenol is the basis for both."

Another appeal will be made to Ottawa to have the Canadian Government remove the embargo from materials used in manufacturing aspirin.

TRADE MARK BUT NO PATENT.

The patent and trade mark branches of the Agricultural Department are bombarded with applications from manufacturing chemists who want to make the equivalent of or something "just as good" as the widely used German preparation known as aspirin. They ask for the cancellation of the patent and trade mark. The department replies that the patent cannot be cancelled for the reason that the article was never patented in Canada. Consequently, the formula is not registered and cannot be handed over. There is a trade mark consisting of the word "Aspirin" registered in 1899 by Frederick Payer and Company of Elberfeld, Prussia.

REASON FOR REFUSAL.

The Department has always refused to transfer trade marks issued in the name of enemies, for the reason that differing from a patent whose formula is specifically known, there is no guarantee that the substituted article will have the same merit or be of the same constituent elements as the original. All applications to use the trade mark "Aspirin" have consequently been turned down.

There is a huge file of correspondence on the subject and the wisdom of changing the policy in vogue is under advisement.

AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING

Election of Officers Will Take Place on Wednesday

The Peterborough Automobile Association will elect its officers at the annual meeting which is to be held on Wednesday evening next in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. The membership now is the largest in the history of the association, and while its activities, owing to the war, have been more or less curtailed, as an organization, it can be of great help in a number of ways, and the officers hope for a full turn out at the meeting on Wednesday night.

ITALIAN NURSE IS MARTYRED BY HUNS LIKE EDITH CAVELL

Italy has now her Sister Edith Cavell, a martyred nurse, who has given up her life for humanity.

Her name was Sister Terese Marie, and she was just 20 years old. Young as she was she had studied medicine at home as well as in London and Edinburgh.

At the beginning of the war she abandoned her studies to take up nursing and after working under the Red Cross in Serbia she took up duties in her own country when Italy entered the war.

Apparently she was placed on the enemy's blacklist because she (her country then being neutral) had dared to offer her professional skill to the Serbs. When she came under the notice of the Austrian authorities she was arrested, and her arrest was reported to Berlin.

HELD AS A SPY.

She was kept in a filthy internment camp for eight days, and at an inquiry before a military officer, was taxed with being a spy of the Allies. She protested her innocence and on the case being taken up by the Italian government she was released but treated with every conceivable indignity.

When the Germans overran a part of Italy the Red Cross unit to which Sister Therese was attached was subjected to severe restrictions and she was called before the German-Austrian commander to account for certain alleged irregularities, only existing in his own imagination.

Earlier in the fight a Scottish battery had been saved from the enemy by the self sacrifice of the men. After the final scene of heroism the enemy visited Sister Terese's hospital and accused her of hiding in the building vital parts of the destroyed guns. They threatened to destroy the building and arrest the nurse.

In the building at the time was a wounded Scottish soldier, an artillery man declared by the Germans to be an escaped prisoner of war. When they could not annoy Signora Maric they get at her through this poor chap and threatened to shoot him.

She pleaded hard for his life, but no notice was taken and the threats of violence to the Scot were repeated. In despair the brave girl aided the Scot to escape during the night and he managed to get clear of the enemy. The Germans were furious to find their prey had escaped them. They made that a pretext for refusing to recognize the Red Cross flag flying over the hospital, and in the night it was settled.

One of the wards was almost entirely destroyed and the patients, doubly wounded, were in imminent peril of death. The brave nurse went among the wreckage all the time the fire was raging, ministering to the needs of the tortured men. She had assisted in removing some of the patients when some more shells burst in the ward, and Sister Terese was buried among the ruins of the hospital.

She was as much a martyr as though he Germans had put her up against a wall and shot her as they shot Miss Cavell, who had been her model of what a nurse ought to be. She was buried with full military honors and the firing party was provided by Scottish soldiers of the Royal Artillery, by whom she was recognized as the nurse to aid them under fire.

BURNHAM BILL TO ABOLISH TITLES?

OTTAWA, Ont., March 16.—A small battalion of would-be Canadian knights, companions, chevaliers, companions, and similar decorations of the newly established Order of the British Empire, are on the tenterhooks of uncertainty. The honours in prospect may not "come across" because of the fact that the Government, which has some say in the matter—or at least some of the ministers—think that Canada has enough knights already.

Some months ago an extensive list of British Empire Order decorations was handed out, and nearly everybody connected with the Imperial Munitions Board here, except the elevator man, got some sort of a handle before or after his name.

John H. Burnham, of Peterborough, will bring in a bill to do away with further knighthoods.

Sermon On Saint Patrick By Rev. Father O'Hara

Large Congregation At St. Peter's Cathedral Last Night Marked Great Festival Day of Irish

Rev. Father O'Hara, of Toronto, preached a special sermon on St. Patrick at St. Peter's Cathedral last night to a congregation that completely filled the church. No other people have so richly honoured their patron saint as have the Irish, he said. Of all the nations that have been Christianized, Ireland alone received the gospel without persecuting its missionaries. The Israelites stoned the prophets and finally crucified the son of God; the American Indians took the lives of the first priests that came to them; the Chinese killed the missionaries who were sent to save them. Not so the Irish. From the first moment St. Patrick set foot on that soil the homes, the halls and palaces opened to receive the light of the gospel. The people flocked to him, kings, chiefs, old warriors and the men of the soil. In a few years one name was heard throughout the land, the name of Jesus, and to this was linked the holy name of Mary. Within thirty years, St. Patrick left Ireland more Catholic than was the Roman Empire six hundred years after St. Peter. The gospel he taught was the same word that has been spread throughout the world. It was the gospel of love, charity, self-denial, honesty, purity, mortification of the passions, humility.

The minds and hearts of the Irish, Father O'Hara continued seemed to have been specially formed by Almighty God to receive Him. The people were intellectual, a highly cultured race. They had their own literature, architecture, music and law. Their minds were able to grasp the wonders of the gospel of Christ. Monasteries and colleges rose up, and to them flocked thousands of students from the rest of Europe for their education.

Two hundred years after St. Patrick, the Danes invaded Ireland and tried to quench the faith, but were were finally driven out by Brian Boru. Henry VIII tried to make himself head of the church, but could not prevail over the Irish.

"So have they suffered and died for the faith, glorifying in the religion to which they belonged. They seemed to be the chosen people of the new testament, with the mission to scatter the faith far and wide throughout the world."

In conclusion, Father O'Hara stated that Irish Catholics must be true to the faith their forefathers have handed down to them. They must preserve the ideals that St. Patrick implanted. They should live as Christ desired of men, leading lives of purity, sobriety, honesty, charity and justice.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—A party of us went to the greater production meeting on Friday, hoping there would be a short general discussion on farm labour. We have been watching the want ads without success, but hardly a day goes by but one reads that certain places have a great scarcity of help, that farmers are going to put the calves to the cows, etc., etc. What we want to know is this: Do the farmers expect men to go round and call on each one asking if they have all the help they need? What are the papers for if not to make our wants known. We advise that the farmers spend a quarter on an advertisement, for there are plenty of men in town who have been bred on the farm and who would go back on the land if they could get a living wage and decent, fixed hours of work.

Thanking you for your valuable space, and hoping the farmers will take the hint.

Yours truly,

A to L.

LIEUT. BOWEN IS ON THE WAY

Lieut. Bowen will be in Peterborough at the Armouries probably next Tuesday and Wednesday, at any rate very soon, having received orders to recruit in the Kingston division, known as Military District No. 3.

He is recruiting under special orders for speed, for a Railway Construction Battalion and a Forestry Battalion. Every department of mechanical activity is called for. Service will be in France, Scotland and England. As men over age and returned soldiers are especially desired, Lt. Bowen expects to get a fair number from Peterborough.

LIEUT. STRATTON BACK FROM FRONT

Peterborough Officer Has Arrived at St. John on His Way Home

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 18.—Lieut. J. R. Stratton, of Peterborough, has arrived here from overseas.

Lieut. Stratton is a son of Mr. A. H. Stratton, and has been on duty with the Royal Engineers in France and in Italy. Lieut. Stratton is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and won the Military Cross in France.

Hats---"as Lovely as the Flowers That Bloom in the Spring"

You will find the new Spring headgear Quite stunning and exclusive but a bit more sombre perhaps in keeping with the times.

"They are simply lovely"—this you are sure to say when you see the beautiful array of models that we have now in our Millinery show rooms. There are charming imported models, each made most alluring by some deft touch of the artist in the way of a rare ornament or feather; and, as well, there is an interesting variety of our own copies of Paris and New York models all showing the smartest trimmings and excellent handiwork. You are sure to find a hat becoming this season as there are all shapes and sizes, the newest innovations being the Jockey, the Bustle and the Mushroom poke ats with Porcupine braid and burnt ostrich feathers for trimmings. Such a charming shade of blue, Pekin blue, grey & purple promise to be the shades that signal smartness.

Spring Models in Corsets

A great deal of the charm of one's Spring suit or dress depends upon the corset worn beneath it. The new slender silhouette demands a 1918 model corset which is made to give the lines of slimness that characterize all the new garments, instead of the old slender waist and accentuated hips. In our new stock of corsets there are countless styles for every type of figure as well as for every pocket book. The American Lady, Nemo, La Diva and Frolaset (front laced) all present authoritative models with the preferred bust lines and long over the hips lines. The prices range from ..... $1.50 to $7.00

There is also a variety of tasteful new lines of the "Model" braissiere, the braissiere that really fits. They are firm but flexible and made of dainty materials, plain or with lace trimming. The prices are moderate and once you wear a "Model" braissiere you will want to wear one always, from..... .....50c to $1.50

United States Not Looking For A Drive

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Germany's threat of a great spring offensive on the Western front no longer impresses American military men. In its weekly review to-day the War Department records conclude that the enemy, in spite of his vast preparations, will not take the offensive unless forced into it. This confirms the opinion of many officers expressed for weeks in face of official forecasts to the contrary from both sides of the Atlantic. While hostile preparations for an offensive in the West are not slackening, the review says: "It is becoming more evident that the enemy will launch an offensive only if compelled to do so by the exigencies of a general strategic situation."

The nature of the information upon which the opinion is based is not disclosed. It is noted that fresh German divisions have arrived on the Western front, and the German lines are said to be approaching the point in density beyond which it would be impossible to go without choking communication lines and hampering the free movement of reserves. Apparently, however, this concentration has come to be regarded as a defensive, not an offensive, movement. Elsewhere on the Western front the experts find no evidence of impending major activity by either side. The period of inactivity, the statement says, is being prolonged. It notes, however, indications of Austro-German concentrations in the Italian theatre, which may forecast assaults on Verona or Brescia as their objectives.

Huns Advance In Russia

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 18.—German troops have occupied Bakhmatch and Konotop, three hundred and fifty miles south-west of Moscow, but were forced to retire from Briansk, two hundred miles south-west of Moscow, towards the main base. Austro-German troops are moving on Woroshba and Kharkov, four hundred miles south of Moscow.

Successful Raid Made By British

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 18.—(Official).—English troops carried out a successful raid last night south of Acheville, and captured several prisoners, with little loss to themselves. Casualties were inflicted on the enemy in patrol encounters north-east of Zonnebeke. Hostile artillery was active during the night south of the Sanaume-Cambrai Road.

Kaiser Is Talking Again

Canadian Press Despatch:

AMSTERDAM, March 17. — "I have strong hope that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg will soon win for us a complete victory on the Western front," reads a message sent by Emperor William to the Pomeranian Provincial Council.

Confectioners Are In A Quandary

Some of the Staples Are Likely to Be Cut Out

The regulations that are being issued to the confectioners with the licenses are giving some food for thought. The confectioners in the city are not exactly sure where they stand, but it is more than likely that some of the staple lines that have been on the counters of the local stores for years will have to be discontinued, one of them being the bun in all its different varieties. However, the bakers and confectioners will likely get together to interpret the law so that its observance will be uniform.

Irish Airs Were Played

In honour of St. Patrick's Day, the following selections were played on the chimes at noon in addition to the National selections, by Mr. R. J. Devey:

"Last Rose of Summer."
"Meeting of the Waters."
"Minstrel Boy."
"Believe me if all those Endearing Young Charms."
"The Harp that once Through Tara's Halls."

Peterborough Officers In Party

Among the Canadian officers who have just reached St. John, N.B., from overseas, are Capt. R. E. Layfield, formerly of the 80th Battalion, and Lieut. W. G. Worth, formerly of the 93rd Battalion.

OPENING OF HOUSE

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, March 18. —Dominion-wide daylight saving legislation, the extension of the franchise to women, with suitable provision respecting naturalization, as plans for carrying on of the war, and extensive provision for the re-education of Canada's troops on their demobilization. These are some of the features of the Legislature to be fathered by the government, as foreshadowed by Duke of Devonshire in the speech from the throne, delivered at the opening of the first sitting of the Union Parliament here this afternoon. Gratification at the co-operation of the United States in the present world war, and the establishment of a Canadian war mission at Washington, together with full confidence in the Allies' cause and prospects of victory, were also emphasized in the speech from the throne.

On the nomination of Premier Sir Robert Borden, E. N. Rhode, of Cumberland, was elected speaker. Sir Wilfrid Laurier made technical objection to the proclamation summoning the House, on the ground that the time was not mentioned, but did not press his objection.

Sir Robt. Borden explained in reply to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that the time of opening had been fixed in Council, but of course should have been in the proclamation also.

The proceedings were devested of their usual ceremony. There was no military guard of honour.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

THIS WEEK IS JAPAN WEEK.

A campaign is being carried on at the Y.W.C.A. this week, with a three-fold object—to educate our membership with respect to the Empire of Japan, to interest them in the work of the Young Women's Christian Association in that country and to fulfil the obligation of the Peterborough Association towards the support of a Secretary in Japan

One prominent Japanese recently said:

"The question of Japan is the woman question." And it was Count Okuma, himself, Japan's Premier and Grand Old Man, who said in an address at the opening of the Women's University: "The society of Japan is disfigured by abuses beyond any simple remedy. The only effective medicine is to be found in a radical reform of the ideals of family life, and this can only be effected by an improvement in the status of women."

Suddenly into the midst of the life of the Middle Ages held over by the Japanese into the very middle of the Twentieth Century, has rushed the full tide of present day civilization. Japan, awakening from her sleep of ages, has tried to catch up by one bound with the progress made in centuries by the other nations. To women no less than to men has come the new life, calling them out into new responsibilities and duties, new thoughts and ambitions.

This is the work of the Young Women's Christian Association in Japan—to help girls and women in every walk of life, to learn the best way to use their new found freedom in order to develop the very highest and best use every power and capability which God has given them.

A particularly interesting programme is being prepared for our Saturday evening entertainment this week. The subject is "Japan," and the programme will be the culmination of our Japan campaign. Short talks will be given on the subjects: "Japan's Position Among the Nations To-day," and "Work Among Women in Japan." Beautifully coloured lantern slides will be shown and there will be songs and readings given in Japanese costume.

A WOODEN PILLOW.

Provided at the Police Station Replacing One That Was Wrecked.

Mr. T. Irwin was engaged this morning in "re-upholstering" the benches in the "lock up" at the police station. A short time ago two soldiers on the eve of their departure for some eastern point spent a wild night in the station, and among other wreckage discovered the morning after was a broken pillow, which Mr. Irwin replaced this morning. The couch is entirely of wood with a raised incline for the head. Apparently the soldiers had jumped on it, and other furniture, such as the iron cells were strained by the stormy test to which the soldiers submitted them.

Over 2000 "Original Firsts" Arrive

Strahan was sent at the head of a cavalry squadron to pierce the enemy's lines. The Commandant, when he gave the order, did not mean for Strahan to try to reach Berlin with his squadron in one push, but at all events Strahan and his forty men determined to "Up and at 'em" with all their might. The charge was made, and before Strahan realized the progress he had made it was not less than eight miles behind the German front line. Here he was in enemy country, surrounded by several army corps, with forty men, many of whom were badly wounded. There was but one of two things to do, try to get back or surrender, but the latetr experiment never suggested itself to the squadron commander, who wheeled his horse, and at the head of his men began to hack his way through eight miles of German soldiery back to the Canadian lines.

Did Not All Get Back.

"I will never be able to describe our experience," said Strahan, when speaking of the incident. "It was some fighting, and we did not all get back. Yes, we went in mounted," he said, in reply to a question, "but we did not all return mounted or any of us. Those who were fortunate enough, reached our lines, on foot, and the remainder of us crawled in on our stomachs, too weak from wounds to walk."

This was one of the most remarkable achievements in the history of the Canadian army in France, and Captain Strahan was decorated with the Victoria Cross. He is home on leave, and intends to return to his old unit, The Fort Garry Horse, in about two months.

Canadians In Successful Raid

raiders went forward until they had penetrated to a depth of over 200 yards behind the enemy line, making a total advance of well over a thousand yards. One of our men, after three members of an enemy machine gun crew had been killed, ran up and bayoneted a fourth, put the gun over his shoulder and tramped back over 800 yards of No Man's Land to the officer commanding his regiment, to whom he presented the gun as a memento.

All Like Clockwork.

Every detail of the morning's operations worked like clockwork. The men, who had been carefully trained before the attack, were in the finest fighting form. Their only regret, as that of other raiders earlier in the week, is that the Huns did not make a better fight of it.

During the retirement our men passed through a very heavy barrage, but the whole operation, from beginning to end, was carried out with few casualties, the majority of them slight wounds. At daybreak, when all had quieted down, and the Hun was coming up from his dugouts, etc., all our guns along the front opened up simultaneously with two minutes of gunfire, shot after shot, as fast as the guns could be worked. This hail of lead swept the enemy's front line supports, reserve assembly areas and communications, and must have caused many casualties and much destruction. Prisoners taken emphasize the strength of the attack, and state that a careful plan had been made in event of such operation, but the whole scheme failed at the test this morning, the enemy having been thrown into confusion.

With the exception of one non-commissioned officer, the prisoners are poor specimens, having nothing like the physique or morale of our own troops.

ROBERT HICKS COY'S FUEL REGULATIONS

Subject to the Fuel Controller's Regulations at All Times

The Robert Hicks Co., Limited, herein announce their policy for coal distribution for the coming season:

1.—No orders booked in advance of shipments received.
2.—Priority to customers on record and in rotation of delivery as per record.
3.—Not more than 80 per cent. of normal requirements will be delivered to any one customer between April 1st and September 1st, and any lesser percentage that we may decide upon as conditions warrant.
4.—When lists on record have been supplied as above, any surplus coal will be distributed to customers of later record, conserving a reasonable supply in the late fall months, to tide over periods when transportation may be difficult or suspended.
5.—Customers must fill in cards signed by them stating the stock they have on hand, and the normal quantity of coal used; agreeing to notify us and any person appointed by the Mayor or City Council, to regulate, control or centralize the distribution of coal in the city, should they procure a further supply.
6.—Orders will not be accepted by telephone and will only be acknowledged when accompanied by cash.
7.—Should the supply of coal be sufficient for all requirements, and greater than anticipated, the balance of the normal requirements will be delivered on each order in rotation.

We would suggest that the different church bodies come together and agree on a policy of conserving fuel, acceptable to the Mayor, as Local Fuel Controller.

Explanatory.

The above announcement is in reply to the numerous requests we have to accept summer orders now, and will be effective only when spring shipments are received.

The object of these regulations is that in the event of a shortage of coal, such shortage will not all be borne by the winter purchaser, and also to discourage the starting of furnaces in the early fall.

CHEMONG INDIANS CUT 3,100 CORDS OF WOOD THIS WINTER

Chemong Indians have worked all winter cutting wood to keep Peterborough homes warm when the snow falls again, Chief Danny Whetung, of the Curve Lake reserve stated this morning.

"They cut 1,800 cords on the north shore of Buckhorn Lake for Jack Fitzgerald, 500 cords on the south shore for Joplings, 600 cords on Mud Lake for the Lindsay Chemical Works, and 200 cords for the Hickson brothers of Ennismore. The woods on Buckhorn were only a mile or so from the Indian village. Some of the men slept at home and others at the camp. Alfred Coppaway, of Chemong was boss of the gang."

"The Indians are now working for Mr. Fitzgerald in a woods near Millbrook. Seven of them went down on Thursday, Chief Whetung said, and eight more joined them to-day. Coppaway is in charge.

ENNISMORE ITEMS OF INTEREST

Mr. P. J. Scollard and his sister, Miss Bernice, were the guests of Miss B. McNamara on Saturday.

Miss Nellie Killen returned home, after spending a few days in the city, visiting her sister, Mrs. Bernard Sullivan.

Messrs. Ronald Galivan and Johnny Scollard were to the city on Saturday evening to hear Fiske O'Hara.

The Ennismore people will learn that Miss Eunice Crough has recovered from her illness, and is spending a few days with Mrs. Philip Crough, Smith.

Messrs. Harold Flood and Frank Cadigan went to Kingston on Tuesday.

Mr. Percy Killen is in St. Joseph's Hospital, suffering from a fractured toe, and is slowly recovering.

The Ennismore people will learn that both Mr. and Mrs. Robert O'Donoghue are very ill.

The Ennismore High School won a name for itself as having noted essay writers. The essay competition on Canada's Victory Loan, which closed January 5th, was entered by a number of students of the Ennismore High School, and the results were made known and the prizes awarded on Tuesday evening in the school. First prize was won by Miss Gladys Kennedy, second by Miss Esther Murphy and the third by Mr. Michael Crough. First and second prizes were silver medals and third a bronze one. They were awarded by Rev. Father McAuley.

Messrs. Leo Killen and E. Murphy have returned from the woods.

Recruits For Garrison Artillery

Mr. Jack Bryett, of Peterborough, has enlisted with Lieut. O'Leary at Cobourg in the Canadian Garrison Artillery, and other recruits are expected to be secured in this city for this branch of the service. Men are needed for the garrison artillery at Quebec and Halifax, and Lieut. O'Leary will be here later on in the week to take on men who wish to join. In the meantime information can be obtained from Mr. Bryett, 498 Cambridge street.

Pte. Lasher Is Killed In Action

Mrs. W. M. Lasher received word this morning that her brother in law, Pte. S. W. Lasher, of Campbellford, has been killed in action. Pte Lasher, who was well known in Peterboro enlisted with the 59th Eastern Ontario Battalion, and after going overseas with that unit was transferred to another Canadian battalion in France.

ONE OF WORLD'S OLDEST CITIES.

Hebron, of Especial Interest to Bible Students, Place of Vicissitudes.

With the exception of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Damascus, there is not a city in the Holy Land which holds greater interest for the Bible students than the ancient town of Hebron, whose capture by British forces under General E. H. F. Allenby, was announced recently, says a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters.

Hebron is a ribbon of a town running along the eastern slope of a narrow valley, above which are terraced vineyards and fruit orchards of great fertility. It is not more than twenty miles south-west of Jerusalem and in peace times tourists are accustomed to make the journey by carriage in four and a half hours.

Until captured and pillaged by the Calebites (as recorded in the Book of Joshua), Hebron was known as Kirjah-Arba. It is one of the most ancient cities in the world, having been founded, according to the Book of Numbers, "seven years before Zoan in Egypt."

Hebron means "The Friend of God," in other words, the city of Abraham. A tree standing in the Russian hospice garden, half a mile from the city, is known as the Oak Abraham. It will be remembered that it was under the oaks at Mamre that the patriarch pitched his tents and he is supposed to have built an altar here in 1920 B.C.

When Moses sent his spies into the land of Canaan, Hebron was one of the cities visited. It was here that David was anointed king over Judah, and that six of his sons were born, including Absalom, who at a later date made this place the headquarters of his rebellion against his father. It was also here that Abner, captain of Saul's hosts and guardian of Saul's son Ishbosheth, was killed by Joab. Hebron was fortified by Rehoboam and was repeopled after the return of the children of Israel from captivity.

Following Biblical days Hebron was destroyed by the Romans. It became a place of importance under Moslem rule, not only on account of its commerce, but also because of its connection with Abraham, who is venerated by the followers of Mahommed. During the crusade it was occupied by the Christians for a short time and became the seat of a Latin bishop in 1167, but it was recaptured by the Moslems under Saladin twenty years later.

The most conspicuous building in Hebron is the Haram, with its ramparts dating from the Herodian period. Within the enclosure are modern cenotaphs of Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Sarah, Rebecca and Leah. These are above the double cavern of Machpelah, which was purchased by Abraham from Ephron the Hittite as a family burial place when Sarah died. The tombs of the patriarchs are covered with richly embroidered green cloths, while those of their wives are covered with crimson draperies.

The population of Hebron is variously estimated at from 10,000 to 20,000, and the number of Jews at from 50 to 2,000. The town was a thriving trading centre before the war, the Bedouins finding here an active demande for their bales of wool and camel's hair. The chief manufactures of the community were glass bracelets, leather water bottles, and lamps.

According to mediaeval tradition, Adam, the father of mankind, died in Hebron.

OBITUARY

BABY McFARLANE.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McFarlane, 327 Simcoe street, died last night.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

BABY BYERS.

Last night at the Nicholls Hospital the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Byers died, aged two weeks.

Funeral this afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. E. A. THURSTON.

Olive Thurston, beloved wife of Mr. E. A. Thurston, Albert street, died this morning in Nicholls Hospital at seven o'clock after an illness of a few days' duration. She leaves to mourn her death her husband and two small children, Donald and Dora. The funeral will be held on Wednesday at 3.30 from the residence of Mr. Walter Jefferies, 172 Wescott street, to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Mr. Grobb will officiate.

LILLIAN HAYES.

The death took place on Saturday of Lillian Wood, wife of Mr. Harry Hayes, and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wood, Pearl avenue, at the early age of twenty-eight years. Mrs. Hayes had been in ill health for some time, but her death came quite suddenly on Saturday and was a shock to all her friends.

As Lilly Wood the deceased was for nine years with the Examiner, and at the time of leaving the office to be married about four years ago, was in charge of the Circulation Dept. She had a very bright and happy disposition, and was accommodating and courteous to all with whom she came in contact.

Besides her husband and parents she leaves one little boy, about two years of age, to mourn her loss.

The funeral which will be private, will take place to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

HENRY COX.

An old and highly respected citizen of Peterborough passed away at the Nicholls Hospital on Sunday, in the person of Henry Cox, of 496 Rodgers street, East City.

The late Mr. Cox was born in Colborne, Ont., November 16th, 1838, being at the time of his death in his eightieth year. He lived in Colborne until about thirty years ago, when he removed with his family to Peterborough, where he has resided ever since.

The deceased followed his occupation as a farmer until a few years ago, when he retired from active work, taking up his residence on Rodgers street, East City.

During his life he was one of the best known and most successful farmers in Peterborough county.

In 1866 he married Amelia Lane of Colborne, to whom he had nine children, eight sons and one daughter. Of these children one son died at an early age and a second, Harry, some seven years ago.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, his six sons, John, Adam, Frederick, Robert and Clifford, of Peterborough, and William of Vancouver, B.C., and one daughter, Mrs. A. C. Weir of Toronto; also two sisters, Mrs. Phflip Lane, of Peterborough, and Mrs. William Colling, of Belleville. In religion the deceased was a Methodist being connected with Mark street Methodist church, East City. In politics he was a life-long Conservative.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday, March 19th, at 2 o'clock p.m., from his late residence, 496 Rodgers street, East City, to the Little Lake cemetery.

YELLOW DOG GONE.

Mr. Gates Got the Mongrel Believed to Have Rabies.

The "bob tailed" straw-coloured dog which Dr. Johnston believed had rabies and was seen at large on Park street, fell into Mr. Gates' hands on Friday and was despatched.

"I had three more before 10:30 this morning," the catcher stated, and added that if any persons had dogs whose tages they did not intend to renew, they would save time, trouble and perhaps money by reporting to Mr. Gates, instead of turning the animals loose in the streets.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

AGREES WITH THE WASHINGTON VIEW

TORONTO, March 18.— A special cable from London to Toronto Star seems to agree with the Washington view that Germany's major activity so far as the western front is concerned, will be in the way of a peace propaganda. There is every indication, says the cable, that Germany's peace feelers will soon assume tangible form. It is thought Germany will offer restoration for Belgium and France in return for a free hand in the east.

Germans Will Wage Unrestricted War On Holland's Shipping

Press Declares Free Passage to North Sea Will Not Be Permitted—London Contrasts Entente's Liberality to Holland With Ruthless Course of Enemy.

ALLIES' SHIPMENTS WILL BE ATTACKED

THE HAGUE, March 19.—The Netherlands have accepted the Allies' conditions for the employment of Dutch shipping in transporting war munitions. There are sixty-eight ships in the United States ports.

AMSTERDAM, March 18.—German newspapers, in discussing the decision of the Allies regarding Dutch shipping, declare it will be followed by intensification of submarine warfare. The Frankfurter Zeitung says:

"Under the proposed circumstances no really neutral Dutch ships will exist. Germany will have no reason longer to leave open a free passage to the North Sea, which was created only in the interest of Dutch shipping. This passage has been only a nuisance to our submarines, whose warfare in future will be much more effective. Unfortunately, Dutch ships will suffer most, and the supplies promised to Holland by the Entente will be exposed to uncertainty."

The Vossische Zeitung terms the step taken by the Allies a monstrous act of violence. The Tageblatt says: "Holland naturally must renounce a further supply of coal and other indispensable materials from us."

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends the Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidences of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralising effect on the stomach acids. Instead, get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation, and there is no soreness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

GRAIN MARKET

There was a sharp come back in cash oats yesterday following the equally sudden and sharp decline in Saturday's markets. There was probably little reason for the action of the market on Saturday except that the options took the downward trend, the bears for the moment dominating and everyone eager to sell. Yesterday there was an opposite move, and a lot of short covering took place. The cash situation is really little changed, receipts being as yet only moderate and readily absorbed, premiums remaining about steady. Corn is also strong in the Chicago market but is still under embargo so far as Canada is concerned.

FIRST AID AT SQUAW PEAK

Lone School-Teacher on Frontier Is Successful in Reducing a Pupil's Unjointed Wrist.

I was eating my lunch in the schoolhouse all by myself. And as I ate a boy entered and dropped heavily down to a seat, writes Laura Tilden Kent, in the Atlantic.

I looked up indifferently. The boy's face was dyed with red, but some of the youngsters had been smearing themselves with our new red water colors. This was an unusually successful effort to be hideous, I thought. And then—

"I think my wrist is out of joint," said the boy in a steady, controlled tone.

I came to life, but I was still a little skeptical.

"Are you really hurt, Edward?" I demanded, pushing my lunch basket away.

"Yes," he replied.

I was on my feet and at his side. The brilliant red that dyed half his face and more was really blood! I bent over him.

"How did you do it?"

"Fell off my horse. I was taking him down to the river to water him. I don't know—"

He was hurt. And I was alone and helpless!

"My wrist is out o' joint?" he insisted faintly.

"Are you sure?"

But, oh! I was sure myself as I looked at it! The arm had sprung far out in front of the stiff hand. The bones bulged hideously over it.

I think I ran out and took a wild look around, but there was nobody in sight but a crowd of hysterical children pressing up and whimpering. I was no doctor. I only knew that this wrist ought to be set at once, and I recalled dimly from my own grammar school days a few hints in my old physiology as to the setting of bones.

"Edward, this ought to be done now!" I said as calmly as I could. "I'm not sure that I can do it—"

"Go ahead and try!" recommended Edward grimly. "Pull it out—"

I did not give myself time to think. I got down beside him, resolutely took the terrible, misshaped wrist into my hands, and pulled, pressing the hand a little backward at the same time. I felt the bones snap smoothly into their proper places! I had done what I had set out to do! It was unbelievable.

No Trouble To Remove Superfluous Hair

(Toilet Tips)

It is an easy matter to rid the skin of objectionable hair or fuzz, if you proceed as follows: Mix a paste with some water and a little powdered delatone, apply to hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method of banishing hairy growths is painless and does not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain to get real delatone.

CATTLE MARKET

Union stock yards: Receipts yesterday, 178 cars, with 2971 cattle, 819 calves, 2419 hogs and 113 sheep and lambs.

Market active and strong and the prices a good 25c to 30c higher. Some choice quality cattle offering including fine baby beef steers and choice Easter quality butcher steers and heifers. The run was only moderate for a Monday market and practically everything was cleaned up.

There was but a very small run of calves, sheep and lambs, at steady to firm prices.

Hogs were firm at $20.25, fed and watered, one or two free lots selling 10c to 15c higher.

TAKING THE HUBBY SHOPPING

Big Chief of the Household Learns What Trouble the Wife Always Has to Experience.

As to the advisability of taking one's husband to the shops, much may be said on both sides, observes Simeon Strunsky, in Harper's Magazine. On the one hand, it is certain that after he has spent three hours in a chair while his wife tries on spring suits, a man will have a very definite idea of what women suffer in the daily task. The next time his wife comes home from the shops with a headache he is likely to be more sympathetic.

But then again it may be that the memory of his own bitter ordeal will prevail, and he will carry away with him a more vivid sense of the futilities in which the life of woman is spent. It all depends on the man, of course. But the husband endowed with just a bit of philosophic reflection, planted three solid hours in a tapestry chair, in an audience of 300 women and 50 saleslgirls, will watch the strained and tired faces, the tryings-on and divestings, the search after the unattainable ideal, the final purchase made more out of weariness than out of satisfaction; and he cannot help asking himself: "For whom is it all?" And he will say to himself, "For us males?" And it will make him thoughtful.

Taking along one's husband to the store as critic and appraiser is of no use at all. In the first place, his principles of criticism are utterly unlike a woman's. His criticism is of the romantic, impressionistic school. He looks at his wife in the green cloak with fur edging and says, "I like that." Or else he says, "You look well in that." As if the mere fact that a woman looks well in a green coat or that she likes it were the deciding factor!

Woman belongs, in the matter of dress, to the scientific school of criticism, which bases itself on universal principles—Aristotle, Taine, Brunetiere. It is criticism which does not ask whether a woman looks well in a green cloak trimmed with fox, but says: "How does this green cloak fit into that woman's life, her temperament, her likes, her friends, her duty of being duplicated by the woman next door, on the other hand?"

A man likes his wife's new dinner gown when it looks well on his wife in the shop. A woman is bound to think of the gown in relation to the wallpaper and the lights at home, the fact that she had a dark-red dinner gown year before last, the fact that her color is somewhat higher than it was two years ago, that she has taken on three pounds in weight, that her husband's income has materially increased since last year, and that next year people will be wearing greens and purples.

Found First Diamond.

The first diamond discovered in Griqualand, South Africa, was found by the children of a Dutch farmer, who for a time used it as a plaything. The stone was later sent to Cape Town, where its true nature was recognized, and it was subsequently forwarded to Paris, where it was exhibited and sold for $2,500. The valuable discovery soon led to other researches, and diamonds were unearthed in various places in Griqualand West, with the result that, 46 years ago, the country of the Griquas, a mixed race sprung from Dutch settlers and native women, was annexed by Great Britain.

Diamond hunting was at first confined to the banks of the Vaal river, but in the year of the British occupation mines were opened in the locality known as "dry diggings," which has since received the name of Kimberly. In 1872 the world was startled by the discovery of the Stewart diamond of 288¾ carats. The daily output of the consolidated mines at Kimberly just prior to the outbreak of the war was valued at $220,000.

Communal Kitchens.

The latest proposal for the elimination of waste in food and the supply of meals at minimum cost in England, includes, what for a better term is called, communal feeding. The communal kitchen has been proposed on several occasions but, save for a few spasmodic experiments, it has not been given a thorough trial. Lord Rhondda is interested in the new proposal and acting with a committee of social workers he is devising plans to give the scheme a real test. With so many women doing war work and with consequent neglect of household duties, some such plan as is proposed will have to be carried out if the rising generation is not to suffer seriously in health.

A Movie Fan.

"You must make home so attractive that your husband will want to stay at home evenings."

"How can I?" asked the married young woman. "Even if we had a moving picture machine, I couldn't make arrangements for all the first-run films."

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

FINDING A DESIRABLE WIFE

Lonely Young Pioneer Who Did Not Know How, Found It Was Really Rather Simple.

In a new settlement in the thick forest, 20 miles or more from a city and ten miles from a railway, were located a sawmill and a few scattered homesteaders who worked at the mill when it was running and attended their little clearings at other times, relates a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

One day in the cook's camp, connected with the mill, the man and his wife in charge began joking the homesteader about being the only settler in the whole community without a wife and family.

"How can I help it?" said he. "There are no marriageable women that I know."

"Oh, there are lots of them that would be glad of a good home such as you could furnish," said they.

"Well, you just find me one," said the homesteader, "and I will make you a present of the best cow on the place."

Not to be bluffed, they accepted his proposition. Then they got busy, running over their list of acquaintances in the city, finally selecting, for their matchmaking expedient, an estimable lady of their acquaintance, living with her married sister in the city.

The victim selected for the sacrifice had reached that age when unmarried women cease to celebrate birthdays, and begin to regard the tapering end of statistical possibility with more or less concern. The homesteader was about the same age, and, evidently, just as much concerned about his future on earth. A friendly invitation was forthwith extended to the lady to spend a week with the cook's family at the camp. It was innocently accepted.

The homesteader was conveniently invited to a Sunday dinner with the cook's family, and the tragedy was staged.

A case of love and desperation at first sight. In the afternoon, chaperoned by the cook and his wife, the party casually strolled over to the homesteader's bungalow, where they found everything "spick and span," with just enough incongruity in the arrangement to make the fingers of an orderly housekeeper tingle with ambition to put things in their proper corners.

A few months later the records in the county clerk's office gave a hint of further developments, which were staged at the sister's home in the city. The happy couple at once settled in their new home "and lived happily ever afterward."

In the excitement the poor cow was crowded off the stage and forgotten by the matchmakers, but a short time later, looking out one morning, they saw Mr. Homesteader driving a cow into camp—as good as his word.

South African Shoe Trade.

Cape Province has numerous firms which manufacture boots and shoes. Many of these are engaged in the production of high-class footwear though, as a rule, the better class of footwear that is popular in this country, is obtained from overseas, writes Consul General George H. Murphy, Cape Town. The foreign producer, with his highly specialized factories, is able, with the aid of the importing merchant, to flood the market here with enormous quantities of boots and shoes, either made for the South African trade, or forming a part of his surplus output. The result is that the South African producer is unable to command a sufficient market to warrant extensions of his plant to meet large calls which may be made by the wholesaler. He must content himself with producing high-grade footwear in small quantities for the retailer.

Large quantities of boots and shoes are being received from the United States, partly as a result of the impossibility of obtaining adequate supplies elsewhere.

When the Doctors Despaired.

There have been recorded during the war many being cured by accidental means, such as a sudden noise or an unexpected visitor, or as a startling question, and in one case at least a midnight fall out of bed. But one of the strangest cases belongs to a former war, observes a correspondent, where a soldier lay 15 months under the influence of catalepsy. Finally, in despair, the doctors ordered the bagpipes to be played near the patient's bed. That did the trick.

There is a story told of a skipper who had a medicine-chest containing cures numbered one to seven. For dyspepsia he administered a stiff dose of No. 7. For sprains, No. 2 was the bottle, and for rheumatism, No. 5 seemed to work the oracle. But on a lengthy voyage the skipper ran out of No. 7, so when next a member of the crew had a pain in his middle he dosed him with a mixture of 2 plus 5. Nobody had another pain during that voyage, or, at any rate, confessed to having one.

Boy Drowns, Cat Saved.

The nine lives a cat possesses stood one creature in good stead in northeast London not long ago. A boy was taking a cat in a basket to the Cats' home to be destroyed. On the way he slipped and fell into a canal, the cat being in the basket which he still held. The boy was drowned, but the cat managed to save itself, and has returned to its owner's house.

SLUGGISH LIVER CAUSES LOTS OF TROUBLE

When the liver becomes sluggish it is an indication that the bowels are not working properly, and if they do not move regularly many complications are liable to set in.

Constipation, sick headache, bilious headache, jaundice, heartburn, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc., all come from a disordered liver.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a specific for all disease or disorders arising from a slow, sluggish, lazy or torpid liver, and they have been universally used throughout Canada for over 20 years with the greatest success.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 7 Poplar Grove, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but after using a couple of vials of your pills, I have not been bothered any more."

LACK OF PRAISE FOR POETS

Complaint Is Registered That Insufficient Honor Is Bestowed Upon Living English Writers.

In an article in the Bookman on twentieth century English poetry, Prof. William Lyon Phelps quotes William watson as complaining of the insufficient praise bestowed upon living poets and as saying that with one exception, meaning Kipling, there is not a single English poet the sales of whose poems would not have been thought contemptible by Scott and Byron. "With that one brilliant exception," says Watson, "England's living singers succeed in reaching only a pitifully small audience." In commenting on this passage, Professor Phelps says:

"We ought to remember that Scott and Byron were colossal figures, so big that no eye could miss them, and that the reason why Kipling has enjoyed substantial rewards is not because of his political views, nor because of his glorification of the British empire, but simply because of his literary genius. He is a brilliant and salient exception to the common run of poets, not merely in royalties, but in creative power. Furthermore, shortly after this lecture was delivered Alfred Noyes and then John Mansfield passed from city to city in America in a veritable march of triumph. Mr. Gibson and Mr. DeLaMare received homage everywhere; 'Riley day' is now a legal holiday in Indiana; Rupert Brooke has been canonized."

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

FEAR RECURRENCE OF PLAGUE

Government Experts Favor Extermination of Rats Also as a War Measure for Saving Food.

Government experts are urging that the rat be exterminated as a war measure for saving food. The waste each year due to the rodent is estimated at $200,000,000. A full-grown rat consumes more food than a baby. In addition, the animal is a menace to health.

The terrible scourge of the bubonic plague in Europe and Asia was spread by rats and their parasites. When the plague was carried by the animals in ships to our Pacific coast, a campaign for their extermination was conducted in the seaports at much cost. The disease was thus stamped out as it had been in the Orient, by the pound of cure instead of the ounce of prevention.

The plague returns at intervals from its breeding places in the overcrowded and filthy cities of Asia. War, pestilence and famine travel hand in hand. A recurrence may be expected as a result of the deprivations of war among the impoverished eastern people.

Do Big Jobs First.

The more you ponder difficulties the harder they seem. So the thing is to get them off the slate as soon as possible. You get them off by going after them. Just cast up the work of the day. Estimate the toll in each problem. Tackle the hardest one before you are tired. That may not be according to good generalship. As soon as you get that off the list tackle the next thing in importance. Keep the work going and you're bound to win victories over self and the job you face. Soon there won't be any real problems to annoy you. It will just be a matter of attacking things in the best order. You have gone a long way toward mastery when you have learned to do big things first.

TREES' NOISE LIKE WHISPER

Needlelike Points of Stiff Leave Scratching Upon Each Other Responsible for Odd Chorus.

Henry Heinelle of Santa Monica, who two years ago sent geologists on a hike to the wilds of the Malibu by reporting the discovery of a nest of dunes of singing sands, has again caused nature students to sit up and take notice, according to the Los Angeles Times.

This time he reports the discovery of a clump of whispering trees. The find was made far up in Los Tunas canyon, where the county surveyor's gang recently ran lines for a mountain road to connect the seashore via this scenic canyon with the Topanga at its junction with Garrapatas.

The mysterious trees are near the buttom of the canyon, not far from the Weber ranch. At this point the wagon road is hung on the side of the canyon, far above the trickling stream. Persons passing along the road at this point are invariably attracted by what sounds to them as if somebody in the undergrowth were talking in a subdued voice.

Shouts failing to bring a response, Mr. Heinelle, after listening to the supposed whispered conversation, left the trail and descended the precipitous side of the mountain, expecting to discover some hunter who had fallen and injured himself. But there was no evidence of life anywhere, although the air was filled with indistinguishable whisperings.

The sound always came from the same general direction, and the will-o'-the-wisp directed him to a clump of scrubby trees, much in appearance like the English holly—and then the mystery was solved. The needle-like points of thousands of these stiff leaves, swayed by the breeze blowing up the canyon, scratching upon the surface of other leaves was responsible for the chorus.

The noise made by one leaf was so slight that it could not be heard a foot away, but the thousands grating continuously together kept the sound vibrations in such constant motion that their sigh was heard above the ordinary rustling of the leaves of the chaparral.

LIFE—PRICE WE PAY FOR IT

Penalties of Fame Are Debts of All Existence, With "High Cost of Living" Significant.

The penalties of fame are the penalties of all life, which, when one views it resolutely and without taking refuge behind rose-colored spectacles, teems with contradictions that give a deeper significance to that well-worn phrase, "the high cost of living." And the chief part of the expense lies not in the things—food, clothing, shelter—which are demanded by our material and bodily needs as human animals, writes Mary Garden in the New York World.

Really to live as woman or as man implies to want something or other very greatly. And really to want something very greatly means to strive for that something with inappeasable eagerness. And thus to strive means one of two things—disappointment; or achievement and the realization that in gaining the one thing a score of others have been missed.

Such is life and the price we pay for it.

Naval Cadet Slang.

"For certain slang expressions used by the Annapolis cadets," writes Julian Street in his new travel book, "American Adventures," "I am indebted to a member of the corps. From this admiral-to-be I learn that a 'bird' or 'wazzo' is a man or boy; that 'steam' is marine engineering, and to be 'bilged for juice' is to fail in examination in electrical engineering; to get an 'unsat,' or unsatisfactory mark,' or even a 'zip' or 'swabo,' which is a zero. Cadets do not escort girls to dances, but 'drag' them; a girl is a 'drag,' and a 'heavy drag' or 'brick' is an unattractive girl who must be taken to a dance. A 'sleuth' or 'jimmy-legs' is a night watchman, and to be 'ragged' is to be caught. Mess-hall waiters are sometimes called 'mokes,' while at other times the names of certain exalted dignitaries of the navy department or of the academy are applied to them."

ALL ENEMIES MEET IN BERNE

Streets Are Thronged With Thousands of Men Who Have Been Interned—Must Wear Uniforms.

At any time of the day in the Swiss capital one sees the uniforms of both sides on the streets, for there are thousands of French, British, German and Belgians interned in Switzerland, and according to the rules of the game, they must wear their uniforms, in order to make the breaking of parole harder, writes Will Irwin in the Saturday Evening Post.

My first sight of a German Fritz clumping down the streets in his neutral green uniform and his stout military boots gave me a kind of shock of surprise. It is three years now, since—in Belgium—I last beheld a free man in a German uniform. Today I saw dozens of men in French uniform pass other dozens in German uniform. Each party to these meetings would look straight ahead, pretending he had not noticed.

For the benefit of the entente peoples the shops are displaying such signs as these: "Swiss Manufacture." "Same Composition as that of the German Preparation. Cut of Strictly Swiss Origin." "This Line Made of Swiss and English Material." Knowingly to buy German goods is the same cardinal sin among the French, American and English colonies here.

"Pill Box" Defense.

The "pill box" defense appeared in the German lines some time this year, says the Scientific American. The "pill box" is the British soldier's name for a small, round, concrete blockhouse which contains German machine gunners. The "pill box" appears to be the smallest of German concrete defenses, some of which are nothing short of fortresses in every sense of the word.

The "pill box" strategy, which has been offset by heavier allied gunfire, comprises the use of shell holes, trees, rocks and every other available shelter for machine guns, instead of the old style rows of trenches. In other words, there is a "zone of defense." The organization of this zone of defense is such that the aerial observers of the allies cannot detect the individual machine gun posts; hence direct hits by artillery become almost impossible except by mere chance.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Thanksgiving Surprises

By Miss Hortense Yates

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Miss Hortense Yates,

"Raynor College, Raynortown.

"Have at last sold business to great advantage. Have sublet apartment here to Colin Dare, and will spend the winter in travel. Will spend Thanksgiving with you at Raynor. Love from father."

This was the telegram that Mr. Yates wrote a week before Thanksgiving. "I just couldn't boil it down to ten words, mamma," he said to his wife as he read it. "But the time's come when we can be a little lavish, now we've retired."

"Hortense certainly will be surprised—poor girl," answered Mrs. Yates. "She couldn't afford to come home for the short holidays. Something in her letters sounds as if she thought you had been feeling hard times—that's why she didn't spend the money. When she learns what a wonderful disposal you have made of your business, won't she be surprised?"

"She'd be more surprised if she didn't get the telegram."

"You don't mean, papa, that you'd just go out and surprise her? Well, what a wonderful idea!"

"Mr. Henry Yates, 701 West Ninety-ninth street, New York city: Have earned a little money tutoring, and have decided to come home Thanksgiving. Love, Hortense."

Hortense struck her pencil through a word here and there to get her telegram down to ten words, and then paused, with the pencil in mid-air.

"They would be a lot more surprised if I didn't send the telegram," she reflected. "What a wonderful idea!"

As an aid in effecting a perfect surprise, Hortense rejoiced that she had in her possession a latch key for the small city apartment, where her mother and father had made their home since four years before she first flitted off to college. She arrived at three o'clock the afternoon before Thanksgiving, and, suitcase in hand, passed quickly by elevator attendants to her parents' apartment on the second floor. It was not surprising to her that no one was home. Wednesday was her mother's club afternoon, and she sometimes remained out all afternoon, and then met her husband downtown for dinner. Hortense hoped this was to be the case this afternoon, for then she would have more time for perfecting the plans that she had in mind.

Hortense found her little chintz-trimmed bedroom in immaculate attire, and, having quickly slipped on a comfortable house dress, rolled up her sleeves and donned an apron, she hurried out to the kitchen.

Down on her knees before the ice box, she opened the door and sniffed and peered curiously into its interior.

"Poor old mumsy," she said to herself, as she beheld a meager broiling chicken, a few apples and onions and a small measure of potatoes. "Times have been hard with dad, and she didn't even have a turkey."

Hortense recalled that her mother had written, some time before, saying that they "expected to have a quiet little dinner together on Thanksgiving," but she thought that her hearty young mother and father had planned to feast off a single squablike broiler brought tears to Hortense's deep blue eyes.

She counted her money carefully, folded her return-trip ticket and a few new dollar bills into a little purse that she put, for safe-keeping and beyond the temptation of green grocer or butcher, in a little pocket beneath the folds of her bodice, and then counted out $5 besides. "That'll get some sort of spread," she said, "if I go to the inexpensive places and make good bargains." She found an empty market basket, and having put her coat and hat on, slipped her arm into the basket and sallied forth.

It was as Hortense supposed. Her mother and father did not return for dinner, and she worked interruptedly on at cranberry sauce and a small pumpkin pie till long after dark. The feast was not to be a large one, but Hortense was a deliberate sort of cook, and so busy was she with culinary preparations that she did not take time to sit down or even to enter the living rooms of the apartment, or her father's and mother's bedroom. If she had, she would have seen objects that would have disturbed the serenity of her plans. As she had replaced the broiler with a turkey for the Thanksgiving dinner, she satisfied her own appetite—now well developed, after all her many activities—on half of the broiler, and another tear stole into her eye as she reflected that this small bird had been intended to stay the Thanksgiving ardor of her parents.

When the living-room clock struck ten Hortense concluded that her mother and father had determined to stay downtown to the theater as had been their custom before. "Poor dears," she murmured. "It is probably only a cheap movie show." Worn by her travel and her exertions she determined to go to bed, but first she wrote a little note which, without taking the trouble to turn on the light in her parents' bedroom, she pinned to a pincushion on the bureau there. It said:

"Guess what has happened. If you can't guess then look in the kitchen refrigerator and if that doesn't tell you, peep into the little bedroom and see who's there."

This was the note that Colin Dare, old bachelor friend of the Yates', found on the pincushion when he returned to his room at eleven after an especially trying evening spent with a client in his law offices. The handwriting was unfamiliar to him and there was nothing for him to do but to follow the instructions of the note. He looked at the beautifully filled larder and, still in doubt, peeped into the little bedroom that, for aught he knew, had not been touched since the original tenants of the apartment had left a week before. He softly opened just enough of the door to see Hortense's tumbled curls on the pillow and then withdrew as silently as he had approached, perplexed with what was an extremely difficult question to solve. It was Hortense—those curls could be no one's else—and the chances were that she would be in high dudgeon when she awoke to learn that he had allowed her to remain there all night.

So sure was he that he ought not to allow her to sleep peacefully on that, he tried to imagine his best method of procedure in waking her. But this seemed so much more difficult than the task of simply letting her sleep that he faltered and soon retired to his own room. He intended to stay awake all night so that he might be prepared to relieve her distress when she discovered that her parents were not in the apartment. But toward daylight he fell asleep in his dressing room gown on the lounge in his bedroom and slept so soundly that only the tempting aroma of coffee and browned muffins, wafted from the kitchen window through the court into his own bedroom, waked him.

It was a perfectly shaven, serene-looking, calm-eyed young lawyer who presented himself at the kitchen door a half hour later, and was all but caught in the embrace of the very much agitated Hortense, not from the oven and the muffins.

"Oh, I thought you were father," she gasped, and then leaned back, limp and confused, against the kitchen cupboard.

The only thing to do was to eat breakfast, and after that the only thing to do seemed to be to spend Thanksgiving day together and feast upon the good things that Hortense had prepared. There were meanwhile many explanations and much discussion of what should be done next. Colin Dare, though he recalled Hortense as a very disdainful little girl, whom, four years ago, he was in good way of being in love with if she had permitted it, regarded her now as a sort of Thanksgiving angel, the personification of bounty and good cooking. He had hoped to keep house with a Jap chef, but four within a week had proved either thieves or fools, so he had despaired. The broiler, he explained, was left from the order of the one that had left the previous morning.

"Once, you know, a girl would have thought her reputation had been compromised just because she had accidentally stayed in the same apartment with a man all night." Colin told Hortense. "I am glad you didn't look on it in that light."

Hortense assured him that she was far too up-to-date for such foolishness. "Still," she said, "mother is a little old-fashioned. Of course, I'll take a train back tonight and I'll tell her just what happened. I wonder what a girl would have done when mother was young when she found herself in just this situation."

"She would have felt that she had to accept the man in the question as her husband whether she wanted to or not," pronounced Colin with lawyer-like conclusion. "That is why I'm glad you are a girl of today. If you should ever consent to be my wife I want to know it is because you care for me."

By eight that night Hortense and Colin were on their way to meet Hortense's parents in Raynortown where they had been wired to await Hortense. Somehow in that Thanksgiving afternoon Colin had wooed and won the disdainful little girl he had once almost loved and they felt that the Thanksgiving surprises were not complete till they had both together craved the parental blessing.

"I saw Reggie yesterday," said one chorus girl to a second row girl when they met on Broadway, "and he's all broken up over your turning him down." "I don't care," came the nasal reply. What Future for Women?

Women have always had a wider range of industrial opportunity in this country than abroad; war will inevitably widen the range, observes a writer. A dearth of men will necessitate her acceptance of such activities, and for a time at least, her continuance in them. What is to be the result? What changes will occur in her temperament, her standards, and her attitude toward life's in consequence? No one can predict [illegible]

What Becomes of That Cent?

A farmer comes to town with 30 apples, which he sells three for a cent, getting, of course, 10 cents for them.

Another farmer, also with 30 apples, sells them two for a cent, getting 15 cents for his. They get 25 cents in all.

The next time they come in, with 30 apples each, they meet at the edge of town and put their apples together, making 60 apples. One man having sold two for a cent, the other three for a cent, they decided to sell them five for 2 cents.

They do so, and when they're through find out they have received but 24 cents.

The problem is, why did they not get as much for their apples selling them five for 2 cents as they did when they sold them separately, or, what becomes of the cent?

Boy Scouts on War Duty.

Naval dispatches in Britain are very largely carried by Boy Scouts. Speaking at a recent review Lieut. Gen. Sir Robert Baden-Powell paid very high praise to the work done by these lads, who, without any officers watching them, but working simply under their own boy leaders, were doing their patriotic duty to their country. "Every night without fail," he continued, "these boys have carried dispatches along that wild coast down to the admiral at the base, and they do about six miles every night. I saw the one hundred and nineteenth message go down. It is wonderful how those boys face difficulty and danger simply because they are expected to and from a sense of duty and of 'playing the game.' And that is true of boys throughout the country."

Jesuit Settlement.

A Jesuit settlement is being negotiated in Schweidnitz in Silesia. There was formerly a Jesuit settlement there from 1629 to 1776. It is proposed to purchase for the purpose the former Jesuit seminary next to the Roman Catholic church, which is now the headquarters of the provincial administration. The neighborhood of Breslau was one of the first places in which the Jesuits established themselves, notes a correspondent, so soon as the ban against them was removed some months ago, and they are evidently losing no time in taking advantage of the restoration of their freedom to settle in Germany.

Mr. Arthur Hainge, Ashton Farm, Perley, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three days."

RAISE FIVE VICE PRESIDENTS

Tyler, Fillmore, Johnson, Arthur and Roosevelt Succeeded on Death of the President.

Five vice presidents of the United States have on the death of the president succeeded to the higher office. The first president to die while in office was William Henry Harrison, grandfather of Benjamin Harrison of Indiana. His death occurred April 4, 1841, just one month after his inauguration. The vice president, John Tyler, then at his country home in Virginia, was officially notified of the event and on reaching Washington, at once took the oath of office as president.

As this was the first case of the kind there was much discussion for a time in and out of congress as to Tyler's proper title—that is, whether he was "vice president of the United States acting as president" or president. It was finally conceded on all sides that the language of the Constitution is clear that on the death of the president in office the vice president becomes, in name as in fact, president. The framers of the Constitution did not leave the door open for trouble that might arise regarding the legality of acts done by an "acting president."

On the death of President Zachary Taylor, July 9, 1850, Vice President Millard Fillmore succeeded to the presidency and was at a later date an unsuccessful candidate for election to the office. Andrew Johnson, the third vice president to succeed to the higher office, took the oath April 15, 1865, the day after the assassination of President Lincoln. President Garfield was shot July 2, 1881, died the following September 19, and was immediately succeeded by Vice President Chester A. Arthur. Vice President Roosevelt succeeded President McKinley, who died September 14, 1901, and was the only one of five vice presidents thus succeeding to the office who was subsequently elected to it.

Temperance in Diet.

Abstemiousness in diet is one of the very soundest of the means that are recommended for youth preservation and longevity. Extreme temperance in diet as a means to long life was widely proclaimed some centuries ago by an Italian philosopher who claimed to have lived on one egg and a little wine each day. As meats and wine were then considered the sole sources of strength, the gentleman doubtless thought it unnecessary to tell us how much bread and vegetables he ate. But despite this evident omission his principle was sound.—Physical Culture.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

GEORGE MAKES GOOD HIS THREAT

CHAPTER XIX.

I felt horribly chagrined over the book episode. And I had the most peculiar feeling about George's action in burning them. I felt as if he had burned all my good resolutions. I felt hard, discouraged. Were all my attempts to make myself more attractive to end in the same futile manner?

But as the days passed I, with the resiliency of youth, forgot to worry about my failure to inform myself of the usages of polite society; if I did not quite forget the manner in which George had discouraged me.

Then one day Annie came upstairs and told me that a woman wanted to see me.

"Didn't she give you her card?" I asked.

"Oh, she ain't that kind of a person at all ma'am!! I think perhaps she is asking for charity or something."

"Oh very well. I'll be down presently."

"You wished to see me?" I said, a few moments afterward.

"Yes, madame! I am engaged to teach you social usages. Engaged by Mr. Howard."

I disliked her immediately. Her personality; her patronizing tone; looks. Everything about her.

"When did he engage you?" I asked in as haughty a tone as I could assume.

"To be exact, three days ago," she replied.

Useless Rebellion.

Suddenly I felt the blood rush to my face. I would not stand it! I wouldn't have this woman taking such a superior air toward me. I wouldn't! yet while I fumed inwardly I knew that I should, that I should have to do as George said. But why hadn't he told me? I felt the tears coming at the thought of his absolute indifference to my feelings, but quickly crushed them back.

"I am to come three times a week for the present. Shall we commence at once? Mr. Howard is anxious for you to improve quickly."

"No, we will not work to-day. I have other arrangements," I told her. "You may come day after to-morrow, at ten o'clock."

"Very well, madame, but I am afraid your husband will not like it."

I made no reply, and as I was still standing, she rose and swept out of the room. Swept is the only word that describes her movement.

I rushed upstairs and threw myself on the bed in a very rage of mortification and resentment. George was treating me like a child. He might at least have told me that he had made his threat good, that he had hired that horrid woman.

I then thought of Madge Loring. If she hadn't laughed at me, made fun of my wish to improve myself, George would not have been made angry; and perhaps would not have engaged a teacher for me. That was the way I thought of her. A teacher and I a child being forced to learn whether I liked her or not.

I hated Madge Loring from that minute. It was through her that this insult had been put upon me.

An Heated Argument.

When George came home he was angry because I had been crying.

"Now what's gone wrong?" he said with a scowl.

"Oh, George, how could you do it?" I said choking back the sob in my throat.

"Do what? What are you talking about?"

"That horrid woman! how could you insult me by sending her here? And you never told me she was coming, and she knew I did not know, and oh, it was all so awfully mortifying!"

"I forgot to mention the day she was coming, but I distinctly recall telling you that I had engaged her."

"No, you said you were going to."

"The same thing with me. I do not say things I do not mean."

"But I will try so hard to learn if you will tell her not to come. She's awful."

"That shows how childish you are. Mrs. Sexton has been a social power in her day. That she was left penniless when her husband died accounts for my being able to secure her services for which I have to pay well, I can assure you. She is absolutely an authority upon society, social manners and customs. I consider we are very fortunate to be able to have such a mentor for you. What did you talk of to-day?"

"We didn't talk," I replied, beginning to be frightened that I had offended again by sending her away.

"Why, may I ask?"

"Oh, I was so hurt and mortified that I just couldn't! I should have cried every minute. She's coming day after to-morrow at ten o'clock," I hastened to add.

"Well, see that you do not send her away again. If you do, she may refuse to come to you."

"Very well," I said meekly, longing to rebel, to declare I would not receive her, to say that I wouldn't allow her to teach me anything.

To-morrow—Evelyn Reeve Comforts.

Looking at It Legally

By C. B. Lewis

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Should you imagine that Miss Florence Gale, eighteen years old, was the first girl that ever fell in love with a dancing master because he was a dancing master, then you are mistaken. They have been doing it ever since there was a dancing master to fall in love with.

Miss Florence was the daughter of a merchant, and ranked well up in the social circles of her town. There had been a private dancing class made up of half a dozen girls and young men, and Professor Paul Revillion had been engaged as director at a high honorarium.

Mind you, he had not been hired, but "engaged." He was not a teacher, but a "director." He wasn't on a salary, like a bookkeeper, but on a honorarium, if you please. His name was not Jim Scott, nor Joe Saunders, but Paul Revillion.

And the professor was nice — very nice. He was nice all over, like a rare, ripe peach. It was noticed even before the first dance was held that he had white teeth and long eyelashes.

The six young men who were to pay their good money for learning the art of dancing looked the professor over, and each and every one determined to kill him as soon as the term of lessons was finished.

The six young women cast sheep's-eyes at him and mentally vowed to fall in love almost at once. It is to the credit of the sex that they kept their word. Yes, within a fortnight it was apparent to themselves and others that they were learning to love as well as to dance. The young men read the signs aright and gritted their teeth. They could and did "spat" with the foolish damsels, but they couldn't kill the professor until they had had the worth of their money.

So far as having a very serious flirtation every girl won out. Each one had reasons to believe that she was the chosen one. Each one under the impulse of romance and girlhood silliness, wrote little pink or violet notes, and they were replied to with an outpouring of the heart. The little notes and replies were pretty much alike, but it happened that Miss Gale was more industrious than the others. She wrote two notes to their one.

It therefore logically followed that when the end of the term drew near and Professor Revillion was ready for business, he possessed a package of pink notes signed "Florence" that numbered way up above the half-century mark. It did his heart good as he counted them. It did his heart good as he counted the number written to him by the other maidens.

One day Miss Florence Gale received a note from the professor that set her heart to thumping as it hadn't thumped yet. Some fiend in human form had broken open his trunk at his boarding-house, and among other things stolen was the package of her love notes. The thief had had the audacity to write that he had them, and that he would return them for $200, and not a cent less. If the professor refused to pay the money the letters were to be offered to Mr. Gale at the same price. Mr. Gale was a stern parent.

It was most unfortunate that the professor didn't happen to have $200 in his vest pocket. He could never forgive himself for his carelessness. What would "Dear Florence" do about it? Would she raise the cash or take the consequences? She would be granted three days' grace, and then she was to meet the dancing master at a certain spot at a certain hour and let him know her decision.

"Believe me, my dear one," he wound up with, "I am thinking of suicide as I pen this. If I was not almost sure that you could get the money of your father I should say farewell to you and send a bullet crashing through my brain."

Miss Florence promptly fainted away, or was going to when her mother asked her who the letter was from. She therefore decided to lie instead of faint. Her first feeling after mastering the contents of the letter was one of pity for the professor. He was thinking of blowing his head off! Her next feeling was of herself. She could no more raise $200 than she could raise $2,000,000. Had she asked her father for 75 cents he would have wanted an explanation a rod long.

Poor Miss Florence cried all one night and got up in the morning to lie again. She said it was the toothache. She had gone back to bed to cry again when — she didn't cry. A sudden thought made her sit up. What sort of a man was Professor Revillion to leave a girl to face such a situation alone? He must have a clew to the thief, as he said he had received a letter, but he had not added that he had set the law at work. He had a diamond ring and a diamond pin worth together far more than the $200, but he had not said anything of selling them to get her letters back.

"He can't be what I thought him," mused the girl; and five minutes later she was saying:

"I don't believe he was robbed at all!"

If she didn't, then what conclusion must she arrive at? No need of spending much time over the question. Love and romance had been scared away, and common sense had taken their place.

"Why, he wants to hold those letters over me to extort money!" was her exclamation.

If there had been no robbery—if the professor had the letters—if he meant extortion, then he had a great advantage and meant to use it. What could be done to stop him?

Beverly Dare was a young man of twenty-five, who had graduated as a lawyer and hung out his shingle in the town. Up to date he had had but few clients and created no stir. He was spoken of as a nice young man who would make his way, but was not much given to society. Miss Florence Gale had never met him to be introduced. But she went to him for help.

"I want legal advice," she quietly explained.

"Please state your case."

She had been a silly girl. She had been more than that, and as the penalty had found herself at the mercy of a blackmailer. She told all there was to tell, and then handed over the professor's letter.

"Do you want advice as to whether you shall pay the $200 or not?" was asked when the letter had been read.

"I couldn't pay it if I wanted to, and I'm sure I don't want to," she replied.

"Looking at it legally, Professor Revillion can be arrested and punished for extortion."

"And I can be held up to ridicule and scandal."

"Well, your letters would have to be read in court."

"Never!"

"Looking at it legally again, Miss Gale, I might try to scare the fellow into giving up your letters. Not too much scare, but just enough."

"I want something worse than a scare."

"I fail to get your idea."

"I want to meet him. I want to be firmly satisfied that he is what I believe him to be. Then I want you to give him a good whaling and take the letters away."

The lawyer turned away to smile, and then turned back to say:

"Miss Gale, looking at it legally, I can't assault and batter a man in the interest of a client."

"Then why not look at it some other way?" she asked.

"As for instance?"

"As Mr. Beverly Dare."

"H'm! I think I could do that. I cannot cite a precedent, but we can make one."

Then came details that were not strictly according to Blackstone, but very interesting nevertheless, and that night Miss Florence didn't suffer for a moment with the toothache. It was two nights later that she went to her tryst with the professor. He had been awaiting her a quarter of an hour. His anxious inquiry as he ran forward and seized both her hands was:

"For the love of Heaven, have you got the money?"

"Have you got the letters?" she asked.

"Yes—yes!"

"Professor, I cannot get the money!"

"What! But you must! Think what it means to you!"

"But you have the letters and can hand them to me right here."

"But my honor is pledged."

"To a robber!"

"See here, you silly kitten, it's $200 for this package or I raise a scandal!"

Miss Florence turned her back on the scoundrel just as something lit on him. It rolled him to the ground and toyed and dallied with him. It punched him and it slugged him. It applied epithets to him, and then applied the boot.

It was months and months later when Mr. Beverly Dare said to Miss Florence Gale:

"Looking at it legally, my dear client, I think we ought to be married on Thanksgiving."

And he also won that case.

To Give and Take.

Very often one's efforts and good intentions are not appreciated, but even so we should not lose faith in those around us. The human heart craves company and a few good friends are golden treasures, especially to the woman alone, or getting along in years, but she must respect their rights and privileges, says the New York Evening Telegram. She should not make herself unobtrusive or over-familiar, for even those nearest and dearest to us soon demonstrate the irritation they feel if we infringe upon their interests or good nature.

Keep at a safe distance the woman who does not see lots of redeeming features in others. Over-familiar persons bore their closest friends, and these tactless people are the very ones who declare that all humankind is heartless.

Red and Black Hair.

In Eastern countries red hair and warts are in the same category; but coming west as far as Constantinople, where red hair is very uncommon, we find it just as greatly admired, and henna used to make it red if it isn't, says a traveler. In England, "Titian red," as it is called, is greatly admired now, and any woman novelist who wants to be among the "biggest sellers" must give her heroine Titian red hair.

Yet in Africa a crop of the blackest, curliest, closest hair imaginable makes a girl the belle of the kraal, especially if she be plump, with piggy eyes, thick lips, a nose like an India-rubber shoe and a skin that shines like a cooking stove.

NOVELTY VEILINGS.

Dots and dashes. It sounds like a telegraph code, but is in reality a description of one of the season's novelty veilings.

Chenile dots — huge ones, sometimes—are used as borders on plain veils, or are scattered all over their surface.

One sees black veils embroidered in white and there are white veils embroidered in black. Combinations are rather good this year. A pale tan veil is embroidered in navy blue, one of light grey uses purple for the contrasting tone.

The vogue for metal thread embroidery in gold and dark blue embroidered in silver are among the most effective ones seen.

The fine hair line scroll designs are much used. These are in all sorts of patterns. One of them has a series of flying larks placed at intervals along its surface. Acorns and oak leaves help to make another charming.

Veilings of chantilly lace are a bit hard to get, one is told, but they are eminently desirable, where one wishes not so much a face covering as a hat drapery.

And, of course, the plain veil. That is never anything but good. Good taste, good looks, good—sense! One runs no risk of having a ludicrous dot decorating the end of one's nose when one thought it well to the side. Or of having all sorts of harmful interruptions between the line of vision and the eyes.

In fact, the eyes are especially grateful for the plain veil. And it's not an unwise thing to insure their gratitude.

HEALTH THAT MAKES WEALTH

Nervous Energy Which Enables One to Think New Thoughts and Initiate New Plans Important.

Probably the majority of men do not know what real health means. It means more than the capacity to sit up and eat, to walk, to board a car and to bend over a desk. Real health means more than the real ability to do the same thing day after day. Real health means a degree of stirring, nervous energy that enables one to think new thoughts, conceive new plans and initiate new enterprises. Superabundant nervous energy is back of exceptional mental activity. It is the basis of all those qualities which are most essential in the struggle for success.

It is not sufficient to have health that will enable you to do a commonplace day's work, Hugo Masters writes in Physical Culture. The right kind of health should give you the energy with which to perform far more than a day's work, if necessary, even from a quantitative standpoint. It is commonly the man with an unlimited capacity for work who gets on. He is able to work long hours without tiring. Successful men invariably enjoy the possession of this degree of nervous endurance or working endurance.

But it is not this that is most important. The possession of energy is essential, not so much for the sake of the capacity for long hours of work, but on account of the quality of work which it enables one to perform. Quality of effort is more important than quantity of work and the greatest value of unlimited energy lies in giving one the capacity for concentration, the capacity for an intensity of effort that is beyond the average man.

Refugees Exile From Police.

The "gratitude" of some people who found shelter in an East London police station took the form of stealing a new broom and some enameled mugs. At another police station they stole a clock, two pairs of boots and some provisions, and damaged some uniforms. At one of the town halls where the public has been allowed to overflow into the police court precincts the Old Testament was purloined, and in a public library several volumes were stolen.—London Globe.

Such a Contrast.

Travelers who enjoy reading on a railway journey will appreciate this story.

A passenger wanted to read, but a man opposite would persist in trying to talk. After several brief replies the reader became irritated.

"The grass is very green, isn't it?" said the pleasant young man.

"Yes," was the answer; "such a change from the blue and red grass we've been having lately!"

Espionage Law.

The correct and official title of the so-called espionage act is "an act to punish acts of interference with the foreign relations, the neutrality and the foreign commerce of the United States, to punish espionage, and better to enforce criminal laws of the United States, and for other purposes." It says: "Every letter, writing, circular, postal card, picture, print, engraving, photograph, newspaper, pamphlet, book or other publication, matter or thing, of any kind, containing any matter advocating or urging insurrection or forcible resistance to any law of the United States, is hereby declared to be nonmailable," and any person attempting to use the mails for the transmission of any of the prohibited matter shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

Dizzy Spells, Indigestion

Napanee Man Could Scarcely Walk at Times, He Was So Dizzy—Indigestion and Kidney Trouble Overcome By This Treatment.

NAPANEE, Ont., March 19. — The experience of Mr. Nolan of this town will interest all who suffer from indigestion and accompanying derangemens of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Indigestion is such a common trouble that many suffer for years without knowing how readily they could obtain relief by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to arouse the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and thereby remove the cause of much discomfort and suffering.

Mr. John P. Nolan, Dundas street west, Napanee, Ont., writes: "For some time I was troubled with weak kidneys, and used to have a scalding, burning sensation in my stomach. This was accompanied by dizziness, and occasionally it would be so severe that I would stagger while walking. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and in a very short time my kidneys were in normal condition. Then I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the dizzy spells and I am glad to say that under this treatment they gradually disappeared. At present I am enjoying good health, and am pleased to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Nerve Food.'

This statement is endorsed by S. Casey Denison, Mayor of Napanee.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

ALGERIA'S WINE CROP YIELD

Product, Distinctly Inferior to That of Previous Season, Will Total Only About 158,502,300 Gallons.

The wine crop of Algeria is distinctly inferior to that of a year ago. The official statistics of the vintage will not be issued for several weeks; but, according to the general estimate, the yield approximates 6,000,000 hecoliters (158,502,300 gallons), compared with 8,781,266 hecoliters (231,975,100 gallons) in 1916.

The season's unusual dryness, which lasted from spring until the full maturity of the grape, states Commercial Reports, has resulted in a wine appreciably stronger. Phylloxera and other plant diseases did considerable damage to the vines, and the late siroccos further tended to reduce the output. The lack of labor was also a handicap, especially in the department of Oran, which was unable to draw upon Morocco to any extent.

Prices range much higher and the return to the wine producers promises to be good. Transportation facilities to France—which country takes a large percentage of the crop—are far from normal, and there is likely to be a marked shortage in barrels and bottles.

Benzol to the Rescue.

Experiments recently conducted by a large oil company, notes a writer in Power, proved that "not only is benzol more valuable than gasoline as a motor fuel when used straight, but its effective value is increased by being mixed with gasoline. These experiments indicate that a mixture of equal parts of gasoline and benzol gives a value over 16 per cent greater than that of straight gasoline, which shows 42 per cent increased value for the benzol half. In many quarters alcohol is looked upon as the ultimate fuel, but it cannot be employed except with great difficulties, owing to its high hydrogen content."

French Front Protected By World's Greatest Defensive Organization

Work of Fortifying Front Has Been Pushed to the Utmost --Should the Germans Launch An Attack It Unquestionably Would Be the Greatest Shock Sustained Since August, 1914---First Day Successes Are Conceded

NEWS FROM WAR CORRESPONDENTS

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Henry Wood).

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, March 19.—Germany has massed armies on her front in France in such positions and in such strength that she would be able to launch a surprise offensive against the Allied armies within twenty-four hours if desired.

Detailed information now in the possession of the French shows this fact. With indications, however, that the German staff has not yet decided to launch an attack, the failure of which would irretrievably compromise the recent successes in the East, as well as those of the entire war. Instead, indications are that Germany is likely to undertake to complete the conquest of the Balkans through a Macedonian offensive and a peace offensive.

The French front is protected by the greatest defensive organization in the history of the world. In the four months since the first announcement of the German intention to attack the work of fortifying has been pushed to the utmost all details that modern science and experience dictate have been added. I have made personal visits to portions of the front, where successive defence lines extend to the rear, each fully organized and equipped, awaiting only the presence of troops to render them practically immune to capture. Should the Germans launch an attack it unquestionably would be the greatest shock sustained since August, 1914. The French then were in a state of disorganization. To-day they are prepared to the highest point. Modern methods of artillery concentration are such that if any belligerent attempts an offensive on a grand scale he is almost certain of first day successes. The French admit a supreme effort from the enemy would result in first advances, but unless these should be extended and maintained the result would be negative.

(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, March 19.—German forces have occupied Bachmatsch, Konotop and Voroshba. Saxon troops are reported continuing towards Kursk and Charkoff. The local Soviet is evacuating Charkoff. The German movement is regarded as a "covering" campaign for the Ukraine. The Russian retirement from Odessa was orderly. The Black Sea Fleet refrained from bombarding the city after the German occupation, because it was loathe to destroy it. The fleet is awaiting the arrival of the Social Revolutionary officials who refused to ratify the peace treaty, and who are now en route southward from Moscow. Bachmatsch is one hundred miles north-east of Kieff. Konotop is twenty-five miles east of Bachmatsch. Kursk, the capital of the province of that name, is one hundred miles east of Konotop, and only two hundred and fifty miles south-west of Moscow. Charkoff is one hundred miles from Kursk and three hundred and fifty miles north-east of Odessa.

Secretary of War Baker Is Satisfied With Standing Of American Army

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By W. S. Forrest).

WITH SECRETARY BAKER IN FRANCE, March 19. — "My visit to France has brought me a great uplift in spirit," Secretary Baker declared to-day, in addressing the staff officers in the staff college here. "As a boy who dissects a watch in order to see the works, I have been taking this army apart. General Pershing has shown vision, high organizing ability, and broad opinion in making the most of your talent and industry," Baker said. "The results of which are so reassuring, that reward and promotion await those proving their fitness to lead in the coming stern test."

Prominent Persons Arrested On Charge Of Espionage

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, March 19.— More arrests are expected to follow the seizure here of Mme. Despina Davidovitch Storch and two men and a woman suspected of espionage. Federal officials were continuing investigations to-day into the acquaintance of the quartette. It developed to-day that Mme. Storch and the young Count De Beville were taken into custody when they attempted to reach Cuba by way of Key West by using a French passport.

Mme. Storch protested against her arrest, declaring she has not been divorced from her husband, who is a French officer. Code messages and other papers have been seized from a vault rented by Mme. Storch.

HOLLAND IS AWAITING REPLY

Canadian Press Despatch:

THE HAGUE, March 19.— Holland has accepted with certain conditions the Anglo-American demand regarding Dutch shipping. This was announced in the second chamber to-day by Dr. Loudon, Foreign Minister, who added that Holland could not go further and was awaiting the Anglo-American reply to its latest communication.

Official War News

A Number of Raids Recorded During the Night—Artillery Activity on All Fronts

PRISONERS CAPTURED

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 19.—(Official.) — English troops carried out successful raids last night in the neighbourhood of Villiers, Guislain, Lavacquerie and Boisgrenier, and captured a number of prisoners. Enemy's trenches east of Neuve Chapelle were raided by Portuguese troops, who brought back prisoners and two machine guns. During the night the enemy attempted three raids in the neighbourhood of Fleurbaix and Bois Grenier, but was repulsed with loss in each case. There was considerable hostile artillery activity in forward and back areas in the Ypres sector.

AERIAL FIGHTING.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 19.—(Official.) — Eighteen German machines were destroyed, eight were driven down out of control, and an observation balloon was destroyed by British aviators in air fighting on Sunday.

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, March 19. — (Official.) — Heavy artillery fighting is in progress on the Verdun front, says an official communication. On the Belgian front there were severe struggles before the Germans were expelled from positions in which they had gained a footing.

ON THE ITALIAN FRONT.

Canadian Press Despatch:

ROME, March 19.—(Official.)—Frequent artillery exchanges have occurred from the Piave sector to the sea. There has been lively artillery fire in the Monello region. In the Ornic Valley we made a few prisoners. Seven enemy airplanes were brought down yesterday, two by the Italians, two by the French and three by the British.

ADJ. TRICKEY ADDRESSED A LARGE MEETING LAST EVENING

Advice to the Single and Married.

The largest crowd that has yet attended the special revival services being held at Chamberlain avenue, Brownton, was present last night to hear "Matrimonial Muddles, or Wedlock and Padlock."

Mrs. A. Nichols gave a splendid reading, "Jim and Me," also one entitled "Prayer and Potatoes."

The crowd soon picked up the new campaign songs and for nearly an hour those present were kept in a state of side-splitting laughter as the stories were told of twenty years travels and meeting with incidents that make a remarkable diary. Parents were shown the wrong and the right way to train their little Tommys and Marys, and the young people given some fatherly advice that they will not soon forget.

The adjutant's practical talks will continue to draw crowds all week. This afternoon at 4 p.m. the young people have another service, and to-night, "My Life's Story," or "Mischief Making Micky," is the subject.

On Wednesday, "How I got after Booze in the City's Slums." Those who want to enjoy a humorous, yet most practical talk, should take a car out to Brownton and visit the S. A. Temple on Chamberlain Street, any evening this week, at eight o'clock.

To-night the songs to be sung, are "We are the Army," and "Hornets." The public are invited.

Mrs. D. J. Perry Knits 325 Pairs Socks

To knit 325 pairs of socks by hand since the war is the splendid record made by Mrs. D. J. Perry, 362 Simcoe Street. Not only has Mrs. Perry made this record for patriotic purposes, but has in the meanwhile knit several Balaclava caps, scarfs and sweaters, sewed for the Patriotic Society, and done considerable charitable work. Major D. J. Perry is at present overseas, as officer commanding, with a Forestry Battalion.

VETERANS WILL GIVE BANQUET TO ORIGINAL FIRSTS

G. W. V. A. Decide to Extend a Welcome to the Men Who Left Peterboro' in August 1914 to Battle For the Empire

CHANGES IN CONSTITUTION

The Great War Veterans' Association, at their meeting in the Armouries last night, decided to extend a royal welcome to the Peterborough men among the original First Contingent party who have returned home on furlough. Although there was no information available as to how many local soldiers would be returning, the Veterans were unanimous in their decision that they should be honoured for what they have done.

It was decided that the Veterans should entertain the heroes at a banquet at the Empress Hotel. It was the first intention that the banquet should be held on the night that the men arrived, but afterwards it was decided to hold the big event on Tuesday night of next week. It is probable that not only the men returning on this occasion, but also all of the Original Firsts who saw service in France, and who have come back from time to time, will be the guests of the Veterans upon this occasion.

A committee, composed of Comrades McNabb, Hill, Muir, Stanley, and Tamblyn, was appointed to make the arrangements.

Vice-President Perks occupied the chair at last night's meeting. Two new members were added to the roster of the association, which is now nearing the 250 mark.

A report from the committee appointed to revise the constitution of the Association was read and adopted. Several changes in the rules of the local branch were made in order to conform with the Ontario regulations.

There will be a special meeting of the Association next Monday night to complete arrangements for the banquet.

Capt. Layfield And Lieut. J. R. Stratton Home

Peterboro' Officers Back From Overseas This Morning

Two Peterborough officers arrived home early this morning in the persons of Capt. R. E. Layfield, former Quartermaster of the 80th Battalion, and Lieut. J. Reg. Stratton, M.C., son of Mr. A. H. Stratton.

The latter, who is a graduate of the Royal Military College, went overseas in the summer of 1915. After long and creditable service in France, during which he won the Military Cross for bravery, he went to Italy, where he has been on duty for some time with the Royal Engineers. He is at present home on furlough.

Opinions Ignored

German Chancellor Admits There Is Not Least Inclination Among Entente Powers to Finish the War

THE PEACE TREATY

Canadian Press Despatch:

COPENHAGEN, March 19.—Chancellor Von Hertling, on the first reading in the Reichstag of the peace treaty with Russia to-day, declared that he did not wish to discuss the opinions of Germany's enemies regarding the treaty.

"Hypocrisy," the Chancellor added, "has become second nature to the enemy, whose untruthfulness is made worse by its brutality."

The Imperial Chancellor declared that Courland and Lithunia were united to Germany politically, economically and militarily. If the Reichstag adopts the peace treaty, peace on the whole eastern front will be restored as announced February 24, but among the Entente Powers there is not the least inclination to finish this terrible war.

Shamrock Tag Day A Great Success

$1060.29 Secured For the Children of St. Vincent's Orphanage

The Shamrock Tag Day in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage on Saturday was a most gratifying success, establishing a new record for Shamrock Day, and exceeding last year's figures by over one hundred dollars. On Saturday the splendid sum of $1,048.29 was collected, and this was augmented by $12 afterwards received by Rev. Father Phelan, making a total altogether of $1,060.29.

P. BLACK'S ANNUAL SPRING SALE

On Wednesday of this week Mr. P. Black, corner of George and King Streets, will begin an extensive spring sale of women's, men's and children's clothing, and general dry goods. Mr. Black announces by handbills that he has been successful in buying a large stock of these goods at such low figures that he can promise lower prices than other stores. His handbills contain a long list of various lines of goods wanted by most people in the spring, and the prices should bring many buyers. Ask for a bill, see the extra specials, and attend the sale this week.

FRANK JENNE Says:

When you are buying a suit the first question you ask is, "Will it hold its shape or not?" And rightly so — for we all have seen the unsightly, unsatisfactory shapeless garment — then, too, as the poet says, "No man can be truly happy whose trousers bag at the knees."

Semi-ready suits are tailored to hold their shape—and they do hold their shape.

"Come to me."

LOW PRICES—GOOD VALUES.

Because a piano is low in price is no criterion of its quality or value. It is not the price, but the worth, which should be first determined. See J. W. Stuart, piano and sewing machine dealer, 372 Water street, for good values.

Social Revolutionists Are Opposed to the Ratification of the Brest Litovsk Peace Terms — Urge Mobilization.

ROMANOFFS "BROKE"

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, March 19. —Russian officials, including former Bolsheviki and Social Revolutionary commissionaries, who opposed the ratification of the Brest-Litovsk peace terms, are organizing against the Germans in the south.

The officials include M. Steinberg, M. Algasoff, M. Schreider, M. Kalegayeff, M. Karlin, social revolutionaries of the left, who resigned from the ministery after the ratification vote at Moscow, together with M. Dibenko and other ministers.

Fifty dissenting Bolsheviki have adopted a minority report to the Pan Soviet peace ratification. It reads:

"International capitalism is advancing with the Germans from the west, with the Japanese from the east, and with the Anglo-French on the other side.

With united interest the Pan Soviet Congress should order the mobilization of Russia, declares a warning to workmen.

Russian officials to-day denied they had agreed to Germanic operation in control of the country. They said the "co-operation" applies only to Petrograd, where a small commission of Germans is expected to be gradually expanded.

A dozen Romanoffs, "of which family the former Czar is a member," have been exiled to the remote interior following a hearing of the charges, of which they were suspected "anti-revolutionists." All were disinterested regarding their fate and "broke," including the Grand Duke Nicholas and Michaelis, the historian.

Foreign Minister Chiperin officially notified the Central Executive of the ratification of the peace treaty. He said the war had cost Russia 61,000,000,000 rubles ($26,265,000,000.)

Reception Was Ready But Men Did Not Arrive

No Peterborough Soldiers on the Special Train Which Went Through at Noon To-day

Peterborough had a reception all ready this morning for the local members of the "Original Firsts" party returning on furlough, but the preparations all went for naught in the end, when it was discovered that there were no Peterborough soldiers on the special C.P.R. train coming from the East. Mayor Duncan and the city officials were at work early this morning when it was learned that the special would be here about noon, and hurry calls were sent out, with the result that by 11 o'clock the Salvation Army and 57th Bands, the children from the city schools, the Great War Veterans, City Council and many citizens had assembled at the C.P.R. Station, ready to do honour to the returning brave. A wire to Havelock, however, conveyed the news that there were no Peterborough men on the train, and the majority of the gathering dispersed, a few waiting until the arrival of the trainload of soldiers, who were greeted with cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs.

It was found that there were no furlough men on board, the troops consisting of men invalided home from wounds or sickness, and bound for Toronto and London. Nearly all wore the casualty braid on their arms and there were a number of decorated men in the party, several D.C.M.'s and a number of Military Medals being noticed. They were in great spirits at getting home, all the more so because some of them stated that they had been on the way for over three weeks, waiting many days for a convoy.

No Truth In The Report

FRENCH CANADIAN MEMBERS HAVE NOT ENTERED INTO COMPACT TO SPEAK NOTHING BUT FRENCH.

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, March 19.—The report to the effect that French-Canadian members of the Opposite side have entered into a compact to address the House only in French, appears to be very ill-founded. French Canadian members interviewed on the subject laughed sardonically, shrugged their shoulders, and for the most part asked the simple question, "Do you think we are fools?"

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that we have made a compact to speak nothing but French," said Hon. Jacques Bureau. "We have come here to be heard and understood by the Unionists, and we will be heard and understood."

Americans Raided German Trenches

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 19.— Franco-American forces again raided German trenches in the Badonvillers region to-day, penetrating three hundred yards into the enemy's lines at two points. They found the positions evacuated and were forced to return without prisoners.

Returned Soldiers Complain Bitterly of Treatment While on Transport

MONTREAL, Quebec, March 19.—Men who crossed the Atlantic in the seven transports which have just arrived complain bitterly of the treatment they got on the boats. "They kept the rank and file of the men down in the steerage and on the lower deck, while the officers had the state-rooms and the better accommodations," said one sergeant. "But that is not the worst of it. On our boat they had one hundred and eighty-five third cabin berths empty, absolutely empty, while wounded men and furlough men of the First Contingent were confined below. They might at least have given these vacant berths to the cripples in the party." This sergeant, for obvious reasons, withholds his name from public, but he said that after the men get their papers and are free of consequences, if they speak out, there will be some very plain speaking.

THE LATE J. H. GARBUTT.

In the death of Mr. John H. Garbutt, Peterborough county loses a very valuable citizen. Mr. Garbutt has been a most enterprising and public-spirited resident. His work in connection with the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition has had much to do with the splendid success that annual event has scored in recent years, and his passing leaves a gap that will be hard to fill.

MORE CAMOUFLAGE.

Germany's latest peace movement is a little better camouflaged than its predecessors, but it is clumsy and stupid nevertheless, and it is not liable to deceive the governments or the people of any of the allied countries. While loudly advertising a treacherous offensive in the west, Germany has been sending out feelers that are expected soon to assume tangible form. In effect she will say to the allies: "We'll make reparation for Belgium and France. We'll compromise on the Alsace-Lorraine problem. We'll even assume liability for the loans made by France to Russia, and repudiated by the Bolsheviki government. All we ask in exchange is a free hand in the east. Why should you fight for Russia? She failed you in the hour of need. Let us do what we like in the east and we'll sign peace immediately."

That is the proposal that may be expected from Germany. It is characteristic of the other offers from the same source and will not be entertained for a moment. It does not require a very deep thinker to see that peace on such terms would be a German victory and that Germany, left unpunished and unweakened, with vast territories in the east added to her domains, would be a perpetual menace to the democracy of the world, ready to renew the struggle whenever she felt the moment was ripe to strike.

There have been too many lives lost, too many homes desolated, too many men crippled for life, too stupendous a loss of flesh and blood to accept a proposal that only means a few years of respite before the terrible conflict would have to be resumed.

CANADIAN TEAM WORK.

The development of Canada's fighting forces at the front from a mass of willing, sturdy, but untrained men into a perfectly co-ordinated, splendidly disciplined whole, has never better illustrated than by the story of the raid made by Canadian troops at Mericourt on Sunday, as told by W. A. Willison, Canadian press correspondent in the field. Mr. Willison's cable describes the raid as one of the most successful in Canadian history, and reading his description one is struck by the clock work precision with which the enterprise was carried out. Heavies, field artillery, trench mortars, stokes guns and machine guns, all co-ordinated perfectly with the infantry. An effective smoke barrage covered the attack while the guns in the centre were taking care of the enemy guns. So magnificently did the different units work together that the gallant infantry who went over the top, encountered little opposition. The net results of twenty-five minutes were nineteen persons taken, twenty Germans killed by rifle or bayonet, others blown up in their dug outs and many more wounded.

THE ORIGINAL FIRSTS.

The arrival in Canada of many of the men of the 1st Canadian Division is a notable event in the war history of the Dominion. These are representatives of the men who over three and a half years ago were the first to respond to the Empire's call—of the men who endured the rain and mud of Salisbury Plains, of the forces who barred the way to Calais when the Germans first launched their terrible gas attack on April 22, 1915. They should get a memorable welcome home to the land they so gloriously represented. It is not known yet how many Peterborough men are in the party, but there are undoubtedly some and it is welcome news that the authorities will see that they are given a reception worthy of the spirit they showed in being first to respond and worthy of the record they have made overseas. In honouring them, Peterborough will also be honouring their comrades who fell fighting for Canada.

GREATER PRODUCTION

The letter published elsewhere in to-day's issue from "A Farmer" hits squarely at the weak point in the greater production campaign. The place to produce the essentials that our Allies require is on the farm. Back yard gardens will play an important part in providing substitutes for some of the things that should be sent overseas and the young boys, the soldiers of the soil who are volunteering this week will do considerable to help the farmers, but, as our correspondent points out, we had the same situation last year, and in the twelve months have made no progress towards settling the problem of how can farms can be made to produce more. The Government at Ottawa has utterly failed to meet the requirements of the serious situation. The speech from the throne, at the opening of Parliament, yesterday, contained no indication of a Government programme to assist the farmers. And yet food experts keep re-iterating that this country must produce more or the Allies will not win the war.

RELIGION AT THE FRONT.

According to the address of Rev. L. M. Watt, chaplain of the Gordon Highlanders in New York, the other day, creeds and dogmas play little part in the lives of the soldiers at the front. Their religion may be summed up in the desire to do their duty to their God, their king, their country and their neighbour, and there is no bigotry in martial religion, according to the padre of the Highlanders, who says:

"I slept with a Jesuit priest. We ate together, talked together and worked together. His Jesuitry did not taint my Presbyterianism, nor by Presbyterianism poison his Jesuitry. We buried Baptists, Methodists, Catholics, Presbyterians all side by side and let God sort them out. And right here let me say that you people who are always quarreling and fussing over religion will find that you must change that kind of religion when those boys come home."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Pte J. O. Kerr, Canada's V. C., who has just returned from the front, says that he has received a "bar" to the famous cross—referring to the English bride whom he recently married. Some men might find it easier to win the cross than to capture the "Bar."

Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia has been arrested again. The former commander-in-chief of the Russian armies must be used to it by this time.

S.O.S. means many things. "Save our Ships," "Send over Socks," "Send over Smokes," are some of the meanings. This week, however, the initials stand for "Soldiers of the Soil," and the call is to the boys of Peterboro.

John D. Rockefeller will pay an income tax of $38,400,000. But he is as bald as a badger. What is the use of all his money and oil?—Kingston Standard.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, who appears to have become the most powerful figure in the British Labour party, protests against any peace which would desert Russia. Germany's treatment of Russia has intensified the war feeling among the workers of all the Allied countries.—The Globe.

Mr. Lloyd George says that, if the need arises, beer will be banished to provide bread. The assurance that no such condition of extremity has arisen is welcome.—Mail and Empire.

It is one of the minor tragedies of the war that she who wrote that stirring war-song, "Keep the Home Fires Burning," should have given her own life during the last air-raid in England. The Hun who dropped the bomb that killed Mrs. Lena Guilbert Ford should be decorated with two rion crosses. There is a big price on the head of Ruemakers, the Belgian cartoonist; surely the head of the women whose word, "Turn the dark clouds inside out, till the boys come home," have been sung with heart and soul wherever the English tongue is sooken, is worth nearly as much. Mrs. Ford was an American making her home with her son in London. There was not the sheer, artistic beauty about her verses that characterized, for instance, Colonel McRae's "In Flanders fields the poppies blow," but there was a direct, straightforward appeal that impelled recognition even from the least emotional. The home-fires of Britain and her allies will be kept burning and Mrs. Ford's cruel death, crushed under the bombed walls of her own home, will add fresh fuel to the blaze.—Montreal Herald.

JUST A SMILE OR TWO

A dashing lieutenant-colonel, ex-member of the general staff, was approached by a recently drafted man.

"What might your name be? Do you belong to this bunch?"

"I'm the colonel in charge."

"Wal, I see the balance of 'em busy around here, and I don't see you doin' anything. How does a fellow go about gittin' your job?"

The most novel case that has come before the Gallatin County (Montana) Exemption Board is that of a married man of draft age who couldn't read, and who asked his wife to write a note to the board, stating that his family was dependent upon him. Here is the note that the wife wrote and the husband presented to the board:

"Dear United States Army: My husband ast me to write you a recommend that he supports his fambly. He cannot read, so don't tell him. Jus' take him. He ain't done nothin' but drink lemmen essence and play a fiddle since I married him eight years ago, and I gotta feed seven kids of him. Maybe you can get him to carry a gun. He's good on squirrels and catin'. Take him and welcum. I need the grub and his bed for the kids. Don't tell him this but take him."

When Father Says:

"My Son—What are you going to do in the Great War?"

What will your answer be?

Remember, there are millions of women and children in Britain, France and Italy, not to mention the fighting men, who face starvation unless more food is produced in Canada this year.

The boys of Canada have a great responsibility to shoulder. They must form an army of food producers 25,000 strong, to help meet this war emergency.

Ontario's contribution is 15,000. All boys, from 15 to 19 years of age, can serve. Enrolment week is March 17th to 23rd. The Empire is waiting for your answer.

EYES, BRAINS, HANDS

Use your eyes and brains, as well as your hands, to make money, but no use making money unless you save it. Peterborough is certain to grow rapidly after the war, and every lot I own must become city property very soon, and will then be worth more than double my price, yes, from 3 to 5 times my prices. I know it. But my day is past and I want to sell now. Here is the work where your eyes and brains, if wisely used, cannot fail to prove the wisdom of buying my lots for a home, or a safe and very profitable bank for your savings, large or small. House renters, see me now and own your home, with a good garden. If you can pay rent you can buy from me.

No Return To Canada Until They "Tie A Can To Kaiser"

NEW YORK.—Major "Foghorn" MacDonald, of the Eighth Battalion, Canadian infantry, known to the Huns as the "Fighting Devil," was making the welkin ring in various parts of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where he is staying, and in other places in this big city.

Whenever Major "Foghorn" greets a friend the welkin rings with a deep, sonorous welk, because the Major lives up to his name, and especially when he meets an old friend. He met eight old friends in the lobby of the Waldorf-Astoria while a Herald reporter was trying to interview him, and the welkin worked overtime.

"My boy," rumbled the Major to the reported, "I mustn't be interviewed. It's against my orders. I'd catch ballyhoo if I gave you an interview. I've been warned against it."

"Can't you even say how you got the name of 'Foghorn?'"

"Oh, I've been known as 'Foghorn' all my life. You see I have a rather deep voice."

He has. He also has a rather deep chest and rather broad shoulders, and rather piercing eyes, and is rather tall—about six feet two inches. The Major is on a ten-day leave of absence, and is putting in the time in the United States. He will be here until Monday. Then he is going "somewhere." He has been there before.

Major "Foghorn" MacDonald is a mining engineer. He has mined from Parral, Mexico, to the Yukon, and in between. And he is known to thousands in Paris, London, New York, Ottawa and Montreal. He was fifty-three years old in 1914 when he enlisted as a private in the Canadian army in Winnipeg. In less than two years he had been promoted to be a Major.

When he was a sergeant, in 1915, "Foghorn," who had just returned from the trenches, where he won his chevrons, was walking along the Strand, London, when Major W.——, of New York, Chicago and the Canadian army, espied him. Major W.—— shocked the British captain with whom he was walking by shouting in true North-Western style, "Oh, you, Foghorn!"

MacDonal upset two London "bobbies" in his rush to meet his friend, and then came the joint suggestion, "Drink! Savoy!"

The British captain demurred on the ground that it would be in fra dig for an officer to clink glasses with a "Tommy." The Canadian major said "Foghorn isn't a 'Tommy,' you bally ass. He's a gentleman volunteer from Canada. He's one of the boys who put the 'sass' into Saskatchewan, is a member of the 'Co.' that made Cobalt and he's here to keep old England on the map of Europe."

Then linking arms with MacDonald they made for the Savoy oasis, where they were welcomed with a volly of Canadian cheers.

When "Foghorn" returned to the "trenches" this story reached "G. H. Q." and the sergeant was hastily summoned to a Scotch "tea," with a British general and his staff. Every man became a staunch friend of the modest but mighty voiced Canadian, and, so the story runs, "Foghorn" celebrated the meeting by returning to the trenches, going "over the top" and returning with two Hun prisoners.

The result of "Foghorn's" adventure was a commission as lieutenant, and he has won his way to a majority by living up to the traditions of the glorious army that will not return to Canada until, as "Foghorn" puts it, they have "tied a can to the Kaiser."

No Humbug! Lift Off Corns

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift a corn or callus off with fingers

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug freezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn and instantly, yes, immediately, all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, just seem to shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on your dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

Trinity Methodist Church Board Adopt Resolutions

Copies Were Forwarded to Premier Borden and Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

The Quaretrly Official Board of Trinity Methodist Church has forwarded to Premier R. L. Borden and Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., the following resolutions passed by the Board and unanimously endorsed by the congregation.

1. Moved and seconded that the action of the Union Government be heartily endorsed by this Board for the stand which it has taken in regard to the liquor trade, in bringing down legislation which will make a "bone-dry" Dominion.

2. Moved and seconded that the Union Government be urged to commandeer all supplies of alcoholic liquors now held in bond throughout the Dominion of Canada, and use this stock of liquors in the manufacture of munitions; thus saving from the distilleries, large quantities of grain, which might be turned to better advantage in supplying food to those who are in need of it.

The gymnasium of the Y.M.C.A., was the scene of a merry St. Patrick's party on Saturday evening last—over one hundred members participating in the follity. All with the exception of several ladies who dropped in to see the fun, were dressed in children's costumes, and without doubt everyone enjoyed being a child again, if only for a night. The programme of games included such as "Here we come Gathering Nuts in May," "The Farmer's in his Den," "London Bridge is Falling Down."

There were several comical races and some of the "children" recited pieces and sang songs. St. Patrick's Day party is an annual affair at the Y.M.C.A. and is the closing party of the season. Everyone voted this occasion one of the prettiest and jolliest parties ever held in the gymnasium, where so many pleasant evenings have been spent.

ECZEMA ON BABY'S EAR

Mrs. F. Clarke, Belmont, Man., writes: "My baby had eczema on her ear. The sore was very bad and nothing seemed to do her very much good. Hearing of the remarkable cure Dr. Chase's Ointment was making, we sent for some, and after the third application the sore began to heal. I am glad to say that it is quite well now and we give the credit to Dr. Chase's Ointment. We cannot recommend it is preparation too highly."

Business Firm's Forcible Reminder That The Kaiser Is The Enemy of Every American

A large wholesale grocery concern in Des Moines, Iowa, sends out the following in circular form with every letter, package and shipment it makes. It is a gem for brevity and forcefulness." The concern referred to is no mean affair but does a business of between three and four million dollars in volume yearly. There is no doubt where it stands in the war, and is an example of American wholeheartedness in the great battle for Democracy:

Remember this man day and night. Never forget the wrongs he has heaped upon you; the suffering he is causing; the griefs and desolations, discomforts and losses he is occasioning you.

Fight him with ideas and dollars and service.

Fight him with Liberty Bonds, zeal and resolution.

He has stuck your son in a Flanders trench; he wrecked your business; he made you pay double for clothes and bread and meat; he halved your baby's bottle of milk; he requisitioned your income for taxes and super-taxes; he emptied your sugar bowl; he cut off heat; he depressed the value of your securities and real estate; his name is Wilhelm of Prussia, Kaiser of the Germans, Ghoul of Belgium, Assassin of Syria and Armenia, pirate, vandal, spy, marplot, bully, slaver, well-poisoner, wrecker of churches, looter of holy shrines, treaty-breaker and arch-blighter of civilization.

Lady Limerick Distributes Gifts Of Irish-American Girls To Soldiers

Queen Alexandra Assisted at the Buffet at London Bridge Station in Bestowing War Comforts to British Soldiers and Seamen

LONDON, March 18.—Only the soldiers and seamen themselves whose wants were ministered to by Queen Alexandra and her daughter Princess Victoria, at Lady Limerick's buffet in London Bridge Station could describe the joy they experienced in being served by the "Queen mother" and the gentle Princess during the two hours they worked alongside Lady Limerick's staff behind the buffet bar, and distributing the gifts sent to the British soldiers and seamen by the Irish-American girls of New York.

Queen Alexandra was deeply interested in Lady Limerick's story of how these gifts of jerseys, neck comforters, socks, warm wristlets and other comforts were sent to England, a story which she narrated while sitting in a corner of the buffet in a fragrant atmosphere of freshly made coffee, while the boys from the front and the seamen just arrived from the North Sea or on their way back to rejoin their ships, enjoyed the good things served to them.

"The story," said Lady Limerick, in her soft, inimitable Irish brogue, a brogue impossible to reproduce in cold print, "goes a long way back. When I was a very little girl in my Irish home I used to look over the rolling billows of the great Atlantic, and wonder where the waves came from, and my father told me that they came rolling and rolling over the ocean from the great country of America, where many of my ancestors had gone to live. And I wished that I could go across that great sea and be with them. And my nurses said to me: 'Och! ye'll never get there till ye're blind.'

FINALLY SHE SEES AMERICA.

"And I never thought I would. I never thought to see the country where any of my family would become American citizens. I mean the grandchildren of Mr. Anthony Brady. Perhaps I never should have gone had it not been for this terrible war. I had been working hard and I thought I would like to go to America just for a rest. I went just a year ago, but I never worked harder in my life.

"Mr. Haley Fiske, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, asked me to address a meeting of Irish girls in the hall of the building. I never had addressed an audience in my life, but I agreed.

"I did not sympathize with the South African war, but this was a war of liberty and justice. I told the girls that. I told them what the English soldiers and the Irish soldiers were doing for them. I told them about one morning I went down to Wellington Barracks and as I was standing there one of the Irish Guards came up to me and said they were going off to the front.

"'When we come back,' he said, 'we'll bring back a name that you'll be proud of. We went to Westminster Cathedral this morning, where we received Holy Communion. We are well with our God. A soldier's death is not one to be ashamed of, and we don't mind if we are called.'

"I told that to the Irish girls in New York. I told them what the Irish Guards had done, one of the most glorious stories of the war. I thought they would have gone mad between the cheers and their tears, and they said they wanted to save up their money each week to send comforts to the soldiers in France.

IRISH GIRLS KEPT THEIR WORD

"They kept their word. Three times they have sent over these comforts which they have worked with their own brave hands. Once, unfortunately, they went to the bottom in a ship that was sunk by a German torpedo. This last consignment, which we have got now, consists of more than 5,000 articles of various sorts, all comforts for the boys in the trenches.

Queen Alexandra was deeply moved at seeing all these jerseys, and ecavats and socks, and other things, and said: 'I think it is very touching, and have never seen such beautiful work. I have a very warm affection for these American girls,' her Majesty added.

"Then she took one of the jerseys and singling out a poor young fellow standing at the buffet, handed it to him. Then seeing that he looked very feeble and tired the Queen asked him, 'Won't you come in and sit down? You know you ought not to have come out of the hospital so soon.' And the soldier brightened up and said: 'Your Majesty's words will go back to Canada with me. It was worth it all to have come here, worth any sacrifice to be spoken to like this, and get an American's girl's present from Queen Alexandra."

Distributing more of the gifts from America and speaking such kindly words to the soldiers and seamen, the Queen and the Princess worked hard handing over cups of coffee and buns to their humble, gallant guests.

"The Queen just loved it all," said Lady Limerick. "She will be back again soon."

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

Large Crowd Witnessed The Presentation Of "Danny Machree"

Quaint Irish Play Was Skillfully Presented by a Capable Aggregation of Local Performers'— Grand Opera House Was Filled to Capacity.

GREATER PRODUCTION

The dramatic section of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society last evening scored another success in the presentation of "Danny Machree," a romantic comedy-drama in five acts. The Grand Opera House was crowded to capacity when the curtain was raised, revealing the exterior of Mrs. Brady's home. This act introduces Mrs. James Dillon in the role of "Mrs. Brady" and Master Gregory Wolff as "Danny Machree," also Mr. James O'Brien as "Bat Mooney" and Mr. George Lynch as "Lanty Lanagan," the Rambler. The latter needs no introduction to Peterborough audiences. Last night's performance showed Mr. Lynch at his best, and the success of the entire production was due in a large measure to the skilful direction of this well-known local performer. Master Gregory Wolff proved a very capable artist, and his work won repeated applause. Miss Genevieve O'Heron, Her enunciation was clear "Rose O'Neal, the Rose of Kerry." The clever presentation of this difficult and somewhat dramatic part demonstrated the capabilities of Miss O'Heron. Her enunciation wos clear and the part as a whole was admirably handled. It fell to the lot of Miss Cecile Shevlin to appear in the character of "Kitty Brady." The part was a difficult one in spots, but was well handled. Miss Shevlin's singing was a feature that was well received. Mr. Cecil Wolff, as "Miles O'Connor," a young lawyer, showed exceptional skill for an amateur, also Mr. T. J. Dineen, who appeared as "Dennis Doyle," a fisherman, and Mr. Joseph Ahern as "Sheriff Burke." The villian was ably represented by Mr. William Collins, who responded in the cast of characters to the name of "George Wolfe," in name and nature. His work was very good.

During the play specialties were introduced by Miss Cecile Shevlin, W. Collins and George Lynch. The Grand Opera House orchestra contributed several overtures of Irish melodies during the evening. The musical director was Miss Lilian Hurley, whose work was of exceptional merit.

The executive staff, consisting of Mr. Cecil Wolff, business manager; Mr. George Lynch, stage manager; Mr. Earl Judge, property master, and Mr. James O'Brien, electrician, contributed to the successful presentation of the play. The scenery was appropriate and reflected credit on the executive staff.

The play was a romantic one, with a quaint Irish setting. It abounds in rich comedy, with a touch of contrasting pathos, and with its charming songs, constitutes an entertainment that would be difficult to excel.

Before the opening of the first act Mr. V. J. McElderry, appearing under the auspices of the War Lecture Bureau, appeared before the footlights long enough to impress the audience with the necessity of greater production if the war is to be carried to a speedy and successful conclusion.

Publish List Of Vacant Lots And Their Owners Here

The Vacant Lot Gardening Committee met last night, and, after weighing the problem of putting prospective soldiers of the soil in touch with property owners who have lots that may be available for this year's production, concluded that the best plan would be to publish a list of lots, and instruct the people to make their own applications to the property owners. Assistant City Clerk Ingram has searched the assessment roll and obtained the locations of vacant lots with the addresses of their owners. Applicants for them will be requested to communicate with the owners and notify Mr. Ingram of any selections they succeed in making. This is approach direct, and it is hoped that it will be as successful as the food emergency demands.

The list of property owners will be published within a day or two.

Normal School Literary Society Hold Meeting

Yesterday afternoon a meeting of the Normal School Literary Society was held in the Assembly Hall. The programme was as follows:

Minutes by Secretary.
Announcements by President.
Chorus by Sec. C.
Reading—Miss Wilson.
Minute speech—Miss Heaslip.
Minute speech—Miss Walsh.
Critic—Miss McCabe.
"God Save the King."

The Farmers' Improvement Association of Hope And Cavan Held Meeting

MILLBROOK, March 19.—The annual meeting of the Hope and Cavan Junior Farmers' Improvement Association was held at Millbrook last week.

Owing to the absence of the President, Mr. Montague Bickle, of Port Hope, the Vice-President, Mr. H. Earl, occupied the chair. The chairman expressed the regret of the Association that Mr. Duncan, the former District Representative, was unable to attend, and urged the men to enter heartily into the discussions, and make arrangements for a successful year in 1918. He said if the Association was to mean anything to the country it should be prepared to launch out into new enterprises during the coming year.

The discussions of contests in race profit, hog feeding and baby beef, corn variety tests, potato variety test and alfalfa tests were discussed by Messrs. Elson, Sutton, McNeil and Lunn.

The regulations have been changed this year, thus allowing any young man under thirty years of age to enter in these competitions for the coming year. The prize is a two-weeks' short course at Guelph, 1919, donated by the Provincial Government.

The challenge from the Bowmanville Junior Farmers' Improvement Association was received and accepted to hold a stock judging contest during the coming year. Arrangements are at present under way to co-operate with the East Durham Board of Agriculture. When holding the contest it will probably beat Millbrook.

The officers elected for the coming year are:

President—Harry Earl, Ida.
Vice-President — Jas. Might, Millbrook.
Sec.-Treas. — Wilfred Elson, Millbrook.
Directors—R. J. McKnight, Millbrook; Leonard McNeil, Millbrook; Lloyd Sutton, Fraserville; R. C. Symons, Port Hope; Montague Bickel, Port Hope.

Greater Peterboro Association Amalgamates With the Board Of Trade For Combined Action

The Greater Peterborough Association decided last night to fuse with the Board of Trade, and recommended that all its members join that association. Those present were Mayor Duncan, Joseph Begley, J. J. Hartley, Dr. E. E. Harvey, W. R. Breyfogle, G. O. Cameron, G. N. Gordon, W. S. Campbell, J. A. O'Brien, E. F. Mason, W. R. Morris, and S. R. Armstrong.

Letters regretting their inability to attend the meeting were received from J. J. Duffus, Reg. H. Turner, J. Vanstone and J. J. Turner.

After a discussion of the work and scope of the Association and of the Board of Trade, Mr. Hartley moved, seconded by Mr. Cameron,

"That as the work of this association is to a large extent on the same line as that of the Board of Trade, and since the Board, by enlarging its sphere, could include all the work of this association, and has expressed a desire to reorganize so as to do so, this association recommends that all its members join the Board of Trade and work heartily in that organization for the advancement of the interests of the city, and that the association transfer its work to the Board."

The last act of the Greater Peterborough Association was the passing of a vote of thanks to its officers in recognition of their work.

Air Raids Into Enemy Territory Were Successful

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, March 19.—Two hundred and fifty-five flights into Germany have been carried out by British aviators and only ten machines have been lost, James Ian MacPherson, Parliamentary Secretary of War, officially announced in answer to a question in the House of Commons to-day regarding the results of recent raids into German territory. More than a ton of bombs were dropped on Mennheim on March 16th, he added.

CREECE CUTS DOWN EX-KING'S ALLOWANCE.

ATHENS, March 18.—The Chamber of Deputies has revised the King's civil list, making former King Constantine's allowance 500,000 drachmas (a drachma is equivalent to 19 cents), and reducing King Alexander's civil list to 1,600,000 drachmas, instead of 2,000,000. The Queen Mother Olga was allotted 300,000 drachmas yearly.

SPLITTING RHEUMATIC PAINS IN THE MUSCLES DRIVEN OUT QUICKLY BY "NERVILINE"

Rheumatic Pains Go — Suffering Ceases — Cure Comes in Even Chronic Cases

For aching bones and sore muscles nothing will sooth away the pain like Nerviline.

For nerve-wracking twinges in the muscles, for torturing backache or lumbago, you'll find Nerviline is full of amazing power.

You see, Nerviline has the power—it's about five times stronger than ordinary remedies, and can penetrate very deeply. It contains juices and extracts of certain herbs that give it a strange power to drive out congestion, inflammation or pain.

You are safe in using Nerviline. Just rub it on—it won't blister or burn, and can do nothing but good.

Whenever there is pain or suffering Nerviline will go and will drive it out. It penetrates to every cell of a sore muscle; it sinks to the heart of every stiff sore joint; it searches out the pain of rheumatism quickly.

Give Nerviline a trial. See how fast it will limber your lame back, how quickly it will cure neuralgic headache, how fast it will break up a bad cold or ease a sore throat.

The best family pain-remedy ever made is Nerviline. Forty years of great success proves this.

For emergent ills, when the doctor isn't handy, there is nothing better than the 25c family size bottle; all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

PRESENTATION TO CAVAN SOLDIER

HULBROOK, March 19. — The members of Loyal Orange Lodge No. Fallis Line, met at the home of W. Williamson, on March 13th, presented their Bro., Mall Todd, had enlisted for overseas, with following address and a wrist

Our Worthy Bro., Mall Todd:
Dear Sir and Brother,— We, your brethren of L. O. L. No. 10, having learned of your entrance to the Canadian forces for service overseas, feel that we cannot let your take your departure from our midst without showing you in some way the honour in which we hold our soldiers and the faith in which they are fighting. We therefore take much pleasure in presenting to you this wrist watch. We trust that you may long continue to wear it and continue to uphold the high ideals of Orangeism and the great part that it is taking in this terrible war in defence of human liberty. We pray that God may preserve you, that you may fully share in the triumph of a complete victory that will ensure lasting peace and freedom to the world and that you may return safely home again.

Signed on behalf of the lodge.
Wilbert A. Fallis.
William R. Williamson.

Bro. Williamson read the address and Bro. Fallis made the presentation, after which Mrs. Williamson entertained the brethren at a dainty supper.

"After dinner" speeches were made, Messrs. Ernest Leith and T. Williamson played several violin selections in good style and patriotic songs were sung.

The gathering dispersed with the singing of "God Save the King" and "God Save Our Men."

Daylight Saving For Canada

OTTAWA, March 19.—It is expected that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will resume the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne when the House resumes this afternoon, but it is believed that the speech of the Liberal leader will be mostly in regard to the Military Service Act. Sir Robert Borden will reply and will deal with the proposed daylight saving legislation. The date for setting forward the clock will probably be announced by the Premier. It has been announced that there will be no more dismissals of public officials on grounds of offensive partisanship unless the case justifies such action following a proper investigation by the Civil Service Commission.

Fifty Persons Were Killed In Air Raid

Peterboro' Boys Have Not Been Located

Newly Arrived Contingent of "Original Firsts" May Not Have Any Peterborough Soldiers Among Them.

This afternoon, His Worship Mayor Duncan, received a message from Alderman J. W. Worth, who is in Brockville, stating that the G.T.R. train, due to arrive in Peterborough this afternoon at five-forty o'clock, would not have any Peterborough soldiers on board. Brigadier-General Hemming was also communicated with this afternoon and he informed Mayor Duncan that he did not know whether the "original first" contingent included any Peterborough soldiers. He said he would notify Peterborough if he heard of any.

Rev. Mr. Thomas Made Fine Impression In Port Hope Sunday

Rev. Amos Thomas, preached at the 76th anniversary services of the Port Hope Methodist Sunday School last Sunday. Large congregations attended the morning, evening and Sunday School services, and according to the Guide's report, were inspired by Rev. Mr. Thomas' sermons:

"Rev. Mr. Thomas spoke very forcibly and earnestly from the text, found in Gen. 49th chap., 22nd verse.—The reverend gentleman had the undivided attention of his large audience, as he very plainly pointed out the duty of every man and woman to do their utmost, in these days of very great stress and strain. His earnest words will no doubt be long remembered, and be an incentive to a better life on the part of many who were privileged to hear him yesterday. He will always be a welcome occupant of the Methodist pulpit in Port Hope."

Brock St. Rink No Skating To-night

Unless the Weather Changes Sharply Skating Is Over

The soft weather of the last few days has practically put an end to skating in Brock street rink. There will be no skating to-night, but if a turn should come with a quick frost, we should have another night or two before the ice is finally removed from the rink.

The Death Of Mr. J. H. Garbutt

The Deceased Took An Active Part in Municipal Affairs

This morning death removed one of the best known residents of Smith township in the person of Mr. John H. Garbutt. The late Mr. Garbutt was born in Smith township in 1863, and was the eldest son of the late John Garbutt. Death occurred at the home of Mr. M. Comstock, a brother-in-law, 219 Sherbrooke street, with whom the deceased has resided for some weeks past.

The late Mr. Garbutt leaves besides a sorrowing wife, on brother, Mr. R. A. Garbutt, of Smith township, and two sisters, namely Mrs. M. Comstock, and Mrs. E. F. Mason, of this city.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from the residence of Mr. M. Comstock, 219 Sherbrooke Street. Service at 2 o'clock and interment at the Little Lake cemetery.

The deceased took an active part in public life and for several years served the township of Smith in the capacity of Reeve, and in 1913 he was warden of Peterboro County. He was also president of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition Board, and the Peterboro Ploughmen's Association.

In politics the late Mr. Garbutt was a Liberal. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

The passing of Mr. Garbutt leaves a place in the life of the township that will be hard to fill. He was a man of broad vision and gave unselfishly of his time and ability for the interests of the community in which he lived and labored.

Medal Received At Memorial For Dead Soldier's Mother

The memorial service to Mrs. John Martin, beloved wife of the elderly Color Sergeant of the Temple Band, drew a very large crowd to the S. A. Temple on Sunday night.

Adjt. McElhiney opened for the first time the case containing the Distinguished Conduct Medal won by the late Sergt. Peter Martin, both of whose parents are also dead. The D. C. M. was received very recently.

Peterboro' Soldier Returning Home

Private Claude M. Harrison, a Peterborough member of the 93rd Battalion, is due to arrive in Peterborough this afternoon on the five-thirty train via G.T.R. For a number of years prior to enlisting, Pte. Harrison resided in North Monaghan at the home of Mr. Bruce Johnston, township clerk.

President Wilson Signs The Daylight Saving Bill

J. W. McDermid Succeeds W. D. Campbell As President Of Peterborough Curling Club

Mr. J. W. McDermid was elected President of the Peterborough Curling Club at the annual meeting last night, succeeding Mr. W. D. Campbell, who has proved himself as successful a President as he has been, and is, a skip. Mr. McDermid has been a member of the Club for ten years, is an ardent and skillful curler, and one of the best of the skips.

The meeting was largely attended, and was both amusing and lively in turn, with spirits running high and the old note of harmony pervading all the discussions.

Mr. Campbell's address was an interesting review of the season and a fine effort. "I want to extend to the members my deep thanks for the assistance and co-operation, and to the officers and committee for the manner in which business was carried out."

Of the management committee Mr. Campbell singled out for special mention Mr. A. C. Kay, who had alone secured between fifteen and twenty new members last season. Altogether thirty-five new curlers joined the club during the year, and practically all made good progress and were promising material. Mr. Campbell referred to the success of the new skips. Out of eight or nine appointed for the past season, Mr. J. H. Metheral won the inter-rink honours, Mr. P. D. Fitzgerald won the third prize, and Mr. Jas. Skinner was tied in his group.

The club won all its inter-city games from Toronto, Lindsay and Orillia clubs. The proceeds of the Heatless Day 'spiel and the surplus from the local bonspiel were devoted to patriotic purposes.

A. W. Archibald won the Heatless Day bonspiel for which no prizes were offered, but his rink "won all the glory."

W. M. Laing's winning of the Carew Cup was duly mentioned.

THE NEILL CUP.

Mr. Campbell announced that Mr. R. Neill had offered the Club a splendid trophy to be competed for annually by scheduled rinks, and that outside clubs—Cobourg, Lindsay, Port Hope, Lakefield, Norwood and others in this district would be invited to come here to play for it. Mr. Neill's idea was to develop inter-rink material. For the first year he also offered miniatures of the trophy to the winning rink.

Mr. Geo. Boucher moved, seconded by Mr. R. M. Waddell, that the club convey its thanks to Mr. Neill for his most acceptable trophy.

CONSIDER ASSOCIATE MEMBERS.

Mr. J. H. Connal moved, seconded by Mr. Boucher, that the Committee of Management consider the advisability of admitting associate members and report back to the club.—Carried.

Mr. Counal pointed out that at present if a skip drops out for a year and returns to the game he cannot be a skip for two years. As an associate paying a certain fee, skips and other curlers could retain their connection with the club, enjoying all the privileges except that of curling. Mr. Hicks, Mr. Kay, Mr. Pennefather, and others discussed the proposal and urged that if this idea became effective that the privileges of associates be clearly defined.

RENTING THE RINK.

Mr. Hicks moved, seconded by Dr. Wightman, that the Committee appoint a Committee to take up with the Curling Rink Co. the question of a definite rental of the rink to the Club per season.—Carried.

"The Club is strong and large enough to pay a definite annual rental," Mr. Hicks suggested.

"It's the only business way to run the Club," Dr. Wightman remarked. "If we know our rental we know our expenses and can fix our fees accordingly."

Mr. McDermid stated that this had been attempted years ago, and the flat rental was fixed at $1,000. "We had no alternative then but to decline, and we have been turning over our surplus."

Mr. Hicks—"You don't mean to say that the Rink Company wanted $1,000 rental and accepted $465?"

Mr. McDermid—"That's just what they did."

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Giroux for his long service as auditor and to Umpire McIntosh.

EARLIER 'SPIEL FOR VICES.

Mr. Oke moved, seconded by Mr. Lang, that the committee arrange to hold the Vice Skips' bonspiel in midseason, when the ice is hard, instead of holding it over until March.—Carried.

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES.

The material side of the season's sport broke in with the presentation of prizes to the rinks that won the inter-rink games, local bonspiel, vice-skips' bonspiel and other games. The events and successful curlers, not excluding the gentlemen who did the honours of presentation, were as follows:

INTER-RINK GAMES.

First prizes (umbrellas)—Won by B. M. Manning, A. L. Killaly, J. T. McCabe and J. H. Metheral, skip. Presented by G. H. Giroux.

Second prizes, (thermos bottles—empty"—H. Hare, T. O. Donaldson, W. T. Hall and Alex. C. Kay. Skip. Presented by R. Hicks.

Third prize (trays)—F. L. Jenne, J. M. Lowes, W. G. Menzies and P. D. Fitzgerald, skip. Presented by Dr. Wightman.

Fourth prizes (cigar trays)—Capt. J. S. Morrison, J. K. Costain, M. C. Tooley and A. W. Archibald, skip. Presented by J. H. Ferguson.

LOCAL BONSPIEL.

First prizes—Primary Round winners (pipes)—C. Moffat, M. Comstock, C. H. Pennefather and R. M. Waddell, skip. Presented by J. W. McDermid.

Second prizes—Silver mounted cut glass marmalade jars—H. Hare, T. O. Donaldson, W. G. Menzies and P. D. Fitzgerald, skip. Presented by W. M. Lang.

Consolation round—First prize, silk umbrellas—C. J. Snider, J. K. Costain, J. H. Connal and W. G. Morrow, skip. Presented by R. M. Waddell.

Second prizes (Glass water sets)—B. McNeeley, A. M. Laidlaw, W. T. Hall and A. C. Kay, skip. Presented by R. Dobie.

VICE-SKIPS' BONSPIEL.

First prizes — Military brushes—E. L. Bowes, E. Taylor, F. Brownscombe and H. R. Martin, skip.—Presented by J. H. Connal, who also handed over to this rink the Patterson silver trophy.

Second prizes—Jas. Skinner, C. Lacheur, W. R. Turner and L. A. Turner, skip. Presented by A. C. Kay.

CAMPBELLFORD CUPS.

A year ago Peterborough won for the third season in succession, thereby securing permanent possession of it, the handsome silver trophy of the Trent Valley bonspiel, held at Campbellford. Individual miniatures of this trophy were included for the members of the winning rink, but they were not recived in time for presentation at last year's annual meeting of the local club. Last night they were presented by Mr. Geo. Benor, a former Campbellford man, to the following rink: C. J. Seymour, J. Wiley, R. G. Sturgeon and Geo. H. Giroux, skip. The replicas were of silver, gold lined,, and on little black pedestals. Some one remarked that their capacity was little more than a thimbleful.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The officers elected for the year were as follows:

Hon. Pres.—W. D. Campbell.
President—J. W. McDermid.
Vice-Pres.—G. H. Giroux.
Sec.-Treas.—F. Brownscombe.
Committee of Management — A. C. Kay, E. G. Patterson, W. J. Oke and P. D. Fitzgerald.
Representation to the Ontario Curling Association—W. G. Morrow and R. M. Waddell.
Auditor—C. H. Pennefather.
Umpire—Angus McIntosh.

AN OPEN BONSPIEL.

It was decided on motion of Mr. T. Brightman, seconded by Mr. Lang that an open bonspiel be held here next winter. Mr. Kay explained that lack of hotel accommodation in Peterborough had influenced the Club in their decision to dispense with that big event during the past season.

Mr. Giroux stated that every night from Tuesday until Friday the Empress Hotel and the White House turn away visitors, for whom they are unable to provide sleeping accommodation. It was believed that conditions would not be improved next winter.

However, the sentiment of the Club was that the open bonspiel is the premier event in this district and its suspension was a disappointment to the outside clubs. Accordingly, on motion by Mr. Campbell, seconded by Mr. Giroux, the following committee was delegated to arrange for a big bonspiel next season—Messrs. W. G. Morrow, convenor; H. Foote, E. G. Patterson, R. Hicks and W. H. Denham.

A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring President, Mr. Campbell, on motion of Mr. Morrow, seconded by Mr. Sturgeon, in recognition of his efficient service.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Mr. Brownscombe read the financial report, showing receipts for the past year of $1600.26 and expenditures of $1,486.40, leaving a balance of $113.86.

Local Returned Soldier Puts on a Record at George Street Alleys

Harry Yates, a local returned soldier, shattered all ten-pin records on the George St. Bowling Alleys yesterday, when he put on a single score of 279. Yates also compiled a total of 647 for three games, which is another record for the Alleys.

ALLIES HAVE SECURED EGYPT'S COTTON CROP.

London, March 18. — The British and Egyptian governments have decided jointly to acquire the entire Egyptian cotton crop, beginning next August. A commission has been appointed to take control of the regulations.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Peterboro, March 18, 1918

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: Will you please advise me through the columns of your paper if an individual or a corporation is required to make Income Tax returns when their incomes do not reach the amounts named, $3000.00, in the case of married people, and $1500 in the case of single persons, as taxable under the law. Yours truly,

Puzzled.

Section 4 of Income War Tax Act provides that only those liable to taxation under the Act are not required to fill in the forms. If you are married and your income does not reach $3000, or single and your income is below $1500, you do not have to register.—Editor of The Examiner.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Would you please publish the enclosed clipping in the daily and weekly issues of The Examiner, which I believe will be read with deep and solemn interest by not a few of the many thousands of your thoughtful and intelligent readers, and oblige.

Yours truly,

READER.

THE PRESENT CRISIS.

"The Lord is at Hand."

The undersigned, under a profound impression of the momentous nature of the present crisis, issue the accompanying statement with the request that all ministers of religion in London and its vicinity, who are in agreement with it, will forward name and address, with a view to a united meeting for considering the question of its further advocacy. Please address:

"Advent Testimony," Christ Church, Westminster Bridge Road, London, S. E. 1.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE HOUR

1. That the present crisis points towards the close of the Times of the Gentiles.

2. That the Revelation of our Lord may be expected at any moment, when He will be manifested as evidently as to His disciples on the evening of His resurrection.

3. That the complete Church will be translated to be "forever with the Lord."

4. That Israel will be restored to her own land in unbelief, and be afterwards converted by the appearance of Christ on her behalf.

5. That all human schemes of reconstruction must be subsidiary to the Second Coming of the Lord, because all nations will then be subject to His rule.

6. That under the reign of Christ there will be a further great effusion of the Holy Spirit upon all flesh.

7. That the truths enbodied in this statement are all of the utmost practical value in determining Christian character and action with reference to the pressing problems of the hour.—London Christian, November 8, 1917.

GREATER PRODUCTION.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Every effort should be put forth in the producing of all foods. Citizens of the City can by response and application, repeat and increase their production this year compared with last, for the ground freshly broken last year will respond better this year and be easier worked. Every article of food will be required, and it is the duty of all to cooperate or work individually. The absolute essentials to keep the body in proper condition for strenuous exertion are flour, fats, beef, pork, cheese, and those must be produced by the farmer, and it is practically impossible to produce grain, that is the one great factor, in accomplishing the same unless the land has been prepared the year previous.

The prominent citizen newly appointed will no doubt through his energies collect and have a number of boys enlisted to assist the farmers this coming summer, but will that prepare the unprepared soil in order to have something for them to handle this season? In his great anxiety for conscription last summer (which we all believe to be the proper course to pursue) he never advocated the conscription of wealth, labour and resources, so that instead of City back yards producing onions, carrots, lettuce, etc., we could have had thousands of the fertile farm acres of the Dominion of Canada producing the great essentials, namely: Flour, fats, beef, pork, cheese. This agitation was on one year ago, that is on now, and the facts are necessities were pointed out, yet what do we find? The farmers, due to non-regulation of industries, labour and resources, operating without help last September, October and November succeeded in putting in their ensilage corn, threshing their grain, and housing their roots, leaving 25 per cent. of the soil unprepared for this year.

The situation is serious, from the fact that Canada due to submarine menace is the only granary to draw from the Allied armies supplies, and neglect of this Country in regulation of industries, labour and resources, is largely responsible for the now known shortage.

The ordinary citizen did respond last year and will respond this year, and every effort put forth will help, but we cannot fail to observe that the greater opportunities are gone.

Yours respectfully,

"FARMER."

Peterboro, 15th Mar., 1918.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: The time has come when the boys of Canada are asked to help save the Empire. Starvation faces the Allies unless Canadian farmers are prepared to raise every bushel the land will yield. They cannot do it without assistance, and men are not available. It is now up to our boys. In Ontario alone 15,000 boys between 15 and 19 are required for farms to meet the crisis of this year. The call goes forth for Soldiers of the Soil. National Bronze Badges of Honour will be granted to all boys responding to the call of duty. Enroll now at the Y.M.C.A., or at 408 Water street Parents are asked to cooperate in this great movement. For information, ring up 58 or 246.

Yours truly,

JOS. WEARING,
City Director.

FRESH DISORDERS IN THE ERMAN FLEET.

PETROGRAD, March 18.—Fresh disorders have occurred in the German fleet off the Aland Islands, according to the Russian military newspaper Krasnaya Armia.

The Germans, it is added, have occupied Bandietnaya station on the Odessa railway line, and the evacuation of Odessa and Nicholiev is proceeding. The German Admiral, Siegert, has been appointed commander of Odessa. Before the occupation of Odessa b ythe Germans, anti-Jewish riots ocurred there.

TO RIGHTLY ADDRESS PARCELS TO PRISONERS

OTTAWA, March 15. —It is pointed out by the Deputy Postmaster-General here, that, in accordance with a memorandum issued by the German authorities, all parcels for prisoners of war in Germany should be addressed to the "parent" ce main camps to which the prisoners belong, and not to any branch of working camps.

PENETRATED LINES.

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, March 19.—French patrols operating last night in the vicinity of Rheims, penetrated the German lines to a distance of more than three-fifths of a mile, according to to-day's War Office announcement. In the same region east of Sillery, an attempt of German raiders was frustrated. There was heavy artillery fire during the night on the right bank of the Meuse.

Collected Over $750,000 In Tips For Checking Hats And Coats In Hotels

Head of New York Organization Testifies in Court That Profits Were $125,000 a Year—Hat Checking Partnership is to Be Broken Up

PROFITS FOR SEVEN YEARS

NEW YORK, March 20.—Joseph A. Susskind and his brother, Harry J. Susskind, collected $750,000 in tips for checking hats and coats in New York restaurants and hotels in seven years, according to statements made in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn by Joseph who asked for a dissolution of the hat-checking partnership and the appointment of a receiver.

Joseph Susskind became a hat boy in one of the New York hotels seven years ago, but soon formed a partnership with his brother to supply hat checkers to restaurants and hotels, and extended the business throughout Manhattan and Long Island. Joseph estimated the profits for the seven years at $125,000 each.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 44 cars, with 15 cattle, 190 calves, 710 hogs, and 155 sheep and lambs.

The market was steady for cattle at Monday's advance. There was but a light run, and not quite the "go" to trade as marked the Monday market. Anything choice in the way of Easter special quality steers and heifers or fancy baby beef sold good and firm. For medium butcher there was possibly a little easier feeling.

In the small stock market there was a strong, active trade for all there was offering, which was not much. Lambs sold up to a new top notch at $20.60 for a choice small bunch.

Hogs were again in a strong market, and while packers' quotations were unchanged at $20.25 fed and watered, more than one lot sold at 25 cents higher.

GRAIN MARKET

Cash oats made another two-cent advance yesterday, and at the pace set so far this week will soon be back on the top perch which it reached just before the milder weather set in. With prospects of an early spring, all available farm help is likely to be employed in the fields rather than in the hauling of grain to market. Receipts are still only moderate, the oft-predicted deluge never materializing. Cash demand is active with bids for export to help along the stronger feeling. Premiums are firm. Peas are easier and are quoted 20 cents lower.

Get Behind the Wheel of a Ford and Drive

TRY it just once! Ask your friend to let you "pilot" his car on an open stretch. You'll like it, and will be surprised how easily the Ford is handled and driven.

If you have never felt the thrill of driving your own car, there is something good in store for you. It is vastly different from just riding—being a passenger. And especially so if you drive a Ford.

Young boys, girls, women and even grandfathers—thousands of them—are driving Ford cars and enjoying it. A Ford stops and starts in traffic with exceptional ease and smoothness, while on country roads and hills its strength and power show to advantage.

Buy a Ford and you will want to be behind "the wheel" constantly.

REGULAR MEETING OF THE NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL

Mr. James C. Morrow of Brownton Has Been Appointed Sanitary Inspector—A Deputation From Cavan

At the regular meeting of the North Monaghan Council, which met at the Court House, Peterborough, the following business was transacted. All the members were present, and Reeve John McIntosh presided.

On motion of Messrs. Bell and Forsters, Mr. Harry Anderson, of Orpington Road, was given the privilege of addressing the Council.

Mr. Anderson said he was present to protest against the overflow of the Erskine avenue drain, which, he said, seemed to be an annual occurrence. Mr. Anderson said the drain was not opened up in time to let the water away.

It was moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Wilson, that Mr. Henry and Mr. Bell be a committee to investigate Mr. Anderson's complaint re Erskine avenue drain, and report.

Deputation From Cavan.

Moved by Mr. Bell, seconded by Mr. Forster, that the deputation from Cavan township, composed of Deputy-reeve Baptie, Messrs. Ball and Clark, be now heard.

Reeve McIntosh then called upon Deputy-reeve Baptie to address the Council.

Mr. Baptie said their committee was present for the purpose of asking for another grant for the Cavan boundary road. Mr. Clarke spoke next and said the Cavan swamp road was in very bad condition.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Bell, that the grant of $150 be made toward filling up the Cavan boundary, providing the township of Cavan agrees to grant an equal amount.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Henry, that the Reeve and Mr. Wilson be a committee with full power to act with the Cavan township committee in spending the grant on the Cavan boundary.

Sanitary Inspector Appointed.

Mr. James C. Morrow, of Chamberlen street, Browntown, was appointed sanitary inspector of the township of North Monaghan.

Minutes Read.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, accepted and confirmed.

Increase in Wages.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Bell, that the men engaged shovelling snow and opening up the ditches be paid 30c. per hour instead of 25c. per hour as passed at last meeting.

Pay Sheets Paid.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Bell, that Thos. Arnott's pay sheet for $22.50 for snow shovelling be passed and paid, also that Foster Monerief's pay sheet for snow shovelling be passed and paid.

Meeting Adjourned.

The meeting then adjourned until Saturday, March 16th, when it met at the Court House at 2 p.m., all members being present. The minutes of last meeting were accepted as read.

The auditor's statement was then read. The township accounts were audited by Mr. Felix Brownscombe. Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Wilson, that the auditor's report as read be accepted and the usual number of copies printed according to law.

Communications.

The following communications were then read:

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Wilson that Peck, Kerr & McElderry's application be left with the Reeve and Clerk with power to act.

Moved by Mr. Forester, seconded by Mr. Henry, that each member of the township council be allowed $2.50 per day for sessional allowance and special needs.—Carried.

A communication was read from Peck, Kerr & McElderry, as interviewed by a special committee re Mr. Graham's lands, stating that the Council had now power to deal with the matter now.

A communication was read from the Organization of Resources Committee, Toronto. It also forwarded considerable literature and information regarding the Greater Production Campaign for 1918.

The following communication was read from Mr. George A. Hatton:

I am instructed by Geo. Cunningham to write the council and demand payment of the sum of $25 for damages sustained by his wife and to his cutter and harness owing to the impassable condition of the road on the boundary line between the city and the township on the 10th of February last.

The clerk was instructed to write denying that the township had been negligent in the manner of looking after the road.

OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

A communication was also read from the Hydro-Electric Railway Association re the meeting at Toronto March 12th; also from the Department of Agriculture, re hog production.

STAMP OUT RABIES.

The clerk of Smith Township wrote asking the Township of North Monaghan to cooperate in stamping out rabies.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Bell that bylaw No. 745 be put in force again and that all dogs must be kept tied up on and after April 1, 1918.

ARREARS OF TAXES.

A communication was read from Mr. W. H. Durham re arrears of taxes on lots 51 and 57 plan 30.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Henry, that Mr. Durham's complaint be left with the reeve and the clerk to investigate with power to act.

BILLS PRESENTED.

The following bills were presented for payment:

| | |
|---|---|
| Harry Clarke, team, breaking road, 8 hours | $3.20 |
| Harry Roddy | $2.00 |
| Felix Brownscombe, Township Auditor | 45.00 |
| Trebilcock Bros, foolscap | .70 |

Moved by Mr. Bell, seconded by Mr. Henry, that the above bills be passed as paid.

NEXT MEETING.

Moved by Mr. Forster, seconded by Mr. Henry, that the next regular meeting of the council be held at the Court House, Peterboro, on Saturday, April 13, at 2 o'clock.

DOMINION RUBBER SYSTEM

Guard Your Health With Rubbers

THERE'S one side to the economy of Rubbers, that some people may overlook. Rubbers save doctors' bills, just as they save boots.

With streets coated with slush or a river of rain, Rubbers are certain protection against getting wet feet, and your being laid up with a severe case of grippe or worse.

If you want to come through the spring thaws without even a cold, get rubbers for each pair of shoes; and if you are buying new shoes, be sure to have them fitted with the right Rubbers.

There's a style and shape for every shoe—for men, women and children—in these six brands of staunch, well-fitting Rubbers, sold by the leading shoemen:

"Dominion" "Granby"
"Jacques Cartier" "Maple Leaf"
"Merchants" "Daisy"

Shrine Destroyer in Danger.

Destroying a shrine nearly cost a woman her life at Kaima, Korea. It seems that a shrine located in her garden was frequented by the Koreans in the neighborhood and a great many of them visited it ever day. In doing so, they trespassed on the garden itself and did much damage to the great annoyance of the owner. To put a stop to this, the lady destroyed the shrine, and this enraged the Koreans. They set fire to the house, and were about to kill the owner when a force of police dispersed them.

Germany Hates England Because Dream of Empire Was Broken on the Sea

THE other day a laconic British official statement announced the completion of the campaign in German East Africa. Its significance was little appreciated by a world whose attention was fixed upon Cambrai and the Russian revolution. And yet it marks the passing of one of the great colonial empires of modern times. When the war broke out German colonies occupied more than a million square miles of African territory, an empire in area larger than that lost by France under the old monarchy in the wars with Britain which preceded the Napoleonic era.

Bagdad, Jerusalem, German Africa—these are measures of the present struggle between the Briton and the German. We are in the fourth winter of the war, a war which German statesmen and German scholars quite as much as German soldiers proclaimed was to be a contest between a modern Rome and a contemporary Carthage, a contest in which the German should play the Roman role. And after four campaigns no German ship sails the seas, every Germany colony is in British hands, save for those portions occupied by Britain's French and Japanese allies; Germany's Turkish ally has lost Mesopotamia and the Holy Land; British armies occupy the roads to Suez and the Persian Gulf, and no single foot of British territory has now a German master.

If one could preserve an historical perspective in the midst of the crowded incidents of the present time it would be perceived that history is strangely repeating itself. Britain is doing to Germany now what she did to Spain, to Holland, to France. Challenged by an ambitious rival, she has swept that rival from the seas, she has destroyed the colonial edifice of the new foe, and her armies are joined to those of half the civilized world in a fight upon German armies on the European continent.

Not so many months ago Bethmann-Hollweg, then German Chancellor, announced that Germany would make peace on the basis of the war map, but peace with Britain on the basis of the war map of to-day would leave Germany not alone confined to Europe and Asiatic Turkey, but with the doorways of Asiatic Turkey closed, with the sea gates of the Turkish empire in British hands, while now and for the future, as in the past, British sea power would still dominate the German exits from the North Sea to the Atlantic, from the Mediterranean both to the Red Sea and to the western ocean. Measuring the war by the feet and inches of the European scale it still remains a doubtful and terrible struggle. Measured by the map of the world, Britain has already repeated the achievements of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and the war, so far as Britain is concerned, still remains to be completed.

More than this. When the war began England had only a fleet. The British expeditionary army of less than 200,000 men represented the maximum of her strength upon land. To-day she has 5,000,000 men under arms, her guns outweigh the German, her military machine is as powerful as the German, and not yet has her man power been weakened by the tremendous sacrifices which have been the price of German victory so far as she has achieved victory against the French, the Italians and the Russians.

Jerusalem has a significance for a world public far beyond its military value. Even Bagdad is a name before it is a thing of military importance and yet these cities, with their wealth of historic suggestion, represent a fresh renaissance of British power. Louis XIV. and Napoleon was confined to Europe save for Napoleon's little venture into Egypt; while British armies then, as now, played their part on the continent and British ships of war and British forces swept the world.

If the war were to end to-day Britain would possess a fleet and an army, the one overwhelmingly superior and the other at least equal to the German. Again, Britain in colonial territory would be the victor; no German merchant ship could sail from Hamburg to the far east save as Britain permitted it to touch at her coaling stations; British colonies and British naval ports would be closed to German commercial ships and German warships, and despite the ravages of the submarine in British shipping the German commercial fleet has suffered far greater losses incident to the seizure in foreign ports of the vessels that to escape British sea power took refuge there in August, 1914.

We are fixing our eyes upon Europe precisely as our ancestors fixed their eyes upon the campaign in Flanders and Artois in the days of the eighteenth and nineteenth century wars, and yet the British Empire was built beyond Europe at the time when Europe was contesting provices and cities between the Sommel and the Meuse, between the Rhine and the Danube. When these wars were over an exhausted France fell back upon itself, while an invigorated Britain went forward in the work of empire building.

To-morrow we may see a free Palestine guaranteed by allied armies. We may see an Arab state created in Syria with a similar guarantee. We shall see German colonies in the Pacific permanently assigned to Japan and to Australia. We shall see German West Africa annexed by British South Africa, and we may see the ultimate obliteration of all German colonial power. But no man can expect now to see German-led armies arrive at Suez or on the Persian Gulf. India and Egypt are to remain British. South Africa has denied all German claims and borne arms against the German, not the Briton. German commercial establishments in the far east have been permanently destroyed; German commercial edifices in South America and in the United States are gone or are crumbling.

Whether as master of Mitteleuropa, or as master only of the Germany of 1870, the Teuton at the end of this war will have to begin again in the world, and not begin as he began on the morrow of the Franco-Prussian war, but begin with the hatred and the suspicion of two-thirds of the people of the world; with the British Empire closed to his exports; with the opportunity to purchase raw materials essential to his trade restricted if not denied; with his industrial machinery on the human side reduced by the cruel cost of his campaigns of conquest.

Napoleon or Louis XIV. would be moved to sympathy and fellow feeling in contemplating Germany's position with respect to Britain at the present moment. Nothing in what has happened to Germany would seem novel to the conqueror who marched from Madrid to Moscow, nothing in what has happened to the German colonial empire would seem strange to Louis XIV. and his successor, who lost India and Quebec while winning campaigns in Flanders.

It is a curious fact than no matter how often history repeats itself, the familiar things still seem novel to the latest generation which sees the contemporary repetition of past events. We shall probably continue to watch the west front with bated breath, to hope and fear for Russia. We shall continue to estimate the meaning of the war by the daily communique, by the foot measure marking the change in the western trenches. Yet those who come hereafter will doubtless look at this war as we view the Anglo-French wars of the past, which to-day appear wars in which European campaigns were relatively fruitless, while those which were carried on beyond the seas permanently alter the fate of millions of men and almost limitless areas of territory. So far Britain has run true to form, she has done better than ever before with her land armies, but at sea beyond the European horizons, she has maintained the great tradition of past centuries.—New York Tribune.

Would Wake Up Smothering

The terrible smothering and choking up sensations and sinking spells, the feelings of dizziness and faintness that come over those whose heart and nerves are deranged causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

Mrs. A. M. Powell, Norval Station, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I suffered five years with my heart and nerves, but the last two years I have suffered terribly. If I went to bed I would wake up as if I were smothering. I did not get one night's sleep out of seven. I got so very weak that the doctor was called in, and he said it was my heart, and that I must take great care of myself. I saw your advertisement in your almanac for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and said I would try them. I have only taken two boxes of them and I feel a new woman. I will recommend them to anyone afflicted with heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A War Memento

By George Elmer Cobb

"Where's the sunshine gone to, little woman?" cried Bruce Manton, as he entered the house, home on the minute, as usual, from work.

The room was full of it, outside all nature was bathed in it. Lettie Manton responded to the query in a half-puzzled manner. Then she understood that it was the seriousness in her thoughtful face that her husband had referred to. She arose and greeted him with an enforced smile, but her kiss was as fervent as ever.

"I was just thinking, dear," she explained, "I received a letter from my mother's half-brother an hour ago. He is in New York city."

"Good—grand!" sincerely jubilated Bruce. "Then he has escaped from Belgium?"

"He writes so," responded Lettie, "but his property there has been destroyed and he is still suffering from a wound he received. He writes that he is too old and feeble for army work and has come back to his native country to die."

"Have you answered the letter?"

"Oh, no. I wished to consult you about that first, of course."

"I don't see any need of consulting," declared Bruce. "He is your only relative. He is a victim of the war, helpless, probably robbed of everything he once owned. Write him at once, Lettie. This is his natural haven, with us. Tell him to come on and be sure of a glad welcome."

"Bruce," said Lettie, in broken tones quivering with emotion, "I think you are truly and grandly God's good man!"

Bruce kissed and kissed the lovely face upturned to his own. He understood fully that Lettie had been worrying at the thought of saddling him with the care of a relative. He never did things half way. He set all details of the present situation completely at rest now.

"I'm glad your Uncle Vance is coming," he said. "In the first place it's our duty to look after him, under the circumstances. In the next, he will be company, yes, and maybe some help to you. I am always worrying while at work about your being alone way out here all day. Your uncle will be company for you. He can potter around the garden and do little errands for you, and what a lot that is interesting he can tell us about the war!"

Lettie wrote a heartsome letter to the refugee in the East forthwith. She took pleasure in fixing up their spare room and each succeeding day looked for the arrival of their expected guest. A week passed by.

* * * * * * *

"I hope Mr. Vance has not met with delay or accident," said Bruce, and Lettie was growing anxious: She would go outside and look across the half-mile expanse between their humble little home and the city's limits half a dozen times a day. Their place was quite isolated, except for several houses in the same remote group as themselves. They formed the nucleus of a new subdivision of slow development. The roads were as yet unpaved and they had to use well water, but the house and lot had been offered to them cheap on long payments, so they had decided to pioneer and made the task more hopeful, then certain, for Bruce had a position that brought in a very moderate income.

One morning Bruce went out, as was his routine, to let the chickens out for the day's foraging, when he came to a dead stop with a stare. A man was just stepping from the shed. He was old and bent, poorly clad, unshaven, and the loose straws clinging to his hair and clothing indicated that he had been sleeping in the shed all night.

"Sort of late for your breakfast, aren't you, friend?" bantered Bruce in his natural jolly way.

"It's got to seem so good to sleep without a lot of shells exploding all about you," responded the intruder, whom Bruce had at once put down as a tramp, "that I could sleep anywhere and enjoy it. I got here late and the house was all dark and I didn't want to disturb you, so I bunked in among the fresh straw."

"Why!" shouted Bruce, enlightened, grabbing the old man and giving him a friendly hug, "you're Hubert Vance!"

"What's left of me," asserted his visitor, grimly, swinging a bandaged arm and pointing to a lacerated ear. "You act as if you were really glad to see me."

"Don't you ever doubt it!" said Bruce briskly. "Lettie!" he called towards the house, "Here's the good old friend we've been expecting for over a week."

Lettie came tripping from the house, welcome arms extended. Bruce could note the wrinkled, wearied face of the old man thaw out under the influence of genuine delight at his truly heartening reception.

Uncle Hubert Vance slipped into harmony with the domestic economy of the family readily and comfortably. He had been for ten years a commercial agent in Belgium, had acquired quite some property, had shared in the frightful descent of the enemy upon that country, and had narrowly escaped with his life. The lads of the neighborhood learned all this, and many a breathless juvenile audience he entertained with stories of the conflict that had robbed him of his wealth.

One thrilling incident in his adventurous career he loved to dwell over. It was where a shell came through a window in a room where he was sitting. Just in time he sprang at the messenger of death rolling across the floor, seized its sputtering fuse and snipped off and extinguished its burning end.

"I've kept that shell as a memento," the old man would continue loquaciously. And then he would take them to the old shed and show them, high up on a special shelf, the round black object, the sight of which aroused their fertile fancies, later dwelling upon the frightful havoc an accidental explosion would create in the peaceful subdivision tract.

The old man was failing fast. Bruce and Lettie noticed it, and he himself was aware of the fact.

"I'm not going to stay long with you, children," he told them one evening, "and I hope when I'm gone there will be something left to repay you for all your great kindness to me. You see, there's a big indemnity covering my destroyed property in Belgium, if it is ever paid. I'm going to have a talk with you all about it in a day or two," but the next day the old man was found seated in his favorite porch chair, dead, but with a peaceful smile on his old, furrowed face.

Never a word did Bruce utter as to the expense the old man had been to him, and Lettie loved him all the more dearly for it. Their little one had come along the first month of Mr. Vance's stay with them. They had named the child after him, and rapturously he had hinted at the provisions he should make for his namesake, "when he got his business affairs in shape."

One morning, a few weeks later, Lettie was at a neighbor's with the baby. She had placed the little one asleep on a cushion, when her hostess came hurrying into the room where she was.

"Oh, Mrs. Manton!" she cried, excitedly, "the high grass of your lot is all on fire. Some of those mischievous boys, I fear—and your shed is ablaze!"

Lettie ran out to the door to share the agitation of her informant. She could see, half a mile away, the flames sweeping about the shed and darting over it toward the house.

"Mind the baby!" she cried sharply, and started across the prairie in the direction of home. Half the distance accomplished, Lettie halted with a vivid shock. Of a sudden, a frightful detonation rent the air. She saw the shed scattered in fragments in every direction and some of the burning debris hurled to the roof of the house.

"The bomb!" she fluttered. "The bomb that Uncle Hubert stored in the shed! Oh, the house is doomed, too!"

An hour later no trace of the cherished little home was visible. Lettie wept bitterly and Bruce looked grave and worried, as they stood regarding the ruin about them.

"Don't despair," Bruce tried to tell her cheeringly. "You know 'through heart-wreck and home-wreck, the happy sparrows build—'"

"Oh, Mr. Manton! here's a funny little iron box Ned Devon just poked out of the ashes of the old shed," announced Lettie's small brother, who was one of the crowd of curious youngsters attracted to the scene.

"H. V.," traced Bruce, inspecting the box. "Why, those are your uncle's initials, Lettie. He must have hidden it in the shed. It's strong and solid and can't be opened without the key."

"I wonder what is in it?" murmured Lettie.

They took it to the house of a neighbor where they were to pass the night, and Bruce made an attack on the box with chisel and hammer. At length he succeeded in battering off the cover. A card showed first. "For my niece and her baby," it read.

Bonds, bank notes, some diamonds and a bag of gold pieces, an old watch, in turn amazed Bruce as he examined the contents of the box—a timely legacy that meant that Uncle Hubert had not boasted vainly when he had hinted at repayment for their unselfish kindness.

Hacking Coughs

For hacking coughs—the kind that make your throat sore and your head ache, that rob you of your sleep until you are so run down that you are in danger of pneumonia or consumption—take

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

It soothes and heals the inflamed air passages, stops the tickling in the throat, and by its tonic effects helps you to throw off the disease.

Chamberlain's is quite different from the ordinary cough medicine, for it not only soothes but also heals, restores the affected parts to a healthy condition. I believe it is the best and most reliable preparation ever produced for coughs and colds.

Old North English Dialect.

A strange set of numerals was used by the elder generation of farmers in one of our northern dales, especially for counting sheep, says the London Chronicle, and the procedure was as follows: A gap was made in the wall just wide enough to admit one sheep at a time, and as the sheep were driven through the farmer counted them, making a notch in his stick at every 15. Phonetically the numerals sound like "yann, tane, tether, mether, pip, sax, sane, catterer, wheeler, dick, yanner-dick, tane-er-dick, teth-er-dick, mether-er-dick, boomfit." "Boomfit" was fifteen, and so a notch was made in the stick, and the strange chant began all over again.

Another Scrape.

The Girl—She was in a motorcar accident—nothing serious. Only the enamel scraped off.

The Brute—Her face or the machine?—London Opinion.

Ask Pa, He Knows.

Willie—Pop, will you tell me one thing?

Father—What is it, Willie?

Willie—If I plant pussy willows, can I get cattails from 'em?

Immunity.

"Bliggins seems positively to enjoy his reputation for mendacity."

"Yes. He feels that he can go as far as he likes because nobody is going to believe what he says."

Will Purchase Foreign Hides.

Il Sole, published at Milan, contains an article on the formation of an association for the purchase of foreign raw hides. The directing committee, it states, met at Rome and nominated as president Commendatore Gennaro Maffetone of Naples. The seat of the association in Rome was fixed at the Hotel Splendid, where the wool association is installed. It has been possible to enable the office to begin without delay the admission of associates, and the organization of purchases, finances, insurance, freights, etc.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

The prompt and positive action of this simple, inexpensive home-made remedy in quickly healing the inflamed or swollen membranes of the throat, chest or bronchial tubes and breaking up tight coughs, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in the throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. You then have 16 ounces—a family supply of a much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and is known the world over for its promptness, ease and certainty in overcoming stubborn coughs and chest colds.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Continuous and monotonous Work—most trying on the Nerves

DOING the same thing, in the same way, day after day, and week after week, means destruction to the nerve cells and collapse of the nervous system of the human body.

Whether in the munition factory or in the home, in the store or in the office, it is monotony that kills. And it is because woman's work is more often monotonous than men's that so many women suffer from nervous exhaustion and prostration, nervous headaches, neuralgic pains and general run-down condition of the body.

It is easy for the doctor to say you must have change and rest, but the expense of living is so great at this time that few can afford to follow such advice.

But there is restoration and health awaiting you in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great reconstructive treatment cures by supplying the elements which Nature uses in the formation of new, rich blood and the creation of new nerve force.

If you are a regular reader of this paper you will find cures reported almost daily, and no matter where you live you will find people who will tell you with enthusiasm of the benefits obtained by using this great food cure.

NO MILK FROM CHINESE COW

Bossy of the Flowery Kingdom Yields Only to Offspring—Used Only for Draft Purposes.

Americans who travel through the interior of China greatly miss "Cow's Milk and Her Butter," as a Japanese sign puts it. The people of the Orient use litle of either. Mares' milk is sold to invalids at a high price, because the Chinese believe that it is a source of great bodily strength, says the Youth's Companion.

But the natives use cows solely for draft purposes and, having earned her living for years in this manner, bossy stands upon her dignity when Americans demand milk of her. To her offspring she will give it, but not to man if by any possibility she can avoid it.

In Japan there are now a few American-bred cattle, owned by foreigners, that make the native cows look like goats. One of these cows was imported into Korea by a missionary, but he had difficulty in getting his coolie to tend the beast. The servant was fresh from his country home, where he had heard little and seen less. He took the cow for an elephant and fled before her.

In Korea the little native cow is a petted darling that has been indulged to such an extent that, incredible as it seems, she refuses to eat grass unless it has been boiled.

It is not unusual in very cold weather to see a pet cow clothed in a thick, warm blanket, while the children of the family shiver in their cotton garments—and often very few of them.

Passing of London Landmark.

Another fine old London landmark, St. Olave's church, in Southwark, is to be closed. It derives its name from Olaf, the Christian Viking of whom Longfellow sings in stirring strain, writes a London correspondent. But England possesses churches with Danish associations of a different kind. When these pagan sea rovers invaded England and were caught, the ancient English used piously to flay them and nail their skins to their church doors. In the College of Surgeons are three grim relics of the sort, one taken from a church at Hadstock, Essex; a second from Copford in the same county, and a third from the north door of Worcester cathedral.

The American Soldier.

The American public as a whole does not appreciate the admirable qualities of the American regular. It does not realize his devotion to the service, his stern code of honor, or his high standard of intelligence, asserts the Brooklyn Eagle. Every American soldier today carries "a field marshal's baton in his knapsack," to use a Napoleonic phrase. He has only himself to blame if he does not win all the honors promised him at the recruiting station at which he enlists.

Out of His Range.

A young man stepped into a sporting goods store recently, relates the Indianapolis News, and asked to see some guns. His remarks indicated that he was a sportsman of a decidedly amateurish sort. The obliging salesman brought forth all manner and varieties of weapons, from a .22-caliber rifle to latest model "pump" gun, but nothing brought any response of satisfaction into the young fellow's face. Finally the salesman handed him a high-power rifle, used for big game, with the remark, "This beautiful little gun, sir, is just what you want, I believe. It kills at 3,000 yards." The young man shook his head, more in doubt than ever. "No," he said, "I am afraid I couldn't use it at all. You see, I have to get much closer than that."

Made For Each Other.

"Son, I fear you are not in a position to marry just now." "But I can't wait. We were made for each other." "There will have to be a little money made, too, my boy."

Great Fertilizer Field.

Government experts are investigating the recently discovered bone deposits of the Pribiloff islands, believed to be the world's greatest supply of fertilizer of that kind.

Forming a Bad Habit.

He who allows himself to get into the habit of explaining away his failures will soon find himself trying to explain away other peoples' successes.

DRINK HOT WATER AND RID JOINTS OF RHEUMATIC RUST

Why rheumatism and lumbago sufferers should drink phosphated hot water each morning before breakfast

Just as coal when it burns leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste material, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons, called uric acid, is formed and then sucked into the blood where it contin es to circulate, collecting grain by grain in the joints of the body much like rust collects on the hinge as shown above.

Men and women who suffer from lumbago, rheumatism, or sore, stiff, aching joints should begin drinking phosphated hot water, not as a means of magic relief from pain, but to prevent more uric acid forming in the system. Before eating breakfast each morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will first neutralize and then wash out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's accumulation of toxins and poisons; thus, cleansing, sweetening, and freshening the entire alimentary canal, each morning, before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug-store, but is sufficient to make any rheumatic or lumbago sufferer an enthusiast on the morning inside bath.

Millions of people keep their joints free from rheumatic acids by practicing this daily internal sanitation. A glass of hot water, with a teaspoonful of lime phosphate, drunk before breakfast, is wonderfully invigorating; besides it is an excellent health measure because it cleanses the alimentary organs of all the waste, gases and sour fermentations, making one look and feel clean, sweet and fresh all day.

Those who try this for one week headaches, constipation, bilious attacks, sallowness, nasty breath and stomach acidity may find themselves free from sick

EVELYN REEVE COMFORTS

CHAPTER XX.

All the rest of the dinner hour George let me feel that I had displeased him, although he didn't mention the matter again. But it was a way he had that I felt but never could describe. A sort of holding off, or pushing me away. Immediately after dinner he went to the club as usual. I was so lonely, so sore at what I considered his unfair treatment of me that I felt I should cry again if I sat down alone. So I went to the telephone and called up Evelyn Reeve.

"Oh, I am so glad you called me up! I am all alone and having the most awful fit of the blues. Kurts never goes out evenings unless I am with him, but his father is ill, and he had to attend to some business for him. Come on over and stay with me, can't you?"

Could I? Dared I? I would!

It wasn't fair, I would take Annie with me and walk. I knew George wouldn't like it if I went alone.

"I'll only stay an hour Annie, and you can visit with Mrs. Reeves' maid," I told her as we walked along.

Evelyn and I had the nicest chat possible. We curled up on the big library lounge with a box of chocolates between us, and just talked as fast as we could talk. Finally I told her of my experience with the etiquette books, first making her promise not to laugh at me.

"I think Made Loring was horrid!" she exclaimed when I told her that Mrs. Loring had made fund of me and before George. "It was an odd thing to do. I don't see how you ever came to think of it. But it was none of her business. Someway I don't care much for her, and her set. I suppose it is because they are older and know so much more than I do. But really, Helen, I shouldn't feel badly about Mrs. Sexton. Learn all you can from her, then pass it on to me."

An Eased Mind.

"Honestly do you care, too, about knowing things?" I asked in surprise. Someway it never had entered my head to think Evelyn also might not be up in social matters, any more than I was.

"Of course I do! Don't you suppose I know that all Kurts' people as well as everybody else think he married beneath him. He is such an old family, you know."

"Oh, aren't they nice to you?" I gasped, glad that George's family did not live in the same town.

"Yes, very nice. But I often do things that cause them to raise their eyebrows. Little things that don't amount to much, wouldn't have been noticed back home, but here where every one is so precise I feel awfully embarassed when I make a faux pas."

"I wish you could come over when that horrid woman is there, but I suppose George wouldn't like it. She isn't supposed to tell, and of course he thinks I will be too proud to say anything! I would be, to any one but you."

"Now don't feel badly about it any more," Evelyn said as I rose to go. "You will be glad of it some day. I have heard of Mrs. Sexton, and she used to be a very great society woman. You can't help but learn from her, then you can tell me all the things she says and we'll talk them over and perhaps by the time we are old and homely we'll know enough so our respective and respected families won't be ashamed of us."

"Oh, you are such a comfort!" I exclaimed as I kissed her goodbye.

"I was so cross and upset when I came."

George had not come in, and I went right to bed. In the morning he was still stand-offish. So I said to him thinking he would be pleased:

No More Than George Expected.

"I shall try to learn all I can from that Mrs. Sexton, George, then she won't have to come many times."

"I expected you would, or I should not have engaged her. The length of time she comes will be my affair. I don't propose to again subject myself to anything like that book performance of yours."

I made no reply. What could I say? I had made an overture, and been rebuffed. I wondered idly if ever I should become accustomed to such rebuffs. I should. I had them often enough. But each one seemed just as hard, or harder, to bear than the last. Perhaps when I had agined that poise George considered so necessary I should not care. It seemed to me that, Madge Loring, Julia Collins and the rest of that crowd didn't care very much for anyone but themselves.

After George left, the telephone rang. It was Evelyn.

"Feel all right this morning?" she asked.

"Oh, yes," I replied without much enthusiasm. George's reception of my little avowal hadn't left me feeling very gay.

"Well I'm coming over in a few minutes —that is, if you want me. I want you to help me plan a birthday dinner for Kurts."

"That will be lovely!" I exclaimed, happy that she was coming.

To-morrow—George Refuses to Go to the Dinner.

ORDERS FOR SHELLS RECEIVED FROM U. S.

OTTAWA, March 14—The Imperial Munitions Board, when asked as to the orders for shells from the United States, placed in Canadian factories, stated that no large orders were received recently. Some three months ago orders were received for the machining of 6,500,000 seventy-five millimetre shells, the manufacture of ten million seventy-five millimetre forgings from steel supplied by the United States, and the making of two millionn cartridge cases. Inaditionn to these orders another has been received for 425,000 4.7 shells. This comprises the total of the orders received by the Imperial Munitions Board from the United States for Canadian factories.

Seemed Like Every Day Was Her Last

Mrs. Patterson Was On Verge of Collapse—Takes Tanlac and Health Restored

"I believe in praising the bridge that carries you over, and that is the reason that I am always telling people about Tanlac, for it did more good to me than any other medicine I ever tried," said Mrs. Elizabeth Patterson, residing at 567 Richmond street west, Toronto, recently.

"About three months ago I began to suffer with stomach trouble," she continued, "and it just seemed to go from bad to worse until I was alarmed over my condition. At first I lost all desire for food and could not relish anything that I tried to eat. Then a heavy aching set in in my chest, and seemed to spread over the region of my stomach and just below the heart. From daylight until dark I just went around in misery from this awful pain, and at times it grew so severe that I would almost fall on the floor and would have to catch to the furniture and pull myself around. I was never down in bed with these troubles, but just kept dragging myself around the house, unable to do anything, and feeling tired and worn out, until it seemed like every day might be my last, and I was on the verge of collapse. I had tried several medicines and doctored but none of them did me a bit of good, so I finally decided to see if Tanlac would help me.

"Now, have never been much of a believer in patent medicines, but I certainly do want everybody to know that Tanlac has relieved my troubles and has just done me a world of good. I haven't had an attack of stomach trouble since I finished my third bottle of Tanlac, and I'm feeling just fine in every way. The pains have left my side and stomach entirely and I am getting stronger and much better every day. That terrible aching through my chest, and around my heart has disappeared. I have a splendid appetite now, and enjoy everything I eat, and it nourishes me, and is building me up. I have the best reasons in the world for praising Tanlac, and I want others who suffer like I did, to know what this wonderful medicine will do."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co, Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. G. Scott; in Westwood by G. Pringle and Son.

MUST BE NEW LAID EGGS WHEN PUT IN STORAGE.

Ottawa, March 18. — Acting under the extended powers recently given to it, in order to prevent waste, the Canadian Food Board has issued an order requiring that no person operating any cold storage plant shall receive eggs for storage or shall store eggs therein, without a certificate from the owner of such eggs that they have been candled and all bad and unsound eggs removed.

It is also provided that no person dealing wholesale in eggs shall receive or demand payment for bad eggs in excess of a margin of allowance of one per cent. on the total of each transaction. The order becomes effective on and after last Saturday.

The order in council under which this regulation is issued, provides for violations a penalty of a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, and not less than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment, or both fine and imprisonment.

HOLLAND'S ARMY.

Little Nation Could Raise Half a Million Men.

Only some two days' march north of the battle arena in Flanders stands a formidable army, intact fresh and vigorous, that has not yet fired a shot in the great war. It is the army of the Netherlands.

That army is ever growing. The work of training began feverishly back in August, 1914, and it has been carried on without a break ever since in all parts of the country. A special law was passed some two years since greatly widening the circle of those liable to service, with the result that all the men under arms on August 1, 1914, now have been relieved by newly-trained men and sent home, though they can be recalled to the colors immediately should occasion arise.

That the country's military leaders have no intention to rest on their oars after the achievement is shown by a bill that has just reached Parliament providing for a re-examination of all men of the Landstrum born since 1885 who had been rejected for one reason or another. This measure is expected to yield a very substantial amount of fresh human material.

How large a mass of trained men Holland could now place in the field is easily discernible. There is first the army that was mobilized in the days of the war's outbreak, probably not far short of a quarter of a million men, and now all at home on indefinite leave. Then there is a new army now under arms of a like size. Moreover there is a very considerable body of men who, prior to 1914, had finished their period of 15 years in militia, at Landwehr and Landstrum, but who are subject to call should occasion require.

This should bring the number of trained men available to half a million men and possibly over that number, constituting a far more formidable and probably better-trained fighting force than the Netherlands has ever before possessed in her history.

In equipment, too, the Netherlands army has made great strides during the past three years. The ammunition industry has been reorganized and enormously extended. The artillery arm, in which the country was notoriously weak, has been reinforced in so far as material was obtainable. Some guns are on order. The delivery of anti-aircraft guns is also in course of execution.

Serious efforts are being exerted to improve Holland's aerial service. A reorganization is contemplated that is estimated to cost between $7,200,000 and $7,800,000. The new scheme provides for 15 airplane divisions comprising fifty-eight battle planes and 66 scouting planes. Despite Germany's own big needs, the arrival of a dozen machines from that country was reported a few days ago.

Ancient Thessalonians.

Salonica, in the days when St. Paul addressed his Epistles to the Thessalonians, was not modern, for it was built about 315 B.C. on the site of an older city called Therme, and was named by its founder after his wife, a sister of Alexander the Great. It has always been a place of importance, as it is the chief harbor of Macedonia, and was a point on the ancient highway from Rome to the east. With a few fine buildings like the old mosque, which had been in turn a temple of Venus and a Christian church, it has always been a collection of houses largely of wood, and therefore highly inflammable in the extreme continuous heat of summer.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

THE FRENCH BATTERIES.

General Ludendorff Pays Them an Unintentional Compliment.

General Ludendorff regarded by the Entente allies as the master-mind of the German army, pays an unintentional compliment to the accuracy of French artillerymen in a memorandum issued to the troops early this year, which has just been made available to the correspondent of the Associated Press.

In this document he admits that the French gunners by their counter-battery fire destroyed in one German army alone in the course of a month eight-three German field guns and seventy-two heavy cannon, while they seriously damaged and put out of action also 382 field guns and 213 heavy cannon, as well as ninety-one field guns and fifty-nine heavy cannon slightly injured but capable of being repaired and used again in a short time.

To these imposing figures of artillery losses caused by the French gunners the same Germany army in the same period of time had the mortification of adding an almost equally large number of losses brought about by the wearing out or bursting of guns. In this way seventy-three field guns and twenty-one heavy cannon were destroyed; 164 field guns and 129 heavy guns seriously damaged and 177 field guns and ninety-one heavy guns slightly disabled.

The memorandum was issued to the German army by General Ludendorff because his artillery officers had argued repeatedly in favor of making counter-battery work secondary to attacks on infantry and communications. They asserted the French artillery directed their guns more generally against the German infantry than against the artillery batteries. The figures collated by the German general demonstrate the falsity of this argument and show the French determination to prevent the German guns, as far as possible, from being used against the French infantry and lines of communication and supply, and that they do this successfully.

General Ludendorff, in concluding his memorandum, points out that by counter-battery work not only is the enemy's artillery destroyed or put out of action, but the opponent is forced to a considerable extent to turn his attention away from the doings of the enemy's infantry which is thus able to manoeuvre with greater ease.

Alkali In Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

A Jersey cow in the herd of the Taylor Plantation, Columbia, S. C., has just completed a year's test, which places her first over all breeds for total butterfat production south of Mason and Dixon's line. Her record is 17,217 pounds of milk and 866 pounds of fat in one year.

For the year 1917 there were 4,764 pure-bred stallions and 2,580 grades and crossbreds in service in Illionois, making a total of 7,344.

KITCHENER PRIVATE SHOT BY A CONSTABLE.

Kitchener, March 18. — Pte. Philip Nowak, a deserter from the London camp, was shot through the hip on Saturday afternoon by Police Constable Blevin of Kichener when he tried to avoid arrest. Nowark now lies in the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital, in a critical condition.

Constable Blevin accompanied Provost-Marshal Osborne, of Military District No. 1 to the Karn farm on the St. Agatha Road, two miles west of Waterloo, where it had been learned Pte. Nowark was in hiding. On arriving at the house the officers found Nowark upstairs. Provost-Marshal Osborne went up and directed him to go downstairs, where Blevin was waiting for him. According to Blevin's story, when Nowark came down he immediately engaged in a tussle with him and refused to surrender when he was called upon to do so. In the tussle Blevin's revolver, which he held in his hand, was accidentally discharged, and the soldier fell. He was at once brought to the hospital where an examination revealed that his bladder had been pirced and the hipbone shattered. His condition was such that an operation was found to be inadvisable.

Nowark has made a statement to the coroner in which he declares that no tussle with the officer occurred. He merely refused to stop when called upon by the officer to do so and when he reached the door in an effort to escape a shot rang out and he felt a sharp pain in his hip and fell to the floor.

Nowark has been eluding the military police for three months. He is 33 years of age and has been a notorious character around Kitchener for years.

"A CHINESE ULTIMATUM."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "In the matter of ultimatums China has hitherto invariably been the reciver and not the giver. Now the Chinese assert their national maturity by ordering the Bolsheviki to keep out. The order is delivered as curtly and as emphatically as ever a European Power delivered an ultimatum to China. The Chinese mean business and are ready to fight."

Fills Stomach With New Energy

Weak, Worn Out, Gassy, Sour Stomach Revived and Made to Enjoy Food With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Most of us eat three times a day and often forget that each meal should be disposed of in the stomach to make room for the next. The failure of the stomach to do that is called indigestion or dyspepsia, with its sour risings, gas, rumblings, pain depression, and the feeling of stuffiness when breathing is difficult.

The most effective remedy and the most reliable one, because you can get it at any drug store in the United States or Canada, is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at 50 cents a box. Instead to depriving yourself of food or going on a starvation diet simply keep on as you have and let these tablets sraighten out your stomach, digest the food, and keep you in the fight.

$115,000 IN GOLD DUG UP ON A FARM.

Buried in an old Well by a Rich Cattle Buyer in 1883.

Youngstown, Ohio, March 18.—An iron pot containing $115,000 in gold coins, was unearthed on Wednesday in an abandoned well on the Isaac Schaffer farm near Hillsville, Pa., it became known here to-day. Employees of a blasting company were blasting and coming to a well set off a charge which sent a shower of gold coins skyward. The story of the burying of the treasure 30 years ago, came to light to-day with its discovery. In 1888 Isaac Schaffer, a rich cattle buyed died. Stricken by apoplexy, he managed to mumble the word "gold," motioned toward his farm and fell dead. During the past 30 years his heirs have explored the farm many times hoping to find the treasure. The gold has been deposited in a Newcastle, Penn., bank. Heirs of Schaffer have claimed the treasure.

German Possession of Russian Metropolis Will Give Enemy Complete Control of Number of Important Ports.

CUT MOSCOW OFF

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, March 20.—The fall of Petrograd is imminent. German troops are advancing along the Baltic coast from Narva and northeast from Pskov and Dvinsk, and are nearing the Russian metropolis, according to despatches received in London. The population is said to be awaiting the coming of the invaders passively, and there are no indications that the Bolsheviki authorities will attempt to oppose the Germans before giving up the city. The evacuation of Petrograd by the Bolsheviki government departments was ordered last week, and all are now in Moscow, which the Lenine government has declared the Russian capital. When the order to move to Moscow was given it was said that Petrograd probably would be declared a free port.

COMPLETE CONTROL.

The German possession of Petrograd would give the enemy complete control of the Gulf of Finland and all important ports on its coast except those in Finland yet in the hands of Finnish rebels who are being attacked by the Germans and Finnish Government forces. This would cut Moscow off from the Baltic Sea. On the south the Germans have been reported within 350 miles of Moscow, and they virtually control the Baltic Sea. Although they can advance in the east against disorganized Russians, the Germans have not yet displayed any intention to carry out their heralded offensive in the west. Except for the most intense artillery bombardments on some sectors there has been no great activity on the lengthy western front. Trench raids having decreased in number. On the British and French fronts German artillery has been most active on the sectors which were bombarded heavily last week, Ypres, Armentieres, Cambrai, Champagne, Verdun and Vosges.

Secretary Baker At The "Frontier Of Freedom"

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 20.—Secretary of War Baker was in the front line trenches under shell fire early to-day scanning "No Man's Land" from a listening post. "Now I am at the frontier of freedom," he exclaimed.

Returning from the trenches a 105-calibre German shell burst within forty yards of the Secretary's automobile.

PTE. JAMES HOPCROFT,
A former 93rd man, who was wounded while fighting with the 2nd Battalion in France.

LANCE-CORP. CHAS. STENNER,
One of the original Princess Pats who arrived home this morning on three months' furlough.

WILL REBUILD NEILL STORE

Handsome Four Storey Structure Will Be Rushed to An Early Completion Mr. R. Neill Stated To-day

"A CREDIT TO PETERBORO"

Mr. Robert Neill stated this morning that plans are under preparation for a big four-storey, steel frame store to be erected as soon as possible, replacing the Neill building destroyed by fire in January.

"It will be rushed to completion as rapidly as we can get stone, mortar, and iron together," Mr. Neill said, "and it will be a credit to Peterborough," he added.

The new Neill building will embody the latest ideas in store construction. It will present a handsome front of terra-cotta, with suitable trimming, and will be a splendid acquisition to the business block south of Simcoe street on the east side of George street.

Mr. Mark Miller, an old Peterborough boy, now a successful architect in Toronto, has been engaged to draw up the plans, and early this morning began his preliminary sketching of the lot. Orders have been already placed for some of the material required first in the construction of the store which will be one of the finest in the city.

It is understood that all the four floors of the new store will be needed for the Neill boot and shoe business, both in its local retailing and as a distributing centre for the many Neill branch stores in the Province.

This announcement will be highly satisfactory to Peterborough citizens who have been waiting with almost personal concern for definite news of Mr. Neill's intentions and plans. There is some compensation for last winter's heavy fire loss in the fact that the new building will be one of the most imposing structures in the down town district, that Peterborough will remain the central depot of the R. Neill stores and especially that the gaping ruin that defaces George street, will soon be obliterated with new buildings surpassing those that were destroyed.

THE OFFICIAL WAR REPORTS

Portuguese Troops Repulse Enemy Raids—Not Much Change in Situation on Western Front

ENEMY GUNS ACTIVE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 20.—Raids attempted by the enemy last night in the neighbourhood of Fauquissart were successfully repulsed by Portuguese troops. With the exception of some artillery activity on both sides in the Passchendaele sector there is nothing further to report.

CALM PREVAILS.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 20.—(Official)—The artillery actions were heavy on th. right bank of the Meuse, in Lorraine, between Bures and Badoncillers, and at some points in Upper Alsace, says to-night's official communication. On the Macedonian front calm prevails.

Canadians Long For Home But Will Finish Task

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner.)

MONTREAL, March 20.—"Our Canadian soldiers at the front, especially those who went over in the early days of the war, and who have stood unflinchingly in the face of all the murderous machines of the Germans, are longing for home and for the smiling face and cheery word of wives, children, fathers and mothers, but they don't want to leave their job unfinished. They put their hands to the mighty task, some over three years ago, and some two years ago, and they have no desire to quit until the power of Prussianism is smashed and the Allies withdraw as victorious. There is not a single note of pessimism from either officers or men.

The enemy will not break through no matter what methods he employs or how many divisions he hurls against us." These are the words of the Very Rev. John Neil of Westminster, Toronto, and moderator of the Presbyterian church in Canada, who has just returned to Canada from the trenches after three months. Dr. Neils' impressions were formed after seeing thousands of the soldiers and talking to them.

It is the firm opinion of all in authority, and of Dr. Neil himself, from what he saw and heard, that there are no men in any army who have resisted temptation as the Canadian soldiers have done.

ONE THOUSAND SOLDIERS RETURN TO TORONTO

Scenes of Mingled Joy and Pathos Feature the Arrival of Returned Soldiers

CITY SERVES LUNCHES

TORONTO, March 20.—Nearly one thousand returning soldiers, many of them wounded and incapacitated, but others fine and hearty, home on furlough, also a large number of women and children, war brides and war babies, and some of them war widows and war orphans, have reached this city within the last twenty-four hours, amid scenes of mingled joy and pathos beyond description. While many of these veterans of the battle fields of Europe, and survivors of the Huns' dreaded air and submarine raids of England and on the Atlantic, are residents of Toronto. A large number of others belong to points in Western Ontario and some of them to Western Canada. Still more train loads of furlough men and wounded are expected to-day, and hundreds of relatives are still waiting at North Toronto station for loved ones who were expected days ago.

The situation is such that the city authorities at times have to serve lunches to women and children, who refuse to go home for their meals, fearing that trains might come in while they are absent.

WILL NOT SEEK FORMAL ALLIANCE WITH AMERICA

Russian Foreign Minister Refers to Unites States as "Capitalist America"

A WIDENING BREACH

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 20. — Foreign Minister Tchercherin declared to-day that the Soviet Commissaries have considered the possibility that the United States will oppose Japan in the Far East.

He said he believed negotiations toward that end between the United States and Russia were possible. War Minister Trotzky is decidedly opposed to Tchercherin's statement declaring Russia could not oblige "Capitalist America."

Tchercherin emphasized that the Soviets would not seek a formal alliance with the United States, but said they hoped the United States would desire to live in friendship and cooperate with Russia, as a means of protecting its own interests against Japanese encroachment.

"It is impossible even to discuss a Russo-American alliance, Trotzky said when informed of Tchercherin's declaration, "that Socialist Russia could never place itself under obligation to 'Capitalist America.' It is possible, however, that America will seek closer relationship with Russia owing to the Japanese situation."

A BIG PARTY OF PETERBORO' MEN ARE HOME FROM OVERSEAS

Lance-Corp. Chas. Stenner, Original Member of the Famous Princess Pats, Among Those to Arrive--Many Former 93rd Men Back From Foreign Service.

The past twenty-four hours have been marked by the arrival of the largest number of returned men that has yet reached Peterborough, and the possibilities are that within the next few days there will be many more local men back from the European battlefields.

The influx started last evening, when a party of ten casualties arrived on the 5.40 G.T.R. train and were given a royal welcome. This morning the Port Hope and Belleville trains brought eleven more local boys, while several others, including Lance-Corp. Chas. Stenner, one of the original Princess Pats, and Pte. Chas. Powell, an original 2nd Battalion man, arrived on the early C.P.R. train from the east. The greater percentage of the men who returned were members of Peterborough's own battalion, the 93rd, who had seen service in France.

One of the Pats.

Lance Corp. Charlie Stenner, who reached here on three months' furlough this morning, had seen more service than any of the men who returned. He enlisted in Toronto early in August with the famous Princess Patricia's Light Infantry, and with the exception of four or five months in hospital after he was wounded on June 2, 1916, has been on duty in France since the Pats went over to Flanders in December, 1914.

"Just a month ago yesterday, I left the battalion," remarked Lance-Corp. Stenner, who lived in Douro when he going in at Lens after a rest when I got my furlough."

Stenner, who lived in ouro when he enlisted, and whose wife and family are now residing in Lakefield, has been through practically all the big "shows" the Pats were engaged in except at Passchendaele. He had the good luck at that time to be out instructing a new draft, and so missed that terrible engagement.

"We have run through nearly 13,000 men in our battalion," remarked Stenner; "The unit has been nearly wiped out half a dozen times, and we used six University company drafts inside of a year, so heavy were the casualties.

He was wounded by shrapnel in the back in the Zillebeke battle in June, 1916.

Lance-Corp. Stenner departed for Lakefield at noon to-day.

"I went away without saying goodbye to my wife," he informed the Examiner. "I went up to Toronto to make inquiries about the Princess Pats, passed the doctors, was sworn in and told we were leaving that night, so I had to send a wire to the wife saying I was off for overseas."

A Big Welcome.

The party which arrived last evening included Lieut. Walter G. Worth, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, Sergt. Fred Batterson, a Peterborough member of the original 21st Battalion, Pte. David Carlisle, East City, who has two brothers serving overseas, Pte. James Hopcroft, who went overseas with the 93rd, and saw service at the front with the 2nd Battalion, Pte. Claude Harrison, another former member of the Peterborough battalion who fought with the 5th C.M.R. in France, Pte. Geo. Martin and Pte. J. Smith, two more ex-93rd men, Pte. Seaborne, 5th Battalion, Campbellford, and Pte. Drummond, C.A.M.C., Westwood.

Although only a short notice had been received of the coming of the party, Mayor Duncan and the civic authorities were enabled to arrange a welcome. Carriages were in waiting for the returned men and a huge crowd had gathered at the station to welcome the boys who had done their bit. A procession, headed by the Temple band, followed by the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association in uniform, and carriages containing the returned men was formed and proceeded to the armouries. The War Veterans lined up on each side of the doorway and heartily cheered their comrades as the carriages passed through the lines.

Short addresses were given by His Worship Mayor Duncan, Adjutant McElhiney and Mr. Harvey Staunton, President of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, expressing the heartfelt appreciation of the citizens generally of what the boys had done overseas and extending them a hearty welcome home. Mr. Staunton, who was the last speaker, called for three rousing cheers for the men who had come back and they were given with a will that made the girders of the armouries vibrate.

This Morning's Arrivals.

Word was received late last night that another party of invalided men would arrive via G. T. R. train this morning, and the motor chemical engine was sent out as an advertising medium early this morning, its insistent siren proclaiming the fact that more Peterborough boys who had fought in France were due to arrive. The party was met at the station by the Mayor and other officials and by the Temple Band, and after being driven up town, headed by the band, the heroes were taken to their respective homes. The returned men were nearly all members of the 93rd Battalion and some of them had been badly wounded. The list include Co.-Sergt.-Major J. Hawthorne, Pte. Peter Hammond, Pte. Alex. Knott, Chemong, Pte. Russell Taylor, Chemong, Pte. L. Marshall, Corp. Weir, Pte. Smith, Pte. Wilson Pte. Lazenby, the latter a member of the old 39th Battalion, Pte. Gerry and Pte. Lemay.

PTE. C. HARRISON,
Formerly of the 93rd, who was one of the party to arrive last evening. He was at the front with the 5th C.M.R. and was wounded in the stomach at Hill 70, last August.

CITY WILL SECURE SUPPLY OF WOOD

Fire, Water and Light Committee Recommends Purchase of 200 Cords of Wood.

At a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council, held last evening, Alderman Dobbin, chairman, reported that three more cars of wood from Sharbot Lake had been ordered. A letter was read from J. E. Irwin, from whom the wood was purchased, offering two cars of wood containing twenty-five pere cent. of soft wood at $7.00 a cord free on board at Crow Lake.

Two Hundred Cords.

It was moved by Mayor Duncan and seconded by Alderman Saunders, that Alderman Dobbin and Alderman Taylor be authorized to order up to two hundred cords of hardwood from J. E. Erwin, similar to the car received, and that they be authorized to order the mixed wood provided it can be purchased at a price that will permit of it being sold at $2.00 a cord less than the hardwood.

FRANK JENNE SAYS:

To speak and yet say nothing is worse than useless My aim, each evening, is to tell you something about the goods in my store, which will be of value to you when you are shopping.

Do I sell boys' clothing? Yes, I do sell one of the best lines of Boys' Clothing made—the famous Semi-Ready High School Clothes for boys.

Suits to fit the little chap of seven years, up to suits for youths.

ORANGEMEN HAVE A NIGHT OUT

Basket Social Was Held By the Nassau Lodge

Large numbers from the city and neighbouring lodges attended the 3rd annual basket social held by Nassau Loyal Orange Lodge last night in the Nassau Hall, which building afforded ample accommodation for the visitors.

The Programme.

The evening opened by the presentation of the following porgramme, which was heartily received:

Chairman's address—J. H. Spence, County Master of Peterborough.

In his address Mr. Spence outlined the history of the lodge and complimented its members on the signal success.

Reading—Mr. Sanderson.
Piano solo—Mr. Treneer.
Vocal solo—Mr. Thompson.
Recitation—Miss Freeburn.
Solo—Mr. Treneer.
Piano solo—Miss Calder.

Violin solo—Miss Calder, accompanied by Miss Greene.
Comic song—Mrs. Bugg.
Piano solo—Mr. Treneer.
Solo—Mr. Thompson.
Recitation—Mr. Treneer.
Solo—Mr. Thompson.
Solo—Mr. Petrie.
Dialogue, "Way Down East"—By a number of ladies and gentlemen.

The Social.

At the conclusion of the programme considerable merriment was caused by the auction of the baskets provided by the ladies, and the lucky highest bidder of which obtained the lady who packed the basket as supper partner. Mr. Fred Sanderson made a most successful auctioneer and ran the bids from 75 cents to $4.50.

The committee in charge were Messrs. W. J. Kirk, Fred Sanderson, Harry Seabrook, E. Brown and Bert Lockington.

COMMISSION WILL VISIT SIBERIA

WILL INVESTIGATE REPORTS CONCERNING ARMING OF WAR PRISONERS.

Special to The Toronto Star and the Peterboro Examiner.)

LONDON, March 20.—An American Commission will visit Siberia to investigate the reports of arming of war prisoners, an Agency despatch declared to-day.

LIEUT. WALTER G. WORTH,
Formerly of the 93rd Battalion, who arrived home from overseas last evening. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge last April.

Wife's Present For Soldier Husband

Two Lusty Twins Were Born on the Train in Two Different Countries

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

MONTREAL, March 20.—One of the human interest incidents of the train journey of the returned soldiers from Halifax was the birth of twins, a boy and a girl to a Montreal soldier's wife.

The proud father is Pte. Peter Gladstone MacKinsie of Montreal. The babies are lusty youngsters, the boy being a six-pounder and the girl weighing five and three-quarters pounds. The birth occurred at 2 a.m. yesterday, and at once the mother was taken to the maternity hospital here, where all three are doing well.

The doctor has named them "CPR." and "Missenabie." A peculiar feature of these is that the boy was born in the United States territory, and the girl fifteen minutes later in Canada.

FOREIGN OFFICE REPROVED OFFICIALS

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 20. — The Foreign Office at Moscow has officially reproved the officials who announced the German control of Petrograd.

War Minister Trotsky ordered the Soviet Commissaries to push the defense of Petrograd, pointing out that the action of the Germans at Phsoff indicates they are preparing for a sudden dash in case of necessity.

BLACK SEA FLEET FLED.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The Russian Black Sea Fleet fled to Sebastapool when the Germans captured Odessa, State Department messages said to-day. Nothing was said about the German's future tactics.

THE WEATHER

The long-longed-for spring is apparently here at last, accompanied with the merry "cheer-up" of robins. The robins, which have been around for several days now, arrived this season about the average date. For many years I have made a note of the arrival of the robins. The two earliest dates were March 4th, 1902, and March 6th, 1897. Late arrivals were April 5th, 1915, and April 4th, 1900. The dates given are for the arrival of the birds in numbers. Frequently a pioneer will arrive some time before the main body—occasionally to his regret. Too much dependence must not be placed on the robin as a weather forecaster as he sometimes makes a mistake. The blackbirds and song sparrows are due in a few days, but when the little blue bird and swallow arrive we may rest assured that winter has gone.—W. P.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20TH, 1918.

A CHANCE FOR GIRLS.

The girls of Peterborough have an opportunity of becoming "Soldiers of the Soil." To them this week comes the call of the market gardeners of the district who are sadly in need of help. Many gardeners are hesitating as to the amount of produce they can handle this season and unless sufficient help is offered there will be a falling off from last year's showing. The Women's Council Garden committee are enrolling girls who are willing to help and all the necessary information can be obtained at the Patriotic League rooms, Simcoe street.

STRONG FOR REPRISAL.

The view taken by Sir Conan Doyle in regard to recent German outrages will find many supporters in Canada as well as throughout the British Empire. The creator of "Sherlock Holmes," like many other people, has no faith in German pledges, and pertinently asks why British hospital ships make targets of themselves by carrying rows of bright lights, which only serve to guide the deadly missile of the pirate craft that are lying in wait for just such a mark. The two attacks on hospital ships in an area in which according to Germany's pledged word they should have been immune, shows that nothing but the blackest treachery can be expected from the Huns. Sir Conan Doyle's remedy is a perfectly feasible one. He suggests that at least twenty German officer prisoners be carried on each hospital ship, and that it be understood that these friends of the undersea boat murderers shall be the last to leave in the event of the ship being torpedoed. Their presence would undoubtedly cause the submarine commander to think twice before attacking an hospital ship.

GERMANY'S CRIMES.

If there were any doubts as to the enormity of the political crimes committed by the Germans against the people of Russia and Roumania they will be dissipated by a perusal of the statement just issued by the Supreme War Council of the Allies. The story of how the armistice was disregarded by the Huns with the enslavement of the Russians as a result is one that will wipe out any possibility of peace with Germany at the present time. The statement comments upon the "singular incredulity" of the Russian government who oblivious of the record of oppression set up by the Germans, were deluded into the belief that they could win through persuasion that "democratic peace" which they failed to secure through strength of arms. Then came the armistice which had not expired when the Huns, disregarding their plighted word, transferred their troops in large bodies to the western front and followed this action by invading Russia, destroyed or captured the main portion of Germany's mean of defence, and began to organize the country for the benefit of the Teutons.

The statement from the Allied War Council sounds a note that is fatal to Germany's camouflage peace proposal when it asks "why waste time over German pledges when we see that at no period in her history of conquest—not when she overran Silesia nor when she partitioned Poland, has she exhibited herself so cynically as a destroyer of national independence, the implacable enemy of the rights of men, and the dignity of civilized nations."

WELCOMING RETURNED MEN.

Although there were no "Original Firsts" in the party of returned soldiers who reached Peterboro last evening, they were in every respect worthy of the reception they received. If there were none of the men who stood in the gap in the second battle of Ypres, there were heroes of Vimy Ridge and of Hill 70, representatives of the troops which gained fresh fame for Canada in the hard fighting on the Western front. It is fitting that such men should be welcomed with bands and cheering, and it is to be regretted that all our gallant lads who came safely home from Flanders, cannot be received in a similar manner.

The fault of course is not a local one. The authorities here are often not notified of the coming of Peterboro men; sometimes they are only given a brief notice that prevents anything like a reception being arranged. For instance, yesterday, the Mayor and city officials were kept busy all day endeavoring to get some information as to the men who were coming back. First, word was received that a special C.P.R. train, carrying returned soldiers, would arrive shortly after 8 o'clock in the morning. A little later it was reported that the train would not get in until some time after the hour first mentioned. Then 11.15 o'clock was the time given, and after the members of the Temple and 57th Battalion bands had been taken away from their work, and the schools dismissed to allow the children to take part in the welcome, it was found that there were after all no Peterboro men in the party. Then the authorities tried to ascertain the likelihood of there being some returned men for this city coming on the 5.40 G.T.R. train. Up to the time the papers went to press, the last word received was that there would be no soldiers returning last night. At half past four came the word that after all a party of local returned men would reach here at 5.40, leaving the city officials only about an hour to arrange a welcome. Credit is due to Mayor Duncan, City Clerk Armstrong, and other civic leaders, to the War Veterans, and to the Temple Band, that at such short notice last this most important task.

Surely the militia authorities can avert a lot of this confusion if the matter is given a little attention. Probably all over Ontario there were similar mix-ups yesterday, all because there are no government officials responsible for seeing that the civic authorities and the relatives of returned men are notified when these men may be expected to arrive. With a multitude of officers on the staffs of the different districts, it should be possible to find one who is not so burdened with work that he would find it impossible to undertake this most important work.

If proper notice were given it would be possible to give all returning heroes a reception such as their splendid record overseas deserves. At the same time, it would relieve their relatives of the anxiety that is caused under present conditions, when women have to meet train after train to avoid the possibility of not being at the station when their loved ones arrive.

General Mewburn will do much to earn the gratitude of the public if he will take some action in solving this problem.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Women who want to "do their bit" have the chance now. Their services are needed by the market gardeners of the district.

The indomitable spirit of the Belgian army is reflected in the statement of Lieut.-Col. de Ceyninck, the Minister of War. "Whenever the call comes we shall be waiting to respond with every atom of strength we have."

Mr. J. H. Burnham has given notice of a couple of resolutions, to be introduced into Parliament. One deals with the revision of rural mail carriers' contracts with a view to protecting the carriers. Another deals with soldiers' dependents.

Adjutant McElhiney nearly lost a lot of his popularity with the youngsters at the C.P.R. station yesterday, when he announced that the children were expected to go home at once, get their dinners and go to school. This was after it was found no Peterboro soldiers were on board.

Mayors who run councils are not a novelty, but Port Hope has introduced a reverse of this condition. When Mayor Burnham refused to sign the minutes of the previous meeting, the council simply voted him out of the chair.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

The Effect Is the Same.

(Toronto Star.)

Is the decay of surplus food in cold storage due to mismanagement or design? It does not greatly matter. In either case the need is the same for public inspection and regulation to prevent shameful waste and injustice.

Huns Are Angry.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

And so the seizure of Dutch shipping by the Allies has thrown the German press into "a towering rage," has it? That was to be expected. It may also be expected that there will be demands for the destruction of two or three hundred more English towns by aerial bombing, by way of reprisal.

"Futile Peace Talk."

(Providence Journal.)

"Another German 'peace drive' is foreshadowed in news reports from Europe, and a vague proposition based upon a withdrawal in the west and recognition of the gains made in Russia would not be surprising. But such 'peace terms' will not be acceptable to the countries at war with the Prussian junkers. Crafty overtures of the same sort have been made to us in the past and we cannot be deceived by anything of the kind at this late day."

"Must Be Crushed."

(Newark Ledger.)

"Germany's return to air raids on unfortified towns in England and France indicates that the barbaric mind is too thick to admit of penetration the fact that that kind of warfare only steels the Allies to renewed effort, because it adds to the conviction that the Hun must be crushed to save the world for civilization."

The Farmers' Turn.

(Kingston Whig.)

The farmers, who have escaped any kind of war taxation so far, are now to be directly taxed. They have been of late years reaping unusual profits, and are doubtless sufficiently patriotic to submit to the new taxes without undue complaint.

Prices Going Up.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Hindenburg is reported as ready to sacrifice 300,000 men in a German offensive. It looks as though Hindenburg had forgotten that offensives, like everything else, are getting more costly.

Harakari.

(New York Herald.)

We are inclined to believe with the Brooklyn Eagle that when Lenine and Trotzky talked of self-determination of people what they really meant was self-termination.

Action Wanted.

(Ottawa Journal.)

For nearly four years Canadians have gradually increased their sacrifices in treasure and in blood; to-day they are prepared to sustain greater sacrifices still. Let Parliament translate this overwhelming sentiment into action and it need have no misgivings in regard to national support.

A SMILE OR TWO

His Little Joke.

Dear Old Party: "Oh, do tell me how you got hurt."

Wounded Tommy (a wag): "I was leanin' against the barrage, lady, when it lifted, and I fell into the trench."

A year or so ago a tailor in finishing a khaki tunic put a card in one of the pockets bearing the words, "Good luck to the wearer." One day last week the same man, now called up, putting his hand into the pocket of the tunic, as he got his equipment, drew out his own card.

Old-Fashioned.

"Let's go in here and eat. It's not a stylish place, but it is still run on the old-fashioned plan."

"In what way?"

"They still trust their guests with the sugar bowl."

A Speed Artist

(Lindsay Warder.)

Mr. C. S. Brownlee, of Minden, for years a resident of Peterboro, and an old M quad man, in other words, a follower of the printing trade, paid the Warder a short visit, in company with Police Magistrate Jordan of the same village. Mr. Brownlee worked on the papers in Peterboro in the olden days, and also with Mr. C. D. Barr on the Lindsay Post. As a typesetter he was one of the fast ones. In his younger days he established a record during his "wanderings" by working in fifty-six printing establishments in about one month's time. Mr. Brownlee also worked on the Minden Echo, with Mr. R. H. Baker, and a number of years ago worked on the case with Mr. F. J. Begley, now editor of the Post.

SIR SAM HUGHES USED SHOVEL

Lindsay, March 19.—The Haliburton train had its troubles on Friday on its way to the northern village, owing to the snow on the track.

Between Kinmount and Haliburton five stops were made, the train crew being obliged in each case to shovel out the track. Sir Sam Hughes was on board and also did his bit with a shovel.

Fine Address On The Work Of War At K. C. Meeting

At their regular meeting last night the members of Peterborough Council of the Knights of Columbus enjoyed a highly interesting address by Captain Martin H. Roach of Beaverton, on his experiences on the Western Front. During the winter months the meetings have been featured by special addresses covering a wide range of subjects and last night's series of word pictures depicting army life in its many phases was one of the most entertaining of the season's K.C. events. Captain Roach is an old lacrosse player and in the heyday of the national game of peace times, played here on the Beaverton team. His address described the training and camp life of the soldiers, and followed the front trenches, an dover the top. The battalions from the billets to the work of preparing for an attack was described from the important preliminary of obtaining accurate information of the topography of the German lines, the identity and numbers of the opposing force, and other facts necessary to the attack. Following this came the rehearsal of the attack down to minute particulars.

Captain Roach went over with Col. Sam Sharpe's Ontario County Battalion. Some passages of his recital were effectively illustrated by souvenirs from the front.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

CONQUERORS OF THE PETERBORO' TEAM ARE JUNIOR O.H.A. CHAMPIONS

BARRIE, March 10.— By the hardest kind of luck the Barrie Colts lost the O.H.A. junior championship to De la Salle of Toronto here to-night. Though they won the game, 5 to 4, they lost the round, 8 to 10. In all the features of the game they had the edge on the Irish, and on fast ice would have apparently finished the round several goals to the good. The match towards the finish furnished thrills in abundance, and in the last five minutes Barrie, lacking one goal to tie the round, stormed the De la Salle nets almost continuously.

From a hockey standpoint the fixture was exceedingly unsatisfactory, for it was played under conditions that made good hockey an impossibility. In an effort to have good ice for this important event the rink had been closed since Thursday, but in spite of this, half an inch of water covered the surface when the doors opened, and the higher temperature caused by the presence of two thousand spectators who jammed every available bit of space did not improve the ice as the play progressed. Soon a slush covered the rink and proved a very heavy handicap to fast hockey.

Barrie at Disadvantage.

Barrie suffered the most, as the sticky ice knocked out the fast-working combination and tricky stick-work of its players. It also favoured a defensive game, which were the tactics adopted by the Green and White. This style of play very nearly proved their undoing, for the Colts, despite the hard going, stayed right on the job and never desisted from their efforts. Both teams showed themselves in splendid condition and ploughed through the slush at a speed which at times was terrific

In marked contrast to the game at Toronto was the absence of roughness. The heart-to-heart talk of O.H.A. officials apparently had the desired effect. Cain was benched thrice and Spring twice, while Meeking and Sutherland, whose frequent absence from the ice so weakened the team in Toronto, were the only Barrie offenders, and they had but one penalty each. None of the offences were of a serious nature and there was no ill-feeling shown between the teams.

SPORT GOSSIP

144,000 BATS FOR "SAMMIES."

The shipment of 144,000 baseball bats, the largest in baseball history, has been started from Louisville, Ky., for the Lorraine sector of the Western fighting front in Europe, according to officials of the Young Men's Christian Association, who were arranging yesterday the details for transshipment to transports for the trip overseas. The bats now going forward are part of an order placed in January, when hundreds of thousands of baseballs, mitts, fielders' gloves, chest protectors, masks and shin guards were called for by the Y.M.C.A. for use in the camps and cantonments of the United States and in France with the expeditionary forces.

HORSEMAN PAST THE DRAFT ACE ENLISTS.

Wealthy, happily married, with a family of children, and himself well past the draft age, Louis Lee Haggin, of Lexington, Ky., has joined the United States Army as an enlisted man in the Medical Corps at Camp Zachary Taylor, after having tried in vain to get into the fighting forces.

Mr. Haggin is widely known in the horse world as a breeder of hackneys and thoroughbreds, and as an exhibitor of trotters and saddle horses at the shows. He owns the champion harness mare Hildred, and in 1916 won several prizes with Chetah, a trotting mare, at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden.

GEORGE BURNS TO FRANCE.

Philadelphia, Pa.—George Burns, the new first baseman secured from Detroit by the Philadelphia Athletics Baseball Club, probably will not play for Connie Mack this season. Instead he will go to France as a member of a hospital unit, unless his application for enlistment is rejected.

It is necessary for Burns, who is in the draft, to obtain transfer by his draft board. This formality, the chairman stated, will be granted immediately, if it is found that Burns will not be called soon.

The loss of Burns will be severely felt by his team, as it leaves Mack without a first baseman.

IN THE GIANTS' CAMP.

Marlin, Texas.—Larry Doyle, the Giants' second baseman, was never in better physical condition than right now, judging by his all around playing in the first day's workout at the Marlin training camp. Not only has Larry entirely recovered the use of the leg that was broken during the latter part of the season of 1916, when he was a Chicago Cub, but his throwing arm, which had been weak for several years, is apparently as strong and as true as in his youthful days, which he showed by his swift and accurate throwing during both the morning and afternoon periods of practice.

Doyle's batting was also right up to the old mark he set with the Giants. He made two terrific drives over the right field fence, the first of the training season, and he hit the ball very hard and consistently. Larry has been working out in Jacksonville, Fla., for a month before going to Hot Springs, Ark., and has recently got his second wind. He bids fair to be a tower of strength to the Giants this season, provided, of course, Herzog goes with the Boston Braves.

Lew McCarty, too, who had a broken ankle in Cincinnati in midseason last year, and who also had a shoulder seriously injured in the last world's series, has apparently fully recovered from both injuries, and will be as good as ever this year. He showed no signs of weakness in his legs when running to first base, and his hitting also was very hard.

In fact, all of the regulars who appeared on the field at Emerson Park, intact for the first time this season, batted strongly. Doyle, McCarty, Kauff and Young, who replaces Dave Robertson, excelling in long drives. The pitching for the morning practice was done by Causey, Swigler, Hogan and Tesreau. None of the four used anything but speed, and they tried to put the ball over the plate, but still the good batting eyes of the regulars was encouragingly promising.

The regular followed the following batting order, which will probably be the one used at the start of the championship season: Burns, Young, Kauff, Doyle, Zimmerman, Fletcher, Holke, McCarty or Rariden and the pitchers.

The regular infield also took fielding practice in the afternoon and showed up well.

McGRAW AND HERZOG EACH HAVE A SAY

John McGraw, says Herzog was a trouble maker during the season of 1917. Further, he says as a ball player Herzog is slipping. That evens it, for it is certain Herzog believes McGraw as a manager is slipping. At the time of the world's series he was not backward in saying so.

If bluntness is a virtue, the ex-Giant captain is an extremely virtuous young gentleman. In Chicago last October he said McGraw had leaned heavily upon him presumably for inspiration, during the 1917 season, and that the Giants' leader was sadly lacking in both the fire and dash that had made him famous.

It was evident that the two did not "Mocha and Java," and Herzog's eventual release was "in the air" even as early as October, when he was talking largely of suing the Giants for the salary he had been denied during his self-elected vacation.

Now McGraw says Herzog will probably be through as a player in 1919. Herzog is yet to be heard from as to when McGraw will be through as a manager!

COST OF PRODUCING BREAD IN PETERBORO'

Ottawa, March 20. — Commissioner O'Connor has issued a report for January, showing the cost of bread production. In the Dominion as a whole the cost was one-fiftieth of a cent per pound more than December. Toronto, which is representative of Ontario, shows an increase of one-tenth of a cent per pound. There are six centres showing decrease, mostly in western Canada.

The total cost of production of bread per pound in various cities, including cost of delivery, etc., are given by the Commissioner as follows: Ottawa, 6.324; Kingston, Belleville and Peterboro, 5.514; Hamilton, 6.673; Brantford, 6.051; St. Catharines and Niagara Falls, 6.641; London 6.654; Guelph, Brantford and Kitchener, 6.621; St. Thomas, 6.779; Chatham, 6.793; Cobalt, 6.737. Average for the whole Dominion, 6.806.

LETTER FROM A PETERBOROUGH PRISONER OF WAR

In a letter received yesterday from a prisoner of war in Germany, he advises all who write to prisoners to put the prisoner's address on the head of the letter, as the new rules in Germany demand that the envelopes be destroyed before the letter is delivered; thus many letters are lost.

Don't if you are a man, deliberately kick a poor, little, helpless girl baby. Brace up and take something your own size.

NO TALK AT THE PINCH

BY A SOLDIER

There are times when condolences are an injury and when advice, even good advice, is a wicked thing to offer. Here are two incidents which illustrate this.

On the Monaro table and beneath the Australian Alps there are trout streams where a fish of a pound weight will fight so sturdily that you think you have hooked a shark; and glens and swamps where duck, plover, swan, and other wild fowl are to be had by the hundred, or the thousand, as you wish. To get this sport, amid the scenery, as grand as any in the world, of a pleateau which is swept by the gentle winds from the Pacific, it is necessary to be hardy enough for tent life and skillful enough to drive a pair of Walers with a strong buggy over roadless country.

One Autumn a rather elderly friend persuaded me to take him out with me. The summer in the law courts he had found trying. He wanted a "refresher" not of the legal kind. We were four days from a railway station when it became clear that my friend was going to be ill, very seriously ill. As it proved in the event, he was sickening from typhoid before we started.

Horses' heads were turned towards the railway, and we pushed the horses hard. My friend stood the test wonderfully well I assured him every morning and every hour almost that he looked much better; that when we got to the railway he would want to turn back for mere shooting. He would smile, or try to smile, and try to believe. He kept his courage up, and by two days' forced marches we had got within a day of the railway town and of safety. The third day my man, who was with us to cook and clean up, let his sympathy loose. He told my friend how ill he looked and how sorry he was for him. It was nearly fatal. The sick man had the strength to get through whilst his courage was not weakened by croaking. Subjected to croaking he almost collapsed. The last day of the journey was a terrible one. We only just did it. Without the croak we should have done it comfortably.

Recalling this incident the next year to a Monaro friend who was a bullock-driver, a calling which demands a certain blasphemous eloquence at times, and at other times silence and action, he commented as follows:

"'Spose you didn't kill the man who croaked? Felt like it though? I know. I remember once on the Black Soil Plain, two years ago, the year of the big floods. The little Township of Terriehihi was surrounded by the floods for weeks; people really starving for food. I had a ton of Tucker on my old dray, and as fine a team of twenty bullocks as ever hauled.

We were fighting our way in pretty well, mud up to the beasts' eyeballs, when one afternoon, almost in sight of home, we got stuck in a bit of a hollow, where I swear the mud was up to their horn-tips. It was only a few yards to better holding, and the bullocks were doing their durnedest, and I was, too, when the bloke who was with me, one of those clever argumentative blokes, you know, he came along advising of me, telling me I had better unyoke the two leads and swop them with two others, and so on.

"Being busy as I was at the time, and every second that dray was in the hollow being more and more fatal, so to speak, I said nothing, but I just plugged that bloke. I believe his front teeth haven't been much use since." The "bullock's" simple remedy is more easy to admire than to imitate. The people who croak and the people who offer advice at the steepest pinch on the hill are probably well meaning enough, and as we are a democratic and not a Prussian community we must even put up with them. But cannot they get the light to see for themselves that we are, as an Empire, at a steep place; that we have any amount of strength, and to spare, to get through? But every croak lessens that strength; and everyone who gets up to criticize some little detail and to suggest some little alteration diffuses that strength. The time now is not for talk; it is for a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether.
